REGULATING THE STOMACH

That Important Organ Works According to the Quality of the Blood That Is Furnished to It.

There is the most intimate relation between the condition of the blood and the activity of the stomach. The blood depends upon the stomach for a large part of its nourishment; while every act of digestion, from the time the food enters the stomach until it is digested and assimilated by the blood, needs plenty of pure, well-oxidized blood. The stomach works only according to the quality of the blood.

The most common cause of indigestion is anæmia, or lack of blood. Indeed there is not a single disturbance of the health of the body nor any form of exhaustion or lowered vitality, that may not lead to stomach trouble. Disordered blood is the one common cause of indigestion. Thin, impure blood weakens the muscles of the stomach and lessens the product of the glands which furnish the digestive fluids.

Nothing will more promptly cure indigestion than plenty of pure, well-oxidized blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People increase the red corpuscles, the oxygen-carriers of the blood, until the blood is rich and red. A thorough trial of these pills gives a hearty appetite, perfect digestion, strength and health.

Mrs. Emma M. Mayne, of No. 635 Second avenue, Clinton, Iowa, says: "I had just worked myself out bringing up a family of five children and, while in this run-down condition, I took sick with some kind of stomach trouble. I doctored with several physicians and saw a specialist in Chicago but received little help. I could not eat anything with relish and could not sleep. I would have deathly sick spells and would vomit. I had terrible headaches and dizzy spells. I got very thin and my friends thought I was going into consumption. I doctored for a year or so without help. While visiting a niece she told me that she took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, so I tried them. They soon helped me and a few boxes entirely cured me."

WILLING TO SHARE PENNIES

Generous Act of Street Waif That Gained Him a Friend in Great Novelist.

Charles Dickens, the creator of many delightful child characters, earned a million dollars during his lifetime with his pen, but often walked the streets of London in search of material for his books without a penny in his pocket.

One evening while doing this he was accosted by a small boy who asked him for a penny. Dickens searched his pockets, but they were empty, and so he told the boy, who was shivering in the cold.

"Poor man!" exclaimed the little fellow, "we'll go hunks together!"

Dickens stood back in the shadow of the street to see what the outcome would be. The lad continued to beg, and finally gained two pennies. He came dancing to Dickens with a jolly ring in his voice.

"Now," he said, "we'll have two hot buns apiece."

Such a generous spirit under such trying circumstances struck Dickens so forcibly that he took the lad home with him, and there he was fed and clothed, and started on the road to a better life.

Treed by a Goat

By Grace Kerrigan

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

The Carney estate had been divided up among the heirs after long litigation, and young Harold had taken possession of "The Oaks." They began calling him "Young" when he was young, and although he had arrived at the age of twenty-four he was called "Young Carney" oftener than Harold.

"The Oaks" was a fine old manor house and grounds, but the place had been neglected. To make a survey and see if all the land was there was the first thing to do; the next was to clear up the ground and make repairs.

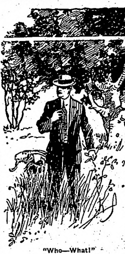
The house and grounds to the west constituted "The Brambles." There was a young woman in this house. Professor Nansen, widower and owner, would have called it "The Briars" or "The Thistles," but his only child and daughter had brought him to a halt. Thistles, briars, burdocks and pig-weeds are not romantic. Brambles are. They signify a sort of tangle, but not too much.

Father, daughter and Aunt Jane had read and heard that "The Oaks" was to have a permanent tenant in one of the heirs, but had not been curious about it. The professor was compiling a new arithmetic and gave little heed to the world, and the sister and daughter didn't see how the change was to make any change in their daily lives.

When one has come into possession of land the wise thing is to have a surveyor run the lines and see if they agree with the deed. It is only polite to call on the party next door and see if he has any objection. Mr. Carney called on Professor Nansen and stated his case.

"Why, with all my heart," was the reply as the professor went back to his figures.

Miss Hattie and Aunt Jane were not at home. As a matter of fact, they were away for a week. One call on the professor was sufficient to start the surveyor at work, but it needed a second to inform the man of figures that he was occupying a strip five feet wide and two hundred feet long which rightly belonged to his neighbor's estate. He brought out his deeds, gave the matter a minute's attention and replied:



"Who—What!"

"Yes, of course—of course. Matters do get tangled up in the course of a hundred years. Go ahead and take all the land you want."

At the rear end of "The Brambles" was a dell. Some folks might not have called it a dell, but Miss Hattie did. At least, it was a shady spot to which she retired on a hot day to read, think or write a poem. It was her very own dell. No other person had a moral or legal right there. If Aunt Jane wanted her at the house when she was in her dell she had to go to the back door and utter a long, quavering yell—sometimes two or three of them. The yells drove away the romance, but they brought the young lady.

In due time the week was up and Miss Hattie and Aunt Jane returned. The professor said, "Howdy-do" and let it go at that. Not a word about the new man at "The Oaks," the survey or the loss of the ground!

Next morning the girl tripped down the path to her dell. She had been lonesome for it. Where was it? She stopped short and gazed around her in consternation.

Strayed! Stolen! Abducted! Yes, there was the spot where a dell had been, but never a dell there now! Trees cut down or trimmed—bushes uprooted—the wild cucumber vines dead or dying! Sacrilege of the most awful sort! Aunt Jane didn't have to yell to bring the astonished and indignant girl back to the house. She came on the canter and sought out her father and exclaimed:

"How could you do it—oh, how could you!"

"Ahem! Plus six—minus two and the quotient is sixteen. Ah, it's you? I meant to tell you that we've lost a strip of land. It belonged to the young man."

"But who is he?"

"Fine young man, but I've forgotten his name."

"But he's ruined my dell!"

"Yes, I suppose so. Eighteen and thirteen are thirty-one, and——"

"Father, you shall do something! You have been cheated. You have surrendered your land. I tell you my dell has been rooted out and destroyed! We must do something!"

"Yes, certainly—yes, of course. You see, my dear——"

And Miss Hattie walked straight out of the library, and straight out of the house, and straight down the path to the dell-less dell. She meant to see somebody and raise a row. She was going to demand this and that. Her cheeks burned and her eyes flashed, and the wonder was that the old goat, belonging a mile away, but out for a roam, dared to do what he did. Miss Hattie had a blue ribbon belt about her waist. The goat didn't like it. He lowered his head, roared as well as he could, and a minute later there was a girl up an apple tree and a goat looking all around in a puzzled way. He didn't go home and give it up. He didn't go away at all. He was there to see the thing through.

The girl up the tree could have screamed for help, and Aunt Jane would have come with the broom, and the cook with the mop, but just as she was thinking of it the young man from "The Oaks" came wandering that way to see what the workmen had done. He wasn't bad to look at as he wandered along and planned how he would improve this and that spot, but the situation was not in the least romantic.

Would the goat go for him? No! He wore no blue ribbon! Would he halt and turn back? It was a question. Didn't his demeanor show that he meant to inspect that very apple tree and make sure of the kind and quality of fruit? If the goat would only charge him and knock him unconscious—not fatally injure him, but render him dead to the world for two minutes—just long enough for a girl up a tree to descend with dignity and gain the shelter of the house! But he wouldn't. He never even gave the young man a second glance. Nearer—nearer—nearer—nearer! And then came a voice:

"Go away, sir!"

"Who—what!" he exclaimed with a start.

"Go at once, sir!"

"Can that be the goat speaking to me?"

"It's a girl! Go back to the house!"

"But—but where is the girl?"

The young man's wonderment was genuine. He was looking in every direction but the right one. Right then and there Miss Hattie mentally called him a pudding-head, but he was master of the situation, and she had to explain:

"I'm up a tree. I was afraid of the goat. Please scare him away and then walk in another direction."

"Certainly—certainly."

The goat was given a whack with a handy club, but neither he nor Mr. Carney had traveled thirty feet when there was a yell, a fall and a thud.

"Dear me, but I regret—I beg pardon—I hope——"

"You—you stole our land!" exclaimed the girl as she scrambled to her feet as gracefully as possible. "Yes, you stole our land, and you have stolen my dell, and you knew I was up a tree, and I hate you—hate you!"

With that she was off to the house, walking with what dignity she could, and she left a young man and an old goat behind her to wonder who she was.

The goat hasn't found out yet. The young man went at it right off. He had to call on the professor—and he had to call and apologize about that dell, which he had taken for a crow's roost—and make another call for apology for being alive or something, and months and months later, when he asked a certain question he was answered:

"Yes, after years and years, maybe. I believe you knew I was up that apple tree all the time, and you must take your punishment."

Very Soft One.

"My son is looking for a soft job."

"Then why not put him with a feather bed manufacturer?"

Curiosity That Was Fatal

One Woman Found It Was a Trait That Does Not Go With a Grand Manner.

Charles R. Holden, Chicago attorney, was called upon at a recent banquet and responded with the following story:

"Curiosity is so deeply seated and so natural a trait that it often mars our best intentions. A much esteemed lady enjoyed an excellent social position, and in the later years of her life added to a fine presence the dignity of beautiful white hair. She always preserved a calm and unruffled appearance. One day she had an urgent appointment and could not wait for her auto, so she took a street car. Seeing a seat that had just been vacated she stepped quickly toward it, and with a perceptible start realized that the next occupant was a man who had occupied a brilliant place, and had been well known to her. His eccentricities had increased his notoriety and made him so familiar that many on the car recognized him.

"Fearful lest some joyous remark or even some exaggerated courtesy of greeting on the part of this man should attract the attention of the passengers, and, after her first apprehensive start of surprise, she seated herself with all possible calmness, ignoring her neighbor. Without her noticing what he was doing, in a mildly hilarious mood, he calmly winked at the interested audience in the car and then settled back in his seat. The attention he was getting from the passengers aroused even her curiosity and she turned her head and glanced at her neighbor.

"As she finally came within his view he brightly and jocularly exclaimed: 'Peek-a-boo!' At the next corner the grand old lady left a tumultuously laughing carload of passengers. She was now convinced that curiosity and a grand manner could never be safely indulged in at the same time."

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

If some cooks land in heaven they will be awfully annoyed to find that they leave.

Where He Drew the Line.

An English earl, lately deceased, who had no family, was notorious for his hatred of children, and on one occasion he engaged as lodge keeper an army pensioner named McMicken. Some few months later McMicken's wife presented him with a son and heir. On learning of the occurrence his lordship rode down to the lodge in a terrible rage.

"I hear," said he to Mr. McMicken, "that your wife has a son."

"Yes, my lord," said the man proudly.

"Well, now, look here, McMicken; when I put you here, it was to open and shut a gate, but, by the Lord Harry, not to propagate."

Springs in Their Brains.

Two Frenchmen, in visiting an art gallery, stopped to admire a painting by an American. The artist happened to be in the gallery and in broken English one of the Frenchmen asked: "How did monsieur ever catch such a wonderful picture?"

"O," replied the artist, with a faraway look, "that painting was an offspring of my brain."

The other Frenchman was greatly interested and asked his friend what that American had said.

"I can hardly explain," whispered the first Frenchman excitedly; "he said ze picture was one spring off of his brain. Ees eet any wonder zat ze Americans act queerly when they have springs on their brains?"

Hardly the Sunday School Brand.

The young hopeful had secreted some bright buttons in his pocket, which came from the motor car show. When Sunday school was well under way, he took one out and pinned it on his coat, feeling it an ornament. Unfortunately, when the minister came round to speak to the dear children, his near sighted eyes were caught by the color.

"Well, Richard, I see you are wearing some motto, my lad. What does it say?"

"You read it, sir," replied Richard, hanging his head.

"But I cannot see. I haven't my glasses, son. Read it so we can all hear you."

Richard blushed. "It says, sir, 'Ain't it —— to be poor?'"—Metropolitan Magazine.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Fergus Falls.—At a convention of the Young People's societies of Hauge churches of northern Minnesota, held in Zion Lutheran church in this city, a permanent union was formed and hereafter conventions will be held annually.

Minneapolis. — An unidentified man, apparently lying at full length on the street car tracks, was ground to pieces by a Columbia Heights car at Thirty-fifth and Central avenues. The remains were taken to the morgue. Coroner Seashore is investigating.

Red Wing.—A hailstorm killed 150 chickens belonging to Charles Peterson in White Willow. Nearly all the boards were blown off the new barn of Will Schultz, and a line of picket fence was taken by the severe wind and carried twenty rods, landing on a bridge connecting the two farms.

Winona.—The first filing in Winona under the provisions of the act passed at the last session of the legislature providing for non partisan nominations for judges and educators has been made. A. C. Loomis, head of the Lewiston considated schools, has filed for county superintendent of schools.

Luverne.—Chicken stealing has become a matter of importance in some parts of this county. Albert Anson of Clinton township had 300 of his best chickens stolen from his poultry house. Other thefts are reported and no trace of the thieves has been found. A reward of $100 has been offered for the capture of the thieves.

Minneapolis. — Two small boys were downed at Oakdale, in Washington county, just across the boundary line of St. Paul, Minn. The accident made a total of ten drownings in the district since the bathing season opened. The two were the small sons of Blaine Lewis, John, 4 years old, and Albert, 2 years old.

Minneapolis. — Montana, with its grain fields in prime condition and the largest acreage ever covered, sent into Minneapolis the most significant crop news that has emanated from any source this year, based upon the expectation of railroad traffic men that 70,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels of grain will be harvested in that state if present conditions are maintained.

Minneapolis. — A young man, who gave his name as H. G. McDonald, St. Paul, was seriously injured when an automobile which he was driving crashed into the lamp post at the head of the Selby tunnel, St. Paul. Two others in the car gave their names as Joe Dow and W. D. Ganzee, but the police say that these names are fictitious. The police believe that the three stole the automobile, but failed to hold the other two men.

Osakis. — The Ancient and Honorable Order of the Blue Goose new officers are: Most loyal gander, Joseph L. King, Minneapolis; supervisor of the flock, E. L. Colburn, St. Paul; custodian of the goslings, Byron K. Sowles, Minneapolis; keeper of the golden goose egg, John B. Lee of Minneapolis; wielder of the goosequill, N. G. Burgster, Minneapolis; guardian of the pond, John A. Hanson, Minneapolis. Three goslings had their feathers put to soak.

Duluth.—Flies are so numerous, so large and so vicious in the northern woods, that the wild animals are being driven from their haunts and are seeking the lake shore and the streams. A full grown bull moose wandered into Woodland, a fashionable residence suburb of Duluth. Earlier in the week a moose was killed by a freight train at Short Line Park, only eight or nine miles from the city hall. Old-time hunters say the flies probably are responsible. They say the insects have never been so thick in the woods, owing to the wet spring.

St. Paul. — Resolutions were adopted at the meeting of the Roosevelt followers of the Fourth district at the Merchants' hotel in St. Paul, calling on their chairman, Hugh T. Halbert to suggest to the chairmen of the other districts a mass meeting of district delegates to be held at some time and place agreeable to the other districts, for the purpose of electing state delegates to the national convention which the new party is expecting to hold in August. The meeting was attended by about 50 persons and was devoted to a discussion of how Roosevelt could be put on a state ticket.

Minneapolis. — Reports show that 2,231 women went in swimming at the park bathing beaches during the last two weeks in June, when the bath houses were open. This demonstrates a marked increase in interest among women in beach bathing as compared with three years ago, when women first began to go in swimming in public places in Minneapolis. Three years ago about 350 women donned bathing suits during the entire season. There were 645 in swimming at Glenwood lake the last week of June and 372 at Lake Nokomis, while at Camden 1,214 women went swimming in the last five days of June.

Red Wing.—Dora Guenther, 19 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Guenther, living five miles northwest of Zumbrota, was instantly killed by lightning. The young woman and others were picking strawberries. Noticing the aproaching storm, all but Dora went in the house. She waited to fill her dish, and a bolt of lightning struck her in the neck. Bertha Guenther, aged 17, who went in search of her sister, fainted when she found the lifeless body. Anton, a brother, who conducts the Ideal restaurant in Zumbrota, when acquainted with the news, also fell in a faint.

Minneapolis. — The body of a man with the throat cut and evidence of a struggle in bruises about the head was discovered Monday, by John Christianson, an Anoka county farmer, on the shore of Moore lake, 2½ miles across the Anoka county line from Columbia Heights. Anoka county officers suspect foul play. It was believed that the body had been lying on the wooded shores of the lake for ten days. The ground near it was covered with dried blood, and a bloody pocket knife, open, lay a few feet away. A closed pocket knife helps dispose of the theory that the wound was self

JOHN'S FRIENDS WERE LOYAL

Young Bride Got Early Proof of the Way Men Will Stick by One Another.

The bridegroom of three months bade his wife adieu one morning and started on a business trip to a town 25 miles distant. The journey was to be made by automobile and he promised to return in time for seven o'clock dinner as usual.

But no husband appeared when dinner was served and the anxious wife watched the hands of the clock as they journeyed on and announced that the hour was midnight, and still the husband failed to apear. The frantic wife sent telegrams to six friends of the groom living in the town where he might have gone, asking if he was spending the night with them. As dawn appeared a farm wagon drove up containing a farmer and the missing husband and furnishing motor power for a broken down automobile that trailed behind. Almost simultaneously came a messenger boy with an answer to one of the telegrams, followed at intervals by five others and all of the telegrams said:

"Yes, John is spending the night with me."

Ruling Spirit Still Strong.

Mrs. J. L. Story, who has just published a volume of reminiscences, tells of a lady relative who had all her life been afraid of damp sheets. When she was dying Mrs. Story entered the room, to find the fireplace barricaded with a large assortment of bed linen. She was having her winding sheet warmed.

"I never have lain in damp bedclothes while I was alive," said the old lady in a feeble whisper, "and I'm not going to do it when I'm dead."

And So True, Too.

Father was walking to Sunday-school with little Johnny, and endeavoring to improve the time by teaching Johnny his Golden Text, the words of which were: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Johnny repeated it after his father several times, and seemed to have mastered the correct wording.

As they drew near the Sunday-school the father gave Johnny his last rehearsal. "Now, son," he said, "let's have the Golden Text once more without any help from me:

This is what he got from Johnny: "Whatsoever a man sews always rips."—Harper's Bazar.

If there ever is a time when you are justified in cussing,
It is when the summer weather sets your appetite to fussing;
But there isn't any need to risk your soul and shock the neighbors—
Tempt your appetite with Toasties and go singing to your labors.

A lawyer in a court room may call a man a liar, scoundrel, villian or thief, and no one makes complaint when court adjourns. If a newspaper prints such a reflection on a man's character there is a liable suit or a dead editor. This is owing to the fact that people believe what an editor says.

Who weeps with you when you are sad, and laughs when your are glad, and smiles at you when you are mad—the editor. Who has to be both kind and wise and never (hardly ever) lies, and when he does creates surprise—the editor. Who owns a heart as well as cheek, possessed of spirit proud yet meek, and lives on forty cents a week—the editor.

Put some men in a petty office and they use up the most of their time working out their petty grudges against some one whom they imagine did not support them at the poles. They may be the worst hobos on earth, that cuts no ice. You must say nothing but take your medicine and shout their greatness or you are a victim of their spleen. Did you ever notice this?

Here is a list of questions for the wide awake boys. Can you answer all of them? You can any day see a white horse, why do you seldom see a white colt? How many different kinds of trees grow in your neighborhood, and what are they good for? Why does a horse eat grass backward and a cow forward? Why does a hop vine always wind one way and a bean vine another? Where should the inside of a chimney be the bigger; at the top or bottom and why? Can you tell why a horse, when tethered with a rope, always unravels it, while a cow always twists it into kinky knots? Why do leaves turn upside down just before a rain? What is the length of a horses head—is it as long as a flour barrel? What animals have no upper teeth in front, and why?

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil l cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Reason Why Children Die.

So close is the present day connection between the city and country, that the habits of cleanliness of farmers, especially those who sell milk, has a close relation to the number of deaths of young children. July, August and September are the months when the greatest number of small children die of intestinal diseases. It has been found that these same months are the ones in which milk contains the largest number of bacteria, the high point in both cases being August.

The bacteria in milk which a grown person may drink and never know it often causes the death of children. The bacteria cannot be seen, and unless attention has been called to it, the farmer does not know how they get in the milk. But no milk is absolutely free from these germs, and they grow with marvelous rapidity, especially if the milk is warm. This is why milk should be cooled and kept cool after it comes from the cow, and of course great care should be taken to prevent dirt of any sort on the cow or around the milk pail. No one wants to be even the unconscious cause of the death of a child.

Gollmar Brothers Circus

This is an age of immence proportions, the scale of every project is being constantly enlarged. This is certanly true of the circus business. The sleeping cars of a circus are fitted with stationary berths that cannot be folded away, as in a Pullman. They are more commodious and commodious and comfortable than those in the palace cars.

An extra sleeper is required because of the manny preformers and musicians. This too, is a stateroom car, and cost in the neighborhood of $5,000. In order that they might prevail upon certain preformers, who had never traveled with a circus to join his galaxy of stars, the Gollmar Brothers have had several stateroom cars built. If the readers could look in upon the occupants of these cottages on wheels, they would be surprised by the homelike appearance of the furnishings, the shelves of books and magazinei, the cozy corners, and bric-a-brac. It all tends to make the life of the preformers a plesant one, but it is a very expensive undertaking for the circus manager.

About the only complaint heard of Gollmar Brothers Show last season was that it was to big. There was to much of it. In spite of this, the magnitude of this show will be more bewildering than ever this year. In order to secure the superior talent, the new and orignal acts to be seen with the Gollmer Brothers Circus, it is necessary that even for this year alone, there should be an outlay of $30,000 above the allotted amount.

When this modern great tented enterprise visits Red Lake Falls Tuesday July 16; Thief River Falls Wednesday July 17, the universal verdict will be that such preformers are entitled to all the comforts of home.

Mail Carriers Will Fly

This is an age of great discoveries. Progress rides on the air. Soon we may see Uncle Sam's mail carriers flying in all directions, transporting mail. People take a wonderful interest in a discovery that benefits them. That's why Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs, Colds and other throat and lung diseases is the most popular medicine in America. "It cured me of a dreadful cough," writes Mrs. J.F. Davis, Stickney Corner, Me., "after doctor's treatment and all other remedies had failed." For coughs, colds or any bronchial affection its unequaled. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

MAY ASK TAFT TO WITHDRAW NAME

REPUBLICAN OFFICEHOLDERS WILL CIRCULATE A NATION-WIDE PETITION.

FEAR OF DEFEAT, CAUSE.

Roosevelt May Also Be Asked to Give Way to Compromise Choice for Sake of Harmony.

Washington, July 9. — A nation wide movement to petition President Taft to withdraw as a Republican presidential candidate is being backed by a large number of Republican office holders who feel that they face defeat in November unless the breach in the party can be healed.

These men include members of congress, members of state legislatures that will elect United States senators, state and county office holders and party candidates.

If the movement to petition Mr. Taft to withdraw succeeds in gaining any volume, it is said these same men, in the interest of party harmony, may ask Colonel Roosevelt also to withdraw as a prospective candidate for an independent nomination and permit a compromise selection of some man agreeable to both factions.

It is the desire of the promoters of the scheme that a decision shall be reached before August 5, when the Roosevelt faction plans to hold a convention in Chicago.

The circulation of petitions, it was declared, would be made within a week. It was said the movement would begin spontaneously in every state.

The organizers now are circulating blank forms of petitions and appointing supervisors who, in turn, will engage canvassers to solicit the signatures of Republican voters.

The authors of the plan expect to offer to practically every Republican voter in the United States a chance to express his opinion of Mr. Taft's candidacy, either by signing the petition, or rejecting it.

The movement is in the hands of several well known members of congress. They are being aided by many of the extreme Roosevelt Republicans. The enlistment of the national Progressive organization in the movement has been sought and it was said that Senator Dixon's organization was willing to co-operate.

Information that the petitions were to be put before the voters has just leaked out.

No particular person is authority for the statement and members of congress concerned were unwilling to stand sponsor for it until the movement was under way.

In the circulation of the anti-Taft petitions an effort will be made to get them signed by organization Republicans and others who have stood with the president as well as by citizens who have occupied neutral ground.

There will be no special effort made to get Progressive Republican signatures as it is believed that to confine the petitions to that faction would encompass the defeat of the movement.

The sponsors of the plan say one of its first results would be to let Mr. Taft know if there are considerable number of Republicans who believe he should step aside in the interest of harmony.

MAN SLOWLY OSSIFYING.

St. Paul, July 9.—St. Luke's hospital, has a patient who has lived within its walls for nine years. He is Charles J. Murphy of Marshfield, Minn., 24 years old. Nine years ago he limped into the hospital on crutches and was put to bed. He is suffering from a disease as mysterious as any which ever baffled medical science. He is slowly ossifying, turnto solid bone. According to the physicians when this ossifying process reaches the heart he will die. It may be in a year; it may not be for a number of years.

Extends 8-Hour Law.

Washington, July 9.—Attorney General Wickersham has rendered an opinion which will extend the eight-hour labor law to every mechanic and laborer employed by the United States Previous interpretations of the law confined its operation mainly to "public works," such as fortifications, buildings, etc.

Strike Disorder in New York.

New York, July 9.—Serious disorders in connection with the seamen's strike has broken out here. A man believed to be a striker was killed, a Brooklyn policeman probably fatally shot, another policeman seriously injured and a strike breaker probably fatally wounded.

Hall at Ardoch.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 9.—Ardoch was swept by a terrific hail storm which covers a district about three miles wide and eight or nine miles long, from the southwest to the northeast. In the town of Ardoch, practically every window was broken. Ice was banked to the depth of a foot agains tthe sides of buildings in that town, and in the country districts on the open prairie, it fell to the depth of about an inche and a half.

Luverne.—Chicken stealing has become a matter of importance in some parts of this county. Albert Anson of Clinton township had 300 of his best chickens stolen from his poultry house. Other thefts are reported and no trace of the thieves has been found. A reward of $100 has been offered for the capture of the thieves.

THE CITY PARK PROPOSITION

Fine Location For Public Park Just North of Newly Constructed Bridge.

CONTAINS ABOUT FIVE ACRES

Town Can Get It If Active Steps Are Taken To Promote Proposition.

Shall Plummer have a public park is a question that has arisen within the past week, and one that diserves the attention of every citizen. Located just north of the new bridge that spans the Clearwater lays one of the most beautiful spots in Red Lake county, and one that could with a little trouble be converted into an elegant park. A more suitable site for a park it is certain could not be found than this little stretch of land which borders on the river bank, one of the most picturesque spots along the entire Clearwater river. Cutting away the underbrush a large amount of shade trees, of oak, balsam and various other kinds, will remain to provide shade at all hours of the day. We believe that an opportunity of securing as lucrative a spot for a park as this one will not repeat itself to the people of Pummer and some action should be taken at once to ascertain the sentiment of the people regarding the proposition. If the people wills it that is all that is necessary to carry the proposition through. A neatly prepared park is the pride of all towns large and small and why not follow the example of the more modern towns, and provide for the social welfare of the town in the future while the opportunity knocks at our door.

READERS, TAKE NOTICE

We call our readers attention to the instructions printed below which we have received from the postoffice department within the past week. It admonishes all newspaper publishers to comply with these regulations and the only way this can be done is with the co-operation of the subscribers. We desire to have all our subcribers who are uncertain whether or not they are paid up to look up the date on the little red slip that contains their name, or if you are not sure of the meaning of these figures call in at the office or write, and have us look it up for you. Do not delay, but do this immediately as we are compelled to inforce the provisions printed below:

"The right of publishers to extend in good faith credit on subscriptions is recognized and will not be abridged, and although all subscriptions are regarded as expiring with the period for which they are obtained, nevertheless, in order to give an opportunity to secure renewals, copies of their publications will be accepted for mailing to subscribers at the usual second-class rates of postage for a period of one year from the date expiration; but copies sent to persons after the expiration of their subscriptions, unless such subscriptions be expressly renewed for a definite time together with an actual payment of subscription or a bona fide promise of payment, will not be accepted at the pound rate but will be accepted at transient second class rate of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof, prepaid by stamps affixed."

In a practice game played between part of the Oklee and the local team here Sunday a victory resulted in favor of the former by a score of 6 to 5. Owing to the drizzling rain which lasted a big part of the day the idea of base ball was given up, when about four o'clock an automobile containing five of the Oklee players was seen plowing its way through the mud en route here to battle with the locals. Another auto containing the remaining four players, it was found later, had broke down on the road en route and had been forced to turn back. It was decided, however, as long as part of the visitors were here to arrange a game and four local players were substituted for those that did not arrive, as well as a few on the local team to make up for their scarcity of men. Through one or two unfortunate errors the visitors managed to score four at their first turn to bat. On the strength of some good hits the locals brought in five scores, but the game was called in the 7th to allow the visitors to go home before dark. The weather conditions were such that it was impossible to put up an article of ball.

Sufficient rain has fallen in this section recently to make up for lost time, and the crops are being benifitted greatly thereby. Some of the grain on the sandy or high places have suffered slightly from the intense heat which prevailed up to about a week, while the rest remains unharmed and in excellent condition.

With the promise for high prided eggs for the coming winter, many farmers have already put away eggs now in water glasses for use or sale during the cold weather. Strictly fresh eggs packed in this way cannot be distinguished from new laid eggs six or eight months, and they have been known to keep for several years. Eggs have been higher this summer than a year ago but the prospect is that they will cost still more in six months.

To judge by reports from sections around us we have so far been fortunate in not having been visited by storms of any kind. The horrors of the cyclone that completely swept out about half of Regina, Canada, killing a large number of people, injuring hundreds, and doing damage to property to the extent of thousands of dollars, when reports were currant of a destructive tornado which had swept a portion of North Dakota, and doing an amount of damage both to life and property. Last Saturday when we were enjoying the balmy sunshiny weather a cyclone swept Minneaplois and leaving the destruction of many hundreds of dollars of property in its path, while one fatility and injuries to others are reported. Hail and minor other storms are plentiful according to reports, all of which we have so far been spared, which all goes to show that beside being the most productive section of the northwest our climate is positively not to be sneezed at.

An organized effort is being made to make Red Lake county's exhibit at the coming state fair the best advertisement of the rescources of the county possible. H. T. A State Fair Market Day will be held in this city Thursday, August 29. It is the purpose to encourage the farmers to bring in their best vegetables, grains, and grasses in small quantities to be turned over to Mr. McAnulty to be used in the preparation of the exhibit. DESTROY THE CANADIAN THISTLE

Take Precautions Against the Spreading of This the Most Damaging Weed.

COMPLY WITH NOXIOUS WEED LAW!

Failure to Comply With This Law is Punishable By Fine Taxable Against Property.

Now is the time for farmers and property holders to turn their attention to foul weeds, and the Canadian Thistle in particular, that infest the public roads and their property. Make a thorough search of your property and your half of the public roads. Not too much time can be spent at this work, and it is positively necessary in order to check the increase of these pests. The noxious weeds law makes it cumpulsory for every property owner to destroy all noxious weeds or else submit to a fine on failure to do this. We publish herewith a clause from the Noxious Weeds Law to give our readers an idea as to the requirements of this law:

"No person owning, occupying, renting or controlling land, shall permit any wild mustard, wild oats, cocklebur, burdock or tumble mustard, Canada thistle, ox-eye daisy or quack grass to grow or go to seed thereon, and shall not permit any Russian thistle to grow or remain thereon.""For the purpose of this law, every man's land is considered to extend to the middle of the road, and is his duty to keep his half of the road free from any noxious weeds."

Active Work Towards Constructon of Catholic Church to Begin Soon.

Work of soliciting aid for the construction of the Catholic church was commenced last week and it is expected that sufficient amount will be subscribed in a short time so the church could be started this fall. On his regular trip here last month to hold mass Fr. LeFloch visited forty catholic families who would be enrolled as members of the parish and who would subscribe aid towards the construction of the church.

TO MOVE THEIR ELEVATOR

Hanson & Barzen Milling Co. to Prepare Their Second Elevator For Service.

The Hanson & Barzen elevator, known as the south elevator, is to be moved about 20 rods north of its present site where it will be remodled and improved and will be prepared for active service. Work of cleaning it out in preparation for the work was commenced last week. The elevator will be located just south of the railroad crossing, a more central location than its present site. The elevator it is expected will be ready to take care of the grain this fall, and with anticipations of good crops will be pressed into good service.

Alfred Fox, a young fellow who had been hanging around Brooks for several days, hired a team from the Brooks livery barn about 12 o'clock Saturday night. He wanted the the team, he said, for a short drive into the country. He was accompanied by a young lady, Miss Alexina Bouchier, and that the young fellow had any criminal intentions was not suspected. But the short drive became a longer one. The young man has not returned, neither has the young lady, nor the team. It is now known that the young man has a criminal record. He was released from the St. Cloud reformatory on parole on April 8. May 31 he broke his parol and the authorities have since been trying to effect his capture. The livery outfit stolen was a pair of buckskin horses and a yellow gear Thompson buggy. The authorities at Warren tell of seeing an outfit answering closely the description of the property. Sheriff Fellman has warrants out for the arrest of both Fox and the young lady. The man who can effect the capture of Fox will be well paid for his trouble for a reward of $250 is offered for his capture.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

The Crookston Times says that on July 3rd Attorney Charles Loring, a representative of Charles G. Sall, of Plummer, who is administrator of the estate of his brother, Nels Oscar Sall, who disappeared from Alaska several years ago, and is supposed to be dead, for a consideration of $50,000. The story of Nels Oscar Sall's disappearance a few years ago is well known, and it is supposed he was the victim of foul play but no clues have ever been discovered, he having apparantly dropped off the earth shortly after a visit with his brother at Plummer. Mr. Loring made a trip to Alaska [illegible] winds up the disposition of the mining proposition, which is undeveloped, but very valuable.

Quite a large crowd from Plummer went up to Thief River Wednesday evening to take in the evening performance of the Gollmar Bros. circus.

In Winona county where there has been much agitation over good roads private subscription amounting to $31,000 have been obtained to assist in building roads there. This, with aid from the country, will permit a state highway without assessing the property owners. In Delaware a millionare has built a concrete high way the length of the state and has donated it to the people for their use forever. Under the Elwell law there is ample provision for people giving money and roads to the country for the public. Since the courts have approved this measure many county commissioners are preparing to get the liberal support from the state provided under this enactment.

To Play at Thief River Sunday

The local base ball team will go to Thief River Sunday to play the "Pickets," who recently played with the locals here. This promises to be a fast contest and it is expected that quite a delegation of "rooters" will go along with the team to cheer them on to victory.

SHOOTS WIFE AND TAKES OWN LIFE

WOMAN, WHO MAY RECOVER, TRIES FRANTICALLY TO OPEN DOOR AND ESCAPE.

CHILDREN MISS TRAGEDY

Husband, Believed Temporarily Insane, Had Threatened Suicide—Man Was Cripple.

Minneapolis. — Mr. William Phipps, a cripple, who shot and wounded his wife, possibly fatally, and then killed himself at their home in Wayzata, after she had asked him to go into the kitchen and pick over some currants. Phipps was believed by physicians and neighbors to have been demented at the time.

The woman was striving desperately to unlatch the door of a screened-in front porch and escape when her husband, who had pursued her from the kitchen through their house to the porch, opened fire. Two shots went wild, the third striking Mrs. Phipps beside the right shoulder and passing through her body into the chest cavity.

Two young daughters, who had left the house to go berry picking a few moments earlier, barely escaped being witnesses of the tragedy. When they heard the shots they hurried home to find neighbors breaking in the screen door to reach their mother, who lay moaning on the porch. F. H. Snure, cashier of the Wayzata State bank, whose home is across the street, was the only eye witness of the shooting.

To make sure of his own death after his wife fell, Phipps ran back through the house, took a dose of carbolic acid and then shot himself through the head, dying instantly. Sheriff Otto Langum learned from neighbors that Phipps had been quarrelsome and that on Thanksgiving day, 1911, Harold Phipps, a 17-year-old son, had saved his mother when the cripple threatened her with a baseball bat.

William Phipps had been a cripple since he was struck by an automobile in Minneapolis more than a year ago. Recently he had discarded his crutches and had made a scant living hobbling about Wayzata on two canes, peddling stockings.

In a brief verbal statement made to a neighbor before she lost consciousness after the shooting, Mrs Phipps told the bare details of the shooting. She said her husband throughout breakfast today had been kinder to her than for weeks. When breakfast was finished about 7 a. m. the two daughters, Helen, aged 12, and Arvilla, aged 15, started berry picking. They had hardly left the house when, according to Mrs. Phipps' story, her husband kindly asked her what he could do for her to make the day's housework easier.

"You might go into the kitchen and pick over those currants," she replied.

WHY MEAT IS HIGH.

Livestock Inspector Blames It to Slaughter of Young Calves.

Duluth.—"The cause that has been raising and continues to raise the price of beef and make it scarce is the slaughtering of young calves," said Marcus Ballanger, government live stock inspector, here. "There are 8,000,000 young calves being killed every spring that average about seventy pounds apiece. If allowed to grow another year they would average 500 pounds each, which means that there would be 440,000,000 pounds of beef added to the supply.

"But sppose we had a law like Argentina, which prohibits the killing of female bovine until they are seven years of age. Porterhouse steak would cease to be a luxury. Beef is high because it is scarce."

Much Damage in Redwood County.

Redwood Falls.—Lightning attending a thunder storm and shower here did considerable damage to stock and property throughout Redwood county. Several cows and horses were killed. A house on the Melges farm was damaged together with a large barn about three miles southwest of this city. The high wind which accompanied the storm blew down several windmills and other buildings.

Illinois Woman Killed Under Auto.

Mabel.—Mrs. Will Scanlon of Peoria, Ill., was killed and her husband injured when their automobile ran off a culvert and turned turtle. Mrs. Scanlon was pinned beneath the machine and died in a few minutes. The accident happened about six miles from here, near Burr Oak, Iowa. They were traveling from Dorchester, Iowa, Mrs. Scanlon's former home, to Mason City.

Elevator Files Bankruptcy Schedules.

Fergus Falls. — Lang, Atwood & White, engaged in the flour mill and elevator business at Evansville, filed schedules in bankruptcy in the federal court in this city. The schedules place the firm's assets at $14,650.85, and liabilities at $26,235.10. In the individual schedules Mr. Lang places his assets at $12,264, of which $2,495.74 is exempt, and his liabilities at $10,699.66. Mr. Atwood places his assets at $9,295, of which $595 is exempt, and his liabilities at $13,567.37. Mr. White files no schedules.

Atlanta Rate Hearing On.

Duluth. — Interstate Commerce Commissioner B. H. Meyer began the continuation of the hearing of the Atlanta, Ga., rate case, wherein that city seeks to remedy alleged discrimination, claimed to be in favor of Nashville, Tenn. Twenty-five Southern business and railroad men are here for the hearing. The hearing is being held here for convenience, Commissioner Meyer's summer home being on the Brule river. The hearing will continue for several days.

POTATO CROP SHOWS GAIN

CENSUS OF FIELDS INDICATES MINN. YIELD BOOSTED 20 PER CENT.

Douglas Has 128 Per Cent More—Vast Acreage Has Been Planted.

St. Paul. — According to reports received by the immigration commissioner, H. J. Maxfield, from his fieldmen throughout the state, Minnesota is to have one of the largest potato crops in its history. The estimates from 28 counties show increases of from 5 to over 100 per cent. An estimate of the average increase in yield is 20 per cent, according to the report.

Minnesota raised 26,000,000 bushels of potatoes last year and an increase of 20 per cent means approximately 5,000,000 bushels. If the prices are as high this year as last, the farmers will pocket more than $2,500,000. Although the increase is due largely to the increase of acreage on account of the high prices of last year, Mr. Maxfield says the production this year is much better than last year.

Hennepin county shows an increase of over 25 per cent over last year. D. E. Ryan says that there are from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of potatoes shipped from Hennepin County this year. Douglas county, according to the report, shows the largest increase, 128 per cent. Ramsey county shows up well with an increase in yield of 100 per cent.

MINN. MAN DEFEATED.

Prohibitionists Pick Oregonian as National Chairman.

Atlantic City, New Jersey. — After a day of almost constant wrangling, interspersed now and then with hymns and prayers, the national Prohibition convention overthrew the existing administration and elected G. Hinshaw of Portland, Ore., as national chairman of the party. The convention voted down a proposed plank in the platform demanding that the separation of church and state be perpetual and that no public money should be appropriated to sectarian churches and schools. Adjournment was then taken and at the next session candidates for president and vice president will be nominated.

Mr Hinshaw the new national chairman of the party, was a compromise selection as between Charles R. Jones of Illinois, the present chairman and W. C. Calderwood of Minnesota, the leading insurgent candidate for the office.

WOMAN SAVED BY MIRACLE.

Minneapolis. — Mrs. Edward Orbeck had a marvelous escape from instant death or, at least, mutilation, when she was struck by a switch engine on the Milwaukee tracks at Fifth street and Thirteenth avenue south. She was crossing the tracks and her clothing was caught by the engine as she jumped to one side. She was dragged against the front wheels, but thrown out again before the wheels ran over her. It is possible that she was injured internally.

Third Party Call Is Ready.

St. Paul. — The new, or third party state convention will be held in the St. Paul Auditorium July 30, and will be in the form of a monster mass meeting. Delegates to the national convention to be held in Chicago August 5 will be elected, and presidential electors will also be recommended.

Milton D. Purdy will make public the call within a day or two. This call will be signed by Mr. Purdy, Hugh T. Halbert of St. Paul and by leading Progressives throughout the state.

Old Mill Destroyed.

Verndale.—Rye, corn and potatoes suffered from hail and a high wind blew down fences and trees around town. The old grist mill on the river was struck by lightning and burned. It contained valuable machinery and the loss is placed at $5,000, with no insurance. It was owned by K. Bagne of Mahnomen. Four inches of water fell.

Elevators Burn at Randolph.

Cannon Falls.—Both elevators and the lumber yard at Randolph, with offices and other buildings, were burned with a loss of $8,000. Randolph has no fire protection, water pressure or apparatus. Had the wind not changed soon after the fire was discovered the town might have been destroyed. Both properties were insured.

Lad Shoots Young Companion.

Bemidji.—Henry Austin, 12 years old, of Northolme, is dying in the hospital here as the result of a rifle bullet wound inflicted by a younger companion while at play in the woods. The shooting was accidental. The boy who did the shooting did not know the 22 rifle which he aimed at Henry was loaded.

Doeffler Gets Life Sentence.

Red Wing.—Jake Doeffler, murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Schill, was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for life. Max Decker, who pleaded guilty to a statutory offense, was sentenced to six months in the county jail. Fred Boeckler, indicted on the same charge as Decker, was sentenced to the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Joseph McAdams, charged with breaking into a boxcar and stealing merchandise, had his case continued.

Transfer Evil Considered.

St. Paul, July 11.—According to an official high in the service of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, that concern is losing thousands of dollars every year through a more or less organized system of transfer

Rye Harvest Begun.

MIDNIGHT STORM HITS FERGUS FALLS

BUILDINGS UNROOFED, WALLS TWISTED AND TREES UPROOTED BY HIGH WIND.

LOSSES REACH $150,000

Crops in the Vicinity Heavily Damaged—Electric Light Service Crippled—No Fatalities Reported.

Fergus Falls. — storm of tornadic proportions and power struck here soon after midnight. The damage to buildings and other property is conservatively estimated at $50,000 and the damage in country districts immediately adajucent amounts to $100,000 or more.

The storm followed the true tornadic course, coming from the southwest and going northeast. Reports indicate that it extended not farther than four miles north, and just how far west has not yet been determined. A Barnesville dispatch indicates that the chief force of the disturbance was spent in this vicinity.

The principal losses in the city were to the furniture store of Martin Benson, the rGand hotel, the Fergus Falls Co-operative Creamery company's building and the clothing store of Olaf Schel. Benson's loss is anywhere between $5,000 and $10,000, his building being badly battered and his stock of goods drenched by rain. The walls of the Grand hotel, Fergus Falls' principal hostelry, were so twisted by the shock of the wind that it is believed they can never be repaired. The largest individual loss was on this building.

One end of the creamery building was torn out and most of its windows and doors broken in. This is a $7,000 brick building.

The roof of the clothing store of Olaf Schel was partially crushed by falling brick from adjacent buildings, and all the goods were heavily damaged by the heavy rain that accompanied the blow.

No one in the city or country was injured, so far as known, except by flying glass, as the windows were blown in. One and a half inches of rain fell in an hour.

Hundreds of trees were torn up by the roots and many fell across the streets and effectually blocked them against traffic. Telephone and electric lighting poles were leveled in all parts of the city and there will be no street lights for several nights.

Reports of losses in country districts have been coming all day. On each farm in the path of the wind comes the same story of minor destruction. Barns were either wrecked or torn to pieces and crops of all kinds were leveled with the soil

Bad Storms Over State.

Minneapolis. — Electrical storms accompanied by heavy downpours of rain and cyclonic winds, are reported from many towns of the state. A cyclone is reported near Albert Lea, but the amount of damage and whether any lives were lost are unknown. Two empty freight cars were blown from Wadena onto a side track at Verndale by the high wind Buildings in and around Bertha, Minn. were wrecked. La Crosse, Lytle and Holmen, Wis., report severe storms. Basements were flooded and wires put out of commission in Albert Lea. Considerable damage was done at Luverne, and Bemidji reports a cloudburst. Rochester had the heaviest storm of the season. Austin reports a bad electrical storm and much damage.

Warm Weather In Demand.

Minneapolis. — According to the agricultural experts, grain men and others interested in the crop outlook two weeks of warm weather are all that is needed to insure splendid crop returns in the Northwest. They say hot weather for about ten days would add almost as many million dollars to the crop values of the grain growing belt of Minnesota, the Dakotas and other grain producing territories. "Hot weather from now on would be of immense value," said Dean Woods of the agricultural college.

X-Ray Used to Find Bullet.

Minneapolis. — Physicians at St. Barnabas hospital began probing for the bullet which struck Mrs. Helen Phipps when she was seriously wounded by her husband, William Phipps, who later ended his own life, in their home at Wayzata. An x-ray photograph of the wound was taken at the hospital. The woman was shot in the back as she was trying to escape from her husband, who is believed to have been insane. The condition of Mrs. Phipps is said at the hospital not to be as serious as was at first reported.

Buys Woolen Mills at St. Peter.

St. Peter. — J. C. Brinker of La Crosse, Wis., has bought the St. Peter woolen mills. Mayor Edward Bornemann sold out his entire interest in the plant, and has turned it over to the new proprietor. Mr. Brinker will build an addition to the factory, and will install a carload of new machinery, which he has purchased at Des Moines. Included in the consignment will be a large spinning machine, and the mill's operations will be materially increased.

Contract Let.

Minneapolis. — Contract has been let for the construction by Oct. 1 of a suburban electric line between Minneapolis and Anoka. The road is to be operated by the Minneapolis & Northern Railway company, incorporated under the laws of Maine with a capitalization of $500,000.

St. Paul. — The state board of health, which met in St. Paul, appointed A. J. Chesley of Minneapolis state epidemiologist to succeed Dr. H. A. Hill, resigned.

The Moon's Offspring.

Looking out of the window one evening, little Marie saw the bright, full moon in the eastern sky, and, apparently, only a few inches from it, the beautiful Jupiter, shining almost as brightly as the moon itself. Marie gazed intently at the spectacle for a moment, and then turning to her mother exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, look! The moon has laid an egg!"

'Twas a Pretty Thing.

The young man produced a small, square box from his pocket.

"I have a present for you," he began. "I don't know whether it will fit your finger or not, but—"

"Oh, George!" she broke in, "this is so sudden! Why, I never dreamed—"

But just then George produced the gift—a silver thimble—and it got suddenly cooler in the room.—Ladies' Home Journal.

No Social Tact.

At a club dance an enthusiastic member approached a rather dull member and said to him:

"Say, for heaven's sake go over and talk to Miss Fryte. She is sitting all by herself."

"But—but what shall I say to her?"

"Tell her how pretty she is."

"But she ain't pretty."

"Well, then, tell her how ugly the other girls are. Ain't you got no social tact?"

Mixture of Caution and Economy.

At the Union depot a few evenings ago a mother who had gone to see her daughter, a miss of about 18 years, safely started on a journey, was heard to give the young lady the following words of advice just before the train started: "Now, goodby, my dear. Take good care of yourself and remember not to be too free with strangers on the train. But if a nice looking man should speak to you be polite to him—he may buy your supper for you."—Kansas City Star.

Simple Explanation.

To illustrate a point that he was making—that his was the race with a future and not a race with a past—Booker T. Washington told this little story the other day.

He was standing by his door one morning when old Aunt Caroline went by.

"Good morning, Aunt Caroline," he said. "Where are you going this morning?"

"Lawzee, Mista' Wash'ton," she replied. "I'se done been whar I'se gwine."—Kansas City Star.

"Yes, suh," agreed John, the old family darkey.

"Just say," explained the doctor, "that the masseur is with me."

A little later the doctor's brother called—called and received the shock of his life.

"I want to see the doctor at once," said he.

"Yuh can't do it, suh," solemnly announced the old darkey, turning up his eyes till the whites alone showed. "Yuh can't do it, suh. The doctor, suh, am wid de Messiah."—New York Evening Sun.

They Are Overworked Now.

Four-year-old Dick had made an important discovery that his hair would pull out if enough force was exerted, and was absorbed in proving the fascinating find on his forelock. His sister—aged seven—noted the proceedings with round-eyed horror.

"Dickie! Dickie!" she cried, "you mustn't do that!"

"Why?" demanded Dickie, with the cynicism of childhood.

"Because the Bible says that all your hairs are numbered—and if you pull any out you'll make a lot of extra bookkeeping for the angels."

Her Ruling Passion.

The woman who had chased dust and dirt all her life finally reached St. Peter.

"Come in, you poor, tired woman," he said, and held the gate ajar.

But the woman hesitated.

"Tell me first," she said, "how often you clean house?"

The saint smiled.

"You can't shake off the ruling passion, can you?" he said. "Oh, well, step inside and they'll give you a broom and dustpan instead of a harp."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Something Bound to Happen.

A young man who had been born and reared in the back woods went to Chicago and made a lot of money. Then he returned to his native village and asked his father to take a trip to the Windy City. The old man, however, was not enthusiastic over the proposition. He had read of fires, motor car accidents and other catastrophes in big cities. Finally, after much argument and persuasion on the part of his son the father reluctantly consented to undertake the journey. At a little country station he was panic stricken and tried to get permission to go back home. Once on the train his nerve began to revive and all went well until the train dashed into a tunnel as black as night. When this happened the old man grabbed his umbrella, hit his son a whack on the head and cried out:

FOR SCIATIC RHEUMATISM

Try the Treatment That Cured This Pronounced Case in Minneapolis After Other Treatments Failed.

Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Its origin is generally rheumatic and is the direct result of taking cold. For this reason the disease is commonly known as "sciatic rheumatism." That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure this disease is shown by numerous cases like that of Mrs. J. B. Hansen, of No. 221 Twentieth Ave., So., Minneapolis, Minn. She says:

"A few years ago following an attack of the grip I was taken with sciatica. For six years I suffered untold agony and thought it would be a blessing to me if I could only die. There were sharp, shooting pains in both of my limbs and my shoulders and arms were affected also but not so severely. If I moved about quickly, the pain would catch me so that I had to scream. My limbs would swell until I could hardly walk. I also had a terrible dull pain in my back which was often unbearable. I was confined to bed for a week or two at a time. While suffering from the sciatica I was further run-down by weakness common to women of my age.

"I received so little relief from the doctor's medicine that I became discouraged and quit it. My husband urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as he had read how they had cured cases like mine. I felt better after I had taken the pills a short time but took several boxes until I was certain I was cured. I give this statement of my cure thinking that other sufferers may be helped as I was through using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills succeeds where other treatments fail because it is based on the sound medical principle that the health of the nerves depends on pure, red blood.

Every person who is interested in the home treatment of nervous disorders should send for a new edition of our booklet entitled, "Diseases of the Nervous System, Their Nature, Symptoms and Treatment." Address the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y

A Question of Names.

In some of the country districts of Ireland it is not an uncommon thing to see carts with the owners' names chalked on to save the expense of painting. Practical jokers delight in rubbing out these signs to annoy the owners.

A constabulary sergeant one day accosted a countryman whose name had been thus wiped out unknown to him.

"Is this your cart, my good man?"

"Of course it is!" was the reply. "Do you see anything the matter wid it?"

"I observe," said the pompous policeman, "that your name is o-bliterated."

"Then ye're wrong," quoth the countryman, who had never come across the long word before, "for me name's O'Flaherty, and I don't care who knows it."—Youth's Companion.

The Heirloom.

A Pittsburg drummer in a small town dropped into a place to get a bite to eat. The place looked familiar, but he didn't know the proprietor.

Beth's Vacation

BY

CONSTANCE BREVOORT

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

The train started on its winding way among the hills. Beth Tilton pressed her pretty nose against the car window to wave a last farewell at her mother and younger sister on the station platform.

At last their forms faded from view and Beth leaned back tired with the preparations for this long-anticipated vacation—almost fearful that she would awake to find it a dream after all.

Beth had been saving money for three years to take a few weeks' vacation from the office where she worked; but each year had seen the money diverted to some other necessary object and Beth had spent her vacations at home.

But this year had proved to be an exception. She had heard of a pleasant farmhouse tucked away among the Litchfield hills and she had written and engaged board for four weeks. Now, she was actually on her way there. Her trunk was in the baggage car and her well-filled suitcase was beside her in the coach. From her arm dangled a leather handbag containing her money—fifty dollars—and her trunk check.

Three hours passed before the train reached the little red painted station which marked Beth's destination. She arose and made her way with difficulty past the stout woman who had occupied more than half of her seat and who made no attempt to arise when the train stopped.

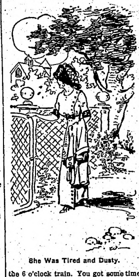
Beth was the only passenger at Red station and she saw her trunk bounced from the baggage car to the platform as the train moved on.

The station agent came out and looked curiously at the pretty girl with the wide, expectant eyes that could not see enough in that first glimpse of the rolling hills, the stately trees, the flash of bird wings in the thickets and the multitudinous sounds of a warm midsummer day in the real country.

"I reckon you belong to this here trunk," remarked the man with a good-natured grin.

"Yes. I am going to Wellwood Farm—is there a stage or any kind of conveyance here?" Beth looked around as she spoke.

"The Wellwood wagon came up this morning after some boarders—Joe said he wouldn't come up again till the 6 o'clock train. You got some time to wait."



She Was Tired and Dusty.

"How far is it?"

"Oh, a couple of miles down the east road."

Beth looked at her watch. It was 3 o'clock. "I believe I will walk," she decided. "Will you please have my trunk put on the wagon when it comes tonight?" She opened her handbag and gave the man a quarter, and before she closed it again she noticed something unusual about it.

What was it? Her heart almost stopped beating as she realized that the little chamois bag containing her cherished fifty dollars had disappeared.

For a dazed instant she tried to recall when it might have been taken. There had been just one opportunity. She had felt a sudden tug at the bag during her journey, and had disentangled it from the fringes of the stout woman's gown. The woman had helped her with great amiability.

Her money was gone—her vacation was gone, too. The change in her little purse would not buy her return ticket to New York. She decided to walk down to Wellwood farm and write home to her father for money to return home.

The walk to the farm was most unhappy for poor Beth. She was tired and dusty and very warm when she reached the gates. It did not add to her self-possession to see the shady porches filled with daintily gowned women and the tennis courts gay with young men and girls.

This was the reason why Beth chose to enter the wide carriage gate and keep on around to the kitchen door, where a tired-looking woman in a neat gingham dress was churning.

"Oh, here you are at last!" she cried in a relieved tone. "I'm sorry you had to walk all the way—you must be tired. Joe didn't wait for the 3 o'clock train. He thought if you didn't come at noon you wouldn't be here till night, and I was wondering how I was going to get supper without you."

Beth stared aghast at this reception. It was evident that Mrs. Marsh had mistaken her for some other expected person. In a few words she explained who she was and the disaster that had befallen her finances.

"I'm awful sorry, Miss Tilton," said Mrs. Marsh when Beth had finished her story, "and it seems too bad that you have to lose your vacation after all—if it was out of the season I'd tell you to stay any way, but we're crowded, of course, and every room is engaged. I can rent yours tomorrow."

"Of course I will pay you for the day or so I shall remain," explained Beth.

"My land—I wish you was a waitress—I'm so short of help," bemoaned Mrs. Marsh.

"Wouldn't I do?" asked Beth.

"You wouldn't want, though it's honest work, Miss Tilton," said Mrs. Marsh, eagerly.

"I'll do it," agreed Beth, "if you will allow me to spend every afternoon out of doors after I have finished my work. In that way I can pay for my vacation and get some good from it, too."

"That will suit me—now, what shall I call you?"

"You might call me Lizzie," smiled Beth. "I'm glad I brought plenty of plain cotton dresses along. If you will lend me some aprons I'll begin now."

Thus Beth Tilton began her strange vacation, which was half work. She did not write home to her family and tell them of her loss and how the vacation money had vanished after all. They would be disappointed—they had all helped to get her off. She wrote of the pleasant people who were stopping there, of the games of tennis and croquet, of the fishing in the lake, the long tramps over hill and dale and of long afternoons which she spent in a hammock under the apple trees in the orchard.

She told them about Bruce Maynard, who was stopping at Wellwood Farm for a few weeks. She mentioned what he had said to her in many interesting conversations held under the apple trees, but she did not tell them that some of the feminine boarders were shocked at his attentions to the pretty young waitress and how she had at last been obliged to avoid him.

Then one day Bruce Maynard went away and life at the farm became very dull for Beth, but she continued to be the best waitress that Mrs. Marsh had ever employed and she was well liked and courteously treated by all the boarders.

At last came the first of September and with it witnessed the departure of the last boarder. Mrs. Mars hinsisted upon Berth assuming her proper name and position. The cook was able to manage all the work now and there followed a week of idleness.

She had paid her way and had money in the handbag to pay her way home, and yet she was not quite happy. Life could never be the same to her after meeting Bruce Maynard. If fate had been kinder she would have met him under more favorable conditions and there might have followed something more lasting.

The night before she was to leave for New York Bruce Maynard came back. He found Mrs. Marsh sitting alone on the front porch.

"I've come back to marry your waitress, Lizzie Tilton," he said bluntly. "Where is she?"

"She's gone," smiled Mrs. Marsh demurely. "In her place is Miss Beth Tilton—who really came here to board with me, but took a waitress' position because she had her pocket picked on the train—"

"Where is she?" insisted Maynard just as if he had not heard her explanation.

"I believe she is watching the sunset from the orchard fence—"

But before Mrs. Marsh could complete the sentence Bruce Maynard had darted around the corner of the house and disappeared.

Woman Broker

One of the most active members of the brokerage division of the cottonseed product trade is Miss Kathryn Ballou of Memphis, Tenn., who is believed to be the only woman broker in the business.

Miss Ballou has made a really remarkable success ever since she started in to sell cottonseed products, and her business is still growing. Along in July, 1910, Miss Ballou made a sale of 92 tanks of crude oil for future delivery, which is believed to have been the largest sale known in the history of the cottonseed oil trade, and this was an advertisement which spread her fame far and wide.

Miss Ballou first went into the business as an employe in the office of a broker in Memphis. But after a year there she started out for herself on a very small scale at first. Her business increased to such an extent, however, that she now has two large offices in the Exchange building and a large and competent office force to take care of her orders.—National Provisioner.

Famous Old Schooner Tied Up.

The second oldest schooner in the United States is now tied up at Red Beach, nine miles from Calais, her home port. She is the Hiram, and she was built twelve years later than the famous old Polly. Her keel was laid down at Biddeford in 1819, and since she was launched the little two-masted schooner has led a strenuous life up and down the Atlantic coast. Although the vessel has been repaired time and again, she still has her original keel and bottom, which are in good condition. She is 69.5 feet long, has a gross tonnage of sixty-seven tons, and carried a crew of three. For many years after she was built the Hiram was commanded by members of the Cook family, of that city, and she is now owned by Elmer McDonald of Red [illegible]

SOLACE IN HIS MISFORTUNE

Entombed Miner Had at Least One Pleasant Thought After Two Days of Suffering.

Miners are among the most heroic people in the world. Danger is always beside them, and they are schooled to believe that any time they will come face to face with death. The result of this is that they are humorous in their boldness.

In one of the mines of Pennsylvania there was a cave-in which imprisoned a miner named Jack Thornton. The accident happened on Friday afternoon, and the fellow laborers of the entombed man set to work at once to dig him out. It was not until Sunday morning, however, that they reached his prison chamber, and by this time they were wondering whether he had been suffocated or starved to death. One of them stuck his head through the aperture made by the picks of the rescuers and called out:

"Jack, are you all right?"

"All right," came the reply, and then after a pause: "What day is this?"

"Sunday!" exclaimed the friend.

"Gee!" exclaimed Jack, "I'm glad of that. That was one Saturday night when those saloonkeepers didn't get my wages."—Popular Magazine.

She Was a Duster.

Mrs. Sutton advertised for a woman to do general housework, and in answer a colored girl called, announcing that she had come for the position.

"Are you a good cook?" asked Mrs Sutton.

"No, indeed, I don't cook," was the reply.

"Are you a good laundress?"

"I wouldn't do washin' and ironin'; it's too hard on the hands.

"Can you sweep?" asked Mrs. Sutton.

"No," was the positive answer, "I'm not strong enough."

"Well," said the lady of the house, quite exasperated, "may I ask what you can do?"

"I dusts," came the placid reply.—Everybody's.

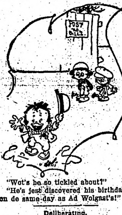
Good Bait.

Aunt Sarah, cook in a Richmond family, took home a dish of macaroni from her mistress' table for the edification of her own family. When her children had been assured that it was good they proceeded to eat with great gusto. The next morning Aunt Sarah discovered two of her offspring in the yard turning over stones and soil and scratching vigorously in the earth.

"Heah, yo' chillun!" Called out Aunt Sarah, "what yo' all doin'?"

"We's a-huntin'," was the reply, "fo' some mo' of dem macaroni worms."

JUST CAUSE FOR PRIDE.



"Wot's he so tickled about?"

"He's jest discovered his birthday's on de same day as Ad Wolgast's!"

Deliberating.

The Rev. James Hamilton, minister of Liverpool, while on holiday in Scotland, had a narrow escape from drowning. Accompanied by a boy, Mr. Hamilton was fishing for sea trout when he slipped on a stone, lost his balance, and being encumbered with heavy wading boots, had great difficulty in keeping his head above water. Finally he managed to get back to the shore, although in a very exhausted state, and said to the boy: "I noticed that you never tried to help me." "Na," was the deliberate response, "but I was thinkin' o't."

It makes a girl awfully ashamed to let a man kiss her without first putting up some sort of a bluff.

When God calls, the safest step we can take is straight ahead.

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Tea and Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that tea and coffee so disturb digestion that they produce a muddy, yellow complexion?

A ten days' trial of Postum has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up a bad complexion.

A Washn. young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles, more or less.

"We all were sallow and troubled with pimples, bad breath, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves.

"We didn't realize that tea and coffee caused the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that.

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure that we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we tried Postum and were surprised to find it delicious.

"We read the statements on the pkg., got more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We all were able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleared off, and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. [illegible]

SEN. LORIMER IS UNSEATED 55-28

ELECTION OF ILLINOIS STATESMAN IS DECLARED INVALID BY SENATE DECISION.

WAS ONCE VINDICATED

End of Fight Comes After Six Days of Protracted Debate—Many Sensations in Case.

Washington, —By a vote of 55 to 28, the United States senator unseated William Lorimer, the junior senator from Illinois, and declared his title to his seat invalid.

The end of the long fight to oust the senator came after six days of protracted debate in which Senator Lorimer himself had occupied the floor for three sessions, making an impassioned defense of his election.

The final vote was upon the resolution offered by Luke Lea, senator from Tennessee, declaring the Lorimer election by the Illinois legislature in 1909 invalid. The adoption of the Lea resolution carried with it the senate's verdict that "corrupt methods and practices were employed in the election of William Lorimer," making his election invalid.

The senators voting to unseat Lorimer were: Asherst, Bacon, Borah, Bourne, Briggs, Bristow, Brown, Bryan, Burton, Chamberlain, Clapp, Clarke of Arkansas, Crowford, Cullom, Cummins, Curtis, Dixon, Fall, Gardner, Gore, Gronna, Hitchcock, Johnson, Kenyon, Kern, La Follette, Lea, Lodge, Martin, Martine, Meyers, Nelson, Newlands, O'Gorman, Overman, Page, Poindexter, Pomerene, Rayner, Reed, Root, Sanders, Shively, Simmons, Smith of Arizona, Smith of Georgia, Smith, of Michigan, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Sutherland, Swanson, Townsend, Watson, Williams, Works.

Those voting for Lorimer were: Bailey, Bradley, Brandegee, Burnham, Catron, Clark of Wyoming, Crane, Dillingham, Fletcher, Foster, Gallinger, Gamble, Guggenheim, Johnston, Jones, Lippitt, McCumber, Oliver, Paynter, Penrose, Perkins, Richardson, Smith of Maryland, Smoot, Stephenson, Thornton, Tillman, Wetmore.

Of the senators voting against Lorimer, twenty-seven were republicans and twenty-eight democrats.

In the two years that Senator Lorimer's election has been under fire it probably has furnished more sensations than any other case of its kind. Mr Lorimere was elected by the Illinois legislature on May 27, 1909, after a prolonged deadlock in which the names of more than one hundred candidates, democrats and republicans, had been presented unsuccessfully. However, it was not until nearly a year later that the validity of his election was challenged when the now famous "confession" of Charles A. White, a member of the Illinois legislature, was published, charging that he had received $1,000 from Lee O'Neill Brown, democratic leader of the Illinois house of representatives in return for his vote for Senator Lorimer and also $900 as a share of a "general corruption fund."

Then in rapid succession followed a sensational series of "confessions" by other members of the legislature. These confessions, however, were later modified or repudiated with the exception of White's. The other men asserted they had received the money out of a general fund and not in return for their Lorimer votes, and, in same cases, charged intimidation by Cook county authorities to wring the confessions from them.

Lee O'Neill Browne was charged with distributing "Lorimer Money" but was acquitted by a jury and other indictments were quashed. Charges of jury bribing in the Browne case were unsustained in court.

A committee of the United States senate reported that the charges of corruption were not proved and held Senator Lorimer's title to his seat valid. Immediately afterward the Illinois senate appointed a committee of its own to investigate and this committee reported that Lorimer would not have been elected without bribery and corruption and the Illinois senate by a vote of 39 to 10 indorsed that view.

In the meantime Mr. Lorimer was vindicated in the United States senate, 46 to 40, with five senators not voting. The quota of senators was 92, with one vacancy in Colorado.

STATES AWAKING TO DANGER

Additional Hospital Beds for the Treatment of Tuberculosis Are Being Established.

Nearly 4,000 additional hospital beds for consumptives in 29 states were provided during the year ending June 1, according to a statement issued by the National Association for the Study and prevention of Tuberculosis. This makes a total of over 30,000 beds, but only about one for every ten indigent tuberculosis patients in this country.

In the last five years, the hospital provision for consumptives has increased from 14,428 in 1907, to over 30,000 in 1912, or over 100 per cent. New York state leads in the number of beds, having 8,350 on June 1; Massachusetts comes next with 2,800; and Pennsylvania, a close third, with 2,700. Alabama showed the greatest percentage of increase in the last year by adding 57 new beds to its 42 a year ago. Georgia comes next with 109 beds added to 240 a year ago. New York has the greatest numerical increase, having provided over 1,800 additional beds in the year.

Making Cheese in Olden Days.

Cheese was made by the old-time farmers in the summer on the co-operative plan by which four cattle owners owning say 14 milch cows, received all the milk night and morning, according to the daily yield of their little herd. Thus given two families having five cows each, one with three and one with one, supposing that the average yield per cow was the same, in two weeks, two owners would make five cheeses each; one would press three, and one only one cheese, but this one would be as good and as large as any of the rest.—"Nobility of the Trades—The Farmer," Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine.

RASH ALMOST COVERED FACE

Warrenville, O.—"I have felt the effects of blood poisoning for eighteen years. I was never without some eruptions on my body. The terrible itching caused me much suffering and discomfort, while the rubbing and scratching made it worse. Last spring I had a terrible breaking out of blistery sores on my arms and limbs. My face and arms were almost covered with rash. I could not sleep and lost nineteen pounds in five weeks. My face was terribly red and sore, and felt as if my skin was on fire. At last I tried a sample of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and I found them so cool, soothing and healing, that I got some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Resolvent. I bathed with hot water and Cuticura Soap, then I applied the Cuticura Ointment every night for two months, and I am cured of all skin eruptions," (Signed) Mrs. Kathryn Krafft, Nov. 28, 1911.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. They merchants who keep their stores cool looking and let the people know what they have for sale, are the ones who are getting the summer trade.

On the front page of this issue will be found a notice of the post office department regarding delinquent subscribers. There is no compromise for the newspaper men on this point. No credit can be extended more than a year, after which it will not be accepted at second class rate. If our readers would stop and realize the labor of putting out an issue for their benefit fifty-two times in the year they would not hesitate to favor us with this small remuneration for our work, and in advance at that.

To judge by the political announcment in the local papers county politics bids fair to become a tame affair this year. Only one or two have so far announced their political intentions through the columns of the county papers, and the time is rife that the office seekers should make themself known to those who they wish to have vote for them. If the voters are not worthy of knowing who is who and why in the political potpurri they (the politicains) are not worthy of the vote of the people, so there.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majority of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to fine tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly dise it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

For coughs, colds or any broncial affection its unequaled. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

GOPHER NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota Events of the Week in Condensed Form.

Fairfax.—An 8-year-old girl named Holmquist was run over by an automobile and ide several hours later.

Mankato.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed by creditors in the federal court against John B. Johnson of this city, a shoe dealer.

Stillwater.—Congressman Stevens has been here in a renewal of his efforts to determine who to recommend to succeed W. E. Easton as postmaster. The position is worth $2,400 a year.

Red Wing.—A hailstorm killed 150 chickens belonging to Charles Peterson in White Willow. Nearly all the boards were blown off the new barn of Will Schultz, and a line of picket fence was taken by the severe wind and carried twenty rods, landing on a bridge connecting the two farms.

Minneapolis.—Two small boys were downed at Oakdale, in Washington county, just across the boundary line of St. Paul, Minn. The accident made a total of ten drownings in the district since the bathing season opened. The two were the small sons of Blaine Lewis, John, 4 years old, and Albert, 2 years old.

Minneapolis.—Ingratitude in its basest form is the charge made against one of the automobile boy bandits by Dr. C. E. Mills, who alleges that one of the boys, Frank McCarthy, after being received in his home on the footing of intimate freindship, used the opporunity thus afforded to rob him of property valued at $500.

Minneapolis.—Montana, with its grain fields in prime condition and the largest acreage ever covered, sent into Minneapolis the most significant crop news that has emanated from any source this year, based upon the expectation of railroad traffic men that 70,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels of grain will be harvested in that state if present conditions are maintained.

Owatonna.—In a belated exhibition of some fireworks at a private residence, Mrs. Emil Lippert, wife of a local business man, was badly injured. A skyrocket flew backward, a heavy stick striking Mrs. Lippert in the elbow and causing a bad fracture. The head of a rocket flew through the window of L. Y. Inmann's residence, setting fire to the bed clothing and furniture.

Duluth.—Because he robbed a thief, John B. Lessard, 23 years old, a railroad man, was sentenced to 90 days at hard labor in the county jail. "I saw the thief hide some stolen revolvers, knives and other articles which he had taken from a store at Proctor," said Lessard to the court. "I made away with the plunder of the real thief and when I was taken into custody the goods were found on me."

Minneapolis.—A young man, who gave his name as H. G. McDonald, St. Paul, was seriously injured when an automobile which he was driving crashed into the lamp post at the head of the Selby tunnel, St. Paul. Two others in the car gave their names as Joe Dow and W. D. Ganzee, but the police say that these names are fictitious. The police believe that the three stole the automobile, but failed to hold the other two men.

Brainerd.—The struggle between the Cuyuna Northern railway and the Soo line is becoming acute in mining territory near Deerwood, from which point the Cuyuna Northern has condemned a right of way to the Cuyuna-Mill Lacs mine, six mones north. After the arrest of right of way laborers by the land owners', agent in section 10, near Crosby, the Cuyuna Northern at midnight threw its tracks across a point ten feet west of the present terminus of the road north of Ironton, thus stealing a march on its rival.

St. Paul.—Resolutions were adopted at the meeting of the Roosevelt followers of the Fourth district at the Merchants' hotel in St. Paul, calling on their chairman, Hugh T. Halbert to suggest to the chairmen of the other districts a mass meeting of district delegates to be held at some time and place agreeable to the other districts, for the purpose of electing state delegates to the national convention which the new party is expecting to hold in August. The meeting was attended by about 50 persons and was devoted to a discussion of how Roosevelt could be put on a state ticket.

Minneapolis.—Reports show that 2,231 women went in swimming at the park bathing beaches during the last two weeks in June, when the bathhouses were open. This demonstrates a marked increase in interest among women in beach bathing as compared with three years ago, when women first began to go in swimming in public places in Minneapolis. Three years ago about 850 women donned bathing suits during the entire season. There were 645 in swimming at Glenwood lake the last week of June and 272 at Lake Nokomis, while at Camden 1,314 women went swimming in the last five days of June.

The Pennington county fair takes place at Thief River Falls next week, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Quite a crowd of local people are expected to go up to Thief River to take in one or two days of the fair.

On account of the rain Sunday the local base ball team did not go up to Thief River to play the "Pickets." Manager Rice is conferring with the Mentor team for a game next Sunday on the local diamond.

O. Tessum, of the firm of Tessum-Temanson Company, of Thief River Falls, dealers in grains and cereals, was in town the first of the week looking this territory over with the view of organizing a Farmers Elevator. Just what sucess he has met with in this direction we have not learned.

Salem Majou, the ditch contractor, is having a machine shed erected just east of the Soo depot where will be installed the necessary equipment for the construction of the walking dredge the erection of which will be commenced in a short time. The cooking car is completed with another car in the course of construction. This will be the second dredge erected here this summer.

Two flat cars of a north bound Soo train were wrecked last Sunday near the spur leading to the saw mill. Some of the attachments on one of the cars broke while the train was going at a good rate of speed which caused it to jump the track, bringing another car along with it. The track was blocked and the fore part of the train was taken to Hazel to allow the wrecker which was dispatched from Thief River to get by. No other damage was done outside of the two cars.

It has been frequently suggested that the farmer would appear better as a businees man, and not infrequently gain some pecuniary advantage as well, if he would use letter paper and envelopes neatly printed with the name of his farm and postoffice address. If he deals in any specialties, whether of live stock, poultry, diary, garden or orchard products, these also should be mentioned on his letterhead. "The Farmers Wife" suggests that the women of the farm should also have some stationary bearing the individuality of their homes and lives." But a prerequisite, in both cases, is the adoption of a suitable name for the home or road, or both. One will think more of his home, and of the reputation of his farm products if it has a name by which it can be identified; and the identification is made more complete if the road also has a name. In England a pleasing variety of names has been found for local roads, lanes, paths, ways, highways, ridings, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares, or whatever may be substantive used in connection with the descriptive noun. Why not adopt some equally pleasing for our American roads, and make them "stick," not only by using them on our stationary but by painting them on much needed guide posts [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth departed last week for the Twin Cities. Mrs. Pleth is to visit in the cities while Mr. Pleth goes to Illinois on a business trip.

Mrs. Banartz, who resides north of town, left the first of the week for Crookston where she is to undergo an operation at the hands of one of the specialists in that city.

Continued wet weather is the best possible source of road destruction according to road experts. Repeated rains loosen the surface of the road and ruts are made. The best way to keep the road in good shape is to drag it every once in a while.

Ed Johnson returned last week from Warren, where he had been confined to the hospital. The wound in his leg, which he sustained while grubbing, has healed and it will be but a short time until he has recovered completely.

The record price of $8.50 per hundred was recently paid for a carload of fat steers at the south St. Paul market. This price has never before been equalled at this market for carload lots. Such prices for beef cattle mean that the animals are produced at a profit to the breeder and feeder, even at the existing high price of feed. It is not to be expected that future prices for well-finished cattle will remain as high as this. It is to be expected, however, that prices will rule high for a long time to come. This is due to the fact that there is a big shortage of meat-animals of all kinds. Severe drouth during the past two years has made it necessary to dispose of a large number of breeding cows from the ranges and farms. A very strong demand for veal calves has also cleared the country of a large number of calves that should have been retained on the farms, to be fed for beef. A great many breeders have during the past winter finished cattle at a wide margin, due to the increased price of all classes of cattle since a year ago. This means that cattle-feeders have probably made as much or more money during the past winter than in any previous year. There are many instances where farmers have received from $40 to $50 per acre for their corn by disposing of it in feeding steers. This not only means that these men made a profit in disposing of the corn crop, but it also means that they have retained on their farms a large amount of fertility that otherwise would have been disposed of and shipped out to the markets of the world. It seems safe to predict that the future is exceedingly bright for the feeding of beef cattle. This should be an encouragement to beginners, especially where it is possible for them to produce part of the stock on their own farms and get the cattle onto the market at a young age. It is not to be expected that the profits will be as large as they have been during the past season, because, as feeders must be purchased, they will command higher prices than a year ago. But if they can be put onto the farms, carried through the summer on cheap pasture, and finished next winter on bundle-corn and other cheap feeds, it will mean a safe disposal of the corn crop and will put the farm in much better condition.

The Viking Young Peoples society meets at the P. S. Medcheli home Sunday, July, 28th at 2 o'clock p. m. Everybody cordially invited.

According to reports which come weekly to the office of the state immigrating commissioner, H. J. Maxfield at St. Paul, Minnesota will produce more corn than last year by nearly a 1,000,000 bushels. There has been an increase in acrage of 250 percent in Traverse county, and big increases in other parts of the state.

"Hail the peek-a-boo stocking! Of all devices that have proved a boon to mosquitoes, the peek-a-boo hosiery that is about to twine its negligible filaments about the shapely ankle and classic calf strikes the final chord," says the Chicago Tribune. The interstices of the peek-a-boos are about an inch square, and will stretch farther. They need no darning. You couldn't darn the darn things, for there isn't a darn thing to darn. The peek-a-boo stocking is on view at 239 West Thirty-ninth street, New York. If Lady Godiva had worn a union suit of it she would have been the same Lady Godiva that made the famous ride. It is really no stocking at all. The peek-a-boo waist is a cloak of mail beside it. She who wears it may know in her heart that she pulled on her stockings, but others who look without the aid of strong glasses will know nothing about it.—"Yellow Jacket."

SOO LINE EDUCATIONAL EXHIBIT

Of Farm Produce To Be Shown At Land Show Held At St. Paul Nov. 12 to 23, 1912

FARMERS SHOULD CO-OPERATE

With The Company In Sending In Samples Of Their Choicest Produce.

A. C. Lawson, immigration agent for the Soo Line, was in town Tuesday, calling here in the interest of the Soo Line educational exhibit to be held at St. Paul Nov. 12 to 23 this year, and endeavoring to secure an exhibit of farm produce from the farmers in this vicinity. Grains, grasses and other produce will be gathered in the country tributary to the company's lines throughout the country and judging by reports considerable interest is manifest in this exhibit both by the farmers and the company. The company's ideas in this exhibit is to show the value of the lands adjoining its lines with a view of arousing the attention of homeseekers as to the opportunities in various localities. The farmers in this section as well should join in this effort as a good exhibit will mean lot of good advertising for their locality and will help materially in settling up the vacant lands. For this purpose we suggest that you co-operate to the extent of getting from your farm the finest samples, grain and other products that you have raised. Full credit will be given the farmers participating, with the name of the owner and the place where raised will be written on the tag. Talk to your neighbors about it, and have them tell others. Eastern Red Lake county should be represented by a fine exhibit the bigger the better. Let people from other states know what can be raised in this section that is the idea in settling up the country. In next weeks issue we will give a synopsis of the time and way to gather the products and also where the grains, etc., will be left here until they will be ready for shipment.

The Pennington county fair takes place at Thief River Falls next week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Quite a crowd of local people are expected to go up to Thief River to take in one or two days of the fair.

On account of the rain Sunday the local base ball team did not go up to Thief River to play the "Pickets." Manager Rice is conferring with the Mentor team for a game next Sunday on the local diamond.

O. Tessum, of the firm of Tessum-Temanson Company, of Thief River Falls, dealers in grains and cereals, was in town the first of the week looking this territory over with the view of organizing a Farmers Elevator. Just what sucess he has met with in this direction we have not learned.

Salem Majou, the ditch contractor, is having a machine shed erected just east of the Soo depot where will be installed the necessary equipment for the construction of the walking dredge the erection of which will be commenced in a short time. The cooking car is completed with another car in the course of construction. This will be the second dredge erected here this summer.

Two flat cars of a north bound Soo train were wrecked last Sunday, near the spur leading to the saw mill. Some of the attachments on one of the cars broke while the train was going at a good rate of speed which caused it to jump the track, bringing another car along with it. The track was blocked and the fore part of the train was taken to Hazel to allow the wrecker which was dispatched from Thief River, to get by. No other damage was done outside of the two cars.

It has been frequently suggested that the farmer would appear better as a businees man, and not infrequently gain some pecuniary advantage as well, if he would use letter paper and envelopes neatly printed with the name of his farm and postoffice address. If he deals in any specialties, whether of live stock, poultry, diary, garden or orchard products, these also should be mentioned on his letterhead. "The Farmers Wife" suggests that the women of the farm should also have some stationary bearing the individuality of their homes and lives." But a prerequisite, in both cases, is the adoption of a suitable name for the home or road, or both. One will think more of his home, and of the reputation of his farm products if it has a name by which it can be identified; and the identification is made more complete if the road also has a name. In England a pleasing variety of names has been found for local roads, lanes, paths, ways, highways, ridings, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares, or whatever may be substantive used in connection with the descriptive noun. Why not adopt some equally pleasing for our American roads, and make them "stick," not only by using them on our stationary, but by painting them on much-needed guide-posts at the crossings?

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pieth departed last week for the Twin Cities. Mrs. Pieth is to visit in the cities while Mr. Pieth goes to Illinois on a business trip.

Mrs. Ranartz, who resides north of town, left the first of the week for Crookston where she is to undergo an operation at the hands of one of the specialists in that city.

Continued wet weather is the best possible source of road destruction according to road experts. Repeated rains loosen the surface of the road and ruts are made. The best way to keep the road in good shape is to drag it every once in a while.

Ed Johnson returned last week from Warren, where he had been confined to the hospital. The wound in his leg, which he sustained while grubbing, has healed and it will be but a short time until he has recovered completely.

The record price of $8.50 per hundred was recently paid for a carload of fat steers at the south St. Paul market. This price has never before been equalled at this market for carload lots. Such prices for beef cattle mean that the animals are produced at a profit to the breeder and feeder, even at the existing high price of feed. It is not to be expected that future prices for well-finished cattle will remain as high as this. It is to be expected, however, that prices will rule high for a long time to come. This is due to the fact that there is a big shortage of meat-animals of all kinds. Severe drouth during the past two years has made it necessary to dispose of a large number of breeding cows from the ranges and farms. A very strong demand for veal calves has also cleared the country of a large number of calves that should have been retained on the farms, to be fed for beef. A great many breeders have during the past winter finished cattle at a wide margin, due to the increased price of all classes of cattle since a year ago. This means that cattle-feeders have probably made as much or more money during the past winter than in any previous year. There are many instances where farmers have received from $40 to $50 per acre for their corn by disposing of it in feeding steers. This not only means that these men made a profit in disposing of the corn crop, but it also means that they have retained on their farms a large amount of fertility that otherwise would have been disposed of and shipped out to the markets of the world. It seems safe to predict that the future is exceedingly bright for the feeding of beef cattle. This should be an encouragement to beginners, especially where it is possible for them to produce part of the stock on their own farms and get the cattle onto the market at a young age. It is not to be expected that the profits will be as large as they have been during the past season, because, as feeders must be purchased, they will command higher prices than a year ago. But if they can be put onto the farms, carried through the summer on cheap pasture, and finished next winter on bundle-corn and other cheap feeds, it will mean a safe disposal of the corn crop and will put the farm in much better condition.

The Viking Young Peoples society meets at the P. S. Madcheli home Sunday, July, 28th at 2 o'clock p. m. Everybody cordially invited.

According to reports which come weekly to the office of the state immigrating commissioner, H. J. Maxfield at St. Paul, Minnesota will produce more corn than last year by nearly a 1,000,000 bushels. There has been an increase in acrage of 250 percent in Traverse county, and big increases in other parts of the state.

"Hail the peek-a-boo stocking! Of all devices that have proved a boon to mosquitoes, the peek-a-boo hosiery that is about to twine its negligible filaments about the shapely ankle and classic calf strikes the final chord," says the Chicago Tribune. The interstices of the peek-a-boos are about an inch square, and will stretch farther. They need no darning. You couldn't darn the darn things, for there isn't a darn thing to darn. The peek-a-boo stocking is on view at 730 West Thirty-ninth street, New York. If Lady Godiva had worn a union suit of it she would have been the same Lady Godiva that made the famous ride. It is really no stocking at all. The peek-a-boo waist is a cloak of mail beside it. She who wears it may know in her heart that she pulled on her stockings, but others who look without the aid of strong glasses will know nothing about it.—"Yellow Jacket."

PREDICT BIG CROP

B. W. SNOW OF FARM JOURNAL LOOKS FOR 260,000,000 BUSHEL HARVEST.

RETURNS ALL AROUND.

Declares Almost the Entire Area Planted Will Show Good Yield—Weather Conditions Termed Ideal for Wheat.

Minneapolis.—Crop records are likely to be broken in the Northwest this season if present prospects are maintained. The experts who have been looking over the grain fields say this section of the country never had such a big promise.

B. W. Snow, of the Orange Judd Farmer says:

"Minnesota and the two Dakotas can easily exceed 260,000,000 bushels of spring wheat. Aside from a small district in western South Dakota and a still more limited area in west central North Dakota the three states have a perfect prospect.

"The soil has all the moisture needed to mature the crop and the cool weather is just right for heavy filling. The growth is fully up to normal, except in the extreme north, where it is now heading and is only a few days late.

"The probability of serious black rust damage is remote, because the crop will mature too early for it, and fields show less red and orange leaf rust than usual.

"Oats and barley are equally good. It looks like the greatest crop year in the history of the Northwest."

Oscar Lyle, another crop expert, was on 'change yesterday, just back from a trip over the Northwest. He said that the three states would have 200,000,000 bushels of wheat sure, and at the present time the crop would measure up to 240,000,000 bushels easily.

The first report of oats being harvested was received from Conde, S. D. The crop is above the average.

The Northwest "weather menu" has not been more propitious in years than it is now according to grain men. They say the cool temperature was just what the wheat fields needed as a safeguard against the black rust.

Practically every weather change has come at the psychological moment, say the grain men. Unless unusual elemental developments such as hail or heavy windstorms arise it is expected that a crop as big or bigger than the one of 1909 will be harvested.

NYE MAKES SPEECH.

Roosevelt Not Indorsed, But Progressive Movement Is.

Washington, D. C.—It has been a long time since the house of representatives has heard a speech containing so much frankness as that delivered before that body by Representative Frank Nye of Minneapolis. The members sat absolutely silent and intent during the course of Mr. Nye's impressive address, and at the close the Minnesota statesman was given an ovation.

Mr. Nye's speech was one that many will call Progressive, and others may call "standpat." During the course of his remarks he made it plain, on the one hand, that he did not regard Colonel Roosevelt as a genuine reformer, but, at the same time, he indorsed the Progressive movement as one of great worth. The keynote of Mr. Nye's remarks was given when he declared:

"Better have one day here and speak the truth that God has given you than dwell here half a century to be the toy of every wind and wave of the political sea of life."

At the close of his remarks Mr. Nye was warmly congratulated by Progressives, Regulars and Democrats alike.

CALL FOR "THIRD PARTY"

Invites Attendance of All Without Regard to Party.

Minneapolis. — A call has just been issued for the "third party" state convention to be held in St. Paul, July 30. It invites attendance of all "electors of the state of Minnesota, without regard to past party affiliations, who believe that the renomination of President Taft in the recent Chicago convention was secured by unjust, fraudulent and dishonorable methods, and should be repudiated at the polls, and all Progressives who desire to participate in the selection of a candidate for president of the United States by the national Progressive party, to be voted for at the coming November elections."

The convention will be held in the St. Paul Auditorium. Every one present will be considered a delegate from his county.

Samaritans Are Empowered.

Duluth. — By a recent order made by Judge Dancer in district court, O. F. Collier and W. A. Hicken, whose right to sit in the imperial council and perform the duties of the imperial treasurer of the fraternal and insurance order of the Modern Samaritans has precipitated an internal war, will continue to sign his name to checks of the organization funds used in the payment of death claims. The arrangement, however, may be but a temporary one.

Church Celebrates Forty Years.

Pipestone. — Many Lutherans from Pipestone attended a celebration held at Immanuel's church at Hills, in observance of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the church. Rev. O. H. Smeby of Albert Lea, vice president of the Iowa district synod, conducted the services and Rev. A. Turmo of Clifford, N. D., and Rev. L. P. Lund of Luverne, also took part. The church was organized in July, 1872, with only a few members, and the congregation now numbers over 250.

FEE OWNERS SUE NORMAN MINE

WOULD ALSO RECOVER $1,012,250 FROM OLIVER COMPANY.

Complaint Charges "Reckless Methods" Caused Heavy Toll of Human Life.

Duluth.—Alleged haphazard mining operations, which are alleged to have resulted in the wrecking of the Norman mine near Virginia, Minn., heavy toll of human life and the general alleged mismanagement of the property, are grounds upon which a suit to recover $1,012,250 and the possession of the premises was brought today against the Oliver Iron Mining company by the fee owners.

The Oliver company is one of the larger subsidiary concerns of the United States Steel corporation. The fee owners of the Norman mine are the Leon Iron company, the Higgins company, the Gilbert Investment company, Clara A. H. Smith and Frank Sullivan Smith.

The lawsuit follows the recent cancellation of the lease of the Norman mine by the fee owners. On February 15 last a notice of cancellation was served on the Oliver Mining company, but as yet the mine has not been released to the fee owners.

In the action which is now pending the fee owners ask, first, for a restitution of the alleged damages to the mine resulting from the so-called ruinous character of mining the property, and, secondly, for the costs.

The fee owners also assert that the Oliver company has not lived up to the terms of the lease and that it is not operating the mine as the proprietors would, were the pits in their possession. The complaint states that through the "reckless methods" of mining, more than 410,000 tons of merchantable ore, worth $420,250, have been left hanging on the sides of the mine and in such a manner that the ore could not be mined with any degree of safety to the miners.

It is alleged that there have been a number of cave-ins at the mine during the last few months, during which time nineteen men have lost their lives. The fee owners blame the loss of life to the mine operators.

The mine, it is alleged, has been left in such a condition that $100,000 would have to be expended to reach the ore, which the fee owners assert has been allowed to mix with rock and earth.

The Norman mine has been owned by the plaintiffs for fifteen years. The property was taken over in April, 1893, from the Rouchleau-Ray Iron Land company. At that time the leases were owned by the Norman Iron company. Ten years ago the Norman Iron company assigned its lease to the Oliver company, which has operated the mine since.

ST. PAUL IS ACCUSED.

Negro Convention, Fights Over the Credentials.

St. Paul.—The old Capitol in St. Paul represented a miniature Chicago convention following the seating of forty-three delegates from Minnesota to the Negro National Educational congress by the committee on credentials. The constitution provides that not more than fifteen delegates shall be appointed from any state, and Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, the committee reported, had appointed forty-three. Pandemonium reigned for several minutes while various delegations shouted for recognition from the floor; charges of trying to gain control of the congress flew thick and fast, while a few even went so far as to suggest a separate convention; but finally the visitors permitted the Gopher delegates to take their seats "just to show the white people a lesson on how to run a convention."

The trouble started when A. S. Jackson of Waco, Tex., commissioner and secretary of education of the African Methodist Episcopal church, objected to the "future dangers" to the convention if the policy of the St. Paul colored people in "packing" the convention were followed. The Twin City delegation deeply resented the suggestion of fraud. Mr. Jackson and his friends withdrew their objections and harmony prevailed.

A bitter attack on those who publicly denounce the black race and naming Thomas Dixon, the author, Senator Tillman and Governor Vardaman and Davis, among others, was made by Rev. R. H. Bowling, pastor of the First Baptist church of Norfolk, Va. "It seems to my mind," he said, "that a devilish propaganda of evil has been set on foot by our American foes for the perpetuation of crime and ignorance among the members of our race, and that the low and vile and vicious and truckling among us, are striving with might and main to assist in this pernicious evil.

Drug Fatal to Physician.

St. Paul. — Dr. A. P. Maschger, of St. Paul, was found dead in his room in the Hotel Radisson. Death was due to an overdose of morphine. Dr. Maschger went to the hotel and asked for a quiet room, saying that he intended leaving for Chicago the next day. He registered under the name of "C. F. Burns of Chicago" and left a call. The clerk was unable to get an answer from the room at that time set and concluded that the man had gone out. The room was opened finally and the body found.

Woman Captures Fugitive.

Winona. — A large posse of enraged villagers quickly organized when an Italian waylaid and brutally assaulted a coworker in the outskirts of Trempealeau village and fled. They took up the man hunt over the hilly roads leading toward Winona, but had gone less than a mile when they found the fugitive standing in the middle of the road "covered" by a double barrel shotgun in the hands of Mrs. H. D. Pierce, wife of a prominent physician of Trempealeau village.

FIVE HUNDRED MEN UNITE IN CHORUS NUMBERS.

Visitors Spend a Day in Minneapolis—Man Noted Organizations Included.

Duluth.—In the neighborhood of five hundred Swedish singers, members of the western division of the American Union of Swedish Singers, assembled in Duluth for the fourth divisional saengerfest of the union, which will continue to July 26.

In the union are some of the best known male choruses in America, notably the Swedish Glee club and the Svithiod Singers' club, Chicago. As soloists the management of the festival has engaged Gustaf Holmquist, barytone, and Mme. Norelli, soprano.

On their way to Duluth the Chicago singers, some 200 in number, spent July 21 in Minneapolis, and in the evening of that day gave a little saengerfest at the Minneapolis Auditorium. With the singers there is a chorus of about 300 voices, which is presenting the main chorus numbers of the Duluth festival. Arvid Akerlind, director-in-chief of the union, is conducting the chorus numbers. He recently was decorated with the order of Vasa by Gustaf V of Sweden for the work he accomplished in behalf of Swedish music. Joel Mossberg of Chicago was one of the soloists of the miniature festival in Minneapolis. The participating societies are the Swedish Glee club, Svithiod, Iduna, Harmoni, Nordstjernan, Orphei Singers' club, Lyran and the Zephyr society, all of Chicago; Orpheus, Arpi Male chorus and Gustavus Adolphus, Minneapolis, and Vega, St. Paul.

The American Union of Swedish Singers was formed in New York in 1892, following the dissolution of the United Scandinavian Singers of America, organized in 1886 and composed of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish societies. It has had highly successful musical festivals or saengerfests in Chicago in 1893 at the Wold's Columbian exposition; New York, 1897; Jamestown, N. Y., 1901; Chicago, in 1905, and in New York, 1910. The next will be in Minneapolis in 1914.

2,000 AT LODGE PICNIC.

Cause of the Insurgents Indorsed at Big Meeting at St. James.

St. James.—The Modern Woodmen of Watonwan county held a picnic here which was attended by over two thousand.

A. N. Nelson, consul of the St. James camp, was chairman of the committee on arrangements, and after a concert by the band in the City park, called a mass meeting of Woodmen and Royal Neighbors.

H. W. Halslet, of Butterfield, was introduced as chairman of the meeting, and addresses were delivered by J. L. Sundean, of Minneapolis, Senator Haycraft, of Madelia, and F. F. Ellsworth, of Mankato.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the unanimous sentiment of the Woodmen and Royal Neighbors of this county in favor of the insurgent program. There was a balloon ascension and a ball game and other sports, and the evening was given over to dancing.

The balloon ascension by Thompson, of Minneapolis, was a success, as there was no wind to interfere and he came down within two blocks of the starting point. The baseball game between the St. James and Worthington teams resulted in a victory for the home team by 4 to 3.

MAN AND SON KILLED

Father Loses His Life in Trying to Save His Son.

Winona. — Martin Daszkowski aged fifty-three years, Winona's oldest mail carrier in point of years of service, and his son Edward, 19, were electrocuted in the yard at the rear of their home here.

Young Daszkowski, who has had considerable experience as a amateur electrician, was erecting a workshop at the rear of his home by candle light. When he tried to substitute an electric light for the candle light by connecting wires with the interior of his residence, he grasped a "live" wire and dropped writhing to the ground, unable to release his hold of the wire. His father hearing the boy's cries, hurried to his assistance and when he grasped the body of the young man to lift him from the ground he too fell.

Redwood Falls Autoists Home.

Redwood Falls. — The party of Redwood Falls automobilists have returned home from the run to Minneapolis. A party of 40 in autos and the city band met the travelers a mile from town and escorted them in. A reception by the entire city followed and there were fireworks to end the festivities properly.

Primary Law Faces Court Test.

St. Paul. — John A. Nordin, an attorney, who desires to become a republican candidate for the legislature in the Forty-second district, is to test the classification clause of the new primary law. Judge John H. Steele has signed an alternative writ of mandamus, returnable at 10 a. m., Monday, July 22, directing County Auditor Al P. Erickson to accept the filing fee of $10 and permit Nordin's name to appear on the primary ballot without any class designation, or show cause.

To Drain Red Lake Land.

Washington, D. C. — Representative Steenerson is making plans to have included in the Indian appropriation bill now before the senate authorization for the preliminary survey of the swamp lands in the Red Lake Indian reservation with a view of their drainage. Mr. Steenerson has been informed by the director of the geological survey that such a survey could be made this summer, and that the data compiled would be ready for congress next winter for any further step it might take.

Misinterpreted.

William Shaw, the secretary of the famous Christian Endeavor society, said in a witty after-dinner address in Boston:

"There is a little Back Bay girl who is much interested in her auntie's Christian Endeavor work. The little girl was writing a letter to her brother at Yale one day, and in the midst of the epistle she looked up and said:

"'Auntie, how do you spell devil?'

"'Devil!' cried her aunt, with a shocked afile. 'Why, child, don't you know you mustn't use such a word as devil?'

"'But, auntie,' protested the little girl, 'I want to tell brother about your Christian and devil meetings!'"

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

The Middle-Aged Woman.

Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surplice effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white agaric trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanitoriums for the Tuberculosis.

According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island state sanitorium, the earnings of the ex-patients of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $266,000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.

The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 ex-patients were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $2 to $31 per week, the total earnings for the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of far-advanced cases would be still better investments."

Voice of Conscience.

A western Kentucky negro was in jail awaiting trial for stealing a calf. His wife called to see him. On her way out the jailer, whose name was Grady, halted her.

"Mandy," he inquired, "have you got a lawyer for Jim?"

"No, sah," said his wife. "Ef Jim was guilty I'd git him a lawyer right away; but he tells me he ain't guilty, and so, of co'se, I ain't aimin' to hire none."

"Mr. Grady," came a voice from the cells above, "you tell dat nigger woman down thar to git a lawyer—and git a dam' good one, too!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Out of a total of 46,450 hospital days' treatment given, 39,147, or 84 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of the 188 free cases investigated, 56 had no families and no income on admission to the sanitorium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were 5.46. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet, but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

WASHBURN IS DYING

FORMER SENATOR HASTENS FROM EUROPE THAT HE MAY DIE IN OLD HOME.

RACING WITH DEATH.

Last Few Miles of Journey—Life Prolonged by Extraordinary Vitality of Venerable Man.

Minneapolis.—William D. Washburn, who is a former United State senator from Minnesota, and famous miller, lumberman and railway builder, is near death at "Fair Oakes," his Minneapolis home. It was said at the Washburn residence that he was low having been in an unconscious state a greater portion of the night.

Mr. Washburn's expressed wish to die at "Fair Oaks" resulted in his being rushed to Minneapolis on a special train over the Soo road. When the train carrying him and members of his family arrived at the North side Soo station, the former senator was unconscious and was taken to his home in an ambulance.

The private car of Mr. Washburn was cut from the regular train at Cardigan Junction, Wis., and a special engine attached to make the race against death over the road which Mr. Washburn himself built. The special arrived 30 minutes ahead of the schedule for the train from which he was taken.

Drs. Eitel, Roberts and Waite held a consultation at the Washburn home after the arrival of the venerable occupant. According to the doctors, Mr. Washburn is suffering from a general breakdown and his death is only a question of a few hours. They said that he had been unconscious practically all of the time, except for occasional moments when he would show signs of growing stronger. For only a few moments he was able to talk to members of his family. The doctors explained that his living depended solely upon his vitality, which was gradually growing weaker, although remarkable for a man of Mr. Washburn's age.

The first news of Mr. Washburn's condition was received in Minneapolis Saturday when a telegram came from E. C. Washburn his son, from Sault Ste. Marie. The telegram announced that the doctors had said that Mr. Washburn's death was a matter of only a few hours and asked W. D. Washburn, Jr., to meet the train.

Mr. Washburn and Dr. G. G. Eitel left at once, after making arrangements with the Soo line for a special train. Mr. Washburn met the train carrying his father at Rhinelander.

Mr. Washburn and his wife were returning from a trip to Europe. They went there last Febuary for the benefit of Mr. Washburn's health. Sailing from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Washburn went to Naples and later to Carlsbad.

Mr. Washburn suddenly found himself ill and doctors at Carlsbad advised him to hurry home. Accordingly, they went to England and immediately sailed oevr the shorter northern route, arriving at Quebec Tuesday. Edwin C. Washburn, who was in the East joined his parents in Canada, after learning of his father's condition.

Mr. Washburn was 81 years old Jan. 14 last. Prior to leaving on the European trip, Mr. Washburn was able to be at his office in the Metropolitan Life building almost daily, but suffered considerably from failing sight.

Roosevelt and Flynn Confer.

Oyster Bay, New York.—An important step in the formation of the National Progressive party will come up for decision at a conference between Colonel Roosevelt and ex-State Senator William Flinn of Pittsburg. The colonel said that he had received word that Mr. Flinn had left Pittsburg for Oyster Bay. When he arrives Colonel Roosevelt will give his final word in regard to methods upon which he will insist in the selection of candidates for presidential electors.

Minneapolis.—More than twenty-six thousand men, a new record for the annual army of harvesters, will be required in the grain fields of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown to wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally the friends of these representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faultless. There are, and have been, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are only such as are to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than past years, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm of the present. Then these great broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last payment on his big farm will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and the whole of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts:

"Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last week. Good rains last night."

From southern Alberta the reports to hand indicate sufficient rain. Crops in excellent condition. Labor scarce.

Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest.

From all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few weeks ago, there has lately been abundant precipitation, and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop to equal the best anticipations. A large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the acreages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if the guess will be none too large.

TEXT WAS NEW TO HEARERS

German's Struggle With the English Language Praiseworthy, but Somewhat Mirth Provoking.

Prince Henry of Reuss, who speaks superb English, laughed good-naturedly at a dinner in New York, over the account of certain officers of the German fleet.

"One of our chaplains," said the prince, "had the hardihood to preach in English at one of your Lutheran chapels the other day. He astonished his congregation by saying, as he rose, that he would chose for his text the words:

"'And he tore his shirt.'

"A quite audible snicker went round. The chaplain noticed it, flushed, and repeated the text in a louder, slower, more distinct and impressive voice:

"'And he tore his shirt.'

"The snicker became a laugh, and the pastor rose and said:

"'Our good brother is quoting, of course, the familiar words:

"'And the door is shut.'"

Pittsburg Chivalry.

"What's going on here?" demanded a man as he came upon two little boys battling in a vacant lot on the South side. The lad who was on top was rubbing weeds over the face of the under one.

"Stop it," said the man, grabbing the victor by the neck and pulling him away. "What in the world are you trying to do to his face with those weeds?"

"Do? Why, he swore in front of some girls, and I rubbed some smartweed in his eyes to become a great man like Abraham Lincoln."—Pittsburg Sun.

ARBOR DAYS OF THE FARMER

Interest Added to Rural Life by Setting Out Trees to Commemorate Important Events.

Everyone ought to cultivate a friendship for trees, and along with his animal friends have a few tree friends. He could do no better to commemorate an event in his family life than to set out a tree and name it with the name of what he would remember—have arbor days of his own.

Where a family has been sentimental enough to do this you will find trees about the house named John, Henry, Susie, Clara, etc., in memory of the birth of the children. You will see a tree somewhere near the gate called the telephone tree, because it was planted the year the telephone was put in the house.

There will be another tree somewhere near that one called the free delivery tree, commemorating the year the mail was first brought to the door. There will also be some small trees, among them the auto tree, in memory of the first automobile owned by the farmer, and the air tree, to remember the thrill experienced upon seeing the first aeroplane.

What romance and interest this adds to rural or suburban life!—Farm and Home.

DAMAGE BY SAN JOSE SCALE

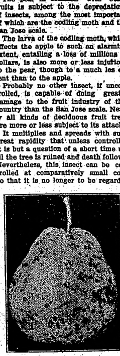
Probably No Other Insect, If Uncontrolled, Capable of Doing Greater Damage to Fruit.

The pear in common with other fruits is subject to the depredations of insects, among the most important of which are the codling moth and the San Jose scale.

The larva of the codling moth, which affects the apple to such an alarming extent, entailing a loss of millions of dollars, is also more or less injurious to the pear, though to a much les extent than to the apple.

Probably no other insect, if uncontrolled, is capable of doing greater damage to the fruit industry of this country than the San Jose scale. Nearly all kinds of deciduous fruit trees are more or less subject to its attacks.

It multiplies and spreads with such great rapidity that unless controlled it is but a question of a short time until the tree is ruined and death follows. Nevertheless, this insect can be controlled at comparatively small cost, so that it is no longer to be regarded as an insurmountable obstacle to the growing of fruits. Experiments have been carried on by the entomologists of the several state experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture with satisfactory results. The use of the lime-sulphur wash has come to be the generally accepted remedy.



Damage Done by San Jose Scale.

For full information on the San Jose scale and its control, readers should apply to the secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Circular 124 of the Bureau of Entomology. The control of the codling moth on pears is fully treated in Bulletin 97, Part II., of the same bureau.

Keep Trees Unbroken.

If owners of trees would realize the importance of keeping the bark whole and unbroken on their trees and treat all wounds propmptly, they would save much loss from so-called "wound fungi," which are ever abundant and ready to take possession and cause decay. Wounds that should be treated are of various origin, and those to the body of the tree are most important, though injuries to large limbs very often spread downward.

Mulch the Trees.

Be sure to mulch the newly planted trees. The hot, dry days will come and these cost the lives of many young fruit trees that are not so protected.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

A strawberry patch well cared for is a popular resort in June. Don't fail to have one.

To prevent rabbits from gnawing the bark and limbs from small apple trees, spray with soapsuds.

Cut worms may be collected and killed in small areas by digging out around plants with the fingers.

Spraying is as important as either the cultivating or pruning even before the pests make an appearance.

The grape root worm has committed extensive depredations among the vineyards of Pennsylvania.

Water thoroughly when the soil is dry to the touch, but never "sprinkle" roses when they need watering.

Pruning and grafting should be attended to with the same care and judgment used in selecting seed corn.

Every time you shoot a bird you are killing an automatic insect destroyer that works for nothing and boards itself.

The lady-bugs or lady-birds are small, turtle-shaped beetles which feed upon plant lice in both the larval and adult stages.

The farmers and fruit growers of this country are losing over one billion dollars annually by reason of the ravages of insects.

The stable manure has been put on the garden or truck patch, the corn or wheat field, but rarely is it thought [illegible]

LOOK AFTER YOUR HEALTH

If Your System Is Kept Toned Up You Will Escape Many Diseases That Find Easy Victims Among Pale People.

Enough disease germs enter the average human body every day to cause death if the healthful organism did not combat these germs and render them harmless.

Let the human system become run down, or debilitated, and this power of resistance to disease is weakened. Soon the disease germs get the upper hand, an acute sickness follows or the patient becomes a chronic invalid.

It is in the blood that the battle to maintain the health is fought. Keep the blood toned up, the bowels open and observe ordinary care as regards food and rest and you will avoid much sickness.

Debility is not a recognized disease but is a condition in which the sufferer cannot get a good night's sleep, wakes up all tired out, has no strength or ambition, is nervous, has a poor appetite, has trouble with the stomach, and is subject to headaches and backaches. It is most commonly met with in people who have to work hard, are confined indoors, eat improper food or have worries and grief.

The case of Mrs. M. V. McCaslin, of No. 202 South 27th Street, Lincoln, Neb., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a tonic for all run-down conditions of health. She says:

"I gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a trial for general debility from which I had been suffering about three years. I was thoroughly tired and worn out and had no ambition for anything. I became very weak and kept losing strength. My appetite was poor and I was nervous and had severe headaches.

"I needed a tonic treatment and tried several tonic remedies but none seemed to help me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I was soon much improved in health and able to get around and do my work. I took the pills until cured and am pleased to recommend them to anyone who is run down in health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Laying a Foundation.

Little Bobby (the guest) — Mrs. Skimper, when I heard we were goin' to have dinner at your house I started right in trainin' for it.

Mrs. Skimper (the hostess)—By saving up your appetite, Bobby?

Little Bobby—No'm. By eatin' a square meal first.

A Lottery.

"Is that picture one of the old masters you were telling me about?" asked Mr. Cumrox.

"Yes," replied the art dealer. "It is a genuine treasure; absolutely authentic."

"I'll buy it. I already have three just like it, and somewhere in the bunch I'm liable to hit the original."

Height of Selfishness.

Some men are so selfish that if they were living in a haunted house they wouldn't be willing to give up the ghost.—Florida Times Union.

People who are thrifty are apt to get a reputation for being stingy.

Too Eager.

Fred Poyner, a Chicago dentist, was recently at a banquet given by the Dental association.

He said: "On one side is the right of things and on the other is wrong; sometimes the difference between the two is slight. As the following story shows: A gypsy upon release from jail met a friend. 'What were you in for?' asked the friend.

"'I found a horse,' the gypsy replied.

"'Found a horse? Nonsense! They would never put you in jail for finding a horse.'

"'Well, but you see I found him before the owner lost him.'"

To Protect the Flowers.

Edelweiss and other characteristic Swiss flowers are said to be in danger of total extinction because of the craze of tourists for collecting them. Women tourists especially are always anxious to take away souvenirs in the way of a plant, and do not simply pull the flowers, but dig up the plant. It is proposed to introduce a law that will prevent the buying, selling or digging of edelweiss, fire lily, Siberian spring crocus, Alpine columbine, the Daphne, Alpine violet or other national flower.

Meeting Emergencies.

Senator Dixon was condemning a piece of political deception.

"The thing was as flagrant," he said, "as the railway case.

"Two men, one of them very short, were passing through a station toward the train gates when the bigger one was heard to say:

"'I've took a half ticket fur ye, George. Yer so little, ye'll pass, all right.'

"'But,' protested George, 'how about my beard?' And he twiddled his chin beard nervously.

"'Oh,' rejoined the other, 'tell 'em it's a mole.'"

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.:—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. Christina Reed, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. Joseph A. Lynch, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. E. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

That grain dealers take the crop on their face value is shown by the reduction in the price of wheat on the principal exchanges.

Complaint has come from the market of the state that eggs now are not as fresh when received, as they could be, and the shipper gets a lower price. When the hens are laying few eggs, they must be marketed just as promptly as though they were coming in large quantities. Holding eggs until there is a full case destroys the value of the first lot.

The conservatives at Chicago insisted upon nominating Mr. Taft, who was beaten two to one at the primaries. The conservatives at Baltimore insisted upon presenting Judge Parker to the country as the typical Democrat—the person most fit to "keynote" Democracy's aims and aspirations at this juncture. As a presidential candidate it may be recalled, Judge Parker was more overwhelmingly defeated than any other man who has run for that office on a major ticket since the Civil War. Conservative statesmanship appears to be an essentially simple affair. Its grand aim consists in discovering and embracing that candidate whom the people most decisively do not want. Some day, we expect, Thomas Fortune Ryan will learn that Eugene V. Debs has run for the presidency three times and never received as many as five hundred thousand votes; and thereafter consrvative statesmanship will insist upon appropriating Mr. Debs and putting him forward on all occasions as its ideal embodiment of the popular will. Finding out what her boarders would not eat and then giving them plenty of it was the recipe to which a certain landlady attributed her brilliant success. Mr. Ryan and the few others in whose capacious hands conservative interests seem so largely to lie have evidently applied this recipe to politics, but they erred in overlooking a gentleman who had demonstrated that he can command still fewer suffrages than Mr. Taft or Mr. Parker.—Saturday Evening Post.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majority of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutritious and especially far better for milk cows for milk purposes. Even people now having here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Mail Carriers Will Fly

This is an age of great discoveries. Progress rides on the air. Soon we may see Uncle Sam's mail carriers flying in all directions, transporting mail. People take a wonderful interest in a discovery that benefits them. That's why Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs, Colds and other throat and lung diseases is the most popular medicine in America. "It cured me of a dreadful cough," writes Mrs. J. F. Davis, Stickney Corner, Me., "after doctor's treatment and all other remedies had failed." For coughs, colds or any bronchial affection its unequaled. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

SEEDLESS APPLE AGAIN.

A newspaper dispatch under a Reno (Nev.) headline states that an apple tree on a fruit ranch in Modoc county, in northeastern California, bears seedless and coreless apples, the placenta being forced out of the apple during the process of growth, the withered stamens and pistils being visible on the exterior of the mature apple. This particular "find" has been hailed as something brand new, the owner taking samples of the fruit to Burbank for the purpose of having him propagate it. Some seven or eight years ago considerable interest was aroused in connection with a seedless apple, but in this case there was a solid string at the center of the apple. While freaks of the above kind are interesting in a way, they have little to commend them for one who would produce apples in a commercial way.

DIHYDROXYSTEARIC ACID.

Investigations conducted for some time past by expert soil chemists in the department of agriculture at Washington have brought to light the interesting fact that a large influence tending to make soils unproductive is that they contain dihydroxystearic acid. In samples of soils taken from unproductive fields in eighteen states this acid was found. This new theory seems to make clear why some soils, apparently fat and rich, do not produce the crops one would expect. The presence of this acid in the soil is supposed to come from mold, to be connected with soil fungi and to be the result of improper oxidation. The difficulty is overcome by drainage, which dries the soil and increases the amount of air it contains, and by the application of lime, which neutralizes its acid tendency.

Governor Will be Formally Informed of Nomination Aug. 7—Refuses to Take Issue With Critics.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 8.—Governor Woodrow Wilson and Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky, who was permanent chairman of the Baltimore convention, have decided to have the governor formally notified of his nomination on the lawn of New Jersey's "Little White House" here at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Mr. James came up from Washington and had a long talk with the nominee, during which he was requested to name as late a day as possible to afford Governor Wilson to catch up with his correspondence, now some 10,000 letters and telegrams behind. The speech of notification will be short, and the governor's reply will sound the keynote of the campaign.

Mr. Wilson let it be known that he would deal with the high cost of living and the tariff which he regards as the leading issues. He will include reference to other planks of the platform also. Until that time, however, he will have little to say in reply to criticisms of the platform by Theodore Roosevelt or anybody else. His speech of acceptance, which he will shortly begin to draft, will be his first public comment, he declared, upon the party platform.

Every attempt to induce Governor Wilson to take issue with any critics of his failed. He discussed the high cost of living as an issue, saying that he regarded it as the leading issue with the tariff at the heart of it; but declined to comment upon Colonel Roosevelt's utterances.

Mr. James went to New York intending later to leave for Washington, where he will write members of the notification committee of the date set for formally apprising Governor Wilson of his nomination. The committee will meet, he said, at the Imperial hotel in New York on the morning of August 7 and come in a body to Sea Girt.

AIRMAN FALLS ON TENT.

Grand Forks Aviator Miraculously Escapes Death.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 8.—Fred Harlem, aviator of Grand Forks, who had a narrow escape from death at Plentywood, Mont., is now in St. Michael's hospital in this city recuperating from a fifty-foot fall in the Montana town. Harlem had made an ascent of about a mile in the afternoon and when landing on the ground, smashed several parts of the aeroplane. The machine was not repaired until after 8 o'clock in the evening and then the Grand Forks airman soared away in the semi-gloom.

On this flight Harlem flew about ten miles and was making a wide circle to return to the starting point and make his landing. Across the town from the aviation field is a network of phone wires stretching to the nearby hills and, coming at a rate of sixty miles an hour Harlem's aeroplane struck these wires, snapping them off clean and overturned the machine.

The jar and overturning of the aeroplane threw Harlem fully fifty feet from the machine, and for a few seconds it looked as though another would be added to the list of air fatalities, but Harlem fell squarely upon a camper's tent missing the main pole by a very few inches. He rebounded from the canvas, turned over several times and was knocked unconscious when he hit the ground.

Woods Prey of Flames.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 8.—The forest fires in the vicinity of Shell Drake, which it was thought were under control, have broken out afresh and a vast area of timber lands is burning or is in danger of destruction. The course of the fire reaches twelve miles. The last reports were that the flames were within a mile and a half of the village. Camp No. 1, the headquarters of a force of sixty men, has been wiped out.

Steamer Rams Battleship.

Newport, R. I., July 8.—While steaming slowly through a dense fog in Narragansett bay, the Fall River line steamer Commonwealth rammed the battleship New Hampshire near the Newport naval training station. Both ships sustained considerable damage but no fatalities or injuries resulted.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 8.—The inauguration of the Olympic games Saturday provided a spectacle which probably has never been equaled in all the history of athletics from the days of ancient Greece. It was not only a beautiful and memorable scene, but a solemn ceremony which moved the spectators deeply. The day was perfect. The great stadium was filled with 30,000 people of all nationalities. The delicate colors of the women's costumes and the bright uniforms of the army officers in themselves made a remarkable picture.

Spring Valley, July 3.—During Chautauqua meeting under canvas, a wind, rain and hail storm of considerable violence broke. The tent was razed to the ground without warning and 300 people caught under the collapsed tent. Mrs. Thor. Wilkins, Jr., was quite seriously injured being struck on the head by a tent pole. [illegible] were drenched with rain. The [illegible] has benefited growing crops much. [illegible] Hall was [illegible] and [illegible] damage was [illegible]

That grain dealers take the crop on their face value is shown by the reduction in the price of wheat on the principal exchanges.

Complaint has come from the market of the state that eggs now are not as fresh when received, as they could be, and the shipper gets a lower price. When the hens are laying few eggs, they must be marketed just as promptly as though they were coming in large quantities. Holding eggs until there is a full case destroys the value of the first lot.

The conservatives at Chicago insisted upon nominating Mr. Taft, who was beaten two to one at the primaries. The conservatives at Baltimore insisted upon presenting Judge Parker to the country as the typical Democrat—the person most fit to "keynote" Democracy's aims and aspirations at this juncture. As a presidential candidate it may be recalled, Judge Parker was more overwhelmingly defeated than any other man who has run for that office on a major ticket since the Civil War. Conservative statesmanship appears to be an essentially simple affair. Its grand aim consists in discovering and embracing that candidate whom the people most decisively do not want. Some day, we expect, Thomas Fortune Ryan will learn that Eugene V. Debs has run for the presidency three times and never received as many as five hundred thousand votes; and thereafter conservative statesmanship will insist upon appropriating Mr. Debs, and putting him forward on all occasions as its ideal embodiment of the popular will. Finding out what her boarders would not eat and then giving them plenty of it was the recipe to which a certain landlady attributed her brilliant success. Mr. Ryan and the few others in whose capacious hands conservative interests seem so largely to lie have evidently applied this recipe to politics, but they erred in overlooking a gentleman who

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majority of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from [illegible] acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better [illegible] cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Mail Carriers Will Fly

This is an age of great discoveries. Progress rides on the air. Soon we may see Uncle Sam's mail carriers flying in all directions, transporting mail. People take a wonderful interest in a discovery that benefits them. That's why Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs, Colds and other throat and lung diseases is the most popular medicine in America. "It cured me of a dreadful cough," writes Mrs. J. F. Davis, Stickney Corner, Me., "after doctor's treatment and all other remedies had failed." For coughs, colds or any broncial affection its unequaled. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

SEEDLESS APPLE AGAIN.

A newspaper dispatch under a Reno (Nev.) headline states that an apple tree on a fruit ranch in Modoc county, in northeastern California, bears seedless and coreless apples, the placenta being forced out of the apple during the process of growth, the withered stamens and pistils being visible on the exterior of the mature apple. This particular "find" has been hailed as something brand new, the owner taking samples of the fruit to Burbank for the purpose of having him propagate it. Some seven or eight years ago considerable interest was aroused in connection with a seedless apple, but in this case there was a solid string at the center of the apple. While freaks of the above kind are interesting in a way, they have little to commend them for one who would produce apples in a commercial way.

DIHYDROXYSTEARIC ACID.

Investigations conducted for some time past by expert soil chemists in the department of agriculture at Washington have brought to light the interesting fact that a large influence tending to make soils unproductive is that they contain dihydroxystearic acid. In samples of soils taken from unproductive fields in eighteen states this acid was found. This new theory seems to make clear why some soils, apparently fat and rich, do not produce the crops one would expect. The presence of this acid in the soil is supposed to come from mold, to be connected with soil fungi and to be the result of improper oxidation. The difficulty is overcome by drainage, which dries the soil and increases the amount of air it contains, and by the application of lime, which neutralizes its acid tendency.

WILSON NOTIFICATION

Governor Will Be Formally Informed of Nomination Aug. 7—Refuses to Take Issue With Critics.

Sea Girt, N. THE PASSING SHOW

Being a weekly summary of events as gleaned from our exchanges.

The Thief River Falls Lumber Co., has purchased all the logs in the Red Lake frnm the Crookston and Grand Forks companies. These with the company's own logs will mean a steady run of about three years.

The Pennington county fair opened at Thief River yesterday.

Alfred Fox, who stole a team of horses at Brooks, some time ago and with his companion, Alexina Bouchiere, made their escape, were captured last week and brought back to Red Lake Falls. Fox has a criminal record, having been released from the St. Cloud reformatory on parole in April, which he had broken in May and has since been searched for by the authorities. Fox has been committed to the penitentiary to serve a five year sentence while his companion is serving 40 days in the county bastile.

Napoleon R. Varin, who resides east of Brooks, is the winner in the Red Lake county essay contest. He will be given a trip to the state fair and a week's entertainment at the hands of the state agricultural society

To Build New Residence.

Tom Norby has purchased four lots just south of the Morrisette residence and on which he will build a fine two story residence. The work of clearing the lots preparatory to building the basement was commenced yesterday and from now on the work will be rushed to completion. The John Norby family will occupy the building when completed.

Flying Men Fall

victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles just like other people, with like results in loss of appetite, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that as T. D. Peebles, Henry, Tenn., proved. "Six bottles of Electric Bitters" he writes, "did more to give me new strength and good appetite than all other stomach remedies I used." So they help everybody. Its folly to suffer when this great remedy will help you from the first dose. Try it. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Move Offices Up Town.

The offices of the Plummer Lumber Co. will soon be located uptown. Negotiations for the lots next to the road east of the pool hall are being made and the moving of the office building and the lumber will be in progress within a short time. The present office building will be converted into a store room while a more spacious and modern building will be erected in its stead. A lumber shed will also be erected. Manager Bottineau has deemed this move advisable as the present location is inconvenient and because of increasing business more storage room is necersary.

Cross Bats With Terrebonne

The local team will go to Terrebonne Sunday to cross bats with the team at that place. The Athletes have been strengthened by two new players since its last appearance on the diamond, and are in ship shape to battle with the fast Terrebonne aggrigation, and give them a merry chase for their money.

NEW PARTY TO LAST

A PERMANENT INSTITUTION WHATEVER OUTCOME OF NOVEMBER ELECTION.

AN INDEPENDENT TICKET

Planned In Every State But Six—Working Program For Progressives Approved by T. R.

Oyster Bay, New York. — A working program for the new party has been approved by Colonel Roosevelt. Senator Dixon, his campaign manager, who has recently been in consulation with leaders of the movement, came to Oyster Bay to lay their views before the former president. After a long conference it became known that the fundamental question of policy and procedure had been agreed upon, subject to approval of the National Progressive convention which is to meet in Chicago next week.

The program which will be submitted to the convention contains these major provisions:

Independent tickets in every state except perhaps six, in which it is believed the Republican organizations can be taken over bodily.

A clean break from both of the old parties the Republican organizations which it is expected to capture, to be used as an integral portion of the new party.

Formation of the party with the idea that it is to endure permanently, whatever the outcome of the November election.

Senator Dixon was accompanied on his visit to Sagamore Hill by Dean Kirchwey, head of the law department of Columbia university and O. K. Davis, publicity manager of the new party. The senator said, after he had talked with Colonel Roosevelt, that straight national Progressive tickets would be run in every state except a few in which the Republican organizations would co-operate with the new party, and place Roosevelt candidates for electors on the regular ticket. This will be possible in states in which the law does not require the names of Taft and Sherman to be printed on the ballot as the Republican nominees.

The states in which there will be no independent ticket, he said, are Kansas, Nebraska, California, both the Dakotas and probably one or two others.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, he said, probably will be the national Progressive candidate for governor of that state.

"Mr. Beveridge will be elected governor," the senator predicted. "We will carry Michigan, Illinois and Pennsylvania."

It was felt that a definite outline should be ready for submission to the Chicago convention and it was largely for this reason that Senator Dixon came on to Chicago for the conference.

In making up the independent tickets in various states candidates on either the Republican or Democratic ticket may be placed on the ballot, provided they agree to support the National Progressive electoral candidates.

In several states including Pennsylvania it is expected the entire Republican ticket for state officers will be placed on the National Progressive ticket.

Insistence upon making the party entirely independent is in accordance with the wishes of Colonel Roosevelt which insists that he and his associates must appeal to Democratic and Republicans alike and look beyond the present contest to the future, shaping their plans in such a way that the movement will go on whether defeat or victory comes at the end of the present campaign.

ONE ESCAPES PLOT

FLIGHT OF TWO OTHER SLAYERS AND FOURTH PRISONER FOILED BY ATTENDANT.

WOMAN BROUGHT TOOLS

Wife of Inmate Said to Have Done This—Steel Bars Cut Through in Readiness for Wholesale Delivery.

St. Peter.—What proved a partially successful jail delivery was carried out at the St. Peter state hospital for the criminal insane. One prisoner escaped, and only the vigilance of an attendant prevented three others from following him to liberty.

Bjorn Ostby, patricide, lowered himself from one of the grated windows in the second story of the building and disappeared into the woods. In doing so he unwittingly exposed a plot which would have given freedom to two other murderers, James Cunningham and George Parker, and to a fourth prisoner Andrew Sweider.

Great cunning was shown by James Cunningham, the leader of the quartet, in planning and executing the coup. Craftily concealing his scheme from all the prisoners but his four confederates, and using only the crudest kind of tools, Cunningham sawed a steel bar from one window and was nearly ready to remove another from a second. He was completing his work when his escape was prevented by the clumsiness of Ostby.

Cunningham, believed by the hospital authorities to have furnished the brains of the plot, is a burly negro, and is known as a dangerous and desperate criminal. He was sent to the Stillwater penitentiary from Hennepin county for the crime of burglary, and while confined in state's prison stabbed and killed a fellow prisoner. On the expiration of his original sentence he was tried for murder and sentenced to a term of life imprisonment. Subsequently he became demented and was brought here.

It is believed he began making preparations for the escape several months ago. He removed the steel shanks from a pair of shoes and fashioned one of them into a rude saw, with this saw, less than three inches in length, Cunningham severed the bars.

Another murderer, George Parker, was admitted to partnership, Cunningham drafting him to act as a sentry. Cunningham's method was to take a daily shower bath. The noise made by the water enabled him to work at the bar without fear of detection, and the attendants now recall that whenever anyone approached the washroom Parker began singing or whistling, doubtless signaling the other of the impending danger. Soap was rubbed into the cut made by the saw, and in time Cunningham cut through the bar in two places. Carefully restoring it to its proper position, he awaited an opportunity to escape.

Finding that he could not hope to escape in daylight, Cunningham directed his energies toward cutting through a bar in a window on the first floor, but at the opposite end of the building. It would appear that he grew impatient over the delay, and took in another accomplice, Andrew Sweider. Sweider is a petty criminal who was arrested last spring for breaking into a box car in the Minneapolis railway yards. He was sent to the reformatory at St. Cloud, and two weeks later was transferred to the hospital for the criminal insane.

His usefulness to the plotters lay in the fact that his wife had been allowed access to the building on a few occasions. When she was with her husband she was kept under close surveillance, but it is supposed that on one of her visits she managed to pass him a small file, which he turned over to Cunningham. The latter started to make another saw from the remaining piece of steel, and it was about two-thirds completed when the plot was discovered.

Ostby managed to descend from a window twenty-five feet from the ground with the aid of a sheet taken from his bed. Once on the ground, he gathered up the raiment of his companions, which he had thrown out, and carried it to a point about a hundred yards south of the building. It is probable that at least two trips were necessary, and on the last of these he was discovered by Albin Ecklun, an attendant.

RUST SCARE IS DISSIPATED

FAVORABLE WEATHER ADVERSE TO THE INFECTION.

Good Report Received From Expert Who Visits Red River Valley.

Minneapolis.—A return of somewhat cooler temperatures over the Northwest grain fields is said to have dissipated the black rust scare that started Tuesday when samples of infested wheat were received from Amenia, N. D.

The weather is now against the spread of the disease and the clearing weather with sunshine will hasten the ripening of late wheat beyond the reach of this infection.

B. W. Snow, crop expert, made a hurried trip into the wheat fields as soon as the report of rust was received. He has wired from Fargo, N. D., that after an inspection trip around Moorhead, Minn., covering 45 miles he found no more black rust than could be found any year and far less than last year:

His message read, in part:

"At Comstock, Minn., in the wheat I examined may be found a few spots where there are rust postules on the top sheaf of a few stalks, but hardly a sample where it was showing on the head straw. Heads in these fields are long well filled and the grain already in stiff dough.

"The earliest wheat is taking on color and cutting will begin next week The wheat seen will average 22 to 25 bushels to the acre and the possibility of rust damage is too remote to be considered as a crop factor."

John Inglis, another crop expert, was on 'Change for a few minutes on his way to Fargo to pass on the rust-infested wheat. Mr. Inglis did not take the news as indicating any serious condition.

"From what I can gather in the report," said Mr. Inglis, "the rust discovered is a sporadic case. This is very usual and I firmly believe that is all that will be found in the North west this year. The crop in this section of the country is big and the chief feature confronting the county is sufficient labor to harvest it."

HOLD HARMONY FEAST.

Hennepin County Democrats Forget Factional Differences.

Minneapolis. — Harmony was the kneynote of the dinner given by the Hennepin County Democratic club at the Commercial club. Leaders of Democracy from all parts of the state urged the "get-together" spirit. The followers of the "houn' dog" were importuned to forget their differences and come into the fold of a united Democracy. Daniel W. Lawler of St. Paul, candidate for United States senator; C. M. Andrist, candidate for governor, Einar Hoidale, Judge H. L. Buck of Winona, T. J. Knox of Jackson, John Jenswold of Duluth, Alderman W. E. Barr, C. W. Bibb, all showed the need of "burying the hatchet." William Jennings Bryan was the idol of the gathering.

Tight Skirts Condemned.

Minneapolis.—Emilie Glorieux, who is the policewoman, says that young society women are responsible in great measure for the continued popularity of indecently tight clothes. "It is not to be wondered at that many girls who work in stores and factories wear improperly tight clothes when girls who should show good taste and more propriety in these things, since they have greater opportunities to acquire refinement, are the most flagrantly offensive in adopting extreme style," Miss Glorieux said.

Swedish Singers Pick Omaha.

Duluth. — Omaha was selected to get the next annual meeting of the western division of the National Swedish singers. S. Simonson was elected present; Eric R. Erickson secretary and John Larson treasurer, all of Omaha. Olaf Nelson of Chicago was elected first vice president, Dr. Chas. Bundsen of Denver second vice president; Charles Lommerhlad, of Chicago, recording secretary; John Peterson of Ironwood, Mich., financial secretary, and Joel Mossberg of Chicago, director in charge.

GOV. ASKS MONEY

MR. EBERHART TO SEEK FUND TO PRESENT MINNESOTA AT PANAMA-PACIFIC FETE.

RESULT OF TENER VISIT

Cash to Fight Tuberculosis Also to Be Sought—Governor Tener Entertained and Tells of Pennsylvania's Plans.

St. Paul.—Governor Eberhart will ask the next legislature to appropriate money for a Minnesota building at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915 and to devote a considerable sum to the suppression of tuberculosis and the advancement of other policies for public health. This action was the partial result of a visit in St. Paul by Governor John K. Tener of Pennsylvania and 17 fellow commissioners, who were on their way home after selecting the site for the Pennsylvania building on the San Francisco fair grounds. The party were guests of the Association of Commerce during the four hours they were in St. Paul.

Governor Eberhart had a conference with Governor Tener. Mr. Eberhart, who has been making a special study of public health for the last few months, said that only state policies of health and taxation were discussed, Pennsylvania being well known for its sanitary projects.

"This is not a political trip," declared Governor Tener, in telling of the commission's trip to San Francisco, "and we have left that subject alone. I did not even inquire about public sentiment in regard to national politics while on the coast.

"Our business was to pick a site for Pennsylvania's $350,000 building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. We naturally think that Western people are always anxious to go East, but you have no idea how much we Easterners have wanted to see what the western coast can produce. The completion of the Panama canal will mark the culmination of four centuries of effort, and with such a basis as this the exposition, in my opinion, cannot fail to be a big success."

The two governors, Mayor F. B. MacLain of Lancaster, Pa., T. B. Mills of Superior, Wis., recently elected grand exalted ruler of the Elks at Portland, and Louis Betz, vice president of the association of commerce, were the speakers at the dinner.

"Pennsylvania spends $2,500,000 annually in the state health department," said Governor Eberhart, "and Minnesota can learn much from her. I shall ask our next legislation to devote more money to the health of its citizens, especially in fighting tuberculosis."

GERMAN CHORUS PLEASE

Eighteen Hundred Voices Sing "Schatzerl Klein."

St. Paul. — A very fair-sized house heard the chorus of 1,800 voices, conducted by Theodore Kelbe, sing the "Schatzerl Klein" song in the St. Paul auditorium, as a part of the Saengerfest. The audience was enthralled with the chorus, which received much praise from Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. Marcus Kellerman, soloist of the day, was given a hearty ovation.

Gossip among the Saengerfolk indicated that Denver would be the place for meeting two years from now. Dubuque, Ia., would like the Saengerfest, but it is believed that there is no hall large enough there to accommodate the singers.

FORTY LIVES IMPERILED.

Oiled Waste Aflame on Stairway of Rooming House in Duluth.

Duluth.—What looks like an attempt to burn a house in which 40 men were sleeping was frustrated by Policeman Paradise, who found a large pile of oiled waste burning on the stairway of the house. With the assistance of the occupants, whom he awakened he managed to put out the flames before any serious damage resulted.

Minnesota Dairymen Prosper.

Minneapolis. — Thrifty dairy farmers of Minnesota received the great total of $25,714,235.64 for butter fat in 1910, an increase of 33⅓ per cent in two years. In 1908 the fact that the money received by farmers of the state for butter fat had mounted to $18,500,000, coupled with the prediction that the $20,000,000 total would be reached within eighteen months thereafter, was considered a wonderful reflection of the growth of dairy farming. With the total as shown in the report, only slightly under $25,000,000 for 1910, the increase is found to have exceeded all expectation.

Range Power Plant Involved.

Duluth. — Under the findings of Judge Page Morris, in chancery proceedings in the federal court in the case against the Range Power company of Chisholm, Minn., in which the Central Trust company of Illinois as trustee in complaint, the property and franchises of the Range Power company will be sold August 28, 1912, and the proceeds used to pay $65,000 worth of bonds that the company issued, together with accrued interest, and $80,000.

Passes Bogus Check.

Faribault.—A forged check of $27.10 was passed on the proprietor of the Superior Hotel here by a man named T. M. Lloyd, who had been here several weeks working as a lather, but who has since disappeared. The check was signed by G. M. Meeles and was on the Citizens National bank. It appears Lloyd has worked the game in several other towns, according to the police. His practice was to work some time in a town and then present a check in payment of board.

BEST DEFENCE AGAINST DISEASE

Is a Supply of Rich, Red Blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are the Tonic to Use When the Blood Is Thin and Weak.

Thin, impure blood is an invitation to sickness. The blood is at work, day and night, to maintain the health and any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a weakness in the defense against disease. Anaemia is the doctor's name for lack of blood. There may be an actual loss in the quantity of the blood or one or more of its constituents may be lacking. Its surest symptom is pallor. Anaemia is particularly common in young girls from 14 to 17 years of age. It is not confined to them for it is this same lack of blood that prevents full recovery after the grip, fevers, malaria and operations and is present in old age and in persons who have been under an unusual physical or mental strain.

Mrs. Morgan Bowen, of No. 2631 Fillmore street, N. E. Minneapolis, Minn., says:

"When I was 15 years old I went into a decline and my parents feared I was going into consumption. I was sick for a year and was not able to do much of anything. The sickness came on me gradually. I was pale and seemed to lose my strength. I was attending school at Winona at the time and became so nervous that I had to give up my studies. My parents were alarmed about my condition as there had been consumption in the family.

"A friend advised my mother to give me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and before I used them long I was much improved. I gave the pills a thorough trial and was fully restored to health. My health has been good since, but I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in the house and take them when I feel I need a tonic."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe disorders.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be used in anaemia, chlorosis or green sickness, sick headache, nervousness and for a general run-down condition of the health.

Nida of the Sea

By Molly MacMaster

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Danvers first caught sight of her when she was going up the gangplank. Her grace was peculiarly her own, and it marked her even among the many charming women who were boarding the ocean liner. Her figure was willowy—the kind Danvers remembered having read of, but had seldom seen except among famous dancers.

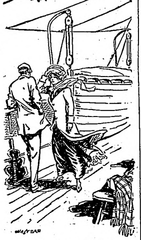
It seemed, however, that the big man from the western world was not to look upon her again. She apparently had gone to her stateroom upon boarding the vessel and had remained there. It was the third day out before Danvers realized that only one chair remained unoccupied in the dining saloon, and that the place must be hers.

It was at dinner that he looked up from a desultory study of the menu card. She was sitting opposite him. Danvers knew with sudden conviction that if he ever loved a woman it would be one who could enter a dining room in just that way. There had been no rustling of draperies, no patter of Franch heels.

But to be frank with himself Danvers had not thought of loving anyone. Perhaps he was a little afraid of women; perhaps it was that he had found them wanting.

And now, because the beautiful woman opposite him was not in the least interested in him or in anything else as far as he could see, Danvers wanted to know her. She, whether through feminine wiles or mere perversity responded but faintly to all advances made in her direction. Danvers felt his fighting blood rise. What right had a woman to suggest mystery and thus lure masculine interest? He watched her covertly and once or twice their eyes met. There was veiled challenge in hers, determination in his, and the something in each that admitted attraction, one for the other.

And under the current of passing thoughts Danvers knew that the oval face of the woman had once before gone before his vision. Where he had seen her and when, he could not remember. He recalled it only as a spirit face without the crimson of the lips or the flush that lingered beneath her eyes.



"You Will Go Back."

After dinner when all of the passengers came up on deck for the usual badinage and glimpse of the setting sun Danvers paced slowly back and forth, back and forth. He was conscious only of the fact that as each person stepped out from the companionway he was disappointed. Then she came and Danvers knew that he had been waiting for her.

She cast a swift glance at him, then turned in the opposite direction and paced slowly down the great length of deck.

Danvers waited until she would have to pass him on the narrowest part of the deck. As she came toward him he knew that she was going to attempt to pass him without raising her eyes.

"You are a most unsociable person, and do not take advantage of shipboard unconventionality," he said, and swung into step with her.

A smile came swiftly into her eyes.

"Am I? I have no intention of being so."

"I think it is deliberate," Danvers said. "When you came out of the door a moment ago your veil blew across my face, and you did not even say you were sorry."

"Perhaps I was not," she glanced beneath her lashes, "and besides—I did not know that my veil had been taking liberties."

Danvers waited a long time before he spoke again. He noticed, with some irritation that she had tucked the chiffon veil well within her coat.

"They were prettier floating in the breeze," he said somewhat testily.

"I did not want to annoy you," she laughed back at him.

Danvers turned and looked straight at her.

"You are annoying me more and more every moment I am with you," he told her with a half laugh. "Four days ago I saw you come up the gangplank and I knew that I had seen you before. For four days and four nights your face has danced before me in maddening persistency, and I cannot recall where I—what is it?" he broke in abruptly. "Are you ill?"

She had gone a trifle white and her eyes had darkened. She smiled, but it was a far away smile.

"No—I am only unhappy," she said. "If you do not mind I will go below. Good night."

Danvers could only frown his disapproval of her leaving him to his own reflections and a lonely walk on deck.

The next morning she was more than ever reserved. A cool nod was all that greeted Danvers, and she seemed to have drawn completely within her shell. He knew that she was still unhappy. Her dark eyes were brooding, and her proud head drooped.

"Five days and my breakfast is tasteless because a woman does not smile." Danvers smiled whimsically at his own plight then leaned across the table toward her:

"Tomorrow we reach Fishguard—and I do not even know your name." His eyes held her gaze and she colored.

"It is scarcely worth while learning a name merely for one day," she answered quickly.

"But it is not for one day," Danvers told her. "I want to know where you are going—so that I may follow."

The girl caught a swift breath, then laughed unsteadily. She had never before been wooed in so masterful a way.

"But I am the follower." A sparkle of fire had kindled in her eyes. "A career is just ahead of me, and I am running after it." She arose from the table with a laugh and left him.

Danvers' teeth came together with a jerk. A moment later he, too, left the dining saloon. His shoulders were braced and his step firm. He would not look again at the woman who had refused him her name. At least, he would try not to.

When he went up to the writing room to get his mail off for Queenstown she was there writing. Danvers seated himself to wait for a desk. She was the first to finish writing, and he took the seat she had vacated. He did not look at her, but he knew that she was surprised and—yes, hurt.

It was not easy to write letters when his whole mind was rushing after the girl. He glanced down at the desk and began absently to trace the name left backward on the blotter.

"Nida," he read, and with the name his memory shot back some months. Danvers did not at first realize that the name he had traced was that of the woman whose identity troubled him. Her face floated before him and coupled itself with that name. Suddenly the story came to him. She was the famous dancer who had been the innocent cause of a great society scandal. Danvers remembered now having seen her picture in the western papers.

Without apparent reason he scratched the name from the blotter and went in search of her.

She was far up toward the bow of the boat standing in the full sweep of wind. Danvers went to her and stood close beside her so that she could not escape.

"Do you imagine for one instant that I would care any the less for you because of that?" he asked without preface.

"I have been trying to escape it for months," she said with a catch in her voice. "It follows me everywhere. I am never going back to New York," she added, "because I cannot stand it." She looked far back where, across the great expanse of water, her own country beckoned her. Danvers saw the sorrow in her eyes.

"Yes," he said in a low voice that seemed to turn the great ship about by the force of its appeal, "you will go back."

Chin Vegetal.

Vegetable fibre, or chin vegetal, is made from leaves of a dwarf palm (Chamaerops humilis), which clings to the soil tenaciously. Its presence was a serious obstacle to the pioneers of Algerian colonization, and it had to be fought foot by foot. It was not then known that the plant would become a source of wealth to the colony and that it would be more and more sought as a commercial product.

Change Western Styles

Chinese Women Now Dressing Their Hair Like Their Sisters of the Occident

Since the men of China have come generally to accept the new order of things in the celestial kingdom by removing the traditional queue and arranging their hair in a fashion as near the European style of parting it as its coarseness will permit, it is natural that the women should follow. Shanghai advices tell of a general tendency on the part of Chinese belles of the present day, the "new women," to appear not only in the garb of fashionable Europe but to adopt the western mode of dressing their hair.

The old manner of parting the hair close to the head is rapidly giving way to the modern European method of parting and arranging it in fluffy style. Having dispensed with that sticky substance known as "bowfull," which is necessary when they dress the hair in the old Chinese style in order to form the rather hard lines, the hair of these Oriental women is found to be surprisingly soft and wavy. It is open for argument whether or not the "new woman" of China is an improvement in appearance over her former self when she followed the more rigid style.

Between Girls.

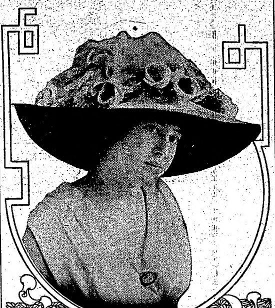
"I haven't received a love letter from Jack in three days. I think it's a shame. I shall be positively ill unless I get a love letter by tomorrow."

"Well, my dear," said the other girl, "if you need a love letter from Jack as badly as that, I have 40 or 50 I'll be glad to let you have."

Pleasing Epigram.

"Great talents are of no use without a little sunshine of the mind"—thus wrote Lady Shelley of her friend Lord Brougham, who suffered from chronic disgust of life.—London Times.

Lovely Moonlight Rose of White or Silver Gauze



THE last rose of summer to bloom in the millinery garden is the most beautiful of all. A dream of rose, a lovely ghost of all the bright colored beauties which have preceded her. This is the rose of white or silver gauze, made of the fabric folded over and wrapped about a rose center in the semblance of a full blown rose.

In the illustration a hat (which a French woman would be sure to call "ravishing") is shown trimmed with a wreath of gauze roses and delicate grasses. The hat is a fine dead-white chip faced with moire in pale silver gray. Besides the wreath of roses, a very full bow of white ribbon partially covers the crown, in the trimming. It is an adorable hat, beautiful in every detail. Nothing could be better for midsummer, or any other season, providing the body of the hat is chosen of a material suited to the time of year in which it is to be worn.

Other roses branched into wreaths and bouquets, are made of lightweight ribbons in odd colors. Very high luster in the ribbons makes these ribbon roses unusually effective and attractive. They are used on mid-season hats of lace and embroidery and on the net and lace caps which are worn indoors and out.

Tiny tightly folded roses continue to grow in favor, worn like a bar pin at the throat, over small bows, and jabots. They are made of all the most popular of the summer colors, blue, pink, green, lavender, pale yellow and white

SMART SLEEVE FROM WORTH

Silk Marquisette Gown Has a Long, Tight Cuff of Black Satin.

Worth has sent out a very smart sleeve in a black silk marquisette gown. It is full from a low shoulder to within an inch of the elbow, made of the marquisette, and there is a long tight cuff of black satin that extends to the hand, which is touched at the top with a thick satin cord, and is finished at the wrist with two white crochet buttons and a half-inch fall of black lace.

The bodice has two gathered scarfs of the marquisette starting from the shoulders, crossing the bust, and finished at an empire waist line in the back with a flat pump bow held in place by thick satin cords at the edges. A black satin girdle outlines the front of the blouse, and it runs into a narrow pointed panel for eight inches below the waist. This panel is part of the skirt.

PANIERS AN EARLY FANCY

Cannot Be Said to Have Achieved Much Success Despite Its Parisian Origin and Backing.

Numberless are the "robes de style" just now being shown in all the big dressmaking houses, says the Paris correspondent of Dress, and various are the forms they take. Of course the panier dress is one of them, copied exactly from old documents. But one never knows whether early models will be a success until La Parisienne has pronounced her opinion of them. Thus it is pretty safe to predict, instead of the panier dress, a return or a partial return to the directoire style. The high directoire collar and fancy vest are already seen at fashionable assemblies, worn with the cutaway habit coat and wide cuffs of the period. the directoire hat is worn with this costume, but the directoire hat is not new to us, for we have had it with us all the winter.

Lace and the Reticule.

Handbags made of lace are a pretty summer possession that will take the fancy of the lover of dainty dress accessories. They are swung from long cords and are to be worn with the lingerie frock. Irish and Venise, both real and imitation, compose them, as well as black and white Chantilly, and filet combined with embroidery.

Fancy Vests in Favor.

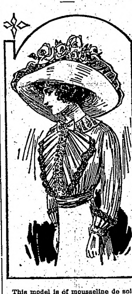
A number of the smartest suits now being made up show fancy vests, says the Dry Goods Economist. These are occasionally made separately, so that the suit can be worn with or without them, but the majority are attached to the coat, and it is expected that the latter style will be made popular than the separate vests. These vests are made of satin, broadcloth, velvet, moire, faille, brocade and other fancy silks. Some of the more elaborate are beautifully embroidered in the new Oriental colorings or in blending colors to match the garment.

Lingerie Pins.

Little novelty jewels that will be welcomed by every summer girl are the lingerie pins. They come in gold or silver, plain or engraved, as you wish, some of the smartest pins having the monogram on them.

These useful little objects hold the shoulder bands in place, and are especially favored by the athletic maiden, who finds it exceedingly disagreeable to have those annoying lingerie straps continually slipping from her shoulders.

OF MOUSSELINE DE SOIE.



This model is of mousseline de soie, but can be made of any other material. It is gathered or shirred at the shoulders and finished in front with a band of lace and buttons, on each side of which is a wide, graduated frill, bordered with heavy lace.

The collarette is of fine lace, the cravat and girdle are of satin. The sleeves are finished with odd-turned back frills of the material, edged with the heavy lace.

Tinted Walls.

It is far cheaper to tint walls with water or "size colors" than it is to paint them with oils. Moreover, the colors are lovely and the finish soft. The only difficulty lies in the fact that tinted walls cannot be washed. Size or fresco colors should never be touched with water. They may be cleaned with bread crumbs, or Indian meal, but the process is a tedious one. Dry pigments are used for this tinting. They are generally mixed in glue size that has been dissolved in hot water. They cost about fifty-five cents a package and one package will cover about forty square yards.—Harper's Bazar.

Cotton Petticoat Models.

The cotton petticoat is no longer despised and put aside as an unimportant article of wearing apparel, says the Dry Goods Economist. It now occupies a prominent place in retail departments. Among the new season's models are styles closely following the silk varieties. Not only are the plain colorings shown, but striped, printed and fancy fabrics are made up in gored models, cut on the lines of the silk variety.

Crash Motor Coats.

The newest coats for motoring are made of heavy plain colored crash, lined with flowered crash, and the trimming of grill work and fabric-covered buttons. The flower effects in the linings are bold and the coloring brilliant.

Waists Have Pockets.

Sporting waists for tennis, golf, etc., come in white or natural colors, butcher's linen, with big pockets, belts and collars and cuffs made of plain or striped material, there are of course the usual [illegible]

CULTURE OF THE ASPARAGUS

Excellent Remedy for Killing Off Green Slugs Is to Dust Daily With Air-Slaked Lime.

Stop cutting asparagus when peas are fit to gather. Let the tops grow until fall. Keep the weeds down by applying a thick mulch of coarse manure, rotted leaves or grass. If the little fly appears, dust early in the morning with dry air-slacked lime. Paris green solution may be used instead of lime. We have always found the lime effective if put on as soon as the slugs appear. Use fresh air-slacked lime and dust every morning until all the worms are killed. Asparagus grown from seed must be kept clean of grass and weeds, and the soil mellow and rich. Use diluted urine from the stables, or bone phosphate, one handful to every 40 inches of row, says a writer in an exchange. The best remedy for asparagus rust is to cut the tops off close to the ground and burn. Then sow a thick coat of air-slacked lime over the rows and give clean culture. All rust stalks should be gathered up and burnt. If any are left the spores will be blown by the wind on to the new growth. To grow stout plants from seed, thin out the plants to stand four inches apart in the row.

KILL OFF INJURIOUS WEEDS

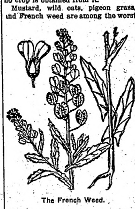
If Noxious Plants Are to Be Destroyed Work Must Be Done in Thorough Manner.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

The presence of weeds on many farms demands that more rigorous measures be taken for their destruction. It is plain that so long as so few pastures, meadows and cultivated crops are used in rotation with grain the farmers will find it very difficult to keep the weeds in check.

Summer fallowing may destroy weeds, but it requires a great deal of labor during the entire season, when no crop is obtained from it.

Mustard, wild oats, pigeon grass, and French weed are among the worst weeds with which farmers have to contend.



The French Weed.

It is to be regretted that so far as the writer knows, no simple or practical method has been found that will surely and completely eradicate French weed. Some farmers have reported methods that have proved successful with them, but other farmers have tried the same methods and failed.

Some few things have been learned by experiments, however. If this weed is to be destroyed, the work must be done thoroughly. The weed produces seeds so profusely that if one plant is allowed to go to seed a large area of surrounding land will soon be infested.

If there is one direction in farming in which thoroughness is required, it is in trying to destroy this weed. A slipshod way will not do, and an ounce of prevention is worth a thousand pounds of cure. Farmers whose farms are free from the French weed should guard against its incoming with the utmost vigilance and care.

Fence-Post Problem.

Cement will solve the fence-post problem for those who have a gravel pit nearby. It would almost seem that with concrete posts and woven wire a fence could be built that would be as permanent as the farm itself.

Ration for Live Stock.

Alfalfa and corn or alfalfa and corn silage make a very acceptable ration for all live stock, while timothy and corn silage make a very poor ration.

Handling Alfalfa.

After cutting, alfalfa should be raked before the leaves become dry. It is best that alfalfa do much of its curing in the cock.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Cut the rye heads out of the wheat.

Keep the cucumbers picked off each day.

An inverted clover soil is ideal for beans.

If your onions are running to tops, break down the tops.

Kerosene emulsion is good—or bad—for squash bugs.

Keep the tomato vines off the ground, on supports of some kind.

The first essential in fighting weeds in any crop is to keep ahead of them.

There is permanent satisfaction in the use of concrete equipment on the farm.

A common rotation for large bean-growing sections is clover, beans, wheat.

The small hand-cultivator is handy and saves much hoe work in every garden.

Hay will be valuable again this year. Let none go to waste; mow every corner.

Be sure that rain-water barrels and cisterns are closely screened to keep out the mother mosquitoes.

The longer you stick to the cultivator between the corn rows the more corn you will have in the crib by and by.

For cabbage worms use insect powder mixed with flour in the proportion of 1 pound of powder to 25 of [illegible] after each [illegible]

HERE IS REALLY GOOD IDEA

Fire Insurance Would Be an Easy Matter If It Could Be Conducted That Way.

Senator Williams at a dinner at Yazoo, said in condemnation of a mooted tariff change.

"They who advocate this change know just as much about the tariff as the old lady knew about fire insurance.

"This old lady visited an insurance office and insured her barn for $3,500. The policy was drawn up, signed, sealed and handed over to her and she put it in her cabba and started out.

"'But hold on, ma'am,' said the agent. 'I must ask you, please, for the first year's premium.'

"'The first year's premium,' said she. 'And how much will that be?'

"'There it is, ma'am, written on the policy,' said the agent. 'A small matter of $24.'

"'Oh,' said the old lady, 'I'm in a hurry this morning. You just let the premiums stand and deduct them when the barn burns down.'"

Force of Momentum.

The old mountaineer, who was standing on the corner of the main street in a certain little Kentucky town, had never seen an automobile. When a good-sized touring car came rushing up the street at about 30 miles an hour, and slowed down just enough to take the corner on two wheels, his astonishment was extreme.

The old fellow watched the disappearing car with bulging eyes and open mouth. Then turning to a bystander, he remarked, solemnly:

"The horses must sho'ly ha' been traveling some when they got loose from that gentleman's carriage!"—Youth's Companion.

Carrying a Suffrage Banner.

"Was your wife in the suffrage parade?" asked Morrowby, meeting Jelliffe on the street.

"You bet she was!" said Jelliffe enthusiastically. "Why, she is the flag bearer for her chapter!"

"Mercy!" cried Morrowby. "Do you mean to tell me that little woman carried a flag all that distance?"

"Well—no," said Jelliffe. "My chauffeur and I took turns at it."—Judge.

WHITE PIMPLES ON HEAD

Ransom, Ill.—"The trouble started on our baby when he was only about two weeks old. Started like little white pimples, looked like an old scab of blood and matter. His whole head was covered for a few months, then it went to his ear, shoulders, and his whole body. It seemed to come out thick and sticky on his head, while on the other parts of his body it was more like water coming out of the skin. He would scratch until the eruption would be all covered with blood and gradually spread. The least little stir or rub would cause the sores to bleed, spread and itch. Never had a full night's sleep, restless all night.

"The sores were horrid to look at. It lasted until he was about two and a half years old. Then we saw an eczema advertisement in the paper to use ——, but it did no good. Then we used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. We put the Cuticura Ointment on thick at bed time and put a tight hood on so he could not scratch the sores. Then we washed it clean with Cuticura Soap and warm water twice a day, and he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. F. Sulzberger, Dec. 30, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

The Minneapolis Tribune has wisely seen fit to romove from his highly important official capacity the Minnesoto Siftings editor, who has occupied a small space on the editoral page for his clippings from the rural oress. Not being endowed with the gray matter more commonly called brains, he soon exceeded his authority until his conceit and ill taste made it necessary to disqualify him from the journalistic field. We do not think the Tribune will lose any of its subscribers or reputation because of firing from its staff this obnoxious poodle.

Observers of county fairs in this state say they are better than several years ago. Farmers care more for cows than for canes, and the silly side show features are being banished Legitimate amusements are taking their proper places. The country fair is a big educational force, enjoyed most by those who exhibit something. Having a personal interest in the fair means a closer examination of grain or live stock and investigation of the way the best products are produced. Remember the Red Lake county fair and prepare something for exhibition. By the co-operation of every farmer this can be made the best fair in the state.

In the opinion of bankers and grain men in the Twin Cities, the crop this fall will be the largest ever harvested. The bumper crop of 1905 will be greatly surpassed on account of the big increase in land under cultivation which has been brought under the plow the last two years. "Wheat between St. Paul and Fargo is so thick there isn't room for more," is the way one man put it. Minnesota will have more money than ever before if there are two weeks more of normal weather. This man means unprecented prosperity for everyone in the Northwest and will attract thousands more settlers. Now is the time to prepare for these and invite them to our localities.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to line tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 100 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for milk cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Indian Killed On Track

Near Rochille, Ill., an Indian went to sleep on a railroad track and was killed by a fast express. He paid for his carelessness with his life. Often its that way when people neglect coughs and colds. Don't risk your life when prompt use of Dr. King's New Discovery will cure them and so prevent a dangerous throat or lung trouble "It completely cured me in a short time, of a terrible caugh that follywed a severe attack of grip." writes J. R. Watts, Floydada, Tex, "and I regained 15 pounds in weight that I had lost." Quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

AS TOLD BY MR. HOODSBARN

One Story Incloses Several Others Before He Gets to the End of His Tale.

"East Somerville—East Somerville!" shouted the brakeman.

As the words went rambling around in the brain of Mr. Hoodsbarn, he came upon a long-lost second cousin.

"That reminds me," said he to his fellow commuter, "I heard a mighty good little story last summer in a village down in Maine."

"So?"

"Yes. You see, a family had just moved to the village from back in the country, and before they were fairly settled they sent the boy to school. Boy went to the school, and took a seat, feeling like a cat in a strange garret. After the morning exercises were over the teacher called him up and asked him his name. That's the way they did when I was a boy. First morning of school, you know; new teacher nervous and afraid of scholars; scholars nervous and afraid of teacher; like the little girl who met the fox in the path; both ran, girl one way, fox the other; see it done myself every day.

"Well, the new teacher would rap to order, then each one of us would read a verse from the Testament in turn, the teacher would make a prayer and then begin the taking down of names and ages.

"Now while I think of it, did you ever hear about that prayer of old Pres. Hill of Harvard?

"No? Well, he was a great student of philosophy—it was his regular hobby—and he stood up in chapel one morning and began his prayer this way: 'Paradoxical as it may seem, O Lord, yet, nevertheless it is true—' That caught the boys, and for years afterward tough statements to one another were always started by saying 'Paradoxical as it may seem.'

"Why, 'twas like old Seth Willard up in Swanzey; he down on his knees in class meeting in the Methodist church one night and says: 'As Thou well knowest, O Lord, my sparked steer died last week.'

"Well, about that new boy in school; whether the teacher called him up before prayer or after I can't say; but she asked him his name and he todl her; his street and number and he told her. Then she asked him what his father's occupation was.

"Boy was stuck for a minute. 'Father's occupation?' 'Yes.' 'Well, ma'am, I ain't sure, 'cause we've just moved here, but I think he occupied five rooms.'"

AUTHORS CALLED FROM THEIR MANUSCRIPTS BY DEATH.

Some of the Greatest Have Literally Died "in the Harness"—Nathaniel Hawthorne's Pathetic Forebodings of the End.

Robert Louis Stevenson's story, "Weir of Hermiston," was left a mere fragment. Another romance, "St. Ives," by the same pen, was running in a monthly magazine at the time of Stevenson's death. Here, however, readers were not deprived of a satisfactory ending, for the story was brought to a conclusion by Quiller-Couch.

"I hardly know what to say to the public about this abortive romance, though I pretty well know what the case will be. I shall never finish it," wrote Nathaniel Hawthorne, with reference to "The Dolliver Romance," which he had undertaken to write for a magazine.

This foreboding was soon verified, for Hawthorne had scarcely time to do more than lay down the groundwork of the story and write the initial chapters before he died. At his funeral in Concord the manuscript lay on his coffin. Soon afterward the first chapter appeared in the Atlantic, and subsequently the second chapter, which he had been unable to revise, was published in the same magazine. Several years elapsed and then a third fragment, revised and copied by the novelist's wife, was placed in the publisher's hands. The original manuscript is now preserved in the Concord public library.

Another serial that was being written when its author laid down his pen forever was "Denis Duval." Thackeray, indeed, was already in his grave when its publication commenced. Three parts, and a portion of a fourth were all that appeared, and "the story," wrote the editor, "breaks off as his life ended—full of vigor and blooming with new promise like the apple trees in this month of May." With the fourth part was given a set of notes, taken from Thackeray's own papers, elucidatory of the subsequent development of the plot.

Thackeray's great contemporary, Charles Dickens, also died in harness. For a long time his health had been indifferent, but he stuck unflinchingly to the work he had in hand. On June 8, 1870, he died. The morning and part of the afternoon of that day were devoted to completing the sixth number of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," but scarcely had he finished work and sat down to dinner than he was seized with convulsions. After lingering some hours without regaining consciousness he died at six the same day.

"I shall publish late in this year," wrote Laurence Sterne, "and the next I shall begin a new work in four volumes, which, when finished, I shall continue 'Tristram' with fresh spirit." This new work here referred to is "The Sentimental Journey," one volume alone of which was ever given to the world, nor, by reason of the author's death, was "Tristram Shandy" ever continued.

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even a she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

Denver boasts that in its public schools girls over twelve years of age are taught cooking, sewing, laundry work, the care of children, respect for husbands, the wise management of incomes and some art by which they can earn a living. But Denver omits to mention how many are graduated each year.

In this day when dogs are muzzled and chickens are frequently kept out of the neighbors' gardens electric companies should be willing to insulate their currents and keep them from eating up water pipes and the steel ribs of skyscrapers.

An electric association in New York will supply free fans to the sick poor of the city during the summer. This is charity of a practical form and will lessen much suffering during the heated term.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Benson, from Fordville, N. D., and Misses Mattie and Elsie Sanfacon from Plummer and Axel Carlson of Hazel, drove up to Thief River Falls Thursday of last week to take in the Pennington county fair.

The townsite company wishes to notify and warn people not to cut any trees of any kind and especially oak trees no matter weather small or large on any of their lots or acre tracts within the corporate limits of Plummer and anyone guilty of such an offense will be dealt with according to law. Henry J. Enderle, Agent.

We are in receipt of a letter from G. Stillman Janes, of Belle Plaine, Ia. this week and also, incidentally, a check for his subscription to the Pioneer, for which he has our thanks. Mr. Janes is well known here since living on his farm northeast of town and is very enthusiastic as to the future of this section. He reports everything fine in his part of the country and that crops never was better. Harvest, he states, is all done and threshing has been commenced.

The garden says an observant writer, truly represents its owner; it is an index of character. What there is of the beautiful in us will be seen in the neatness and taste displayed in the arrangement of the garden; order in one is ample proof that it may be found in the other, and the reverse. So that when we see a garden well stocked with choice vegetables and rare flowers, we are positive that its owner is provident, liberal and intelligent.

While at the Pennington county fair last week at Thief River Falls the writer had the pleasure of witnessing some very fine exhibits along the agricultural and poultry line. The number as well as the quality of the exhibits are evidence of much progress along the agricultural pursuits. An exhibit of grains and grasses raised in the so-called swamp lands in the Grygla country was the center of attraction for fair visitors, most of whom were surprised at the wonderful fertility of these lands thought by many to be non-productive.

Knute Donaldson was in town Saturday.

Chas. Sall, of Garnes, was a visitor in town Friday.

Oscar Lindberg, of Lillo, was in town Wednesday.

Ed Halverson was down from Rollis the first of the week.

A. S. Hovland, of Fertile, was in town the first of the week.

Helmer Bjorge was up to Thief River over Sunday.

Tom Norby was in attendance at the fair at Thief River Friday.

Miss Laura Lanager and Miss Benson were at Thief River Friday evening.

Mrs. Majou, of Crookston, is a guest of her husband and daughter here this week.

S. J. Rice has received a fine Llewellyn setter dog, which he shipped in from Ohio.

Miss Anna Pahlen of Red Lake Falls was a guest at the J. Pahlen home Tuesday.

Joseph Nelson and Mrs. A. Nelson of Hitterdahl, were in town the latter part of last week.

Miss Ethel Halverson returned last week from a two weeks' visit at Roseau and other points.

Miss Gudrun Rice left Wednesday morning for Winnipeg, where she will be employed as cashier in a hotel.

Fr. LeFloch, of Bemidji, will hold mass at the school house Sunday Aug. 11th, at 10:00 o'clock.

Mrs. John Rice returned the latter part of last week from an extended visit with her parents at Stephen.

W. H. Krueger, and the Misses Lenora and Irene Krugger of Red Lake Falls were in town last Sunday.

Geo. Vailleux, Mrs. Hermanson and Ye Scribe were at Thief River Falls in attendance at the fair the latter part of last week.

Do you want any thing in the line of stationary, writing or office supplies? If so, call at the PIONEER office and see what we can do to supply your needs.

Bob Jasperson went up to Thief River Falls the latter part of last week to take in the fair, and later went to Winnipeg where he will work at the carpenter trade.

John Gilbertson brought in to town last week a fine sheaf of Alfalfa raised on the Hans Gulbrandson farm. This was selected on the five acre tract of land sowed to alfalfa and represents the third crop this year.

The Brooks base ball team will cross bats with the Terrebonne aggrigation at the former place Sunbay. This promises to be an interesting game of ball.

Mrs. O. Bancharel d'Aoust, of Paris, France, and her Aunt, Mrs. L. Lariviere, from Montreal, Canada, are visiting for a few months with Mrs. R. Varin at Brooks.

Anciently, dog days extended forty days from August 4. They were so called by Egyptian astronomers for the reason that Sirius, the dog star, rose with the sun during that period, causing extreme heat and sickness. In England, dog days are from the 3rd of July until the 11th of September; in America from the 25th of July to the 5th of September.

The Oklee Tribune has been forced to suspend publication after an existance of two months duration. Lack of the necessary support with which to keep a newspaper on earth made it impossible to continue its publication. Editor Veilleux during his stay has given Oklee a first-class newspaper and his failure to get the proper support necessary to continue his good work is regretted.

TERREBONNE WINS

LOCALS LOSE OUT BY CLOSE SCORE OF FIVE TO TWO.

As was predicted the ball game between the Terrebonne and local teams at the former place last Sunday turned out to be a close and interesting contest. Jennings, the twirler for the locals, held the hitters down to comparatively few hits, but a few lucky hits brought in the winning scores. Both teams put up a good article of ball, and at times it seemed hard to determined who would finally land the game. Quite a number from here drove out to take in the game and everyone reports it as an interesting and exciting contest. The following is the line-up and the score by innings:

Plummer:

Pahlen, Enderle, Brink, Johnson, Krueger, Fulwaiter, Kifenheim, Jennings, Gilbertson.

Terrebonne:

Connors, Laichand, T. Connors, Garceau, Peters, Dunton, Gilwedt, F. Prey, H. Prey.

Score by innings:

"No Filth; No Flies."

State Board of Control. Health Talks No. 6

Investigators tell us that house flies are usually born within 300 to 500 feet of the place where you see them. They do not fly far, so the breeding place is not hard to find. The slogan "swat the fly" has resulted in a large amount of good all over the country, but a little prevention in the way of removing filth would accomplish the same result in a much shorter time. And there would be no chance for more flies from the same source. "No filth; no flies."

Perhaps typhoid germs are the most deadly the fly carries. You may strain dirt out of milk, but when a fly gets one foot on the edge of the milk can it may be starting the growth of thousands of typhoid germs.

If there are flies in your house, kill them. Then go out doors and cover every garbage pile, remove evary manure pile at least once a week and screen every outhouse within 500 feet, and get your neighbors to do the same.

Watch this paper two weeks from today for instructions how to care for manure piles.

WHAT A BANK ACCOUNT WILL DO FOR YOU.

The man who starts an account with his home bank, no matter how small his start, if he keeps at it, will not only accumulate money and increase his credit but will also build up in force of character, in energy, in inspiration and ability to accomplish what he sets out to do, in capacity to earn money and command a place with the leaders of his community. We invite you to begin the New Year right and open an account with us. We shall be pleased to extend to you all the courtesies and help consistent with safe, sound banking.

MAKE THE HOME BANK YOUR BANK.

Flying Men Fall victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles just like other people, with like results in loss of appetite, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that as T. D. Peebles, Henry, Tenn., proved. "Six bottles of Electric Bitters" he writes, "did more to give me new strength and good appetite than all other stomach remedies I used." So they help everybody. Its folly to suffer when this great remedy will help you from the first dose. Try it. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrios and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

The merchant who do not use the paper to advertise, are in a condition but slightly in advance over the man who refuses to display his goods in the store window.

A visit to the fair in St. Paul is well worth while. Better plan now to spend a portion of the first week of September at the state capitol.

Cheaper feed and abundant material for ensilage this fall means more money for keepers of dairy cattle. There is sure to be an increase in the amount of butter in Minnesota this winter, but it will not be enough to affect the general price, and dairymen will profit.

While we are rejoicing over the big crop this year, let us not fail to give thanks for the good health of Minnesotans. In St. Paul during July there was not a case of contagious disease of any sort, and other places in the state have been equally healthy.

Crop Will Astonish All.

The bumper crop of farm produce of all kinds in the Northwest is now practically assured. With the harvesting of wheat in many counties and other grains already cut, the truth of the large harvest is shown. The shortage of harvest hands is a real trouble with the Northwest as the shortage of cars will be later. If the high prices tempt farmers to send their grain to market all at the same time.

Merchants of Minnesota are ordering in large quantities in anticipation of the heavy trade this fall. Some of the wholesalers are taking advantage of the present to ship goods now, instead of waiting for a possible congestion later. The jobbers of St. Paul have felt the coming good times by a big increase of July orders. One of the large firms has announced a six story ware house to be built at once to care for the business of the coming two years. The telegraph companies are preparing to care for a bigger business this fall and the banks have already laid plans to get money to move the crops. The Northwest is advancing.

THE PASSING SHOW

Being a weekly summary of events as gleaned from our exchanges.

Great preparations are being made for the Red Lake county fair, Sept. 12, 13 and 14.

Clearbrook is to erect a four room school house on a site furnished by the Soo railway.

Gov. Eberhart delivered an address at the Pennington county fair last Friday afternoon before an audience of about six thousand,

In a case before the probate court at Red Lake Falls last week regarding the handling of affairs of the H. Langseth estate, a dray load of records was submitted as evidence in the case.

Mrs. Blanche Austin, of Waubun, was shot twice by her husband while at work in the house, after which he shot himself, dying a few hours later. Erate while under the influence of liquor was the cause for his act.

Ex-Senator W. D. Washbourn died at his residence in Minneapolis on the 30th inst. Senator Washbourn was one of the old settlers of the state, coming here in 1856 and has been one of the most active developers among them all.

The body of one Tom Haugland was found in a thicket near Erie last week. He had been in the employ of Rasmus Martinson, of the town of Hickory. Acute alcoholism is thought to be the cause of his death.

Arthur Utello, a balloonist employed by the Cash carnival company was killed at Beaudette last week. When about two hundred fifty feet in the air the gas bag burst, which disaranged the parachute in such a manner that it failed to open when cut lose from the balloon.

Indian Killed On Track

Near Rochille, Ill., an Indian went to sleep on a railroad track and was killed by a fast express. He paid for his carelessness with his life. Often its that way when people neglect coughs and colds. Don't risk your life when prompt use of Dr. King's New Discovery will cure them and so prevent a dangerous throat or lung trouble "It completely cured me in a short time, of a terrible caugh that follywed a severe attack of grip." writes J. TOUCHED TENDER SPOT

APPEAL IN HEN'S EYES TOO MUCH FOR "NIMROD."

Consequently Destructive Bird, Held in Honor as a Gift, Continues to Make Barren Waste of Doctor's Garden.

One of the doctor's patients is an Italian who speaks English imperfectly, and is, besides, very poor. The doctor became interested in him at a hospital clinic, where he treated him for some time. When quite restored to health, the Italian, full of gratitude and affection, desired to make some return for the kindness that had been shown him, and after much consideration decided to present his benefactor with one of his most valuable assets, a large white hen which he was fattening with a view to a feast for himself and family later on. So one morning he arrived at the doctor's office with this offering in his arms and sat humbly waiting his turn among the other patients.

"Well, Joseph, is your hen sick?" asked the doctor jocosely, when Joseph finally was shown into the private sanctum.

"Seek-a!" exclaimed Joseph. "No, ser, heem-a no seek-a. I brought-a heem to you. I want gev-a heem to you. You make-a me well. You treat-a me kind. I geva you de cheek. I have-a no more. I like-a you, please take-a," and with tears of emotion in his eyes he thrust the struggling, squawking fowl into the hands of the physician, who, being a most tender-hearted mortal, could not refuse a gift he knew was offered in a spirit of sincere devotion.

A few days later the doctor's brother, whose prowess as a hunter of big and little game had won for him among his friends the nickname of "Nimrod," was visiting the doctor, and, happening to look out of the sanctum window into the yard, observed the hen contentedly scratching up a bed of geraniums, the last bit of vegetation her actice claws had left untouched in the inclosure.

"Hello, Doc! Since when have you gone into the poultry business?" said he.

Then the doctor explained. "The deuce of it is," he concluded ruefully, "that the activities of that miserable bird have kept my yard looking like a barren waste."

"Kill her, why don't you?" said Nimrod. "Cut off her head."

"Oh," said the man of lancets and probes and surgical knives, "I couldn't do it, not in cold blood. Nimrod—not in cold blood."

"Pooh," returned Nimrod, "let me do it for you then. Just a clip on the side of the head and it's over."

"All right, my boy, go and do it," said the brother. So the doctor closed the window and drew down the shade and Nimrod departed on his murderous errand. Twenty minutes later he returned.

"Well?" queried the doctor, looking up from his writing, "is it done?"

"No," replied Nimrod.

"Not done!" said the doctor. "And why not?"

"Why, the darned bird looked at me with its round, silly eyes and I couldn't do it," confessed Nimrod, with a deprecatory smile.

So Joseph's gift still clucks and scratches contentedly and the doctor's yard continues to look like a barren waste.—New York Press.

Bird Store a Magnet.

The bird store window is an unfailing attraction to many people. Perhaps it attracts men more than women, but it is a magnet that draws all children.

Let the small boys discover a bird store and they halt and linger long, wondering over or admiring the strange or beautiful feathered creatures within, and children walking with their mothers, if they should spy this window, are sure to tug her toward it to give them a chance to look in.

The bird store window interests all children, as it appears to interest also many grown men who may be drawn to it by a natural fondness for birds and animals, or be attracted by the novel or striking character of the exhibit on view.

Here, for instance, in this window is a white peacock, a remarkable bird seen with its plumage in whatever form. As with characteristic deliberation it walks about with its long tail feathers folded and trailing people stop to look at it, and then let it raise and spread its great white fan and many more halt and gather in a crowd around the window.—New York Sun.

Denver boasts that in its public schools girls over twelve years of age are taught cooking, sewing, laundry work, the care of children, respect for husbands, the wise management of incomes and some art by which they can earn a living. But Denver omits to mention how many are graduated each year.

In this day when dogs are muzzled and chickens are frequently kept out of the neighbors' gardens electric companies should be willing to insulate their currents and keep them from eating up water pipes and the steel ribs of skyscrapers.

An electric association in New York will supply free fans to the sick poor of the city during the summer. This is charity of a practical form and will lessen much suffering during the heated term.

The All-Around Shoe

Here is the shoe for office or street wear, work or play, rain or shine. It has a staple style and is made for the average foot. Like all Gitche Gamee shoes it fits the foot, is easy, has graceful outlines and will far outwear the ordinary shoe.

First of all it's made scientifically. It is designed true to the natural foot. The instep is neither too high nor too low, the toes have plenty of room and the heel and ankle do not bind. The arch of the foot is well supported and the whole shoe hugs evenly.

Gitche Gamee shoes keep their shape because such choice leather and linings are used. The sole, insoles and counters are the best money can buy, and only skilled workers with the most modern machines touch the shoes from start to finish. There's a style for every use and a shape for every foot. Ask to see them.

A special train was run through here Sunday morning from Thief River conveying the ball team, band and a large number of fans to Cass Lake where a ball game was played with the team of that place. Thief River proved the winners in the contest by a score of 7 to 2. According to reports the Thief River team was in the minority until the eighth inning when the boys got their heads together and literally decorated the outfield with their long and numerous swats. The "special" returned late Sunday night and judging by the singing and shouting everyone were in a most happy frame of mind.

Carefully compiled estimates of the farm crops of the whole state of Minnesota for this year brings the total to $332,180,000. This figure is obtained by the combined estimates of such men as Immigration Commissioner Maxfield, Dean Woods and others who know generally the conditions in the state. The value of the wheat crop is put at $65,000,000, dairy products $51,000,000, eggs and poultry $32,000,000, and the oats crop which despite short straw in some parts of the state will be worth more than last year, probably $20,000,000. This means a tremendous amount of money for the farmer, and more during the [illegible] feed into [illegible]

The state dairy and pure food department intends to see that the people are not fooled all the time with their ice cream. The law says this must cantain 12 per cent butterfat. Experiments will be made at the state creamery at Albert Lea to see how unscrupulous manufacturers may avoid the law, to be prepared to combat them.

Andrew Letvig makes the challenge that his bird dog can't be surpassed by any dog in town, and is willing to put up fifty cold plunks as a bet on it, he says. This is rather an ambiguous proposition to make during dog days but Andrew states positively he has got the best in the line of hunting dogs, and—like the man from Missouri—he has got to be showed to the contrary.

The play of "Swan Swanson" which was scheduled to play here Friday evening failed to put in an appearence, and from a telegram to Manager Rose it was learned that the leading lady had been taken ill and the troup had to remain in Thief River. "Ole Olson" who was said to have been a half brother of Swan, and who should have gladdened the hearts of the Oklee people on Saturday evening, also failed to show up as Swan and Ole was one and the same person.

Sixteen miles of concrete roads is just being started near Winona under the Elwell law and the residents have petitioned the state highway commission for five more miles to be laid as soon as possible. The road costs about $7200 per mile according to the bids on three stretches received by the Winona Board. The state, county and property owners join in this, although business men have contributed enough to pay for the county's share. This experiment will be watched with interest over the state.

Minnesota is a great state in which to live. Thousands of hay fever sufferers come to the Northern lakes for relief each August.

No use having good crops unless there are good markets. These Minnesota has in abundance. Canadian farmers must ship their grain long distances on lines which need more equipment as last year's rush showed.

S'More Railroad Gossip.

The High Landing correspondent to the Eleven Towns is authority for the following news item:

J. M. Wiley, chief engineer of the North & South Railroad Assn. passed through here Monday on his way to Winnipeg. Mr. Wiley is looking over the proposed route of the Mexican Gulf and Manitoba Short Line which is to be built through this section. He was very favorably impressed with this part of the country and felt confident that the road would be built. He claimed this was the best section of the country he had traveled over on the proposed route. He gave us to understand Highlanding would be one of the towns on the route going from here by way of Germantown and Thief Lake to Greenbush thence to Winnipeg. The people in this vicinity are very enthusiastic over a railroad being built and with the rapid development of this section and the vast amount of grain to be shipped there is bound to be a road through here in the near future. Mr. Wiley has several crews of surveyors on the proposed route working south of here and as soon as he reaches Winnipeg he will start a crew of surveyors from that end of the line.

Terrebonne Grabs Another

In the game of ball between Terrebonne and Brooks at the latter place last Sunday a victory resulted for Terrebonne by a score of five to one. Jennings, Brink and Fulwaiter went over to play with the Brooks team. Jennings who twirled for the Brooksites was injured in the arm in the third inning, but kept on the firing line until the eight inning when he was replaced by Brink. Quite a number of fans went over to take in the game and reports it as having been an exciting contest.

Politics

Without the taking of a single ballot, after breaking the record for demonstrations, after introducing women for the first time as a force in national politics, the Progressive convention at Chicago adjourned sine die, having named Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency and Hiram W. Johnson candidate for the vice-presidency.

The platform adopted by the national Progressive convention at Chicago advocates political, industrial, agrarian, commercial and social conservation and tariff reforms. It is in the form of a "contract with the people" and was mostly written by Colonel Roosevelt.

George W. Perkins, former partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, is to be the chairman of the campaign executive committee of the Progressive party, and United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana managing director of the Roosevelt-Johnson campaign.

BRIEF PLATFORM OF PROGRESSIVES

Reselutions Cast in Form of a Contract With People.

ADVANCED STAND IS TAKEN

Woman Suffrage, Recall of Court Decisions and Plans for Bettering Living Conditions of Wage-Earners Are Features.

Chicago.—The platform of the Progressive party, as adopted by the convention, had been trimmed down to less than one-third of its original length as a result of the all night session. It started out as a document of 9,000 words and when it emerged it was reduced to between 2,000 and 3,000.

Political, industrial, agrarian, commercial, social, conservation and tariff reforms are touched on. Its principal planks relate to:

Woman's suffrage.

National presidential primaries.

Election of United States senators by popular vote.

Provision for a short ballot.

A stringent corrupt practices act, which shall apply to primaries as well as elections.

Publicity of campaign contributions during the campaign.

Referendum and Recall.

Recognition of the right of the people of a state to secure to themselves the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

Development of methods for making it easier to get rid of on incompetent judge.

Recall of judicial decisions and to this end creation of machinery for making easier amendment of the national and state constitutions.

All employers to file wage scales and other data as the public element in industry demands.

Report of all deaths, injuries and disease, due to industrial operations, to public authorities.

Declaration in favor of a living wage.

Establishment of minimum wage commissions by the nation and states.

Immediate establishment of minimum wage standards for women.

Investigation of industries by the federal government for standards of sanitations and safety.

George W. Perkins.

Standardization of mine and factory inspection.

Workmen's Compensation.

Establishment of standards of compensation for industrial accidents and deaths and for occupational diseases.

Establishment of a fair standard of compensation for casualties resulting fatally.

Prohibition of night labor of women and children.

Prohibition of employment of women more than forty-eight hours per week.

Laws providing for one day of rest in seven.

Three shifts of eight hours each in continuous industries.

Government regulation and control of hazardous industries.

Governmental sanitary regulation of temporary construction camps.

Prohibition of the premature employment of children.

Control of the employment of women where they undergo strains.

Provisions for insurance against hazards of sickness, accident, invalidism, involuntary unemployment and old age.

Strengthening and efficient enforcement of pure food laws.

Federal Health Department.

Establishment of federal department in which shall be combined all agencies relating to public health.

Revival of the country life commission and co-operation by the government with the farmer to make the farm more productive.

Strengthening of anti-trust law against monopoly and anti-social practices.

Creation of national industrial commission, with full power to regulate and control all features of the great industrial corporations.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey.

Remodeling of patent laws and prevention of use of patents as tools of monopoly.

Establishment of parcels post on zone principle.

Strengthening of the interstate commerce law, especially as regards railroads.

Elastic Currency Reform.

Declaration for sound and elastic currency reform, guarded against use for any speculative purposes.

Legislation to conserve the soil, forests and mines.

Declaration that public shall not alienate its fee in the water power, leasing the power only for a reasonable length of time.

Participation in reclaiming swamp lands in south and continuance of irrigation policy in west.

Federal development and control of the Mississippi river.

Use of Alaska as experiment in governmental construction and ownership of railways and telegraphs.

Retention by goverment of fee of all Alaska coal fields. Adoption of a system of land taxation in Alaska which will remove all the burdens from those who actually use the land, whether for building or agricultural purposes, and will operate against speculators.

About Panama Canal.

Approval of Panama canal, provision for its fortification and legislation authorizing coastwise traffic to use canal without tolls.

Maintenance of an efficient army.

Continuance of upbuilding navy.

Declaration for protective tariff for whole people.

Creation of permanent commission of nonpartisan tariff experts.

Revision of tariff schedule by schedule.

Downward revision of the tariff.

Investigation of high cost of living.

Legislation for closer business relationship between farmer and consumer.

Horse in Serious Trouble.

An exciting incident occurred at Tweed Dock, Berwick, Scotland, the other day. A horse yoked to a cart was being backed towards the dock side in order to take a load from a ship lying alongside. The animal went a step too far, with the result that the horse and cart fell into the ship. Fortunately the hold was not large enough to admit the cart, but considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the horse ashore. Ropes were tied around the animal's feet, and it was drawn up to the dock side.

Bars the "Marseillaise."

The kaiser refuses to listen to the revolutionary strains of the "Marseillaise." Since he came to the throne he has never allowed the French national hymn to be played at his court, at any of the state theaters or by any German naval or military band. When he entertains the French ambassador at dinner or receives him in state and wishes to pay him musical honors, he orders the musicians to play the old "Marche de St. Denis," which is in every sense of the word, a Bourbon hymn.

ROOSEVELT AND JOHNSON ARE NOMINATED

CANDIDATES THANK CONVENTION AND PLEDGE TO WORK UNTIREINGLY SUPPORT.

JANE ADDAMS HELPS.

Is Among Those to Second Ex-President's Nomination.—Colonel and Governor Praise Each Other.

Chicago, Illinois.—Singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the delegates to the first national convention of the new Progressive party proclaimed Theodore Roosevelt of New York as their candidate for president, and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California as their choice for vice-president.

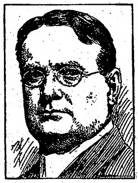
Marking a new departure in the proceedings of national conventions, the two candidates immediately were informally notified of their nomination and in the midst of deafening cheers appeared before the delegates to voice their acceptance and pledge their best effort to the coming campaign.

For several long hours during the afternoon and early evening the big throng in the Coliseum had listened to a flow of oratory in nominating and seconding speeches in which the dominant note expressed was the belief that victory would come to the new party in the November elections.

Raymond Robbins of Illinois pledged a 100,000 majority for the national ticket in Illinois and Gifford Pinchot predicted a 400,000 majority for Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Johnson in his home state of Pennsylvania.

These statements were cheered to the echo.

The party formally christened itself "The Progressive party," leaving out the prefix "national," by which it heretofore was known, but provision was made for the cognition of "real" Progressives in any of the states of whatever name they should be locally designated because of the state laws.



H. W. JOHNSON

The convention adjourned at 7:24 p. m. with the delegates singing the Doxology.

During the three days it was in session there was not a single roll call, nor a ballot taken. The delegates asked no such formalities either in placing their candidates in nomination or in voting for them. There was not a voice in opposition either to Colonel Roosevelt or Governor Johnson. The delay in nominating them was due to the large number of seconding speeches allowed.

As has always been the case in national political conventions, the bulk of the work of the Progressive gathering was carried on in the committees. The only semblance of a conflict of opinion on the floor was a brief debate as to whether or not an hour's recess should be taken.

The point was not material, but, as one delegate expressed it, "we just had to fight about something to make it a regular convention."

There was sharp discussion, however, in several of the committee meetings and no little difficulty in agreeing upon the platform as finally adopted. Colonel Roosevelt worked with the sub-committee in charge of the platform, going over their work and vigorously helping to mould the draft which at last proved acceptable to him. The platform did not take up the negro question.

In this connection, one of the interesting seconding speeches of the day was that of F. R. Gleed of New York, a negro. Gleed declared that the negroes had faith in the new party, faith that it would do all in its power to right the wrongs of the race.

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

"We stand by the platform," he said; "we stand by Col. Roosevelt's letter; we stand by his speech. And as we stood by him at San Juan Hill, so we will stand by him in November and fight for victory."

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, was among those who seconded Colonel Roosevelt and she was enthusiastically greeted.

The new party formally placed itself on record as favoring equal suffrage and further recognized the woman suffrage movement by providing for four women members at large on the national committee.

Colonel Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance, said:

"Mr. Chairman and men and women who in this convention represent the high and honest purpose of the people of all of our country. I came forward to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me and to say that of course I accept."

With his task as pilot of the convention ended, Colonel Roosevelt plunged at once into what he expects to be the hardest campaign of his career. He was in high spirits and said jubilantly that everything had turned out just right.

"We've got a great platform. Everything is fine, by George!" he exclaimed.

The new national committee of the Progressive party, which takes place of the provincial committee in charge up to this time, was named by the various state delegations. The membership of the new committee is:

Joseph Thompson, Alabama; J. F. Cleaveland, Arizona; H. K. Cochran, Arkansas; Chester H. Rowell, California; B. B. Lindsey, Colorado; Joseph W. Alzoh, Connecticut; Louis A. Drexler, Delaware; C. M. McClure, Georgia; P. M. Smock, Idaho; Rudolph G. Leeds, Indiana; John L. Stevens, Iowa; William Allen White, Kansas; Leslie M. Combs, Kentucky; Pearl Wright, Louisiana; Albert P. Gardner, Maine; Matthew Hale, Massachusetts; E. C. Carrington, Jr., Maryland; Henry M. Wallace, Michigan; Milton D. Purdy, Minnesota; Wm. H. Walker, Missouri; B. F. Fridge, Mississippi; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Nathan Merriam, Nebraska; P. L. Flannigan, Nevada; William Savacool, New Hampshire; John Franklin Fort, New Jersey; Miguel A. Otero, New Mexico; J. N. Williamson, North Carolina; A. Y. More, North Dakota; J. J. Sullivan, Ohio; George J. Priestley, Oklahoma; H. W. Coe, Oregon; Edwin F. Tuttle, Rhode Island; R. S. Vessey, South Dakota; G. Thomas Taylor, Tennessee; Cecil A. Lyon, Texas; M. Henier, Utah; Thomas Lee Moore, Virginia; Charles H. Thompson, Vermont; H. F. Cochems, Wisconsin; Robert D. Carey, Wyoming; M. M. O. Dawson, West Virginia.

Crowds in hotel corridors and lobbies were nearly as large and quite as noisy as those during the Republican national convention.

Hundreds of delegates and their friends, fantastically decked out with bandana handkerchiefs and pictures of Colonel Roosevelt, marched about singing Roosevelt songs and shouting Roosevelt yells of many kinds.

Despite the fact that Colonel Roosevelt was expected to reach the convention hall soon after noon, delegations to the national progressive gathering were slow again in reaching their seats. At 10 minutes to 12 there were not more than 200 delegates on the floor. The galleries also were slow in filling.

A great crowd of spectators and delegates had remained at the headquarters hotel either to see the colonel start triumphantly for the convention or to accompany him on the trip. The New York delegation marched in at 11:55 a. m. with a brass band in the lead, playing the inevitable convention tune, "Everybody's Doing It."

Pictures to Go Down Cellar.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Albert J. Beveridge's and Theodore Roosevelt's pictures no longer grace the walls of the Indiana republican headquarters. They were taken down on the theory that they are no longer Republicans.

Dillon Forced To Quit Race.

Washington, D. C. — E. G. Dillon withdrew as republican candidate for governor of Ohio in the face of a Roosevelt ultimatum that he declared himself for the colonel or fight a third state ticket.

Resignation of Hanford Accepted.

Washington, D. C. — President Taft has formally accepted the resignation of Federal Judge Cornelius H. Hanford, of Seattle, Wash., who resigned while a house committee was investigating impeachment charges against him.

$90,000 in Gems Stolen.

Lisbon, Portugal.—Gems from the late Queen Maria Pia's collection, for which she had just paid $90,000, were stolen from Jose Cruss' room in a hotel here.

Hugh Jennings Signs.

Detroit, Michigan. — Hugh Jennings, has signed a contract to continue his services as manager of the Detroit American league baseball team for the next two years. His salary is said to be the highest paid any manager in the American league.

Optimistic Crop Reports.

Winnipeg, Manitoba. — Optimism is the idea that runs through 99 per cent of the reports of crops received by a local newspaper from its western correspondents.

Urges Pension Payments.

Washington, D. C. — Senator McCumber of North Dakota announces that he will call for immediate consideration by the senate of his resolution appropriating $30,000,000 to pay pensions of Mexican and civil war veterans until the regular pension appropriation is passed.

Pierce, So. Dakota. — Attorney General Johnson holds that the socialist electors could have a place upon the ballot.

1,000 DIE IN QUAKE

HOSPITALS CROWDED AND APPEALS FOR DOCTORS ARE POURING INTO CAPITAL.

NO ACCURATE FIGURES

Dead Estimated at 1,000 and the Injured Between 5,000 and 6,000. —Volcanic Island Forming.

Constantinople, Turkey—The interruption of telegraphic communication makes it very difficult to obtain accurate details of the disastrous earthquake which occurred Aug. 9 on both sides of the Dardanelles.

No accurate figures of the number of victims can yet be tabulated though some estimates place the death list at 1,000 and the injured from 5,000 to 6,000.

In the town of Shary-Koy, which was completely destroyed, 60 persons were killed and 150 injured. Fires are reported from many cities in which numerous buildings were destroyed.

Fissures opened to a length of about a mile along the river at Lule-Burgas, 40 miles southeast of Arianople, and from these apertures hot water, sand, foam and sulphurous vapors were emitted.

Everywhere in the stricken zone there is terrible want and distress. Appeals for doctors and help are constantly being received at the capital and the government is doing its utmost to satisfy them. The hospitals here are crowded with injured persons.

The vali of Adrianople reported to Constantinople that the loss of life there was small. The quake, however, seriously damaged the public buildings of the city.

Three renewed earth shocks were felt here. It is reported that a volcanic island is forming in the sea off Marmora.

CONVICTS LEAP OUT

Handcuffed Together, Squirm Through Window.

Whitehall. — Convicts Mel Jowell and John McAdams, while they were being returned to the penitentiary from Big Timber, where they had been taken as witnesses, while handcuffed together squirmed and leaped through the window of a Northern Pacific train while it was traveling about thirty miles an hour, rolled down a steep embankment and successfully effected their escape.

The scene of their escape is a wild spot near the main divide of the rockies in a locality where two overland Northern Pacific trains were held up about five years ago, with the ruggedness of the ountry affording every opportunity for the fugitives to elude pursuit. Two posses, both with bloodhounds have been scouring the timber all day but without picking up a clue.

GLAD KNOX IS COMING

Sincerely Appreciate Action of the United States.

Tokio, Japan. — The announcement of plans for the coming of Secretary of State Knox from Washington to attend the funeral of Emperor Mutshuito on Sept. 12, is received by all the leading Japanese newspapers with expressions of sincere appreciation. The journals voice a note of friendliness in connection with Mr. Knox's projected visit.

To SafeGuard Sea Life.

Washington, D. C. — Nearly four months after the Titanic foundered congress passed two measures safeguarding life at sea. One, the radiocommunication bill, passed both the house and senate; the other, the Alexander lifeboat measure, was adopted by the house and will be promptly enacted by the senate. The wireless bill licenses radiograph operators and prohibits the sending of interstate messages by others than American citizens holding permits.

Will Start War on Rats.

Washington, D. C. — The United States is asking inventors to submit working models of rat traps to the marine hospital service headquarters in Washington. The request is part of the organized campaign for the extermination of rats to prevent the spread of bubonic plague.

Governor Marshall's Views.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Theodore Roosevelt will poll more votes in New York states than President Taft, according to Governor Thomas R. Marshall, democratic vice presidential candidate, who returned from a week's trip through the east. He said that he had not been able to get any first-hand information regarding the comparative strength of Governor Woodrow Wilson but that democratic leaders told him Roosevelt's vote in the east would be greater than that for the president.

Review of Fleet at Gotham.

Newport, Rhode Island. — Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer, arrived here on the dispatch boat Dolphin from his summer home in Hamilton, Mass., where he has been recuperating from an attack of typhoid fever. The secretary planned to leave later for Washington to resume his duties. Secretary Meyer conferred with Rear Admiral Hugo O. Osterhaus on the work to be undertaken by the battleships. Mr. Meyer said that a review of the fleet will be held in New York in October.

C. W. JOHNSON, Clerk District Court.

Moved by Commissioner Pigeon duly seconded by Commissioner Schultz that the County Auditor be instructed and directed to issue refunding warrant in favor of the County Treasurer to correct error in receipt No. 2586 1909 tax, issued by H. E. Ives.

Motion carried unanimously.

In the matter of the petition of John R. Goteia et al. for a county road on motion duly carried the following order was made.

Whereas on the 8th day of July A. D. 1912, a petition signed by Thirty freeholders of said county was presented to us praying for the laying out of and establishing of a highway running into one town of said county, and not within the limits of any incorporated city and described as follows.

Beginning at the Town line between Gervais and River Townships on section line between sections thirty-one (31) and thirty-two (32) Township one hundred fifty-two (152) North of Range forty-three (43), and running thence North three quarters of a mile to to the northeast corner of the SE¼ NE¼, thence west one quarter of a mile to the northwest corner of the SE¼ of NE¼ Section thirty-one thence North one quarter of a mile to northwest corner of NE¼ NE¼ of Section 31, thence west on section line between section Thirty one (31) and thirty (30) to the north west corner of the NW¼ NE¼ of section 31 thirty-one Township one hundred fifty-two (152) north of Range forty-three (43) west, in Red Lake county, Minnesota.

And the Board of County Commissioners of said county having determined that in the judgment of a majority of its members said petition is reasonable on its face.

It is hereby ordered that a day of hearing be had on said petition at the County Commissioners' office of said county on Tuesday the 10th day of September A. D. 1912, at two o'clock P. M. at which time and place the board will hear all that may be said in favor of and against the granting of said petition.

It is further ordered that the full board be and they are hereby appointed a committee to examine said proposed establishing of said road and that the said County Board meet upon the route of said road at the house of John R. Goteia on the SE¼ of Section 31 in Twp. 153 Range 43 in said county on Friday the 30th day of August A. D. 1912, at 10 o'clok A. M. for the purpose of examination of said proposed establishing of said road and make report thereof at said meeting of said board herinbefore specified, and that notice thereof be posted and given as provided by law.

THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA.
By SAM E. HUNT, Chairman.
(Seal.)
Attest: A. A. LATENDRESSE,
County Auditor.

Moved by Commissioner Schultz duly seconded by Commissioner Kankel that the balance remaining to the credit of the Court House and Jail Fund be transferred to the County Revenue Fund and that the County Treasurer and County Auditor are hereby authorized and directed to make such transfer on the records of their office. Motion carried.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Schultz who moved its adoption duly seconded by Commissioner Kankel, Whereas for the past ten years Red Lake county has had the Township system for taking care of the poor and from that time on, there has been collections each year placed to the credit of that fund, and all warrants have been paid with the exception of Five Dollars. Therefore, BE IT RESOLVED That the balance remaining to the credit of the Poor Fund in said Red Lake county be transferred to the County Revenue Fund and that the County Treasurer and County Auditor are hereby authorized and directed to make such transfer on the records of their offices.

Resolution carried unanimously.

The following statement of the condition of the County Funds was submitted by the County Auditor:—

The Old Favorites.

Where are the songs of long ago?
Will some strong, husky men
Go to the place where they have strayed
And bring them back again?
I weary of the ragtime rot
That rattles down the keys
And want a different brand, although
I am not hard to please.

We used to twitter tuneful lays
About the babbling brook,
About the girl who was so sweet
You took another look.
Now nature doesn't have in song
A leg on which to stand.
In place of daisies in the dell
We have the hothouse brand.

The lady, Sadie, shady type
Is now the proper tune—
The lovey, dovey, mushy sort.
You hear it with a spoon.
The honey, money, funny kind
The modern ear assails.
The Daisy, Mazy, hazy brand
Of buncombe never fails.

Give us the songs of long ago
Of green and shady dells,
Of bashful swains beneath the moon
Beside the village belles,
Of old folks in the cabin home,
Of happy girls and boys,
Of grandma in the easy chair
And such sweet, simple joys.

DISORDERED DIGESTION

If Neglected May Develop into a Severe Form of Stomach Trouble.

The Best Safeguard Is to Keep the Stomach Toned Up and the Treatment Should Be Begun When the First Symptom Is Noted.

"A few years ago," says Mrs. George Failu, of Finlayson, Minn., "I began to suffer from stomach trouble. It came on me gradually and I do not know what caused it. I gave little heed to it at the time, thinking that it was merely a slight attack of indigestion. It finally developed into a severe form of stomach trouble and I suffered terribly for months.

"At the beginning of my sickness I had fainting spells and became unconscious. There was gas on my stomach, my appetite was very poor and what little I ate did not seem to be digested. I was sick at my stomach a great deal and had severe dizzy attacks. I had hot flashes when it would seem as though I was burning up. I could not sleep night or day during these spells unless I took something to ease the pain. I was very weak and was in this condition for six months. I could not do any work and was confined to bed for two or three days at a time.

"A doctor at Duluth said I had gastric fever. He did not give me much help so I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon my mother's advice. I gave the pills a thorough trial and unlike the doctor's medicine, they agreed with me. I took several boxes of the pills and was entirely cured. I think so much of the pills that I always keep them in the house."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened digestive system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe stomach disorders. This record of cures should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates.

A new edition of the booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat," is free on request. Send a postal for it today and begin to cure yourself by following the directions it contains.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are on sale at all druggists, or they will be sent to any address by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HER LITTLE HAND IN HIS

Mr. Pecke's Explanation as to Reason Somewhat Dispelled the Odor of Romance.

Henne and Pecke were two henpecked married men. The other day they met, and, after a few casual remarks concerning the weather, the subject of women and unfortunate husbands was—perhaps naturally—discussed. To Henne, however, suddenly came thoughts of years ago, when he was a happy bachelor, and (unconscious of what Fate had in store for him) was "walking out" a girl who was, later on, destined to bring him sorrow and misery.

Pecke, seeing a "far-away" look in his companion's eyes, inquired the meaning. Henne retorted dramatically, "I was just then thinking, old fellow, of those happy days long ago—when I used to hold that girl's hand in mine for hours—when—"

But the equally unfortunate Pecke suddenly cut his companion short by exclaiming: "Why, that's nothing! Cheer up! Do you know, only yesterday I held my wife's hand for three solid hours."

"What?" said the startled Henne.

"Yes, it's a fact," resumed Pecke, sorrowfully; "and I declare if I'd let loose she'd have killed me."—London Tit-Bits.

Expect Big Sale of Red Cross Seals.

The campaign for selling Red Cross seals this year will be carried on in practically every state and territory in the United States, and even in Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Phillippine islands. No less than 100,000 volunteer agents, including department, drug and other kinds of stores, motion picture theaters, individuals, and others, will be engaged in the work. Before the sale is completed, it is expected that at least 100,000,000 seals will have been printed and distributed, besides several million posters, display cards and other forms of advertising literature.

Lacks Originality.

"Bilkins tells me that he has lately subscribed for a new thought magazine."

"I hope its perusal will inspire him with some new thoughts. Nobody talks about the weather more than Bilkins does."

Tell it not in Gath, but there are church members who look too happy at a horse race and too solemn in prayer meeting.

WILSON IS NOTIFIED

NEW JERSEY GOVERNOR INFORMED HE IS NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT BY DEMOCRATS.

ACCEPTS HONOR IN SPEECH

Gives His Views on Way Nation Should Be Governed—Would Have Tariff Revised Downward and Trusts Controlled.

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 7.—The notification committee named by the Democratic national convention today called upon Gov. Woodrow Wilson at his home and officially told him he had received the nomination for the presidency. Ollie James, chairman of the committee, made the notification speech.

In reply Governor Wilson, after thanking the committee, commented on the unusual nature of the coming campaign in which the candidates must address an awakened nation, impatient of partisan make-believe and never more susceptible to unselfish appeals or to the high arguments of sincere justice. The forces of the nation, he said, are asserting themselves against every form of special privilege and private control, and are seeking bigger things than they have ever heretofore achieved.

Two Great Things to Do.

"How do we expect to handle each of the great matters that must be taken up by the next congress and the next administration?" said Mr. Wilson, and he answered his own query as follows:

What is there to do? It is hard to sum the great task up, but apparently this is the sum of the matter: There are two great things to do. One is to set up the rule of justice and of right in such matters as the tariff, the regulation of the trusts and the prevention of monopoly, the adaptation of our banking and currency laws to the varied uses to which our people must put them, the treatment of those who do the daily labor in our factories and mines throughout all our great industrial and commercial undertakings, and the political life of the people of the Philippines, for whom we hold governmental power in trust, for their service, not our own. The other, the additional duty is the great task of protecting our people and our resources and of keeping open to the whole people the doors of opportunity through which they must, generation by generation, pass if they are to make conquest of their fortunes in health, in freedom, in peace, and in contentment. In the performance of this second great duty we are face to face with questions of conservation and of development, questions of forests and water powers and mines and water ways, of the building of an adequate merchant marine, and the opening of every highway and facility and the setting up of every safeguard needed by a great industrious, expanding nation.

These are all great matters upon which everybody should be heard. We have got into trouble in recent years chiefly because these largo things, which ought to have been handled by taking counsel with as large a number of persons as possible, because they touched every interest and the life of every class and region, have in fact been too often handled in private conference. Our difficulty is not that wicked and designing men have plotted against us, but that our common affairs have been determined upon too narrow a view, and by too private an initiative. Our task now is to effect a great readjustment and get the forces of the whole people once more into play.

Revision of the Tariff.

Coming to the tariff question, the governor said the schedules "have been made up for the purpose of keeping as large a number as possible of the rich and influential manufacturers of the coutnry in a good humor with the Republican party, which desired their constant financial support. The tariff has become a system of favors, which the phraseology of the schedule was often deliberately contrived to conceal."

Reasserting the Democratic conviction that the only legitimate object of tariff duties is to raise revenue for the support of the government, he continued:

There should be an immediate revision, and it should be downward, unhesitatingly and steadily downward. It should begin with the schedules which have been most obviously used to kill competition and to raise prices in the United States, arbitrarily and without regard to the prices pertaining elsewhere in the markets of the world; and it should, before it is finished or intermitted, be extended to every item in every schedule which affords any opportunity for monopoly, for special advantage to limited groups of beneficiaries, or for subsidized control of any kind in the markets or the enterprises of the country; until special favors of every sort have been absolutely withdrawn and every part of our laws of taxation shall have been transformed from a system of governmental patronage into a system of just and reasonable charges which shall fall where they will create the least burden. When we shall have done that, we can fix questions of revenue and of business adjustment in a new spirit and with clear minds.

Control of the Trusts.

The governor spoke of how recent investigations have revealed the connection between the tariff and the movement of prices, and this brought him to the subject of trusts, concerning which he said in part:

I am not one of those who think that competition can be established by law against the drift of a world-wide economic tendency; neither am I one of those who believe that business done upon a great scale by a single organization—call it corporation, or what you will—is necessarily dangerous to the liberties, even the economic liberties, of a great people like our own, full of intelligence and of indomitable energy.

Power in the hands of great business men does not make me apprehensive, unless it springs out of advantages which they have not created for themselves. Big business is not dangerous because it is big, but because its bigness is an unwholesome inflation created by privileges and exemptions which it ought not to enjoy. While competition cannot be created by statutory enactment, it can in large measure be revived by changing the laws and forbidding the practices that killed it, and by enacting laws that will give it heart and occasion again.

Concentration of Credit.

But the problem and the difficulty are much greater than that. There are not merely great trusts and combinations which are to be controlled and deprived of their power to create monopolies and destroy rivals; there is something bigger still than they are and more subtle, more evasive, more difficult to deal with. There are vast confederacies (as I may perhaps call them for the sake of convenience) of banks, railways, express companies, insurance companies, manufacturing corporations, mining corporations, power and development companies and all the rest of the circle, bound together by the fact that the ownership of their stock and the members of their boards of directors are controlled and determined by comparatively small and closely interrelated groups of persons who, by their informal confederacy, may control, if they please and when they will, both credit and enterprise.

Their very existence gives rise to the suspicion of a "money trust," a concentration of the control of credit which may at any time become infinitely dangerous to free enterprise. If such a concentration and control does not actually exist, it is evident that it can easily be set up aud used at will. Laws must be devised which will prevent this, if laws can be worked out by fair and free counsel that will accomplish that result without destroying or seriously embarrassing any sound or legitimate business undertaking or necessary and wholesome arrangement.

Free to Serve the People.

In concluding, the governor said:

A presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be intrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are as important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause. What is our cause? The people's cause? That is easy to say, but what does it mean? The common as against any particular interest whatever? Yes, but that, too, needs translation into acts and policies. We represent the desire to set up an unentangled government, a government that cannot be used for private purposes, either in the field of business or in the field of politics; a government that will not tolerate the use of the organization of a great party to serve the personal aims and ambitions of any individual, and that will not permit legislation to be employed to further any private interest. It is a great conception, but I am free to serve it, as you also are.

To be free is not necessarily to be wise. But wisdom comes with counsel, with the frank and free conference of untrammeled men united in the common interest. Should I be intrusted with the great office of president, I would seek counsel wherever it could be had upon free terms. I know the temper of the great convention which nominated me; I know the temper of the country that lay back of that convention and spoke through it. I heed with deep thankfulness the message you bring me from it. I feel that I am surrounded by men whose principles and ambitions are those of true servants of the people. I thank God, and will take courage.

ANT WELL WORTH STUDYING

Little Industrious Creepers Form an Interesting and Instructive Lesson for Those of Scientific Mind.

After a summer night's rain, above the interstices of the brick walk, one may see in the morning, here and there, a little heap of sand with a hole in its center about as big around as a match and going in and out of this portal hurrying lines of brown ants. It will be well worth one's time to stoop down for a moment or two, for a community of ants is an interesting study. Perhaps you have failed to notice in the earlier days of summer above the lawn sporting in the sunshine a swarm of insects which you carelessly called gnats. These were in all likelihood male and female ants and this was their wedding dance. The males fall and die and the females, plucking off their own wings for which they have no further use, enter the ground to lay eggs for new colonies.

The eggs are white and cylindrical. The sexless ants, called neuters or workers, pick up these eggs and carry them to special chambers, where in two weeks they become larvae. Students of ant life say that a troop of nurses now cares for the larvae, feeds the infant ants, gives them a daily sun bath and keeps them clean. These nursery ants are at first white, then gradually change to brown, but they are as yet only in embryo. When the time comes the workers tear off the envelope that has protected them. Each one is set free, the nurses feeding and caring for it, helping it to walk, and never leaving it until it is able to care for itself. In time the males and females rise into the air, the males to perish as their fathers did before them and the females to return to the ant hill to lay eggs for a new colony.

A troublesome little ant is the blood red ant which invades our houses and is specially fond of sweets. It is said of this species that it makes special attacks on colonies of small black ants and forces them to do all the housekeeping about their ant hill.

What He Bought.

A Syracuse business man living in one of the suburbs decided to give up his spacious back yards to the raising of currants as a profitable side issue. So, wishing to absorb all the information he could acquire on the subject of the currant industry, he went down town one Saturday afternoon recently and returned with his arms full of books.

"Well, Teddy," inquired his enthusiastic spouse, as he dumped the volumes on the table, "did you succeed in getting what you wanted?"

"Sure, I did!" he replied, proudly pointing to the books. "I bought a whole year's edition of a standard work on current literature."—Exchange.

Hot Weather Drink.

Philip Hale, one ot Boston's latter-day philosophers, recommends barley water as a more sensible drink for hot weather than "ice-cold" blends of waters, sirups, acids, gulped at the marble fountains. Mr. Hale's recipe for his favorite tipple is as follows:

"For three pints of water you will require a teacupful and a half of well washed pearl barley, four lumps of sugar and the thin rind and juice of one lemon. Pour boiling water over it, cover with a saucer and let it stand till cold; then strain again and again till clear, and pour into a jug."

A buttermilk fan adds:

"Then set the jug in a cool place and forget it."

Wanted Minute Evidence.

Orfia, the celebrated doctor, being examined as an "expert" on a capital trial, was asked by the president whether he could tell what quantity of arsenic was required to kill a fly. The doctor replied:—

"Certainly, M. le President. But I must know beforehand the age of the fly, its sex, its temperament, its condition and habit of body, whether married or single, widow or spinster, widower or bachelor. When satisfied on these points I can answer your question."

Illiteracy in Germany.

According to the latest official reports, only three persons out of 10,000 in Germany are unable to read or write, while the proportion of illiteracy in Great Britain is 150 per 10,000, as against 770 per 10,000 in the United States. These figures are based on a comparison of illiteracy among some of the leading nations which has just been made and issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education.

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments?

A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Red Wing.—D. M. Neill, of this place has filed for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Anoka.—Harry Groat, 23 years old, a son of Hannibal Groat, was drowned in the river here. He fell off a log on which he was riding.

Farmington.—This village is in the midst of a great religious revival. One Sunday 140 converts made decisions for Christ and the church.

St. Cloud.—Twenty-three cars, carrying over 100 people, went on the first sociability run held under the auspices of the St. Cloud Auto club.

Jackson.—Superindent J. B. Arp has closed a successful five weeks' summer school here. Seventy-one teachers were registered and did good work under six instructors.

Red Wing.—The combination wooden and steel bridge over the Vermilion river at Eggleston gave way as E. S. Geseth and hired man were driving across it with a load of hay.

Minneapolis.—According to the son, W. D. Washburn, Jr., the will of the late W. D. Washburn, now in the hands of John Crosby, executor, leaves the entire estate to Mrs. W. D. Washburn.

Minneapolis. — Charles G. Gates, the New York millionaire expects to become a resident of Minneapolis within a year, according to a statement he made at the Union station while passing through the city.

Rochester. — Rev. L. E. Spicer of Webster City, Iowa, has accepted the pastorate of the Universalist church of this city, and will begin his work September 1. He takes the place made vacant by the resignation of Rev. R. D. Van Tassel, who has gone to Sioux City Iowa.

Fergus Falls.—A terrific rain storm occurred here Monday night, accompanied by some hail. The hail did not do much damage, but grain, especially oats, was badly lodged by the rain and wind, and there are some fields than can scarcely be cut.

Bemidji.—At the coroner's inquest which was held here over the body of the railroad laborer who last evening shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Norman Helmer and was himself killed by Helmer, it developed that the dead man probably was W. Wayne, of Escanaba, Mich. A note containing this address was found on the dead man's clothes.

St. Paul. — Judge George R. Smith, judge of the Hennepin county probate court, has filed as a Republican candidate for congress. He made no announcement of his platform, but it is understood that he will declare for progressive principles. Congressman Frank M. Nye has not filed for renomination, but has announced that he will do so later.

Brainerd.—A slight frost Saturady night was succeeded Sunday night by a small rain growing in volume at midnight. No damage was done by the frost except possibly to hinder berry picking to some extent. Oats, potatoes, corn and wheat look fine in the country, and hay is more abundant than harvested in Crow Wing county in the last ten years.

Brainerd.—The fourth annual convention of the Luther League of Young People's Societies of the Swedish Luther Church of the Mississippi district elected Rev. Elof Carlson, Brainerd, president; Rev. C. L. Dagner, Milaca, vice president; Eben Ostergren, St. Cloud, secretary; Miss Ida Ryberg, Upsala, treasurer. The next district convention will be held the latter part of June, 1913, in Upsala.

Cloquet.—Mrs. Frank Santerre was instantly killed by a bolt of lightning that struck the Santerre home. Mrs. Santerre and her daughter, Miss Ida Santerre, had gotten up to close the window. A bolt of lightning striking the chimney came down the stairway and Mrs. Santerre was directly in its path. A lamp exploded and set fire to the room, but the house was saved. Mrs. Santerre was 46 years old. She leaves a husband and seven children.

Owatonna.—Mrs. W. C. Zamboni, wife of a well known Owatonna merchant, was thrown from an automobile and badly bruised when the party, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Zamboni and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, collided with a motorcycle on which the rider carried a second passenger. Both motorcyclists were knocked insensible and the rider was taken to the hospital. Internal injuries are feared. It required the efforts of four men to extricate him.

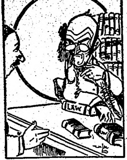
Duluth.—The launch known as the "Kelly Hardware Co." struck a sunken sharp pointed board while coming down to St. Louis river with a party of three men and nine women and children, and filled. The men, W. M. Hart, Thomas Cowan and Lane McGregor, fitted life preservers on the women and children, and all got in the water and clung to the rail of the boat. Ten minutes later they were picked up by the steam yacht Corlia, owned by Robert Kelly of Superior.

Preston. — L. J. Lupman, assistant cashier of the Farmers and Merchants State bank, of Preston, drove his Rambler touring car to Chatfield and on his way back about ten miles north of Preston his car did not work just right and while he was examining it, it suddenly burst into flames and burned up completely.

Minneapolis. — Nicholas Anderson, forty-five years old, met his death in a tunnel in the new university grounds. while he was being hauled to the surface to a physician. He fell from the bucket lowered into the tunnel to drawe him to the top.

Duluth.—The call for labor in the vast wheat fields of the American northwest, recently printed in eastern newspapers, had a wholesome effect and labor agencies here and elsewhere north of Chicago report an influx of men from Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Men of all trades write from practically every eastern state asking for transportation and stating their qualifications in various lines of work. The secretary of the Duluth Commercial club has received hundreds of such applications.

LEGAL ADVICE.



Lawyer—If you wish to get off with the minimum punishment, I'd advise you to confess everything and throw yourself on the mercy of the court.

Accused—But if I don't confess?

Lawyer—Oh! in that case you will very likely be acquitted for want of evidence.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston."

Prize Winner.

"What are these cups for?" asked a well-dressed man of a jeweler, pointing to some lovely silver cups on the counter.

"These are race cups to be given as prizes."

"If that's so, suppose you and I race for one?" And the stranger, with the cup in his hand, started, the jeweler after him. The stranger won the cup. —Keystone.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to fine tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Bear in mine the Red Lake county fair and prepare something for exhibition.

The American Association for Bible Study has finally come to the conclusion that there is no hell. That's too bad. It has always been our wish to picture a lot of such un-godlo, notionous fanatics and blasphemers who come to such crazy conclusions wreathing and agonizing in a molten sea of fire and brimstone.

Editor Mussey, of the Thief River Falls Times, is the proud father of a a baby girl which the stork brought to the Mussey household Thursday of last week. Having been "chums" with the Times editor since boyhood it is with more than a fraternal feeling that we extend our hearty congratulations. Here's Ho, Brother Mussey, and may your troubles be little ones.

Prospects of a lively campaign are somewhat brighter at present judging by rumors that have been circulated. We understand that Chas. Sall and Ralph Green, both of Garnes township, have been mentioned as possible candidates for county commissioner. There may, also, be a third candidate in the contest for this office. It is understood that Sam Lovaas, who resides east of here, has been urged to enter the race, but whether or not he will become a candidate we are not in a position to state. These gentlemen are good, enterprising and level-headed men who are both capable and honest and should hold down this position to the satisfaction of all.

The ruling of the attorney general in regard to the new corrupt practice act, is that publishers are responsible for political advertisements in plates or ready prints. In running these it is as necessary to state that it is paid advertisements as it is in the case of political announcements. Articles of these kind are not printed as the editor's personal views by a long way, but are political announcements pure and simple, for which the plate houses receive large sums to furnish free to the publishers. Judging by our exchanges there are very few who take kindly to this system of "campaigning" and are refusing these requests for free advertising with thanks. This is a mighty cheap and small way of conducting a campaign, and one which the publishers should unite in putting out of existance. An editor may say all the goods things for any candidate that he has a mind to, but should be independent insofar as to allow him the advantage of furthering his political pull at your expense. This is not only good policy but is compulsory under the new law.

The bull moose has been ushered in as an emblem of party politics. Last week at Chicago was formulated the National Progressive party, and Col. Roosevelt was selected as standard barrier of this party, with Hirum Johnson of California as nominee for the second place. There was no steam roller or dead-lock tactics to this convention, and no trouble in seating delegates and no use and no nothing. In fact, the whole proceeding was cut, dried and fryed and hung up on the shelf before the doors to the convention were ever opened. The whole thing has such a semblance to the Colonel's dictations that it might have been more appropriately called the Teddy Bear party. There is little likelihood that this party will ever cut much of a swat and that it will probably go out of existance this fall if its ring-leaders are defeated, which seems entirely probable. However, the Republican party today faces a great crises. With a split in the party, with one faction fighting the other tooth and nail there is liable to be a mighty serious finish. Dissatisfied with the administration and with the manner in which he was nominated, Taft cannot hope to receive anywhere near the support he did 4 years ago. There is little doubt how the people will take the new party, which has all the ear marks of having been formed merely through disappointment by a few discarded and disgruntled politicians. And then there is the Democrats, all playing in tune and "smearing" to their high-man. One party split up on both sides and down the middle, barking and sizzing; all ready to suck each other's heart blood, and t'other as cordant and harmoious as a church organ at a Sunday service is just about the political situation as it appears in a nut shell. With the Bull Moose, the Elephant and the Democratic Jackass in the race, however, the contest will be interesting enough whoever wins.

Additional Locals

Chas. Sall, of Equality, was in town Tuesday.

Ralph Rice and Olaf Holten returned from Rollis Tuesday.

Joe Buskirk, the Brooks lumber man, was here Wednesday on business between trains.

Mr. Bertram, of the Bertram-Wright Lumber Co., was a business caller here Monday.

Little Miss Edra Alrick went over to Brooks Wednesday, where she will be a guest at the Buskirk home.

Albany Deforge, of Red Lake Falls, candidate for superintendent of school was here yesterday morning.

Arther Lund, of Lillo, passed thru here the first of the week enroute to Wylie, from which place he will return with a threshing rig.

Sheriff Fellman was here Wednesday and while here made the arrest of a man who answers the description of one who is wanted on a robbery charge. The man now under arrest "drifted in" here Tuesday afternoon and immediately got the job to paint the Ed Johnson saloon front. When half thru with this job he "fell completely off the wagon" and was sleeping off his "ruse" when he was apprehended by the sheriff.

The All-Around Shoe

Here is the shoe for office or street wear, work or play, rain or shine. It has a staple style and is made for the average foot. Like all shoes it fits the foot, is easy, has graceful outlines and will far outwear the ordinary shoe.

First of all it's made scientifically. It is designed true to the natural foot. The instep is neither too high nor too low, the toes have plenty of room and the heel and ankle do not bind. The arch of the foot is well supported and the whole shoe hugs evenly.

Gitche Gamee shoes keep their shape because such choice leather and linings are used. The sole, insoles and counters are the best money can buy, and only skilled workers with the most modern machines touch the shoes from start to finish. There's a style for every use and a shape for every foot. Ask to see them.

C. E. Hart, arrived here last week from Great Falls, Mont., and has entered upon his duties as night operator at the Soo depot. Owing to the the many trains now on this system and the work entailed thereby the company has found it necessary to employ three operators, against two heretofore.

We have had reports from several farmers in this vicinity that the over abundance of rain lately has proved of some value at least, in that it may produce a second crop of oats. Some of the oats planted this spring failed to take rut owing to the drouth which prevailed shortly after seeding, but the plentiful rain which we have had for sometime of late has made all the remaining seed take rut and indications are that it will produce a bountiful crop. Some of the farmers claim that if this late crop is allowed to head out and mature it will produce more to the acre than the crop now ready for harvest.

According to the game law it is strictly prohibitive to take pointer or setter dogs out for training purposes in fields infested by game birds from the fifteenth day of August to the first of September, in case any shot gun or any firearm is in the possession or available for use by the owner, or anyone accompanying him. The law provides that any dog so used or attempted to be used is declared a public nuisence and it shall be lawful for any person to kill any dog so being used, provided that in case of any violation of this section the said dog or gun shall be liable for confiscation by any game warden or deputy game warden of the state.

One of our popular young ladies went into a drug store in a neighboring town the other day for a bath sponge. In asking for it she made the ludicrous mistake of requesting the clerk to give her a sponge bath. The clerk swooned and he is now hovering between life and death. In order to get this item in we had to make a sacred oath not to mention any names.

The townsite company wishes to notify and warn people not to cut any trees of any kind and especially oak trees no matter whether small or large on any of their lots or acre tracts within the corporate limits of Plummer and anyone guilty of such an offense will be dealt with according to law. Eating watermelon is an art to be learned by experience. As a desert it is not a success. It falls too heavily on a dinner. Like a pretty girl, it is best by itself. The melon should be cold. It should be ripe. Its flesh should blush like a graduate. Its heart should glow like a sun-kissed cloud at the close of day, and its temperature should be as chilly as the smile of a Boston belle. When you get such a treasure do not bother with other food. Open it, gaze upon it, bury your face in its sweetness and let your appreciation run riot.

ESTABLISH ANOTHER RURAL ROUTE

Route To Run North to North Line of Emardville Township. To Be Established Nov. 1st.

Another rural route running out of this place will be established Nov. 1. The route will run along the main road to the north end of Wyandotte township. This will be a great convenience to the farmers along this line who have long distances to the postoffice and at present get their mail only once or twice a week, whenever they have occasion to go to market. Examination for mail carrier will be held in Plummer and Red Lake Falls on Sept. 14. Information of requirement for examination follows:

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION

at Plummer and Red Lake Falls, Minn., For Red Lake County, Saturday, Sept. 14, 1912.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the places named above, as a result of which it is expected to make a certification to fill the vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Plummer and other vacancies as they may occur on rural routes at postoffices in the above named county, unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 18 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a postoffice in the county for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application form 1341, and full information concernig the requirements of the examination, can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the commission at Washington. As examination papers are shipped direct from the commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers.

An eligible register for the position of rural letter carrier for each county will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post office in such county. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other position in in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules.

JOHN C. BLACK, President

Eligibles on registers established prior to March 1, 1912, can be considered for appointment only at the office for which they were examined. Such eligibles may be examined within one year from the date of their former examinations upon filing applications showing that they meet the requirements of the new examination, their old eligibility for their home offices not being canceled.

Keep the Barn Clean

The regulations of the state board of health in regard to stables provide that all private stables shall be cleaned once a day and the manure put in a fly proof box and sprinkled daily with a solution of one pound of green vitriol to a gallon of water. The floors of the stable should be sprinkled with the same mixture each day after cleaning. This will prevent flies.

Manure should be hauled away once a week and not put in dumps to give flies a breeding place. When it is necessary to store manure, each fresh supply should be sprinkled with the above solution.

Livery stables can dispose of manure best by putting it into boxes on wheels and this accumulation should be removed daily when possible.

A number of towns of the state are endeavoring to have these regulations enforced.

BOY WINS SYMPATHY

MAN ROBBED BY ELMER REYNOLDS MAY TRY TO HAVE CASE DROPPED.

DISPOSAL TO LENIENCY.

County Prosecutor, However, Inclined to Belief That Youthful Raffles Should Be Punished for His Crime.

Stillwater.—Modern ideas on the reformation of youthful criminals may play an important part in freeing Elmer Reynolds, the 14-year-old boy burglar arrested at White Bear lake for a series of bold daylight robberies in houses of the society colony there. The youthful Raffles, who has made a full confession, was arranged in municipal court here before Judge Gillan, but sentence was held up awaiting the arrival of the boy's father, Joseph A. Reynolds of Winnipeg.

George A. Watson, St. Paul, plaintiff in the case against the boy, and from whose house the youthful burglar obtained $5, said in view of the lad's repentance and good family connections, he was inclined to leniency in the case.

"After the boy's father arrives and I have had a talk with him, I may decide to ask J. C. Nethaway, county attorney, to drop the suit," Mr. Watson said. "If I find from the boy's father that the lad never has been guilty of robberies such as he committed at White Bear lake, I would prefer to see the boy go free, for I think he has learned his lesson."

Mr. Watson is not prosecuting the case, the court having selected the Watson robbery only as basis for a specific charge of petty larceny against young Reynolds.

Judge Gillan, before whom the boy burglar was arraigned, declared he would be the last one to stand in the way of the boy's freedom if Mr. Watson and the boy's father deemed it advisable to give the lad a chance.

"I'm not favorable to the idea of sending every boy who commits a crime to the training school at Red Wing," said Judge Gillan. "I believe in giving a boy a chance. The Reynolds boy is a nice lad and evidently has come from a good family. He appears to be sorry for what he has done and with all things considered I would hesitate and dislike to force the reformatory stigma upon him.

"I will be guided, however, as I must be, by the attitude of Mr. Nethaway, our county attorney. If he asks that the case be dropped, I would not attempt to halt the plan."

Mr. Nethaway said he was not inclined to be lenient with the boy. He declared at present he was of the opinion the case should be pushed, although, he said, he was not ready to declare this with finality.

"I am not in favor of freeing the boy because of the example it would set for other boys," said the judge. "I'm afraid if the boy were given his liberty other boys his age would think they could commit crime and be let off because of their first offense. Leniency on the part of the court, I believe, has the tendency to breed crime. The Reynolds boy has committed a crime and should be punished as an example."

The father said he would come to Stillwater or send a friend, to investigate his son's arrest.

FORECAST GOOD TIME.

Abundance of Small Game Declared to Be Practically Assured.

Winona.—Quail hunting is going to be good this fall and winter in the Mississippi valley, according to persons who watch such things. They state that there are numerous coveys, where a few years ago there were but few or none at all, and the coveys as a rule are large. The youngsters are already quite good sized and there are no probabilities of being killed off by rain or storm before shooting time comes.

In the grain fields in certain parts of the state it is said there are many more prairie chickens than are usually seen and the hunters are looking forward to some good shooting as soon as the season opens.

Young squirrels are numerous in those sections of the country where there is sufficient timber to encourage them to make their homes, while on every side come reports that the fields are filled with young rabbits that are now almost large enough to bag. On the whole, the hunters of southern Minnesota are feeling good over the prospect of some fine shooting when the shooting time arrives.

LARGE YIELDS—CHEAPER FOOD

BIG WHEAT YIELD HAS FAR-REACHING EFFECT.

Millers Predict That Flour Prces Will Drop Materially This Season.

Minneapolis.—A long wished for era of low cost of living is foreseen in the indications that the Northwest will have a bumper crop this year. Wm. Regan of Regan brothers, bakers, said that with cheaper flour, loaves of bread would be larger. Some millers are sanguine enough to believe that there will be a time shortly when bakers will go back to the pound loaf, instead of the 14 ounce loaf now sold for five cents.

Wholesale meat dealers say that if the prospects that now obtain are borne out later, meat will be cheaper because feed will be cheaper. Poultry eggs, and dairy products will experience similar decreases in price to the consumer.

Speaking of the cost of flour, H. S. Helm of the Russell-Miller Milling company said: "Because of the magnificent prospects of the growing crop wheat prices have already worked down 20 cents a bushel in a few months. In consequence, flour prices are 75 to 90 cents a barrel lower than a few months ago."

J. J. Swanford of Armour & Co., regarded as one of the best authorities in the Northwest on conditions in the wholesale and retail meat market, said that if the present promise of a large corn crop were fulfilled there would be little doubt that there would be a decrease in the wholesale and retail price of meat.

The effect on the price of dairy products is obvious. Farmers who have not been able to get feed at low prices have sold their cattle to the packer rather than bear the expense of feeding them. If the herds of the United States are increased, and the number of cattle on farms are increased on account of the cheap fodder, the price of milk, butter and eggs should be much lower.

The principal applied to live stock may be applied to poultry. Farmers will be able to make a regular business of their chicken raising instead of allowing it to be a hit or miss industry as in years past, when the chickens have been forced to forage for themselves.

NEW COMMISSION NAMED

Governor Makes Up New List for State Commission.

St. Paul.—A new Minnesota conservation commission was appointed by Governor A. O. Eberhart, following a request by the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs and the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association. Notices of appointment were sent out today and the new commission will be called together as soon as acceptances have been received. The appointees include nine members of the old commission. Those appointed are:

J. H. Rich, Red Wing, president Citizens' league of Minnesota.

Louis W. Hill, chairman of directors, Great Northern railway, reappointed.

Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor, reappointed.

J. W. Wheeler, St. Paul, chairman committee on agricultural education, A. O. Eberhart, governor.

Dodges Bull; Breaks Neck.

Karlstad. — Nels Ruud of Nelson Park died as the result of a unique accident. He was taking some cattle into Karlstad, and among them was a bull that was rather wild. Just as Ruud was climbing aboard the hayrack the bull made a lunge for him and he had to jump for the back railing. As he swung one leg over the top board it broke and he fell head-first to the ground, breaking his neck. Ruud was one of the most prominent men of Nelson Park township.

TRIES TO PLACATE CROWD

ASSISTANT RISKS LIFE WHEN AVIATOR REFUSES.

Machine Totally Wrecked and Pilot Is Taken to the Hospital.

Winona.—Forced into making a flight in spite of the treacherous air currents to satisfy a large Winona crowd at the fair grounds, M. Singh of Chicago was badly, though not fatally, injured when the machine turned turtle at an altitude of about 50 feet and plunged to the ground with its pilot.

An aviation and automobile meet was scheduled as advertised for last Sunday, but after the patrons of the exhibition had gathered, it was announced that the Curtiss aeroplane had been so badly damaged in attempted flights that that portion of the program would have to be postponed until later.

Grounds Are Packed.

The grounds were packed at the time set in anticipation of the flights. A high wind was blowing at the time and the regular flier, S. Shesgreen, declined to go into the air current. Singh a full-blood Hindoo, who was with the company, volunteered his services after the crowd became impatient with the apparent unwillingness of the promoters of the exhibition to carry out the program.

The machine made a perfect start and was about 50 feet in the air and directly in front of the stand, when the engine suddenly stopped, the nose of the machine dipped and paused, and then came crashing to the ground.

When about 15 feet from the ground the aeroplanist either jumped or was thrown clear of the wings and fell a short distance from the point where the machine was splintered to kindling wood. He was picked up unconscious and bleeding from wounds on the head.

At the hospital it is stated that one arm was broken, his head cut in several places, and his body bruised.

PLAN MUTUAL AID.

Rural Carriers Elect Officers and Indorse Legislation.

St. Peter.—The annual meeting of the State Rural Carriers' association, which was held here, was one of the most successful in the history of the association. Over 100 delegates were present, representing eighteen counties. Charles Forbes, of the state highway commission, discussed the matter of good roads and gave information as to how carriers, being vitally interested, could aid in getting them.

W. D. Brown, editor of the Rural Free Delivery News, of Washington, delivered an address on the work being done with reference to salaries, and particularly with reference to the salary bill now pending. He advocated the house bill fixing a standard rule of twenty-four miles with a salary of $1,000 per annum and $30 additional a mile.

The secretary reported eighteen counties fully organized, with a membership of 334, an increase over last year of 100 members. An organizer will be put into the field to fully organize the state the coming year.

Resolutions were adopted favoring the establishment of a set of rules governing the pay of carriers for incomplete service and not putting the matter in the hands of local postmasters, as is now done; also for the establishment of the road labor tax and for federal improvements for roads on rural routes. The resolutions indorsed the state one-mill road tax, the state highway commission, the rural carriers' salary bill, as passed by the house, and the efforts of the Rural Free Delivery News toward securing the passage of that bill. Appreciation was expressed for the recommendation for their welfare given by the postmaster general in his last report. It was requested that patrons of rural routes be given an opportunity to express a preference regarding the delivery of mail on Christmas day.

L. H. Wilson of Olivia was indorsed for secretary of the national organization.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. H. Drew, Red Wing; vice president, R. H. McKay, Rush City; secretary, F. E. Hesselroth, Braham; treasurer, F. H. Hunter, Anoka. Executive Board—J. E. McNally, Little Falls; M. H. Stoebel, Mapleton; H. F. Hines, Cannon Falls. Delegates to national convention, at Nashville, Sept. 17-20, J. F. McNally, Little Falls; W. O. Layton, St. Peter; H. H. Lobb, Winnebago; George J. Rose, Mankato, and F. E. Hesselroth, Braham. Alternates, F. C. Schwartz, Austin; Albert Gerber, Wayzata; F. M. Lev, Jackson; A. E. Niehoff, St. James; Ed Nelson, Zumbrota.

Zumbrota, Stillwater, Morris and Duluth were in the race for the convention of 1913, but Duluth won by a big majority.

$1,600 BANK ROBBERY.

Cashier of Cohasset, Minn., Forced Into Vault.

Bemidji, Minn. — Two unidentified masked and armed men entered the bank at Cohasset, imprisoned the cashier, F. J. Skoedele, in a vault and escaped with all the money in sight, $1,600 in cash. The men fled into the woods west of town. Sheriff Reilly and a posse are in pursuit and the sheriffs of surrounding counties have been notified to be on the lookout.

Moroa Funeral Custom.

With Moroa people, on the death of a chief, his son, (or heir if he has no son) must provide a mare, which is led around the assembled guests by a laughing woman, who is dressed up for the occasion. It is absolutely necessary that a mare should be obtained for the funeral—should the heir neglect to do so, the ghost of the deceased will never give him any peace—and she must be sold afterward; if not, she will die. Why the woman should have to be laughing is past comprehension, but that is the Moroa custom, and after all it is quite a mistake to suppose that people must necessarily look glum on these occasions.

Education.

He had asked her to marry him several times, but she had always said no. Now, at last, he determined to know the reason why.

After some delicate questioning, she replied, finally: "Well, for one thing, the man I marry must be very well informed, in fact, learned."

"And I am not that?" he asked. "Why, I'm a graduate of three universities, speak eight languages fluently, and know all the ologies!"

She shook her head. "That isn't enough," she said.

"Oh, I forgot to mention," he made haste to add, "that I can give you all the college athletic records for the last ten years, and the names of all the different parts of a motor car and—"

"That'll do. I'm yours!" she cried.

DARROW ACQUITTED

MAN ACCUSED OF BRIBING McNAMARA JUROR IS ACQUITTED OF CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

DEMONSTRATION GIVEN

Jury Quickly Returns Verdict Exonerating Attorney in Dynamiting Case.—Out Thirty-Four Minutes.

Los Angeles, California. — Clarence S. Darrow, the noted Chicago lawyer, was found not guilty on the charge of bribing a juror in the McNamara case. The jury was out just thirty-four minutes. Only one ballot was taken by the jury.

Although warned against any demonstration by the bailiffs, there was a spontaneous outburst of applause when Foreman M. R. Williams, in response to the court's query, stated that the jury had found a verdict of "not guilty."

There was a rush to the side of Darrow, which was stopped by the bailiffs, but it was renewed a few moments later after Judge Hutton thanked and discharged the jury.

Then ensued a remarkable scene. Darrow approached the jurors still in the box to thank them and two of them, Jurors Golding and Dunbar, threw their arms about him and patted his back. Other jurors reached forward and clasped hands with the attorney.

The scene gradually resolved itself into a reception for Darrow and the jurors, and friends of the erstwhile defendant crowded up to congratulate and shake hands with the jurors.

Darrow was plainly nervous when he entered the court room to try to face the greatest crisis of his life. Judge Hutton mounted the bench and the roll of the jury was called. The court immediately began reading the charge. He said in part:

"Gentlemen of the jury, the evidence is all in and the arguments are over. I now give these instructions."

He urged the twelve men not to be swayed by personal opinions expressed by the attorneys for both sides, unless such opinions were supported by the evidence.

The court added:

"If you find the defendant bribed or aided others to bribe or to corruptly influence a juror, you must find him guilty. You cannot convict on the testimony of an accomplice unless such testimony is corroborated by outside evidence.

"I charge you that the evidence presented in this case does not warrant conviction on the first count in this indictment. If you find that, through an agent, the defendant approached George Lockwood and gave him $500 for the purpose of influencing his decision in the McNamara case, it will be your duty to find him guilty."

Los Angeles, California. — An air of uncertainty surrounds the disposition of the second indictment against Clarence S. Darrow, notwithstanding the announcement of District Attorney Fredericks that the Chicago lawyer would be tried again.

The second indictment alleges that Mr. Darrow bribed Robert F. Bain, the first juror sworn to try the McNamara case.

District Attorney Fredericks reiterated his intention to bring Darrow to trial on the Bain indictment but he declined to say what date he would recommend for the trial when opposing counsel appeared before Judge Hutton.

It was announced that Judge Hutton would be asked to set the date at once, but the district attorney said there might be some delay as he had not definitely determined what request to make. It also was probable, he said, that the defendant might have some request.

The impression prevails that because of the length and cost of the trial just ended and the rapidity with which the jury reached its verdict there will be no further trial of Darrow.

REPORTED BY THE GROUCH

Here the Original Hiram J. Tells of His Attendance at a Country "Function."

"Having nothing else to do," remarked the old codger, "I attended a function while I was over at Torpidville the other day. The affair was held in a dispirited grove at the end of a road in which every time a horse popped down his foot the dust shot up in the air like a skyrocket. A band was playing without the slightest remorse. A statesman, with a neck as wrinkled as a pickle, droned forth redundant nonentities without end. A sad and rickety merry-go-wabble wound 'round and 'round to the sound of its own plaintive peedle-deedle. In tipsy pavilion a hoarse person was endeavoring to sell, in brazen defiance to the pure food and drug act, what looked alarmingly like horned toads fried in axle-grease. A gentleman in a striped tent nearby hoarsely stated that he preferred to eat snakes at ten cents per serpent. There was the usual balloon which seemed perfectly willing to do anything but get up. Scattered around through the festal scene were a few old soldiers, grumbling; a smattering of farmers, also grumbling; sundry honest voters, likewise grumbling; and various other folks, nothing about whom is worth mentioning except that they, too, were grumbling. It may have been a reunion, a fair, a rally, a picnic, or what-not; but whatever they chanced to call it, 'twas an excellent example of one of our most cherished institutions."—Kansas City Star.

Accorded Full Title.

One of the New York representatives in congress tells of a social function in an assembly district political club on the East side, whereat the chaiman of the entertainment committee acted as master of ceremonies.

The chairman was very busy introducing the newly-arrived members of the club to the guests, who included a number of municipal officers. The representative mentioned was presented in a way to halve his official honors with his wife, as "The Honorable and Mrs. Congressman Blank." Next came a couple who were not known to the master of ceremonies, but, after receiving the correct name in a whisper, he announced:

"Mr. and Mrs. Inspector of Hydrants, Faucets and Shopworks Casey."—Lippincott's.

Mother's Lingual Attainment.

The mother of a little boy in Kansas City, Kan., recites negro dialect stories charmingly. Her small son is quite proud of her accomplishment and frequently boasts of it. One day recently, when some of his playmates were vaunting the achievements of their several mothers, the little boy braggingly remarked:

"My mother is smarter than any of yours; she can talk two languages."

"What are they?" demanded his companions.

"White and colored."

Child's Fear of the Dark.

If mothers notice that the brains of their little ones conjure up uncanny sights and thoughts from the shadows of a room more or less dark, let the light burn brightly. To force a child to become accustomed to the darkness is a grave error, if its nervous system is so organized that this forcing is productive of a fright.

The nervous system of a child is a very susceptible organization and the deleterious impressions made upon it will often make their influence felt throughout its whole after life. If the child asks for a light under such circumstances do not refuse it.

Took Slot Machine at Its Word.

A Kansas City woman recently took her two small daughters to make their first visit to her husband's people, living in a small Kansas town. Naturally she was anxious to make as favorable an impression as possible. So the two little people, on going on an errand to the depot, were cautioned to be on their very best behavior. To the mother's surprise, they returned vigorously chewing gum. As they had no money, she asked them where they got it.

"Oh," exclaimed the older one, "it said on the slot machine, 'Ask the agent for pennies,' so we did.

Carrying It Too Far.

"Scientific management, like any other good thing, may be carried to excess."

The speaker was R. Marriott Thompson, the San Francisco scientific management expert. He continued, says the New York Tribune:

"We scientific managers mustn't go as far as Hussler went.

"Hussler was the proprietor of a tremendous factory where scientific management had reduced the motions of every hand from 800 to 17. Hussler attended a very fashionable wedding one day, a wedding where the ceremony was performed by a bishop assisted by a dean and a canon, and in the most impressive part of the writ, Hussler, overcome by his scientific management ideas, rushed up to the altar and pushed the bishop and canon rudely back.

"'Here, boys,' he said, 'one's quite enough for a little job like this.'"

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor "I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee." (It's a well-known fact that tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) "I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale.

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes.

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat, and with the best results.

"When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice.

STORY DECLINED; AUTHOR ACCEPTED

Editor Proves to Be a Woman and Cupid Does the Rest.

By CLYDE JOHNSON.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Charles Worthington Rankin had arrived at years of discretion without having selected any particular avocation. He was fairly well off, and there was no need to hurry.

Mr. Rankin had sometimes thought of becoming a doctor, but was discouraged when he realized that he might be called out of bed at 1 o'clock in the morning to saw off some man's leg.

The legal profession, mingled more or less with real estate, insurance, politics, promotion trusteeship, receivership and advising corporations how to break the law, offered certain attractions, but Mr. Rankin had seen lawyers perspire when addressing a jury, and he did hate to perspire.

There was painting, but landscape artists, as he had been reliably informed, had to keep the books for some grocery at night to eke out an existence.

If Mr. Rankin should turn to sculpture there were the clay and the stone dust, to soil his cuffs, and even if he brought out a statue of Columbus the daily papers might call it Captain Kidd.

It took Mr. Rankin a long, long time to make up his mind, and then the decision was the result of accident. He dropped in on an assemblage one day that had gathered to honor a young literary man, and when he saw the admiration and heard the adulations bestowed he whispered to himself:

"By George, but I've struck it! Nice easy work and nothing driving about it. All you've got to do is to sit down in your library and think, and then write what you've been thinking about."

Mr. Rankin walked right out of that place and bought him the necessary tools to begin and complete a story that should be a wonder. He did not make the error that so many amateur writers make, of going to or writing to successful authors and asking them how they did it. He didn't care a red cent how they got their plots or worked up their situations. His story would be his own in every particular.

The Third Time to Read It.

And another thing worth recording in Mr. Rankin's favor is the fact that after he had got his plot, laid his situations, named the day and hour, and had his hero in hiding behind a brick pile, he didn't take the two pages of manuscript to this one and that one, and ask them how they thought the story would work out.

No, Sir and no Ma'am! Mr. Rankin didn't care a peanut for the opinions of others on that particular line of work. Had he been going to open a sandstone quarry for the production and sale of grindstones, it would have been different, but in this he was right at home. He felt it from the very first line he wrote. It was to be a serial for a magazine. When finished, after seven long weeks of work—which of itself was a great surprise to his friends—the story came to an end, and the author read it over with glowing self-satisfaction. Then it was sent off to the magazine he had selected, and Mr. Rankin and divers other persons held their breath and walked around on tip-toes.

Mr. Rankin figured that it would be at least a month before his check came and the date of the beginning of the serial would be announced. He was out in his figuring. No one can ever get a close line on those magazine editors. That's why authors continue to revel in poverty. On the fifth day the story was returned with the usual printed prescription. An author who has never received one of these printed slips should be told that they are a half-sheet of fairly good linen paper on which is printed in fairly good English the announcement that after having read every last word of the story the writer was so kind and considerate and everlastingly obliging to forward to that publication instead of the Congressional Record—after it had been perused by the stenographer, all the typists, the cashier, the bookkeeper and the office boy—after having been submitted to the X-ray and a chemical analysis, that editor is convinced that it is one of the great stories of the century, but as his two children are down with the measles he must decline with thanks.

Mr. Rankin read this prescription with amazement. Then he read it with anger. The third time he read it he used cuss-words for punctuation marks and then stood up to say:

"The ignoramus! Why, that editor doesn't know enough to edit a sand-pile, and I'll write and tell him so!"

Mr. Rankin carried out his threat. He had an epistle in the mail-box within the hour that was warranted to make the editorial hair curl and kink. The policy of the magazine editor is never to strike back nor make personal explanations. When he has handed a manuscript to the office boy to be returned to the author that is the end of the affair, except in rare instances. This was a rare instance. J. A. Bennett wrote back that the manuscript had been declined because of its length.

Mr. Rankin pointed out the fact that the magazine had printed four longer ones within the year.

J. A. Bennett wrote that the situations were overdrawn and impossible.

Mr. Rankin pointed out the fact that he had his heroine climbing an iceberg as she sat in the saddle of her broncho, and that the fact was neither unnatural nor impossible. The women of the far west were performing the feat every day.

J. A. Bennett wrote that a great deal of profanity had been introduced into the conversations, and every reader must be more or less shocked. He even had his heroine exclaim: "Damn it!"

Mr. Rankin replied that this was the age of profanity. The trusts had set everybody to swearing, and profanity was on the increase, and the only recourse the public had. As for his heroine, she was a strong character to begin with, and in the second place she had found herself lost on the plains just as night and a blizzard and a band of hostile Indians were approaching. Under those circumstances should a heroine exclaim: "O, fudge!"

J. A. Bennett said that so many grammatical errors were found in the story that it would have to be largely overhauled.

Mr. Rankin replied that he was a graduate of Yale, and that if he couldn't demonstrate in public or private that he knew more about grammar in a minute than J. A. B. did in a week he would eat his hat.

J. A. B. then pointed out that the discussion was closed.

Mr. Rankin replied that the other had best look for a job of sawing wood, and that if he ever ran across him he would take great pleasure in punching his head.

A week later J. A. Bennett went to the country on a fortnight's vacation. Mr. Rankin was only a day later in starting. Fate planned that they they should both select the same hotel. Fate planned that on the third day after Mr. Rankin's arival he should go canoeing on the river. He knew his craft and was safe. Some one else went canoeing at the same time that didn't understand the fads and fancies of that make of craft. It was a young woman, and she had only reached the deepest spot for a mile up and down when over went the canoe. Mr. Rankin heard her screams and arrived at the spot in prompt time. She was resting on the bottom, but he dove and found her, and she was carried to the hotel to be revived. Some one told him that it was a Miss Bennett, and that's all he knew about her 'till the next day, when she sent for him to express her gratitude.

Miss Bennett was a little draggy yet, but able to praise Mr. Rankin as a great hero. She surely owed her life to him, and she couldn't find words to tell her feelings.

"And by the way," she smiled, "are you any relation to Mr. Charles Worthington Rankin?"

"Why, I am he!"

A terrible pause ensued and then he asked:

"Can you be related to J. A. Bennett?"

"Why, I am she!"

At least half the magazines have women to read and pass on contributions, and they always sign their names to mislead as to sex.

Did Mr. Rankin punch J. A. B's head? Oh, no. He began to admire instead, and in three days he knew that he was in love. He had saved her life. Why shouldn't she admire and love in turn? She won't be a story-reader much longer, and he has already decided that as a story writer he is not a success.

Dignity and Impudence.

We had been, some of us, to a wedding breakfast—there were such things in those days—and had breakfasted, and were returning to the Garrick club (writes a gentleman from London), when, as we crossed Leicester square, one of the party proposed that we should go into the Globe. We entered, and found that a gentleman, who at certain periods delivered an instructive geographical lecture, had just concluded, and we caught his final words: "If any lady or gentleman present would like to ask me a question, I shall be happy to answer them." Then from our ranks stepped forth H. C. I., suavest and most perfect of swells, and in his most mellifluous of tones, said he: "You are very good sir; will you kindly tell me who cuts your hair?" Then he turned and fled.

Women and the Farm.

It is not so much because the farmer's boys sought the cities as because his daughters refused to stay on the farm that the rural population has dwindled. At least, the council of the National Bankers' association, in session in Westchester last week, came to the conclusion that the greatest drawback to inducing men to undertake farm work lies in the objections made to it by the women folk. The work in farm households is undeniably heavy. One remedy proposed, and already in operation in some of the western states, is a co-operative chain of laundries. They carry off the week's wash and return it at trivial cost—ten cents is the carrying charge, according to report—thus saving one day's hard labor for the women.—New York Times.

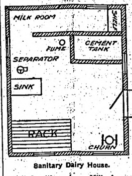
Egbert—Fellows who win election bets this fall had better remember that

DAIRY HOUSE IS CONVENIENT

Walls and Floor of Sanitary Building Should Be of Reinforced Concrete—Cost Is Small.

Every dairyman selling milk to a creamery or cheese factory or city trade, or making dairy butter on his farm, should have a sanitary dairy-house. This building should be separate from the stable and other buildings on the farm and should be well supplied with water. Milk for any purpose must be kept in a clean, well-ventilated place.



Sanitary Dairy House.

Solid concrete dairy houses, such as are found on the large dairy farms, are to be recommended. A building 12 by 14 feet is large enough for a herd of twenty to twenty-five cows. The accompanying floor plan, from the Dairy Farmer, illustrates a very convenient farmers' dairy house. The size of the rooms may be varied to suit the individual needs.

A concrete tank near the pump makes cooling of the milk convenient. The separator should be located in the same room. A room provided with a sink and rack can be located at one end of the building. This room should be used exclusively for washing and drying cans and bottles. A room with shelves suitable for storing milk should be partitioned off from the opposite end of the building.

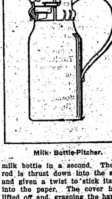
The walls and floor of the dairy house should be of solid reinforced concrete. The roof can be roofing paper or shingles.

The cost of such a building need not exceed $185, varying according to the size of the herd.

NOVEL MILK BOTTLE-PITCHER

Spout, Lid and Handle Attached in Ingenious Way and Will Be Found Quite Convenient.

Or call it a milk-pitcher-bottle, if you like—this device of an Ohio man. Whatever you call it you must admit its ingenuity. A spout and lid have a series of spring clips depending from the edge. These clips engage the neck of an ordinary milk bottle and fasten the spout upon it. A handle extends down the side. In the center of the lid is a rod which points at the bottom for engaging the paper stopper of the milk bottle. The spout attachment can be fastened to any milk bottle in a second. The little rod is thrust down into the stopper and given a twist to stick its fangs into the paper. The cover is then lifted off and, grasping the handle of the whole vessel, is used as a pitcher until it is empty, when the attachment can be removed and fastened to another bottle.



Milk Bottle-Pitcher.

Use Care in Breeding.

When heifer calves are to be reared for milk cows the dairyman cannot be too particular about breeding the cows to dairy sires. While occasionally a good animal has been produced from a sire belonging to either the beef or general purpose breeds, this is an exception. The only safe plan is to give the heifer calf the strongest possible inherited tendency toward milk production, and then use all reasonable means to develop this tendency by proper feed and care. It is by such a system that a good dairy herd may be built up. Cull all the poor animals and keep only the best. From these secure the best heifer calves.

Drying Up Cows.

Do not allow the cows to dry up during the latter part of summer, as this necessitates keeping them through winter, giving a smaller flow of milk than they should.

A little oil of pennyroyal or oil of cloves will drive flies away from the stable.

At any season, when the horse has become excessively warm he should be cooled off gradually.

Benefits of Separator.

The introduction of the hand separator has made it possible for the farmer to dispose of his cream at the [illegible]

WILLING HE SHOULD GO FAR

One Man to Have Kid Transferred, but He May Have Had a Grouch.

"What do you think of this scheme of having the countries exchange children?" asked the Sewickley man.

"I don't think anything about it," said the Wilkinsburg man. "What is the idea?"

"An English family, for instance, exchanges children for a couple of years with a German family. References are first exchanged, and all sorts of things."

"I see."

"Thus both sets of children get a chance to learn another language and get acquainted with another country. It's quite a scheme."

"It's an elegant scheme," declared the Wilkinsburg man. "My neighbors have a kid that I would like to see exchanged with some family in Siberia."

CHILD'S FACE ALL RED SPOTS

632 N. 5th St., Terre Haute, Ind.—"My little nephew, a boy of four years, had a breaking out on his face. It was little red spots at first, then he would rub and scratch and water blisters would form, and wherever the water would run another would come until his face was covered with them. He would cry and fret. His mother got some medicine, but it did not do any good. He would scream and cry and say it hurt. We hardly knew him, his little face was all red spots and blisters. So I begged him to let me put some Cuticura Ointment on them. The next morning I made a strong soap suds with Cuticura Soap and washed his face in the warm suds. The little blisters burst by pressing the cloth on them. After I had his face washed, I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in a short time his little face was all red and dry. I kept using the Cuticura Soap and putting on the Cuticura Ointment and his face got as well and it did not leave a scar. He was entirely cured in about one week and a half." (Signed) Mrs. Arthur Haworth, Jan. 10, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

The Other Way 'Round.

A good little story, long current in England, is now just gaining American circulation. It has for leading characters Rudyard Kipling and Dorothy Drew, Mr. Gladstone's little grandchild. Kipling was visiting Hawarden and, being fond of children, devoted himself to little Miss Dorothy until her anxious mother expressed the hope that the child had not been wearying the great author.

"Oh, no, mamma," spoke up Dorothy, before any one else had a chance to say anything, "but you have no idea how Mr. Kipling has been wearying me!"

How He Left.

The servants were discussing the matter below stairs.

"Master and mistress 'ad something of a row last night, I 'ear," said the butler ponderously.

"They tell me 'e ran out, cranked 'is motor car and left in it."

"You should have heard 'em," answered the parlor maid in a shocked tone. "Scandalous is what I calls it!"

"No," said the maid, positively, "he didn't leave in his machine; I distinctly heard the mistress say he left in a huff."—London Answers.

Case of Mistaken Identity.

President Taft was out for his afternoon walk in Washington one day when a flaxen-haired little girl ran out in front of him, held up her finger, and exclaimed, in a shrill voice:

"I know who you are!"

The president, thinking it not at all unusual that she should possess this information, but willing to gratify her, asked:

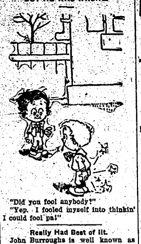
"Well, who am I?"

"Aw," she said teasingly, "you're Humpty Dumpty."—Popular Magazine.

There are lots of funny things to be seen in this world, and among them is a fat woman sitting on a little piano stool.

Even a homely man is apt to boast of how the women run after him.

BUT HE WAS WRONG.



"Did you fool anybody?"

"Yep. I fooled myself into thinkin' I could fool pa!"

Really Had Best of It.

John Burroughs is well known as one of the foremost nature writers in this country. Some time ago he visited his brother, Eden Burroughs, who lives in the Catskills, at a place called Hobart. The two brothers went for hunting together. The honor of the hunt came to Eden, who shot the only fox. So it happened that foxskins were worth five dollars at that time, and the successful Nimrod took much pride in telling how he got the better of the sage of Slabsides. Later, in boasting to a few friends about it in the presence of his brother John, he was interrupted by, "You have bragged about that fox hunt long enough. You shot the fox, sold the skin and got five dollars. I wrote a little account of the hunt, and got $75 from the magazine which published it. So there you are!"

Got His Answer.

When Oscar Wilde came to the United States to lecture on aesthetics in his highly aesthetic velvet costumes—and incidentally to prepare the public mind for the proper appreciation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience," in which the aesthetic movement was held up to ridicule—he used to complain that America was very uninteresting since it had "no antiquities and no curiosities." But he ventured on this disparagement once too often, for in the course of his travels he uttered it to the American Girl, and she replied with the demure depravity of candid innocence that this was not quite a fair reproach, since "we shall have the antiquities in time, and we are already importing the curiosities."

Births in the Air.

The International Congress on Aerial Legislation, sitting at Geneva, Switzerland, is evolving a very detailed code of laws. One of its suggested paragraphs reads: "In the event of a birth occurring in an air craft the pilot is to enter the event in his log book and must notify the fact to the authorities at the first place at which he descends."

His Reason.

He—Dearest—During the first dance I have with you be sure and say something to me.

She—Why?

He—Because you're so light, if you don't speak I will not know I have you in my arms.—Princeton Tiger.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health — Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these beidg unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to fine tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up, and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

County Superintendent.

VOTERS, I need your support. We are all working in this world for an honest living. Having lost a limb, I must rely on head-work to earn my way. This is the main reason why I am seeking the office of county superintendent. My life is dedicated to the noble work of educating, to develop in the child that degree of intelligence; that breadth of mind, of perception and understanding; that habit of industry necessary to root out all aversions to labor; that nack of home making, of saving, of valuing little things; that love of accomplishing, of perseverance which overcomes all obsticles—all of which and more, so essential to progress and contentment are the needs of every child and should be demanded in their name for them.

The pig and cow in conjunction make a great pair. As co-operators they are a great success. Harnessed together they would not make a stylish team, but they can nevertheless pull the farmer toward prosperity at a very gratifying pace.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB.

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; it strayed away one summer day, where lambs should never go. Then Mary sat down and tears streamed from her pretty eyes; she never found her lamb because she did not advertise. And Mary had a brother, John, who keept a village store; he sat down and smoked his pipe and watched the open door. As people passed along but did not stop to buy, John still sat down and smoked his pipe and blinked his sleepy eye. And so the sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near, and Mary came and dropped with him a sympathizing tear. "How, is it sister, that all the other merchants here sell all the goods and pay their bills and thrive from year to year?" Remembering now her own bad luck, the little maid replied, "The other fellows got there, John, because they advertise."

Well-Trained Cockatoo.

"When seals were taught to do tricks balancing and to whirl flaming torches, and ordinary barnyard cocks crowed a duet at the command of a trainer, we thought the highest point in that commercially valuable line of education had been reached," says a writer in a Berlin paper. "But a new 'first place' has been created for a grass-green cockatoo. This educated member of the parrot family rides a tiny bicycle at command and seems to enjoy the sport. He does many tricks for which professional riders receive applause. The same collection of animal wonders' contains a monster lion, which is shown in a cage provided with a grand piano. A woman trainer enters, seats herself at the instrument and strikes a chord, at which the lion leaps upon the piano and glares at the pianist. Then she plays, and the lion roars in time with the music. What next?"

Mr. and Mrs. G. Halverson received announcement the latter part of last week of the marriage of their oldest daughter, Miss Alta, of Los Angeles, Cal., to Mr. Ralph Haynes, of Pasidena, which occurred on the 10th of this month at Los Angeles. Miss Halverson is well known here, having visited her parents here on former occasions.

Was a False Alarm.

The report circulated last week to the effect that Hanson, the Armour Packing Co.'s representative in this section, had been shot at Fargo, was without any foundation whatsoever. While we were returning from a short business trip to Thief River the day after the report was circulated we were pleasently surprised to see our genial old friend who we have known for a number of years, and who we had heard had met with a supposed tragedy. Mr. Hanson called on the trade here Wednesday and was kept busy explaining how it felt like to be shot (?). Just how this report was circulated he does not know but thinks that it must have originated with the murder of Mr. Hanson, a brewing company's representative at Fargo some four weeks ago.

The Duluth Herald

Notice!

All persons who in the past have been hauling GRAVEL from the pit along the river on the old Scott place west of town are hereby notified that same must be stopped unless with prior arrangements with the undersigned. Henry J. Enderle, Cashier, First State Bank of Plummer.

COMING EVENTS!

Plummer Opera House, Sunday Eve., Sept. 1.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MEETING

The people of Plummer will have the opportunity of hearing Edward H. Nicholson, District Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, speak in the Town Hall next Sunday evening, Sept. 1st, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Nicholson has had a wide experience as a public speaker and always gives his audience something to think about. He handles the liquor traffic without gloves, and by forceful and logical arguments shows up the moral and economic evils of the saloon business. Don't fail to hear him. No admission. All are cordially invited.

BANK BUILDING NEARLY FINISHED

Brick Work Already Finished While Work on Interior Is Nearing Completion

The new bank building is fast nearing completion, in fact, save for a few finishing touches the building is almost ready for occupancy. The brick work was completed last week and Mr. Randolph and his crew have since been working on the interior.

The building is of a very striking appearance and shows the result of painstaking and experienced workmanship. Mr. Randolph and his company of men have worked with remarkable rapidity on the structure and have done excellent work. The interior of the building will be modern in every way. The fixtures which are expected to be here in a few days are of the very latest designs and are similar only to those found in the more up-to-date banking institutions. The building will be provided with a hot water plant for heating purposes.

In addition to the bank general is the addition in the rear of the building where will be located the land offices of Julius Pleth.

Wilson-Roosevelt-Taft

and all the other presidental aspirants receive equal attention in the news columns of the Duluth Herald, the best newspaper in the northwest.

Send your name and address with a dollar bill and get the Herald for three months. That will give you all the political news during the entire campaign.

Warning!

By order of the railroad and townsite company no gravel will be allowed to be taken from the old pit north of town near the railroad crossing on north side of river. Henry J. Enderle, agent.

Keep the Barn Clean

The regulations of the state board of health in regard to stables provide that all private stables shall be cleaned once a day and the manure put in a fly proof box and sprinkled daily with a solution of one pound of green vitriol to a gallon of water. The floors of the stable should be sprinkled with the same mixture each day after cleaning. This will prevent flies.

Manure should be hauled away once a week and not put in dumps to give flies a breeding place. When it is necessary to store manure, each fresh supply should be sprinkled with the above solution.

Livery stables can dispose of manure best by putting it into boxes on wheels and this accumulation should be removed daily when possible.

A number of towns of the state are endeavoring to have these regulations enforced.

Getting Ready to Build.

Mayor Bottineau has been busy the past few days hauling lumber to the proposed site of the new lumber yard of the Plummer Lumber Co. A good sized shed as well as a new office building will be erected while the present office building will be moved up town and converted into a storage room.

Hazel Hits

The harvest is now in full swing and with fine weather it will all be cut this week except flax.

Erick Anderson sold his land 2¼ miles southeast of here last week for $36 per acre, so land is going up. Mr. Anderson will soon leave for Gull Lake, Sask., Canada.

Torger Frossness shipped a car load of cattle to St. Paul from here last Saturday.

Pater Sate, from Oklee, was a visitor at Peter Thune's home last Sunday.

Nels Alfson had a surprise party for Rev. S. T. Palm last Sunday. Rev. Palm is going to leave here next week for Oklee.

Arne Broten left on the train Monday for Williams county, N. D. Mr. Broten is going to take his Buffalo Pitts threshing rig down here and will thresh around Hazel this fall.

Flying Men Fall

victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles just like other people, with like results in loss of appetite, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that as T. D. Peebles, Henry, Tenn., proved. "Six bottles of Electric Bitters" he writes, "did more to give me new strength and good appetite than all other stomach remedies I used." So they help everybody. Happenings That Are Making History—Information Gathered from All Quarters of the Globe and Given in a Few Lines.

Washington

A sweeping investigation into the Roosevelt campaigns of 1904 and 1912 by a subcommittee of the United States senate is embodied in a resolution introduced by Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania.

* * *

In event of war, the United States could raise an army of 20,473,684 men, according to the last figures obtained by the census bureau. There were that many males of militia age between eighteen and forty-four years, in the country. In 1900 the males of militia age numbered 16,182,702, showing an increase of 52,290,982 in ten years.

* * *

A countervailing duty on importations of wheat and rye flour and split peas from Germany was ordered by Secretary MacVeagh because those commodities enjoy a bounty from the German government. This decisive step was necessary, officials declare, to protect the American split pea industry.

* * *

Two votes were taken on the legislative, executive and judicial bill by the house of representatives. First it passed the measure which then contained a provision to abolish the commerce court over the president's veto, but later it unanimously accepted the bill with an appropriation for the court until March 4, 1913.

* * *

The naval appropriation bill providing for one $15,000,000 battleship, eight submarines, besides colliers and machine ships, passed the house by a vote of 151 to 16. The bill as it goes to the president carries $123,220,707.

* * *

Congress is rapidly thinning out in anticipation of adjournment. In the house the attendance is sparse, sometimes not more than two members responding on the question of the passage of a bill. It is estimated that almost 200 representatives already have returned to their congressional districts.

* * *

President Taft sent to congress a special message urging the amendment of the Panama canal bill which has passed both houses for the adoption of a joint resolution designed to allow foreign nations to test the validity of the free tolls provision of the bill under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

* * *

Domestic

George Thompson, a Denver aviator, was killed when his aeroplane was upset by a cross current of air at Lamar, Colo. Thompson was crushed under his machine.

* * *

Mrs. Mathilda Radeloff was acquitted of the charge of having murdered her husband at Cincinnati April 4 by a jury in Judge Bromwell's court in that city.

* * *

A conscience contribution of $100 for customs duty evaded on a watch has been received by Secretary MacVeagh at Washington from a fellow townsman of Chicago, who concealed his identity, but said he was acquainted with the head of the treasury department.

* * *

The Japanese building at the Panama Pacific exposition will cost $1,000,000, will occupy four acres with its grounds, and will be a permanent gift to the people of the United States.

* * *

Dr. F. W. Joslin, a Big Rapids (Mich.) dentist, his wife and their four-year-old son Howard were killed, his mother probably fatally injured, and his son Burr, eleven years old, slightly hurt when a freight train crashed into their automobile less than a mile from Detroit.

* * *

Walter A. Leonard of Illinois was appointed consul at Stavanger, Norway, by President Taft.

* * *

Overcome by a sudden impulse to end his life, which had become unbearable through ill health, John W. Kennedy, a millionaire manufacturing jeweler of Des Moines, Ia., sent a bullet through his brains at Montecito, Cal.

* * *

Jack Johnson will not fight Joe Jeannette in New York. The state boxing commission ruled to this effect and the managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., where the bout was to have been held, withdrew the match.

* * *

New York state's appraisal of the estate of John W. Gates, the financier, who died in August, 1911, shows that his fortune totals in round numbers $18,000,000, which is less than one-half the amount he was supposed to be worth at the time of his death.

* * *

The business of handling other people's money will be discussed in all its phases before the bank employes who make up the American Institute of Banking finish their national convention, which was opened in Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Florence Bernstein, charged with having shot her husband to death while asleep in their home in Chicago last May, was found "not guilty" by a jury after they had deliberated 24 hours.

* * *

Vilhkmar Stefanson, the explorer who discovered a race of blond Eskimos in Victoria Land, arrived at Nome, Alaska, on the revenue cutter Bear, after passing four and a half years in the arctic.

* * *

Gov. A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota issued a proclamation calling a second conservation congress. The congress will be held in Minneapolis, Minn., beginning November 19 and ending November 22.

* * *

A blanket indictment against seven men, five of whom are now under arrest, charging murder in the first degree, was returned by the grand jury before Judge Mulqueen in the court of general sessions in New York city, in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

* * *

Staying until the last gong had sounded, shedding tears as teeth were knocked away or noses loosened and cheering every spurt of the inferior, eleven women attired in auto coats and veils, witnessed 28 rounds of fighting at the club house of the Atlas Athletic club at Rockaway Beach, L. I.

* * *

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is back at the Rockefeller home at Poncantico Hills, N. Y., to take up the trouble which has recently threatened between employes of the estate and a squad of discharged Italian workmen.

* * *

Because of the abrogation of the Chicago agreement of last April by which all the trunk lines in the United States voted against running summer excursions for less than a two-cent-a-mile fare in 1911, a passenger rate war is threatened of all the lines involved.

* * *

Declaring himself to be prejudiced after hearing all the evidence submitted in the first trial of Clarence S. Darrow, and for that reason preferring not to rule or any phase of the second, or Bain, indictment against the Chicago attorney, Judge Hutton at Los Angeles assigned the case to Presiding Judge Willis of the superior court.

* * *

F. A. Kenyon, brother of Senator Kenyon of Iowa, and president of the Iowa Sand and Gravel company, is sought on a warrant charging forgery. Mr. Kenyon left Sioux City recently to visit the senator in Washington. W. C. Page of Chicago, general superintendent of the company, preferred the charges.

MARSHALL SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT

Governor of Indiana Formally Notified of His Nomination for the Vice Presidency.

DEMOCRACY DEFINED BY HIM

Rule of the People Not Essentially Rule by the People—He Believes Return of His Party to Power Would Right Prevailing Wrongs.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20.—Governor Marshall was formally notified this afternoon of his nomination for the vice presidency by the national Democratic convention. The notification committee, headed by Judge Alton Parker, was received at the state fair grounds at 2 o'clock and the chairman made a brief address.

In accepting the honor of the nomination, Governor Marshall said in part:

It will be well for the voter to clear up some hazy definitions. We have for many years been entertaining a belief founded upon no fact whatever, that Democracy and Republicanism represent different ideas of government. The Republican has looked upon the Democrat as a man opposed to the government. The Democrat has looked upon the Republican as a man opposed to the people's rule and in favor of aristocratic sway. It is time for us to remember that Democracy is not a system of government. Indeed, Democracy may find its expression in any one of numerous systems.

The rule of the people is not essentially rule by the people. By their votes, even when Democracy has unfolded to full manhood suffrage, the people may have a monarchical form of government. The people's rule does not depend upon the number of votes nor necessarily upon the system of government under which they vote. Good or bad government must go back to good or bad citizenship, to intelligent or ignorant, to honest or dishonest, electors. I venture the assertion that if the electoral franchise were now granted to all the citizens of Russia, the Little Father would again be crowned in Peter's City.

"Classes" In America.

The historic Democratic party of America had its inspiration and its aspiration in the life and conduct of its great founder. It is time now to have a perfect concept of that Democracy, for, in recent years, we have divided ourselves into three classes and the classification has been made not by the heart-throbs of men but by their social condition. We have those who are immeasurably rich and who are looking for more, and we have those who are unutterably poor and who are growing poorer. Between these extremes, we have a great middle class, living well and reasonably content except for the uncertainty of not knowing whether they are to rise into the first class or sink into the third.

Many have assumed that only the unutterably poor and those sinking into that class were Democrats, and that the immeasurably rich and the climbers were Republicans. But these divisions have not been logical.

Republican "Senile Dementia."

This campaign calls upon some for justice, upon others for charity, upon all for patriotism. It does not call for the bandying of epithets nor for an appeal to the personal. We may safely leave to that senile dementia which has seized the so-called Republican party the personalities of this campaign. Its unfitness to rule the republic is disclosed by its inability to keep its temper. It was cohesive so far as its leadership was concerned while it was engaged in looting the public, but even its leaders are now disorganized while quarreling over the loot.

Though a majority of the people have been voting the Republican ticket and have been assuming thereby that the majority would rule, the disgraceful but purifying scenes which have been enacted recently in Republican conventions disclose that a large number of those who have been voting the Republican ticket are Democrats at heart. These scenes disclose further that we have been mistaken in some of our conclusions touching government in America. We have yielded a quiet assent to the proposition that a majority is all-powerful and that a minority has no rights which a majority is bound to respect. But now we know that the theory of the historic Democratic party, that it is the right of a majority to rule but only within constitutional limitations and without the usurpation of a single inalienable right of a single individual, is correct.

Majority Becomes Minority.

It is only when majorities thus rule that governmental machines move without friction. The right of a majority to thus rule must always be conceded. I wonder, however, if it has dawned upon the sober second thought of this people that it is possible for a majority to be a minority and that it is equally possible for a minority to be a majority. At first blush, it would seem that the officials elected by the plurality of votes become the representatives of the majority and that as such, they rule. But I am not in error when I declare that it is not the mere number of votes which determines a majority in America, in the sense of having the power to formulate the policy, enact the legislation and control the government, and I point to the election of 1908 for proof. The protest of every man who voted for President Taft and who is now dissatisfied with the president's management of public affairs proves that for four years a minority has been the majority in America.

The social condition which we call Democracy and which finds its avenue of expression at the polls through our party, is unalterably opposed to special privilege whether granted by the law or seized by ruthless ambition. It is true the mother of all special privilege is the high protective tariff. All who voted the Democratic ticket at the last presidential election were unalterably opposed to this system of unjust taxation and a sufficient number of those who voted the Republican ticket were likewise convinced of its iniquity to make an overwhelming majority against it. Save a favored few, all were agreed that relief, to a greater or less extent, should be afforded to the people from the unjust exactions of this sytem. All knew that we could not educate the people of America indiscriminately, enlarge their views of life and happiness and then by the high cost of living deprive them of their pleasures without making of American life a seething caldron of discontent. Theoretically speaking, therefore, the majority of votes, having put a party in power upon a platform, pledged to relieve the people of their burdens, has been ruling under constitutional limitations. But this is not so. Immediately after the election the minority became the majority in the sense that it assumed control of legislation with reference to special privilege. All the members of the Democratic party and all the protesting members of the Republican party have been in the minority when it came to counting votes where the count fixed the cost of living. It may be said that this is a mere accident of politics, a single illustration, and that it will not occur again. But it is no accident. It is only one of the many illustrations. It simply discloses the utter folly of a man remaining a member of a party when the party policy ceases to voice his inner spirit. The Republican party does not recede now from its protective theory. Its return to power will mean again the rule of a minority and the theoretical idea of Democracy will continue to be the practical aristocracy of special privilege in this country.

Choice for the Voter.

The voter who cannot satisfy himself this year is indeed censorious. Eliminating the verbiage of platforms, taking their substance and viewing the candidates placed on them, the voter who believes that the cost of production at home and abroad should be equalized to the manufacturer of this country and who wants an oligarchy to rule, may vote the straight Republican ticket; the voter who believes in a similar protective theory but who prefers to an oligarchy that the president shall be the state, may vote the Progressive ticket; the voter who believes this government should be turned into a socialism, may vote the Socialistic ticket; the voter who thinks that church and state are not separate in America and that the people have a right to settle religious questions and to determine by ballot what is good and what is bad, may vote the Prohibition ticket; and all those who insist that it is not the business of the government to equalize the cost of production at home and abroad to the manufacturer until it equalizes the difference in the purchase price to the consumer at home and abroad, who believes that the only equalization justifiable in our government is the equalization of opportunity, who thinks that public office is a public trust, who does not believe that disgruntled and defeated politicians are genuine reformers, and who think that reforms are not born with sore toes, may vote the Democratic ticket.

I respectfully urge all those who are opposed to special privilege to ally themselves this year with the historic Democracy, the cornerstone of whose edifice is the Declaration of Independence and the keystone of which is the Golden Rule. At Baltimore, it proved its right to be because there it arose and by its proposed policy met the needs and wants of a people.

Results of Economic Injustice.

It is idle for a thoughtful man in America, whether millionaire or pauper, to longer play the ostrich. Safety does not consist in hiding one's head in the sands of either sentiment or hope. It is foolish for the vastly rich to keep on insisting that more and more shall be added to their riches through a spacious system of special legislation ostensibly enacted to run the government, in reality enacted to loot the people. It is worse than ignorance for them to smile at the large body of intelligent Americans who regard themselves fortunate if the debit and credit accounts of life balance at the end of each year; and to assume that the mighty many, who are becoming convinced that that social system which we call Democracy is but a glittering generality, will long endure the industrial slavery being produced. The hour has come when patriotism must consist in something more than eulogies upon the flag.

Whether voting the ticket or not, men everywhere looking upon the awful injustice of this economic system are becoming socialistic in theory if not in conduct. And shall any fair-minded man say that if it redounds to the interests of the people of this country that a hundred men should control its business to the good of everyone, that there is anything fallacious in the theory that government instead of transferring business to a favored few for the benefit of all should itself discharge that business for the benefit of all? I have never been able to convince myself that either system would not cast a pall over human action and dull the motives which have heretofore moved mankind to the very loftiest endeavor and produced what I conceive to be the most perfect system of government ever devised by the brain of man since that far-off theocracy of the Jew went down beneath his demand for the pomp and splendor of earthly power. And yet, I do not hesitate to say that if it be impossible to restore this Republic to its ancient ideals, which I do not believe, and I must make the ultimate choice between the paternalism of the few and the socialism of the many, count me and my house with the throbbing heart of humanity.

Three Grades of Citizens.

The discontent in Republican ranks is Democratic discontent. How much of it has reached the point where wearied with the bad workings of a good system, it is willing to topple that system over and try something new, I cannot prophesy. But I am quite sure that whatever badges men may wear in America this year, whatever ballots they may cast and whatever battle-cries they may utter, there are but three grades of citizens. The first grade is made up of the favored few, their hangers-on and their beneficiaries, who think the eagle is upon the dollar, not as an emblem of liberty but as an emblem of power and who look upon government as an annex to their business affairs; these are they who in the past years of Republican misrule have turned the temple of constitutional freedom into a money-changers mart and have made of the co-ordinate branches of government obeisant lackeys of the jingling guinea.

The second grade consists of those whose outlook upon life has been enlarged by the civilization under which we live, who have been taught by the school and the college, by the press and the magazine, who appreciate and enjoy the good things of life, whose horizon has been enlarged and whose capacity for joy and sorrow has been increased. Conditions have become unbearable to them. They hesitate to hope for reform so often has it been promised to them and so often has it been denied. They have reached the point where, in the struggle for that which they believe to be right, they are willing to destroy the ideals of the Republic. How many there are of these, I do not know, but I do know that special privilege in the Republic is breeding them day by day like rabbits in a warren.

Old-Fashioned Democrats.

The third grade of citizens it pleases me to call old-fashioned constitutional Democrats. These are they who believe that the equality of mankind does not consist in an equality of brain and brawn but in an equality whereby every man, native and foreign-born, has an inalienable right to exercise all of his ability in getting on in the world just so he realizes that in getting on he owes it to himself, to his family and to the Republic to see to it that he gets on honestly and that he does not prevent any other man from obtaining the reward of his honesty and enterprise. These old-fashioned Democrats believe in making money, but they believe that every dollar made should be so clean that an infant may cut its teeth upon it. They hold that it is no part of government to boost one man and to boot another, and that any system of government which enables one man to take advantage of another is not a system under which a Democratic condition of life can thrive. They hold that from age to age, social and economic conditions change, but that the great principle of the equality of all men before the law can never change while time shall last, and that the honest interpretation of this great principle in statutory enactment, judicial construction and executive conduct, will take from the life of a people the mighty avarice of the few, bind up the broken hearts of the many and loose the bonds of all who are in slavery to wrong, injustice and ignorance.

If I doubted that the return of the historic Democratic party to power would fail to right the wrongs of industrial life, to wipe out the injustices of legislation and to preserve the opportunity of every man for happiness, then my voice, now weak, would be silent. If I did not believe that, in-so-far as human agency can, this party of ours will promote the brotherhood of mankind, I would here and now repudiate it. But believing as I do that the Republic had its origin in an inspiration which did not come from the mere brain of a mere man but sprang from the heart of humanity, believing that this age more than any which has preceded it calls for conscience and brotherhood in governmental affairs; hoping that every sacrifice of mind and body and personal good which has been made, is a guaranty of the perpetuity of this, the latest and greatest experiment upon the part of a Democracy to work out its ideals in government; and trusting that the God of Washington, the founder, and of Lincoln, the preserver, will still be the God of the republic, and will not permit his chosen people to forever wander in the wilderness of legislative sin, I accept upon its platform, the nomination of the Democratic party for vice president of the United States. And may my right hand forget her cunning and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if in all my gettings I fail to get that greatest gift—wisdom and understanding to know the heart-break and the need of our common humanity.

Paean to Pie.

A pie is an expression of the soul, and longings of the heart blended in flakes and fragments, a combination of the smiles of the cook, the song she sings and the grace of her white arms. These are inherent in the perfect pie. They belong to the divine affienties which Chicago can not appropriate, because it is given over to materialism, ice cream and salad, the mere formalities and shells of life.

How much happier this world would be if everybody who made pies could make good ones. There have been pies we have eaten that set us alongside of angels, and there have been pies that relegated us to the company of other fellows.—Ohio State Journal.

Mustn't Let Chicks Squawk.

Sam Weiss, owner of an apartment house next door to the poultry yard of John Lefkowitz, at Cleveland, brought suit for $1,000 damages against Lefkowitz and applied for an injunction to restrain the fowls from disturbing the early morning slumbers of the apartment house tenants.

Common Pleas Judge W. B. Neff granted the injunction, saying when asked how he would restrain the squawking of the ducks, the cackling of the hens and the clarion calls of the chanticleers, that the owner must "give them away, muffle them or chop their heads off."

There is nothing like versatility. New York has ball teams at the top and bottom of the ladder, playing to optimists and pessimists alike.

DEAD-LOCK HOLDS

LEGISLATURE UNABLE TO COME TO AGREEMENT AFTER HOURS OF WRANGLING.

BILL MAY CAUSE FIGHT.

Deficiency Measure and Amendment to Penrose Resolution Expected To Delay the Adjournment.

Washington, D. C. — A few score weary members of congress, and an impatient president of the United States confront an unprecedented governmental situation following Saturday night's prolonged and fruitless struggle to adjourn the session of congress. The outlook for this week's sessions of house and senate promised an even more chaotic legislative condition than obtained in the fight that began Saturday morning and continued until nearly church time Sunday.

Disgusted with adjournment failure, many members of the senate took early trains for their homes. Senator Penrose predicted that there would be much less than a quorum in the senate the early part of this week, and house leaders were satisfied that that body would be nearly 40 members short of the number necessary to transact business.

Filibuster May Be Renewed.

The double filibuster which compelled the abandonment of the plan to end the session of congress is expected to be renewed when the houses re-convene.

Senator La Follette made known to friends that he would insist upon a record vote on the adoption of the Penrose resolution for an investigation of campaign contributions of the Standard Oil company in 1904 and of the correspondence between John D. Archbald, George W. Perkins and members of congress.

Senator Chamberlain who led the other senate filibuster, the object of which was to force the house to agree to the payment of $600,000 of old state claims, will have the support of many senate Democrats if he renews his insistence to hold congress until these claims are paid. The house leaders are determined to fight the claims "until December" if necessary.

Trouble Ahead.

Either of the senate filibusters hold trouble for any plan of adjournment. If Senator La Follette should insist on a record vote, it would become necessary to secure a quorum. In such an event he could hold the senate indefinitely because it would again be unable to make an adjournment agreement with the house.

The general deficiency appropriation bill is agreed to on all points except the $600,000 of claims demanded by Virginia, Maryland, Oregon and Texas and the extra months pay for employes of the house and senate. Chairman Fitzgerald of the house conferees, renewed his declaration that under no circumstances would the house concede the payment of any of these.

A bare quorum of senators was in Washington up to the adjournment failure, and less than a quorum voted on each proposition brought before that body during the night.

Half a dozen senators slept in their chairs through the latter part of the session; others wandered wearily about the senate wing of the capital, from the chamber to committee rooms and back again. About three o'clock the senate restaurant ran out of food and the senate went hungry.

URGES REPRISALS.

German Authority Says Powers Should Stand Together.

Berlin, Aug. 27.—Sharp measures of retaliation against the United State for its action in the Panama canal tolls question are urged by Count Reventlow, the noted authority on international and naval law.

"The Hay-Pauncefote treaty was signed by only two powers," he says, "but economically it affects the shipping interests of all nations. Great Britain may therefore be regarded as in a certain sense holding the mandate from all these nations. In the tolls question the United States is not seeking to protect any justifiable interests or national safety but simply and solely to satisfy its greed by unfairly grasping an advantage over other maritime powers. On this point there is a solidarity of interests among these nations. It is for them to consider whether they shall not institute reprisals which will convince the United States that its policy of unequal treatment of the maritime interests is bad business."

Attempt to Wreck Train.

Winnipeg, Manitoba. — The discovery of a deliberate attempt to wreck Canadian Pacific passenger train No. 108 on the Stonewall branch at a point two miles south of Komgarno was made by section men. The train is due in Winnipeg at 8:50, and between 6 and 7 o'clock it was discovered that spikes had been extracted and anglebars removed from both lines of steel, the front ends of the the rails being pulled out until they stretched outside the ties.

Garfield Makes Statement.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—All plans for the prosecution of the Standard Oil company had been outlined by James R. Garfield as head of the bureau of corporations, before the fall of 1904, when, John D. Archbold stated before the senate committee at Washington, the company made a contribution of $150,000 to the campaign fund. This statement was made by Mr. Garfield, who, referring to his diary, found a letter of Nov. 4, 1904, in which Mr. Roosevelt denied that such gifts had been sought.

Polar Exploration.

North polar exploration had attracted the attention of adventurous and ambitious men for nearly 400 years before Peary reached the top of the world. Search for the south pole has always proved less attractive, and only during the last 140 years have explorers turned their attention toward the goal recently reached by Amundsen.

Opening Up Lhasa.

Lhasa, which is the capital of Tibet, for generations was known as the Forbidden City, because of its political and religious exclusiveness. In 1904 a British armed expedition opened the mysterious old city. Previous to that time practically every European traveler had been stopped in his efforts to reach the place. The population of Lhasa is about 35,000.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

"I was very happy," said the professor, "when, after years of wooing, she finally said 'Yes.'"

"But why did you break the engagement so soon after?" asked his friend.

"Man, it was she that dissolved it."

"Really?" said his friend. "How did that happen?"

"It was due to my accursed absentmindedness. When, a few days later, I called at her home, I again asked her to marry me."

Sparrow Sets House Ablaze.

An English sparrow was the cause of three houses catching fire at Lawrenceburg, Ind., recently, and had it not been for the prompt work of the neighbors and friends all would have been destroyed. The sparrow was building a nest under the eaves of the home of Mrs. Mary Webber, and it picked up a long cotton string from a pile of rubbish that had just been burned. With the burning string in its beak, the sparrow flew to the roof of Mrs. Sophia Shafer's house, then to Otto McCright's house and then to the roof of Emanuel Wuest's home, where it dropped the burning string. A fire started in the shingles of each building. Each was extinguished by neighbors before much damage was done.

Everybody in Hard Luck.

Suddenly he stepped up to a gentleman, who was waiting for the tram, and, tapping him lightly on the shoulder, said: "Excuse me, but did you drop a five-pound note?" at the same time holding out in his hand the article.

The gentleman questioned gazed a moment at the note, assumed an anxious look, made a hasty search of his pockets, and said: "Why, so I did, and I hadn't missed it," holding out an eager hand.

The elderly hunter took the name and address of the loser and, putting the note in his pocket, turned away.

"Well," said the other, "do you want it all as a reward?"

"Oh, I did not find one," remarked the benevolent one with another beam; "but it struck me that in a big place like London there must be a quantity of money lost, and upon inquiry I found that you are the one hundred and thirty-first man who lost a five-pound note this morning."—London Answers.

HANDS CRACKED AND BLED

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out with watery blisters on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and hurting. My hands were disfigured at the time, and sore. The trouble was very annoying, and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work on account of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and liniments that claimed to be a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure.

"At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 29, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Barber Shops in China.

Since the Chinese revolution a great many Chinese have had their cues cut off, and this has led to the opening of a large number of barber shops throughout the far east wherever Chinese are located, says an exchange. Several progressive business men of Singapore, anticipating this, imported a large number of American barber chairs, and they are now unable to get supplies quickly enough. It has also been learned that the Chinese insist on having American hair clippers, and refuse all other makes offered them.

It would seem that American manufacturers of barbers' supplies should experience a large increase in their Oriental trade.

The Cannibals Need Food.

An officer of the French colonial army brought a letter from the chief of a group of missionaries in the southern islands of the Pacific not long ago, which winds up as follows: "I regret to tell you that our little company can do little against the fanaticism of these poor wretches. Moreover, famine is ravaging the country, for the harvest has been destroyed. Therefore the dispatch of more missionaries has become urgent."—La Petite Republique.

THE WAY OUT

Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria.

"My food did not agree with me, I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were getting well by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling and peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease —of course using Grape-Nuts every day. It is now four years since I began to use Grape-Nuts, I am the mistress of a happy home, and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

NEW ULM IS HOST

THIRD DAY OF CELEBRATION OF INDIAN WAR OF 1862 A SUCCESS.

INTERESTING FEATURES

New Ulm.—With Governor A. O. Eberhart and his staff figuring as the the central figures of the day and with aeroplane flights a baseball game band concerts, a generous historical and military parade and a dance for side issues, a crowd that was estimated at more than 15,000 persons enjoyed New Ulm's commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Indian massacrees. Governor Eberhart spoke, following and historical address of much the same nature by Mayor L. A. Fritsche.

The governor and his staff took part in the pageant and then went to German park, a beautiful little spot near the center of the city where a band concert preceded the addresses.

In the governor's party, which arrived early in the morning from St. Paul, were Governor and Mrs. Eberhart, General and Mrs. Fred B. Wood, and Mrs. C. H. Brown, Colonel and Mrs. A. H. Poehler, Colonel and Mrs. M. Nyman, Colonel David Wallbloom, Colonel George S. Koffend, Colonel Gustave Carlson and Major and Mrs. Prior.

The day's doings really began with the arival of the executive party. After breakfast came the parade. There were regular soldiers and some of the state militia, bands galore, floats, representing scene in the history of New Ulm and the surrounding country, local German societies, a battery of artillery, hundreds of junior pioneers and foremost in the applause along the line of march, the veteran defenders of Fort Ridgely and New Ulm during the perlous time of 1862, a momentous period in the development of the state of Minnesota, which has made possible the present celebration. Gray haired, feeble men and women rode in carriages and gaily waved their hands to the interested and enthusiastic people on the sidewalks.

What Floats Represented.

The floats in the order of their progression were as follows: "Indians, "Early Settlers," "Landing of First Boat, Jeanette Roberts," Medicine Man," "Minnehaha and Hiawatha, "Home of Savages," "Old Wind-Mill," "Indian Woodland Scenery," and "Peace and Prosperity." Many of the floats were prepared by local merchants, who have reason to feel highly enthused over their work.

Captain Louis . Vogel was marshal of the day and was assisted by Major John Buscheds, Ira D. Parker, Ed. H. Juni, R. Pfeifferle, Luther C. Ives, George Gieseke, Henry Berg, Mike Schuster, Nick Gulden, Wm. J. Julius, P. J. Eichten, Anton G. Reinartz.

The speakers in a measure, reviewed the trials and the tribulations endured by the early settlers. He compared the material comforts of the present day with those of a half century ago, and wondered that the pioneers had been able to go through such circumstances, yet declared that they were made of stern stuff.

WINONA BANKER DEAD

F. A. Rising Succumbs in Chicago Hospital After an Operation.

Winona.—F. A. Rising, cashier of and connected with the Winona Savings bank since its formation in 1875, died at the age of 70 years, in the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, where he had been operated upon for an intestinal trouble. The funeral will be held here on Thursday. He is survived by his wife and three children, Mary Rising of Winona, F. C. Rising of Minnewaukan, N. D., and Mrs. F. L. Coy of Cloquet, Minn. He was widely known in Minnesota banking circles.

NEW ACT NOT TO BE TESTED.

Mankato. — The proposed test of the corrupt practices act by Joseph Blissenbach, defeated member of the school board, will not be had, for the reason that he has decided not to go to the expense of a contest, as the office pays nothing. The board of education therefore, declared his opponent, L. T. Jefferson, elected. Mr. Blissenbach had proposed to contest the election on the ground that an automobile was hired to carry voters to the polls for Mr. Jefferson.

Loses Life in Lake Pepin.

Red Wing, Minnesota. — Anthony Anderson of Lake City, uncle of Mrs. N. D. Stultz of this city, met death by accidentally drowning in Lake Pepin. The body was found in the water near the boat factory site at Lake City by Albert and John Grant. Just how the accident occurred is not known, but it is believed he waded out into deep water and was unable to reach shore. Mr. Anderson was born in Sweden. He had resided in Lake City for 35 years and for 28 years was employed at the Nell Johns wagon factory.

ATTORNEYS DEBATE ACT

Legal Talent Consider Various Sides of Compensation Question.

Minneapolis.—Debate on the question of the workingman's compensation act marked the second session of the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Bar association in Leamington hotel. The session of argument continued for more than three hours, while the best legal talent of Minnesota examined and cross-examined each other on fine points of law.

At the session in the afternoon H. V. Mercer, chairman of the committee on workmen's compensation, gave his committee's report. This failed to agree with the report prepared by a committee of the Minnesota Employers' association, and in part not with the ideas of William E. McEwen, representing the laboring men of the state. The result was that the later session was turned into a debate.

Mr. McEwen took the platform first, declaring immediately against the limitation of compensation, and urging for a form of state insurance for the injured workmen to be paid out of a fund made up of moneys expended for insurance purposes, for litigation in courts which would be eliminated, and such other funds as might arise as the result of the economical conditions which would arise from a proper act. This Mr. McEwen explained, would oust the accident insurance companies so far as factory, railroad or the like was concerned relative to employes.

The principal attack upon the Mercer law by George M. Gilliette, was on the grounds that that law made it compulsory that employers come under the control of the compensation act, whether they wish to or not. The argument that followed on the Mercer law made by numerous attorneys, was that making the law compulsory would make it unconstitutional in that it would take private property without due process of law. The New York law, which made it compulsory and was ultimately killed by the court of appeals was used as the example by the opposition to the Mercer law.

Mr. Gillette argued against the proposition of the employer being responsible for all injuries received by his employes regardless of whether it was the fault of the employe or employer. Under the Mercer law an injured man would receive compensation without further parley. The law as drawn up by Mr. Gillette and his associates makes it elective with the employer whether he shall come under the control of the state's compensation act, or remain under the court and jury system as at present.

Mr. Gillette argued against compensation for disfigurement and for industrial diseases, and urged that a limitation of liability be fixed at $50,000 to any employer in a single catastrophe. The period of compensation, which was placed at 300 weeks in the Mercer bill Mr. Gillette wanted fixed at 400 weeks.

CLUBS TO HOLD RALLY

Interstate Park Will Have Largest Meeting of Season on Aug. 27.

Taylors Falls.—The interstate park will have its largest meeting of the season on Tuesday, Aug. 27, when the Chisago farmers and merchants annual picnic, reinforced by the Interstate Farmers Club, will celebrate. A special train will be run from Rush City to Taylors Falls, with one fare and a third from all stations for the round trip. Committees are at work at every station. The music and special features are in the hands of Clarence Johnson of Rush City. Congressman F. C. Stevens of St. Paul, Governor Eberhart, and others will speak.

The mine has been closed since February on account of injustice proceedings. The company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, is making no move to appeal from the award, and it is expected operation of the mine will [illegible]

HELD FOR INFANTCIDE

Baby of Less Than Day Old Is Brutally Slain.

Owatonna. — Certainly one of the most revolting crimes in the history of Steele county came to light when Anton Murik was arrested on a charge of infanticide, being accused of killing his own child of less than one day old by beating out its brains.

It was born shortly after midnight Marik was intoxicated at the time as he had been for some days, according to neighbors, but was making no trouble.

A physician left the house at 1 o'clock, leaving a neighbor woman in charge as nurse. About daylight, according to the story told by the nurse Marik came into the house and drove her out of doors. Then he sent the two older boys, aged 14 and 16, out and finally drove the third and youngest boy away.

This boy crept around and peered through a window and was a witness to the tragedy. According to his story his father seized the new-born infant by the feet, held it in the air and beat its head with his fist, while the mother lay terrified and helpless. The lad called his brothers. Coroner Adair, Sherig Leehy and others went at once to the scene. They found the baby with its head horribly crushed and the father lying in a drunken stupor. Marik is a man 60 years old.

MAY CHANGE LAW

Judge Orr Believes Legislation Not In Harmony With Criminal Rules.

St. Paul.—The Minnesota State Legislature may be asked at its next session to change the law defining grand larceny. It is believed by judges in the district court to be out of harmony with the criminal rules of common law based on "intent." and "I believe the law should be modified," said Judge Orr. "At present any theft from a building is classed as grand larceny, regardless of the value of the stolen article. When the culprit carries out a deliberate intent to steal it applies, but when a person, entering a store to buy something, a condition proved by the actual purchase, is tempted by something he sees, I do not believe he is guilty of grand larceny.

"Inasmuch as crime is based largely on intent, I have believe such a person should be guilty of petty larceny, as though the article had been stolen elsewhere than within a building."

DRAINAGE AN ISSUE.

Mud Lake Settlers Will Insist Upon Amendments to Present Laws.

Holt. — The Commercial club elected officers for the ensuing year, as follows: P. A. Risberg, president; S. S. Kolden, vice president; Charles W. Latta, secretary; B. L. Backe, treasurer; Axel Nelson, Chris. A. Yven and A. L. Carlson directors .

Owing to widespread dissatisfaction over drainage conditions in the Mud Lake district, a resolution was passed pledging the support of the club to the settlers in any legitimate action they may see fit to take to secure the prompt and proper fulfilment of the drainage contracts and remedy the present inconveniences and hardships.

It is intimated that any candidate who will not pledge himself to support proposed amendments to the drainage laws will meet with the organized opposition of the settlers in the Mud Lake district, which will be strong enough to defeat any of them.

James E. Swenson of Lake Crystal Believed to Have Been Insane.

Lake Crystal. — The funeral of James E. Swenson, a real estate dealer, who shot and killed himself, took place here. He lay down on a rug in his office, placed a pillow under his head and fired a bullet through his heart. He left four letters, in which he ascribed his act to despondency due to the failure of his plans. One letter was addressed to his wife, one to his daughter, one to a business friend and the other to his friends in general. He had not been considered of sound mind for some time, and was recently discharged from the St. Peter asylum.

STATE BUYS FARM

Pays $30,000 for Site of Waseca Branch of School of Agriculture.

Waseca. — The sale of the R. P. Ward farm to the University of Minnesota for the site of the Waseca branch of the school of agriculture has just been completed. The property consists of 246.02 acres of fine farm land, nearly all under cultivation, with a large barn, a house and several smaller buildings. The price paid was $125 an acre, a total of $30,752.50, the largest sum ever paid for a Waseca county farm.

Will Stump East.

St. Paul.—Senator Moses E. Clapp is not expected to return to Minnesota when Congress adjourns. It is probable that he will spend September and October campaigning in the East for the Progressives. Requests have been made for Senator Clapp's services in Pennsylvania. No definite word has been received from Senator Nelson as to when he will return. His friends, however, think that he will remain in Washington until Congress adjourns and then return at once to his home at Alexandra.

SAND HILL TURNED INTO REAL MONEY

An Investment in a College Education Brings Quick Returns.

BY DAVID C. GALE.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"I've lived on this farm the biggest part of my life," grumbled Mr. Whitcomb, "and what have I got to show for it? It's growing worse every year, if anything. I thought 'twould be different after you went to the farming college, but what you got out of books don't seem to help it any."

"Blame the farm, father, don't blame the books. This soil is hardly good enough for pasturage. That sand hill lot is worse than nothing. You can't expect science to do it all—there must be something to start with."

"But other farms have been brought back into shape again. They say there's a way to make 'em over when they're all run down," persisted Mr. Whitcomb.

"To make them over, yes, but not to make them. This place isn't run down—there never was anything here to run down. It was worthless in the beginning."

"Then you think I'd ought to sell it and buy another?"

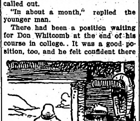
"You couldn't do it. What you could get for it wouldn't buy another —one that you want, I mean. Good farms are high these days."

Mr. Whitcomb could thing of nothing to say in reply, so he pulled the barn door together and walked off toward the house. There was an almost pitiful stoop to his shoulders, a stoop which told of years of fighting with the rocks and sand. He paused in the middle of the yard to ask another question.

"When are you going away?" he called out.

"In about a month," replied the younger man.

There had been a position waiting for Don Whitcomb at the end of his course in college. It was a good position, too, and he felt confident there were better things ahead of him. The old people had never taken very kindly to his ideas concerning scientific farming. It was only after long-continued argument that they ceased to oppose his plans.



'Good Farms Are High These Days."

Even then they could lend him no aid. The family pocketbook was hardly able to supply the necessities; there was no provision for the cause of education. Consequently, the success which came as a result of his four years' work gave him the right to believe that he had chosen wisely.

"I suppose father thinks I ought to stay here," he mused, "but it's asking too much of a fellow. The only thing I can do is to save up money and send it home."

Mr. Whitcomb was unusually silent at the supper table that evening. Don noticed something in his face that he had never seen before. It was the expression a man wears when he is about to give up the fight. His eye was listless, his head bowed, in short, his whole attitude suggested defeat.

The following morning Mrs. Whitcomb appeared in Don's room at an early hour.

"You'll have to see to things today," she said. "Your father is sick."

"What's the matter?" he queried, sleepily.

"I don't know," replied his mother. "I can't find out as he's in any pain, and he don't seem to be feverish. He just says he's sick."

A week passed—two weeks—the third one began to unfold itself drearily. It found Mr. Whitcomb still in bed.

"Physically, he's all right as far as I can see," the doctor had told them. "He's just lost his grip, that's all. Keep him quiet and try to encourage him all you can."

"You mean that medicine won't do him any good?" asked Don.

"Not a particle. You can't bring back a man's will power with medicine."

"And if we keep him quiet—what then?"

"It's impossible to say. It may bring him out of it. I hope so. Tell him all the good news you can. That's the kind of tonic he needs."

That afternoon Don drove to Welden for the weekly supply of groceries. Welden was a town built around the marble quarries. Indeed, it seemed that the people there could see or talk about nothing but marble. It was piled up on all sides of them—tons of it—in an inconceivable variety of shapes and sizes.

Nevertheless, Don made his way to the store without once giving a thought to the marble industry.

As he set out to return home, the [illegible] tramway, with the moving chain of buckets.

"I'm ashamed of you, Gyp," he mumbled. "Think how many times you've seen this thing. Strange how they never get used to it," he said to a man beside the road.

"It won't scare horses a great while longer. That's one sure thing."

"Why?"

"Because there won't be anything to run it for. This can't hold out more than two years, at the most. It's getting poor now."

"That's what I should like to know," returned the man. "It's hard stuff to pick up when you want it."

"Hard stuff to find, is it?" mused Don as he drove away. "Well, there's plenty of it up our way—too much of it. The whole thing is for sale, too," he exclaimed, glancing up the hill in the direction of the Whitcomb farm.

Late that night Mrs. Whitcomb went upstairs to see if her son had fallen asleep and had left his lamp burning. She found him sitting at a table, bending over a maze of figures.

"What are you doing up so late?" she asked.

"I'm trying to find a way to build up the farm," came the evasive reply.

"You'll never do it by breaking into the night, this way," she murmured.

"It is rather late, isn't it?" he said smilingly. "I guess I'll go to bed."

A whispered goodnight floated back to him from the hallway. He turned the lamp lower and sat down at the table again. His bed was unoccupied that night.

Daybreak found him ready for a second trip to Welden. In order to gain added information, he visited the shops and mills during the early part of the day. Then there were more figures and a final survey of the facts at his command. The afternoon was nearly half gone when he entered the president's office.

"I called to see you about your sand supply," he said, as Mr. Gordon turned in his chair.

"What's the matter with it?" The president thought there must be something wrong with the tramway.

"It's running out, isn't it? What you have in sight will soon be exhausted. I have two or three million tons of it for sale, if you would care to consider the matter."

"Where is it?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"Up on our farm."

"You mean that sand hill? Will you deliver it?"

"No, but you could extend the tramway. It's in almost a direct line up over the hill. Our thirty-acre lot would keep you supplied for 15 years at least—probably longer."

"And how about the price?"

"Two hundred dollars an acre."

"Six thousand dollars!" ejaculated the president. "I shouldn't consider your whole farm to be worth more than half that amount."

"Perhaps not as a farm, but how about the value of the sand? Wouldn't you be getting it at a pretty low price?"

"There may be something in the scheme," continued the president, apparently unaware that anyone had been speaking. "I am not prepared to say at present. I should want to have our engineers look into it. Perhaps you may hear from me later."

The days traveled by without bringing any word. The engineers had come and gone, leaving nothing to sustain the hope which their arrival had enkindled. There was only silence and uncertainty.

On the eighth morning, however, the tension was relieved by a call at the door, and a thin, impressive-looking envelope was ushered in. Don scanned the contents excitedly. Then, thrusting it into his pocket, he swung open the door of his father's room.

"Do you want to sell the thirty-acre lot?" he said.

"The sand hill?" There was skepticism in the voice. "Who'd ever want to buy that?"

"The Welden Marble company will buy it. They'll give you $5,000 for it."

Mr. Whitcomb turned about uneasily. "Don't bother me—I don't feel like joking.

Slipping up behind him, Don held the open letter where the old man could read it. As the import of the message became clear, the bent shoulders seemed to straighten and regain a portion of their lost strength.

"Five thousand dollars for sand!" he exclaimed.

"They need it for their mills, and they're going to build a tramway over the hill. I'll give you the details later. Will you sell?"

"Will I? Why, boy, that money would put me on my feet again. Did you bring all this about?"

"I found out they were getting short and went to see them about it. They did the rest," replied Don.

"I was wrong about the farming college," Mr. Whitcomb went on.

"This shows how good an investment it was. I never should have thought of this thing, and if I had, I couldn't follow it up as you've done."

What He Meant.

Hair disheveled, his collar and necktie awry, and his hat battered in and tilting over one eye, he stood propped up between the two policemen who had dragged him from the streets into the night police court.

There was no mistaking the charges against him.

"Bang!" went the judge's gavel with magisterial impatience.

"Hurry up! What's the charge?"

"Pifflicated—stewed, yer 'onor," answered one of the patrolmen.

"Shay, can I explain? Zish a mistake."

"Sure. Cut in. What's the matter with you?"

"Iz dish way, I'm Mule Boose Mooster."

"You're—you're what?"

"I shay I'm Mooze Bool Boozer."

"I get the boozer part all right. Come, let's have the rest again."

"You don't understand. I shay I'm Booze Mule Moozer."

"You're soused. That's what you are. Don't you dare jest with the dignity of this tribunal. Officer, can you enlighten the court regarding what the prisoner is trying to say?"

"Well, yer 'onor, he means he's a Bull Moose Booster. Me and O'Flaherty dragged him out of a torchlight parade down in the Tent' ward."—St. Louis Republic.

No Concern.

"Mr. Mips must be a singularly pure and upright man."

"Why do you think he is unusually so?"

"Somebody told him there were well-defined reports that a Burns detective had been operating secretly in the neighborhood he frequents, and he said it was nothing to him."

Remarkable Financiering.

"Figures don't lie."

"Don't they? Here's an item from New York that says a policeman there saved $80,000 in a month from his salary of $2,800. Those figures must lie, for they won't stand."

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. Martha L. Holloway, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to fine tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

County Superintendent.

VOTERS, I need your support. We are all working in this world for an honest living. Having lost a limb, I must rely on head-work to earn my way. This is the main reason why I am seeking the office of county superintendent. My life is dedicated to the noble work of educating, to develop in the child that degree of intelligence; that breadth of mind, of perception and understanding; that habit of industry necessary to root out all aversions to labor; that nack of home making, of saving, of valuing little things; that love of accomplishing, of perseverance which overcomes all obsticles—all of which and more, so essential to progress and contentment are the needs of every child and should be demanded in their name for them.

ALBANY DeFORGE.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past, and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past; put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulant schemes

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents, and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world; I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of disputes among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity.

H. STEENERSON.

Farmers throughout Minnesota should cooperate with H. J. Maxfield, immigration commissioner, who plans to secure testimonials from successful farmers throughout the state. He is preparing a pamphlet which contain letters from farmers in every county of the state reciting their experiences in cultivating Minnesota lands. These experiences in cultivating Minnesota lands. These experiences and recommendations from men in the field will carry conviction to the farmers of the East who are struggling on high price rented land. With a bumper crop throughout the Northwest what an opportunity to develope and settle up the vacant corners of the state.

Party lines nowadays are lying lightly everywhere. Neither the Democratic or the Republican parties are much afflicted with partaisanship in these years of struggle, which are also years of grace. Party ties are not hanging oppressively upon any intelligent party or individual shoulders in this country. Men are looking marvelously as though they intended to vote as they pleased, and are not to be intimidated by party names or fetiches of faction or by shibboleths that have grown meaningless from frequent repitation. Never in our history have people been as intelligent and wide awake as they are today. What they want is results and not names. They are much more concerned over the establishment of certain reforms in our economic system and in the honest administration of government than they are in names and traditions and organization of either side. They have borne meaningless platforms in their hearts for a score of years It may be a strong thing to say, but it is all too much the fact that for years thousands of people in the South have, through a mere slavish fear of disaligning themselves with the factions, kept up a political affiliation which did not express either their consciences nor convictions. They have been true to their party—some of them because of hereditary affection, many of them because of the timidity and fear of breaking their alignment, and perhaps even more of them over the apprehension that some day they might need office and it would not do to get out of plumb. The whole trend of the age seems to point toward re-alignment of party and a reorganization of the great political divisions. The age, as someone has written, is not half as reverent as it is practical; and at a time when the people know so clearly what they want, and seem to find a way to reach it, they are not likely to lash themselves hopelessly to any floating mast or spars which happen to be labeled with the name of one party or another.

LOCAL NEWS

Bring us the news.

Mrs. Pahlen left Saturday for McIntosh.

Ole O. Lee, of Oklee, was here Sunday.

All kinds of legal blanks for sale at this office.

Tom Norby spent Sunday at Thief River Falls.

T. A. Brink was up to Thief River Falls Sunday.

Hugo Swanson was in town on business Monday.

Hans Hugget is having an addition built to his butcher shop.

For Sale—One I. X. L. second hand windmill. 20 feet high. John Mahla, 3 miles west of Plummer.

Mrs. Oscar Johnson, of Gonvick, is a guest of Mrs. Rose during her husband's trip to Canada.

Ed Johnson will soon commence the erection of a barn on his lots in the rear of his buggy shed.

Miss C. Strande, of Wanke, was here last Friday as a guest of Mrs. Pahlen and Mrs Wichterman.

Mrs. Ravies has returned from the hospital at Crookston, where she has been confined for some time by reason of illness.

Fr. LeFloch, of Bemidji, will hold mass at the school house Sunday Sept. 8th, at 10:00 o'clock.

Dr. Spofford will be at the Hotel Scotland Oct. 18. Eyes Examined. Glasses Fitted.

Mr. and Mrs. Knute Steen departed Sunday evening for the Twin Cities where they will be in attendance at the state fair.

O. H. Langlie went down to the Twin Cities Sunday night on a few days' business trip and also to take in the state fair.

Miss Moran, of Thief River Falls, arrived here Saturday to enter upon her duties as teacher in the school house south of town.

The Misses Mae and Alna Peterson left the first of the week for North Dakota where they will remain for some time.

Mrs. M. Follan and daughter left Sunday for Minneapolis to take in the state fair and also to visit relatives and friends for some time at their former home near Minneapolis.

E. H. Nicholson, of Minneapolis, gave a temperance lecture at the city hall Sunday night to a small sized audience. Sunday morning he gave a lecture at the church north of Oklee.

Miss Karla Airick who had been a guest of relatives and friends at Grand Rapids, Minn., and other points for a couple of weeks, returned home Thursday evening of last week.

S. J. Rice went over to Red Lake Falls Saturday to procure hunting licenses for a number of our sportsmen and also to accompany Salem Majou who left that evening for Crookston.

Miss Martha Tanem, who taught school two miles north of town last season, has been engaged to teach school near Highlanding the coming school year.

George Singer, of Kratka, was a caller in town last week. Mr. Singer is a member of the firm of Singer Brothers, the popular merchants of Kratka.

K. A. Henderson is buying live stock and is shipping to St. Paul every week. He will be a steady cattle buyer from now on if the business accorded him merits it and kindly asks those who have any cattle for sale to let him know.

The Soo northbound Flyer has been run in two sections the past few mornings, one section being composed of sleeping cars while the other contains the baggage and day coatches. The enormous traffic on the Soo Line would almost merit the continuation of this service on both the north and the south bound trains.

Oscar Johnson and Henry Rose left Sunday morning for Brooks, Canada, where they went to look over that section of the country with a view of taking homesteads. O. J. Johnson returned from Canada some time ago and has hopes of getting a piece of land there. His son, Bennie, has a nice farm in that section and is doing well.

Louis Hanson, of the firm of Hanson & Barzen, of Thief River Falls, was here last Friday looking over the proposed work of moving the company's elevator. A crew of men were put to work last week tearing down the additions to the elevator and getting it ready for the job. The elevator will be on its new site and all ready to take care of the grain this fall. More improvements will be made to the building in the spring as the time is too limited to accomplish all that is intended [illegible]

Mrs. Morrisette went up to Thief River Wednesday.

Olaf Holten and Otto Anderson were up to Meisner Sunday.

—For Sale—The leading hotel Scotland. Call on Ole [illegible]dal, Plummer.

Miss Bjorge arrived here the latter part of last week and is a guest of her father.

Dr. Melby, of Thief River Falls, was called here on professional business Sunday night.

Mrs. A. Therien, of Oregon, who had been a guest at the Joe Kiel home for a short time, departed for her home Saturday evening.

Do you want anything in the line of stationary, writing or office supplies? If so, call at the Pioneer office and see what we can do to supply your needs.

For Sale—Threshing outfit complete. Minneapolis threshing machine and Buffalo Pitts engine. Outfit in good shape and will be sold cheap if taken at once. See E. L. Wichterman.

Helmer Bjorge left Sunday night for Detroit, where he went to take charge of a drug store while the proprietor is enjoying the week at the state fair.

Gilbert Halverson left Tuesday evening for Minneapolis where he went to select his stock of winter and holiday goods and also to take in the state fair.

—Lost—Between Oklee and Wanke, a suit case containing a coat and several other articles of ladies wearing apparel. Finder call at Farmers & Merchants Bank, Oklee, for reward.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hamrey, of Gonvick, were in town Monday evening. Mrs. Hamrey departed that evening for Minneapolis to visit friends, while Mr. Hamrey returned to his home Tuesday morning.

FOR SALE—I have a complete threshing outfit, Advance engine and Case separator, which are both in good condition, and also a feed mill, complete and in good working condition, that I will dispose of at a bargain. Henry Rose, Plummer, Minn.

All persons who in the past have been hauling GRAVEL from the pit along the river on the old Scott place west of town are hereby notified that same must be stopped unless with prior arrangements with the undersigned. Henry J. Enderle, Cashier, First State Bank of Plummer.

Jens Grothe went up to Thief River Falls Monday evening where he went to pay a visit to his numerous school mates before departing Tuesday night for Minneapolis where he will attend the state university. He will take the requisite two-year academic course after which he intends to enter the college of law.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. H. H. Hanson are both confined to the bed this week, the former from an attack of pneumania and the latter is ill with an attack of pleurisy. At the present writing, however, they are out of danger and their recovery is looked for in a short time.

By order of the railroad and townsite company no gravel will be allowed to be taken from the old pit north of town near the railroad crossing on north side of river. Henry J. Enderle, agent.

The regular term of the Plummer school was commenced Tuesday morning and a good sized attendance was enrolled for the first day. Miss Lou Green has again been engaged as principal for the ensuing year, while Miss Emma Tandberg, of Thief River Falls, has been engaged to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Morrisette, nee Miss Halseth.

Many Driven From Home

Every year, in many parts of the country, thousands are driven from their homes by coughs and lung diseases. Friends and business are left behind for other climates, but this is costly and not always sure. A better way—a way of multitudes—is to use Dr. King's New Discovery and cure yourself at home. Stay right there with your friends and take this medicine. Throat and lung troubles find quick relief and health returns. Its help in coughs, colds, grip, croup, whooping-cough and sore lungs make it a positive blessing. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Hazel Hits

A stranger came here from Thief River last week and called at the Hazel Merc. store to do some shopping and on the counter was standing a jug of muoridic acid, and while the clerk went into the warehouse for something the fellow helped himself to two drinks of the jug. On account of quick action of the doctor from Thief River his life was saved. Wonder if this fellow believes all jugs contain wiskey, now?

Carl Ahlberg was going on horseback to Hazel last Saturday, and got thrown of his horse, falling in such a manner that he broke his right arm in two places. His sister, Anny, took him to Thief River to a doctor immediately after the accident.

Ole Broten is very ill after his operation for appendicitis and there is little hope for his recovery. Mr. Broten had an operation in Northwood, N. D., about two months ago.

Some threshing was done north of here last week and it is about a moderate crop of wheat this year and the grade is mostly number one Northern. Some barley has also been threshed and is very good.

Torger Frossness shipped a carload of cattle to St. Paul last Saturday. Mr. Frossnes is going to be a steady buyer of cattle this fall.

Miss Inga Erickson and Miss Tilly Hastcking went up to Thief River Friday and stayed there until Sunday visiting friends.

Miss Lindblom left for Thief River Saturday night. Miss Lindblom has been teaching school about five miles east of here for some time and she will now teach in Thief River.

O. Palm from Plummer came here on the train Saturday night to visit with Ole Odegaard.

Miss Laura Larson went to Grand Forks, N. D., last Saturday for a short stay.

Martin Pederson commenced threshing last Saturday.

A party of young people went to St. Hilaire to attend a wedding last Sunday.

Axel Carlson was a caller at Jacob Axes home last Sunday.

Lillo Locals

Mrs. I. Lillo and Mrs. Bourman, of Lillo, left Saturday morning for Minneapolis to attend the state fair and for a visit with relatives.

John [illegible]rson has purchased a gas traction engine.

Oscar Lillo has received his new Racine threshing machine and has commenced threshing operations in this vicinity. Judging by the work done he is thoroughly convinced that this machine is a comer on the market. This is the first machine of its kind in this section of the country.

While threshing for Jim Walker last week with Oscar Lillo's new Racine threshing machine 58 bushels were realized out of one load of oats. This is considered an extraordinary yield, especially for this year.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER 6 OF THE ORDINANCES OF THE VILLAGE OF PLUMMER, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE CARE AND CONSTRUCTION OF STREETS, ALLEYS, SIDEWALKS, CROSS-WALKS, AND PUBLIC GROUNDS."

The Village Council of the Village of Plummer do ordain:—

Section 1. That Section 1 of Chapter 6 of the Ordinances of the Village of Plummer, entitled, "an ordinance relating to the care, and construction of streets, alleys, sidewalks and public grounds", be and the same is hereby amended so that it shall read as follows: Section 1. All sidewalks and cross walks on all streets of said village shall be constructed in such manner and of such material as the Village Council of said Village shall determine by resolution, duly adopted and all such sidewalks and crosswalks shall be constructed on a grade established by said Village Council, by resolution. Commencing at the outer edge thereof, all sidewalks shall incline upward one-half inch to the foot, the full width of said walk, unless otherwise specified by the Village Council, by resolution, and all crossings shall be not less than three feet in width on top unless otherwise directed by the Village Council; and all persons building sidewalks on any street of said Village shall construct the same on such grade and in such manner and of such width and of such material as shall be from time to time prescribed by the Village Council by resolution duly adopted; and the village council may, by such resolution, require that any side walk or cross walk shall be built of cement concrete, together with curb stone and gutter, if deemed necessary by said Council; and the said Council may, if deemed necessary and advisable, condemn any sidewalk in said Village, if out of repair and require that the same be renewed and replaced by a sidewalk built in such manner and of such material as said Council shall require by resolution, duly adopted.

Section 2. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval and publication.

Dated Sept. 2, 1912.

ACCIDENT IS FATAL

SON OF E. W. BACKUS SUCCUMBS TO INJURY RECEIVED WHILE HUNTING.

TRIPPED OVER A RIFLE.

Twelve Miles From International Falls —Family Had Been In House boat on Rainy Lake.

Minneapolis. — Edward Raymond Backus, who would have been twenty-two years old in September, was killed on the houseboat of his father, E. W. Backus, president of the Backus-Brooks lumber company and Minnesota & Ontario Power company, by tripping over a loaded shotgun on the deck of the boat, both barrels of which were discharged into his body. He died several hours after the shooting. His mother and brother, Seymour Backus, aged 17, and Mr. and Mrs. Mac Martin of Minneapolis, were on the houseboat at the time.

E. W. Backus, his father, was in International Falls. He immediately started up the Rainy river twelve miles to where the houseboat, which had been plying Rainy lake, was anchored. W. F. Brooks of Minneapolis received a message saying that Raymond Backus, as he was intimately called, had been shot, but that he was still alive. This was sent from International Falls. It said that his father had gone up to the houseboat. Mr. Brooks received another message announcing the death of Raymond Backus, and saying that members of the family had returned to International Falls and were making preparations to bring the body to Minneapolis.

General Manager W. H. Gemmill of the Minnesota & International railway, upon learning of the accident, placed his private car at the disposal of the Backus family. The body will be taken to the home of E. W. Backus, 75 Oak Grove street, and the interment will be at Lakewood.

Three years ago he entered Yale and graduated this year with honors in the engineering class. He returned to Minneapolis prepared to enter business with his father in the management of the properties at International Falls with the development of which his father was connected.

ASK SUFFRAGE VIEWS.

Women Want Roosevelt to Take Definite Stand.

Minneapolis. — Theodore Roosevelt will be asked by the Minnesota Woman Suffrage association to include in his state fair address a definite statement of his views concerning woman suffrage. He will be asked to make this statement explicit.

The executive board of the association, at a meeting at the West hotel, decided to request Colonel Roosevelt to discuss woman's suffrage in his address. The board decided against asking him to join in the parade, which is to be a feature of the state suffrage convention during fair week.

"Our action does not mean that the board indorses the Roosevelt candidacy," said Mrs. A. H. Bright. "It means that as a presidential candidate we want him to give his views on the subject. That is all."

Plans for a campaign in the interest of woman suffrage were outlined. A tent is to be pitched on the fair grounds and prominent speakers are to make addreses during the week. The state convention, which meets Sept. 5, in the Minneapolis courthouse, will adjourn at noon and the delegates will leave in decorated autos for the fair gounds. The parade will pass up Third avenue to Tenth street, to Nicollet avenue, down Nicollet and across the river to University avenue and to the fair grounds.

The list of speakers for the fair grounds and the two morning sessions of the convention has not yet been announced. Governor A. O. Eberhart will speak at one of the meetings at the fair grounds. G. F. James of the college of education at the university, will speak at the meeting to be held Sept. 4. Others who will probably address the meetings during fair week are Rabbi Rypins of Chicago, Rev. H. N. Wilson, Grant van Sant and Dr. Thomas McDavitt. The following clubs will each have charge for one day of the headquarters at the fair grounds: The Duluth Political Equality club, the Minneapolis Scandinavian Equal Suffrage, Political Equal-Paul and Minneapolis Political Equality clubs.

Caswell Resigns.

Minneapolis. — L. A. Caswell, Republican national committeeman for Minnesota, has resigned. He sent a letter to Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the Republican national committee, tendering his resignation. He made no comment on his action.

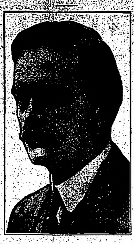
Hurled Fifty Feet.

Winona. — A threshing machine boiler explosion on the farm of Guy Ford, three miles southwest of Witoka in this county, resulted in the instant death of Edward Waldo, aged forty, an engineer and the severe scalding of Lynn Higgins, a tank man. More than a dozen farmers and helpers who were near escaped injury by being on the side of the boiler where only escaping steam went. The middle section of the boiler was blown westward fifty feet and went through the roof of a barn, killing a hog.

Crops all Harvested.

Shakopee. — The crops in Scott county are all harvested, and many farmers are well under way with fall plowing. Corn is somewhat backward, but several weeks of warm weather will yield a big crop. A forty-acre field of wheat threshed last week averaged 23½ bushels to the acre, machine measure. One farmer threshed 1,140 bushels of rye on a thirty-two-acre piece. The crop of potatoes in this vicinity will be the heaviest in five years or since 1907.

P. M. RINGDAL



Crookston, Minnesota, has a candidate in the field for the Democratic nomination for governor, in the person of P. M. Ringdal.

GERMAN DAY SUCCESS

15,000 Visitors Crowd New Ulm and Witness Parade.

New Ulm. — German day Sunday proved a fitting climax to a week's celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the Indian massacre. The date was set apart many months ago for the German-American Central society of Minnesota and the Junior Pioneers of New Ulm.

Early in the day thousands of people began pouring into the city. Towards noon the Minneapolis & St. Louis and North-Western railways ran five excursion trains to this place. Each was packed, swelling the crowd to at least 15,000. It was the largest number ever brought here on a Sunday.

At 1 p. m. a grand civic parade, composed of four divisions marched through the principal streets at Hermann Heights, where the program was carried out. Except for the Fort Snelling troops the parade was similar to the one of Wednesday. In addition to six Hermann warriors garbed in the ancient uniform of the Teutons, the Deutscher and Austrian-Hungarian Krieger Verein accompanied by fife and drum corps, were features worthy of note.

The Second Regiment band, St. James Cornet band, Sleepy Eye Cornet band and the St. Paul Cornet band furnished music. German societies from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Mankato, St. James, Le Sueur, Shakopee, Henderson, Hamburg and Young America participated. The Brown county agricultural societies had arranged for horse and motorcycle races and baseball games.

Mayor L. A. Fritche welcomed the visitors and presented a large key to Julius Moersch, president of the German-American Central society. Mr. Moersch, in response, expressed the hope that German customs and traits would be perpetuated by the sons of the Fatherland.

The principal address was made by Albert Pfaender of this city.

Hanns von Grunow, the German consul in St. Paul, spoke of efforts which should be made to perpetuate friendly relations between Germany and the United States. Edgar Prochnik, the Austro-Hungarian consul, spoke in a similar vein, dwelling upon the close relations between Germany and Austria-Hungary.

TOWER ENTERTAINS

St. Louis County Club Members Enjoy a Day's Outing.

Tower. — On invitation of the local commercial club the St. Louis County Club held a special meeting here Thursday. A large delegation arrived from Duluth and Mesaba range points, a number arriving also by automobiles. The delegates assembled at 1 P. M. at the opera house for a brief business session. They were invited to take a trip on Lake Vermillion and the crowd proceeded to the lake side docks of the various navigation companies and there embarked on the steamers Mary Bell, Olive and Erma D. for a tour of the lakes.

About 150 enjoyed the hospitality of the local club. Bouillon and roast mutton were served in a pavilion at Woodman's point. The party returned to Tower about 9 p. m.

Railway to Go from Bay to Gulf.

Bemidji. — Surveyors are at work in Hubbard county laying out an extension for the Minneapolis & St. Louis and Minnesota & International railroads to connect with a Canadian trunk line on the other side of the border. The work is part of a plan by Newman Erb and his associates to establish railroad connections between the Gulf of Mexico and Hudson Bay.

New Railroad Planned.

Bemidji.—Prospects are Northern Minnesota is to have a new railroad, cutting through Hubbard, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, to connect with a Canadian trunk line, according to the plans of Newman Erb as discovered by farmers in the Mallard district of Hubbard county, who have talked with men in automobiles who are outlining and surveying for the proposed Minnesota and International extension. As now planned the road would cut across the northern end of Itasca and a new town at this point is assured.

City to Entertain Florists.

Minneapolis, Aug. 23. — The American Florists' association voted at its convention in Chicago to come to Minneapolis next year, and Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks here, was elected vice president of the organization. Miss H. B. Whitted of Minneapolis had presented his name to the Minnesota delegation, which unanimously supported him. Credit for obtaining the convention for Minneapolis was given to W. D. Desmond of the L. S. Donaldson company.

SIX BUILDINGS ARE STRUCK

TWIN CITIES AND NORTHWEST VISITED BY HEAVY RAIN.

Communications Are Cut and Threshing Further Delayed.

Minneapolis. — Six different places were struck by lightning, an excursion party on the Mississippi river was thrown into a panic, telegraph and telephone wires were more or less affected, and theater-goers and others belated were soaked as the result of a severe electrical shower which swept over the Twin Cities.

But far more severe, according to meager reports, were the effects of the storm in the vicinity of New Richmond, Wis., and the Red River valley. Telegraph and telephone wires were down in that territory and the service was poor, but a few reports which reached the Twin Cities stated that the threshing was probably delayed for at least a week.

Storm Breaks at 10 O'clock.

The storm burst upon Minneapolis, and St. Paul as well about 10 o'clock, and for a few moments, its fury was supreme. Sheets of rain swept the streets, and flash upon flash of vivid lightning came in close succession, while the thunder, for about 15 minutes, seemed to be everywhere. The mercury took a sudden slide downward, but only descended four to five degrees.

Later, after the storm had departed, or at least its fury had, the mercury began to climb upwards, and at midnight was two degrees higher than the mark to which it descended during the storm.

MAY SIGN PETITION.

May Help Get Presidential Electors on Ticket.

St. Paul. — That voters at the primary may also sign petitions for presidential electors to be placed on the ballot, is held in an opinion by Attorney General Smith. The new primary law states that any one who has voted in the primary election cannot sign a petition to place candidates on the general election ballot, but the attorney general holds that this does not apply to presidential electors.

"Nominees for presidential electors were not voted for at the primaries this spring, and are not to be voted upon at the primaries to be held September 17," ruled Attorney General Smith. The primaries held in the spring were to elect delegates to county conventions and county conventions elected delegates to the state convention and the state conventions nominated the presidential electors. A delegate to a convention has the power of independent action and occupies a position very similar to a representative in the Legislature.

"The delegates to the county convention were the electors of the delegates to the state convention and the members of the state convention nominated the presidentials electors.

"The participation of a person in a primary by casting a nonpartisan ballot does not affect his right to sign petitions for the nomination of presidential electors. It must be borne in mind that this opinion is based wholly upon the fact that the primary election law excludes presidential electors from its operation."

The number of petitioners necessary to put upon the official ballot a candidate for a state office, cannot exceed 4,000. Mr. Smith ruled, but must be at least 2,000.

CLOTHES OF BATHERS

All Burn When Camp Is Destroyed by Fire.

Albert Lea. — Harold Remore, Glen Thompson and Roy Whitcomb, all of Northwood, were placed in an embarrassing position while camping on the banks of the Cedar river, when their camping tent, three valuable watches and every stitch of clothing burned while they were bathing.

After wandering around, shivering and being eaten by mosquitoes, hoping in vain for someone to come to their rescue one of them, dressed in Garden of Eden clothes, went to the nearest farm house where he telephoned for assistance.

W. L. Thompson and Arthur Gardner of that place took an auto and clothing, arriving at the camp before dark. The origin of the fire which destroyed their camp is a mystery.

GIRL ENDS LIFE

She Recently Attended a Summer School in St. Paul.

Duluth. — Miss Elizabeth Sjostrom, the twenty-year-old daughter of Andrew Sjostrom, a well known farmer of Barnum, ended her life by hanging herself to a tree. She only recently returned from St. Paul, where she had been attending a summer school No reason is known for the act. In a note she only said "Good-bye." and gave no clue as to the cause.

OFFICER IS OUSTED

O. F. Collier Succeeded by C. E. Bornbach as Treasurer.

Duluth. — O. F. Collier who was imperial treasurer of the Modern Samaritans, was ousted from office at a meeting of the imperial council, and C. E. Bornbach elected to his place. The action is the outcome of a war for control within the order, the leaders of the factions being John Christie, head of the order, and Mr. Collier. Other officials who sided with Collier are expected to be ousted.

BOY PREVENTS WRECK

Mankato.—But for the prompt action of a boy whose name could not be learned the Milwaukee passenger train, No. 43, bound for the Twin Cities, might have been wrecked on a bridge north of this city.

The boy discovered a broncho, owned by a horse trader, fast in the treslework over a creek, and as the train was just about due he ran towards it and gesticulated wildly and attracted the attention of the engineer, who stopped the train.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION

at Plummer and Red Lake Falls, Minn., For Red Lake County, Saturday, Sept. 14, 1912.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the places named above, as a result of which it is expected to make a certification to fill the vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Plummer and other vacancies as they may occur on rural routes at postoffices in the above named county; unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 18 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a postoffice in the county for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application form 1341, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination, can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the commission at Washington As examination papers are shipped direct from the commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers.

An eligible register for the position of rural letter carrier for each county will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post office in such county. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other position in in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules.

JOHN C. BLACK, President

Eligibles on registers established prior to March 1, 1912, can be considered for appointment only at the office for which they were examined. Such eligibles may be examined within one year from the date of their former examinations upon filing applications showing that they meet the requirements of the new examination, their old eligibility for their home offices not being canceled.

To Reproduce Riot Scenes.

The recent riot at the Federal building, Los Angeles, will be reproduced at the trial of those arrested by motion picture films, and shown to the jury on a screen. It will be the first time in the history of jurisprudence that such evidence will have been introduced. While the riot was at its height a moving-picture company, with the newest model machine, had an operator on the scene, and his films show the entire actions of those persons who are charged with having caused disturbance.

Cause for Consternation.

The inexperienced district school teacher had exhausted all other expedients for the maintenance of discipline. Going out into the school yard, she broke off a good-sized switch that was growing there and administered primitive punishment to Jimmy Kelley.

There were strange expressions of horrified amazement on the faces of the children, and when school was dismissed at noon they gathered in excited groups and talked in whispers. Finally the teacher's curiosity could stand it no longer. Calling Henry Thomas to her, she demanded the cause of the discussions.

"Why—why—why, teacher," he stammered, "that—that switch you licked Jimmy with—that was the tree we all set out last Arbor day."—Harper's Magazine.

Not Necessary to Leave Home.

In an effort to stop the migration of dying consumptives to the Southwest, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will ask physicians to be more careful in ordering patients to go away, and will also ask railroads to discontinue their practice of selling "charity" tickets to those who cannot afford to pay full fare. "No consumptive should go to Colorado, California, or the West for his health," says the association, "unless he has a good chance for recovery from his disease, and unless especially he has at least $1,000 to spend for this purpose, over and above what his family may need.

"Tuberculosis can be cured in any part of the United States, and it is not necessary for a tuberculosis patient to go West. Whenever possible, the National Association urges tuberculosis patients who have not ample funds to go to a sanatorium near home, and if they cannot do this, to take the cure in their own homes, under the direction of a physician."

THIRTEEN YEARS

Unlucky Number for Dakota Woman.

The question whether the number "13" is really more unlucky than any other number has never been entirely settled.

A So. Dak. woman, after thirteen years of misery from drinking coffee, found a way to break the "unlucky spell." Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee. She writes:

"For thirteen years I have been a nervous wreck from drinking coffee. My liver, stomach, heart—in fact, my whole system being actually poisoned by it.

"Last year I was confined to my bed for six months. Finally it dawned on me that coffee caused the trouble. Then I began using Postum instead of coffee, but with little faith, as my mind was in such a condition that I hardly knew what to do next.

"Extreme nervousnes' and failing eyesight caused me to lose all courage. In about two weeks after I quit coffee and began to use Postum I was able to read and my head felt clear. I am improving all the time and I will be a strong, well woman yet.

"I have fooled more than one person with a delicious cup of Postum. Mrs. S. wanted to know where I bought my fine coffee. I told her my grocer had it and when she found out it was Postum she has used it ever since, and her nerves are building up fine.

"My brain is strong, my nerves steady, my appetite good, and best of all, I enjoy such sound, pleasant sleep." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Get the little book in pkgs., "The Road to Wellville." "There's a reason."

INDICT OIL HEADS

ARCHBOLD AND FOLGER AMONG THOSE NAMED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

CHARGE LAW VIOLATION

Charge the Outcome of Long Probe—Quick Action in Texas Is Surprise to Washington Officials.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 30.—The federal grand jury of the northern district of Texas has returned indictments against a number of prominent oil men connected with the Standard Oil company. The charge is restraint of trade and commerce and unlawful conspiracy and combination in violation of the anti-trust laws.

It is alleged that individual defendants, the Standard Oil company and the Magnolia Petroleum company conspired to destroy the business of the Pierce-Fordyce Oil association of Texas.

The specific offense is alleged to have occurred June 29, 1912. The names of the following persons appear in the indictment:

Calvin N. Paine, Titusville, Pa.; John D. Archbold, New York; Henry C. Folger, Jr., New York; John Sealin, Galveston; A. C. Eble, Dallas; E. H. Brown, Corsicana, Texas; W. S. Teagle, Plainfield, N. J.; The Standard Oil company of New York, the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and the Magnolia Petroleum Company of Texas.

Government Complainant.

Washington—The indictment of the Standard Oil officials at Dallas, it is said at the department of justice, is the result of a three months' investigation of charges that the decree dissolving the so-called trust had been violated. The government, it is added, has not yet decided whether it will proceed on the question of the violation of the decree, which would involve contempt proceedings. The Texas grand jury considered the question under the criminal section of the Sherman law.

Contempt proceedings would have to be undertaken directly before a federal court. Such action is beyond the function of a grand jury. The indictment returned, however, it is pointed out, will not bar the government from prosecuting for contempt of court in case that course is considered desirable. Officials of the department of justice believe, it is declared, that the initial move in the case should be made through a grand jury and then if it developed that an indictment did not promise to satisfy the law's demands, they could resort to contempt proceedings as well.

The special grand jury which returned the indictment has been working on the case since last Tuesday, when it was convened to consider the government's allegations and evidence. The celerity with which it concluded the inquiry surprised officials here.

The present action constituted the federal government's first move against the Standard Oil since it was dissolved last November under the mandate of the supreme court of the United States into its 33 component parts, to restore competition. A fight between Standard Oil interests and the Waters-Pierce Oil company, now pending in the federal court at St. Louis, involves the faithfulness of the Standard Oil in carrying out the decree of dissolution.

Besieged by Insurgents.

Washington, D. C.—The Mexican government has ordered federal troops to hasten to a point between Hermosillo and Nogales, in the state of Sonora, for the protection of two Americans, Frank B. Curtis and Arthur Cunningham, who are beset by rebels thirsting for revenge. There are only foot trails across the 15 miles from the Stephenson camp to the telegraph station.

Lemon Curd.

Method—Pour the boiling milk over the crumbs, and when cool add the well-beaten eggs, the butter, one ounce of sugar, and the grated rind of the lemon. Mix well, and then pour into the pie dish. Bake this lightly and let it cool. Spread a layer of lemon curd over the pudding and cover this again with a meringue by whipping the whites of the eggs, with three ounces of sugar, and adding the juice of the lemon by degrees. Return to the oven to set and get well browned. This pudding is best eaten cold.

BROUGHT TO TIME.

One Way to Help Man in His Wooing.

By JEANNE O. LOIZEAUX.

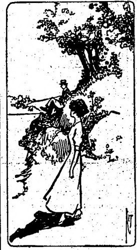
Orpha did not lift her eyes from her embroidery, but she was all ears to Mrs. Healy's chatter. That lady rocked, did complicated Irish crochet—and gossiped, each performance perfect of its kind, and a refutation of the adage that only one thing at a time can be done well!

Orpha's sister had left her to entertain her guest for an hour on the wide, vine-covered veranda, with its rugs, tea table, easy chairs and other paraphernalia of summer idleness, and the girl found her duty best performed by a system of listening. The young matron had discussed fashion, the lake society, the latest novel, and finally launched into a running commentary on love affairs. Safe herself in the haven of a happy marriage, she considered herself a judge of storms on life's sea, and wise unto the matrimonial salvation of all who would accept her advice.

Mrs. Healy swung a pretty tan pump below her narrow skirt, and audibly considered the case of Rose Danison and George Saint.

"They've been engaged forever, and nobody knows why they don't marry and be out of their misery! I say it is her fault that he doesn't insist on her choosin gthe day. She makes him too content as he is. A man has to be brought to time occasionally. He gets too complacent, too sure of a girl, and needs to be waked up. She ought to make him jealous, or go abroad a year, or even break the engagement! Instead, she waits ten years and acquires a patient look and great sweetness of character, and some day, being only an average man, he will prefer mere pink cheeks, bright eyes and impatience! Don't you think so?"

Orpha lifted her dark head, and her calm eyes rested a moment on the plump little matron, glad that her secret was safely hidden in her own heart, and that people could not thus discuss her and Stanley Long. For the first time she was glad that she and Stan were not engaged, though she was as she had been all summer, miserable because he neither declared his love nor went away. Mrs. Healy, being a stranger, of course knew nothing about Stanley, and the girl hoped her natural reserve had kept it from her own world.



She Saw Stanley.

"Don't you think so?" persisted the older woman.

Orpha rose in her deliberate way, folding her embroidery, and stood, tall and slender in the dying light of afternoon. Unnoticed by them Steve, the young man of the house, had sprawled along to the rose-wreathed railing, and was listening quizzically to the girl's answer.

"I— hardly think I do," said Orpha. "I don't see how a girl with any self-respect could purposely make the man—she—cares for—jealous, or send him away when she doesn't mean it, or pretend to leave just to see if he will follow. It doesn't seem sincere, somehow. If a man does not care enough to say so, that's one thing. But he might have a real reason, and she might trust him. If she doesn't trust him, she couln't love him, anyway, could she? Perhaps, Rose and George don't tell everybody all their secrets? Perhaps she is patient because she—understands? It might be like that, you know." She suddenly saw her nephew, only five years her junior, and blushed deeply. Wise with his twenty years, he regarded the girl with favor.

"Good for you, auntie! You've got sense! A fellow would hate to be brought to time like that, if he had any self-respect and—"

"If he knew what was being done to him, which he never does," finished Mrs. Healy, with her ripple of a laugh. "You are two solemn, sentimental children, and know nothing whatever about love. Just you wait, Steve; and as for you, Orpha—"

Steve's mother came along just then, taking off her gloves and dropping into the first chair, regarding first her son and then her sister with favor.

"As for Orpha," she said, "she is a dear, and I'm glad she's here for her vacation, and since she is, I want her to go out to the lake and see the sunset. She loves it, and she looks a little solemn. You might go along, Steve."

The boy bowed with mock ceremony to his mother. "I'm not wanted. Auntie loves her own company. Besides, it makes me feel like a silly little boy to be nephew to a girl so pretty that everybody turns to look at her. If she wants me to follow as a bodyguard I'll go—"

Orpha, already on the way, laughed him to scorn over her shoulder. "No, I don't want you. You're too young [illegible] lover that dawdles about the cliffs of a summer's evening! Most romantic, I call it!" She fled his impudence, her sister and Mrs. Healy, and took refuge across the garden, down the path through the woods toward the pretty lake. This time she hoped Stanley would not be there. She wished that she herself did not know she loved him before he had in words declared his love for her. Sure at heart of him, she wondered wistfully at his silence, her maidenly dignity up in arms the while.

As she straightened back to the brisk lake breeze, striding off on her lithe, healthy fashion, her mind reverted to Mrs. Healy and her talk, which she hated. The girl's nobility rose high and above subterfuge and strategm. She would never help a man with his wooing, nor hurry him, by word or act, or even by thought. If love were less than free and spontaneous, it was not real love, and she would have none of it.

Then at the turn of a cliff she saw Stanley, and it came to her that, unasked, she was going to meet him. It was a little like showing her heart. He had not seen her yet, and she slipped back behind a great rock and out of sight, ran swiftly down to the sandy strip of beach and away from him, her cheeks on fire, her heart beating hard. If he did care, did want her, he could seek her out and say so, and until he did this, she would not dawdle about alone on the veranda; but neither would she stoop to an attempt to make him leajous—she would not encourage Hal Porter. As she turned toward home she vowed a mental and spiritual vow of loyalty to Stanley, and to him alone. She would trust her loya and leave it to his manliness and discretion to show her heart when the fullness of time should have come.

The sun had quite gone down, and the first dusk came, and with it great peace and comfort to the girl after the unrest of the past few weeks. In this mood, Orpha came hurrying up the wood path, aware that she should not be alone, when she heard rapid steps behind her. She quickened her own pace, a little fearful, but in a moment the steps came closer and she heard her name.

"Orpha! Orpha, wait for me!" Another instant and Stanley was close at her side, a little out of breath. She turned, smiling slowly at him in the dim light, looking up at the big, fair man as he took her by the arm with a deep breath of relief.

"Why are you running away from me?" he demanded. "Can't you see that some day I am bound to tell you that I love you? You have eluded me for weeks, Orpha! Does that mean that you don't—care?" He waited, and she shook her head in denial, joy surging in every vein.

"Can you love me?—do you?" He caught both her hands in his and bent over them, kissing them gently. She did not withdraw them. There was no pretense, no dissimulation in love like hers.

"I—love you—dearly," she replied firmly, but in a low tone. He put an arm about her shoulders and drew her to him.

"Oh, my dear," he said, "my dear!"

UNIQUE CUSTOM OF INDIANS

North Dakota Redmen Adhere to Ancient and Curious Treatment of Guests.

One of the most striking customs of the past that are preserved by the Indians of today is found among the tribes on the Devil's Lake reservation in North Dakota. According to the report of an officer of the Indian bureau, the Devil's Lake Sioux have from time immemorial adhered to a curious custom in regard to the treatment of a guest.

According to their etiquette it is the bounded duty of the host to supply his guest with all the food he may desire, and as a rule the apportionment set before the visiting Indian is much in excess of the capacity of a single man. By the same custom the guest is obliged to eat all that is placed before him else he grossly insults his entertainer. It was found that this practice would work a hardship, but instead of dispensing with the custom the Indian method of reasoning was applied, and what is known as the professional eater was brought to the front.

While the guest is supposed to eat all that is placed before him, it serves the same purpose if his neighbor assists in devouring the bountiful repast, the main object being to have the plate clean when the meal is finished. It is not always practicable to depend upon a neighbor at table to assist in getting away with a large dinner, and in order to insure the final consumption of the allotted portion, visiting Indians call upon these professional eaters, whose duty it is to sit beside them throughout a meal and eat when the guests leave.

The professional eaters are never looked upon in the light of guests, but more as traveling companions with a particular duty to perform. These eaters receive from one dollar to two and even three dollars for each meal where they assist. It is said that one of these professional eaters has been known to dispose of seventeen pounds of beef at a sitting.

ECZEMA IN RED BLOTCHES

205 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—"Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches, then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large; on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The inside of my hands were all little lumps as though full of shot about one-sixteenth of an inch under the skin. Then they went to the outside and between and all over my fingers. It also began on the bottoms of my feet and the calves of my legs, and itch, oh, my! I never had anything like it and hope I never will again. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work.

"I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more, using them as per directions, and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me." (Signed) Benj. Domestic Combat.

E. Trowbridge Dana, grandson of the poet Longfellow, who was recently married in Cambridge with a beautiful ritual of his own composition, said the other day to a reporter:

"If all couples gave to marriage the profound thought and reverence that my wife and I gave to it there would be fewer mismatings.

"The average married pair, it sometimes seems to me, are like the Binkses.

"'Pa,' said little Tommy Binks one day, 'what's a weapon?'

"'A weapon, my son,' Binks answered, 'is something to fight with.'

"'Then, pa,' said little Tommy, 'is ma your weapon?'"

SYMPATHY, BUT NO APOLOGY

Lawyer's Tart Remarks Not Greatly Softened by His Rejoinder When "Called Down."

Andrew Lipscomb, who practices law before the courts of Maryland, was trying his first case before a judge named Merrick. Lipscomb, wishing to impress the judge, was, in the language of the bar, right lippy in his remarks to the eminent gentleman. Finally, Merrick lost patience and exclaimed:

"Sit down! Sit down, sir! If you don't sit down I'll fine you for contempt of court."

Lipscomb sat down, but turned to a young lawyer beside him, and remarked, in an undertone:

"That's the crustiest, most opinionated old judge I ever saw. I'll show him where he gets off. He's an old fool."

"If you talk like that, I'll beat up up!" replied the young lawyer. "He's my father!"

"How sad!" said Lipscomb, smoothly. "How sad."—Popular Magazine.

To Operate Canal by Elecricity.

The Panama canal will be operated almost exclusively by electric power. Approximately seven per cent. of the minimum water supply will be diverted for hydro-electric development, and this will be the excess which is not required for lockages, evaporation and leakage. The hydro-electric station will be located adjacent to the north wall of the Gatun spillway and the plant will have a capacity of 6,000 kilowatts. The average hydraulic head throughout the year will be about 75 feet.

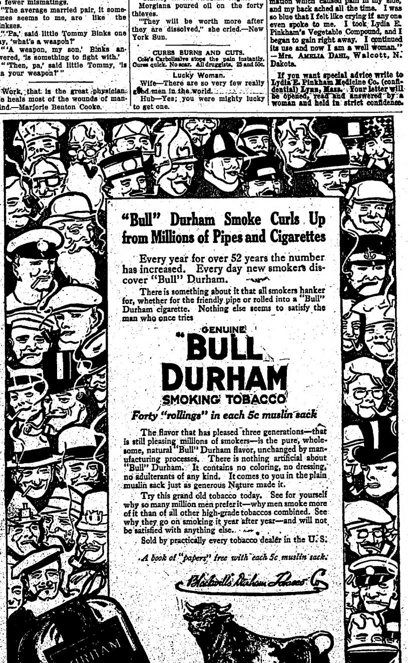
Pinkham's remedies, and I don't have any more crying spells. I sleep sound and my nervousness is better. I will recommend your medicines to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARY HALSTEAD, Platea, Pa., Box 93.

Here is the report of another genuine case, which still further shows that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon.

Walcott, N. Dakota.—"I had inflammation which caused pain in my side, and my back ached all the time. I was so blue that I felt like crying if any one even spoke to me. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I began to gain right away. I continued its use and now I am a well woman."—Mrs. AMELIA DAHL, Walcott, N. Dakota.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.



"Bull" Durham Smoke Curls Up from Millions of Pipes and Cigarettes

Every year for over 52 years the number has increased. Every day new smokers discover "Bull" Durham.

There is something about it that all smokers hanker for, whether for the friendly pipe or rolled into a "Bull" Durham cigarette. Nothing else seems to satisfy the man who once tries

GENUINE "BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Forty "rollings" in each 5c muslin sack

The flavor that has pleased three generations—that is still pleasing millions of smokers—is the pure, wholesome, natural "Bull" Durham flavor, unchanged by manufacturing processes. There is nothing artificial about "Bull" Durham. It contains no coloring, no dressing, no adulterants of any kind. It comes to you in the plain muslin sack just as generous Nature made it.

Try this grand old tobacco today. See for yourself why so many million men prefer it—why men smoke more of it than of all other high-grade tobaccos combined. See why they go on smoking it year after year—and will not be satisfied with anything else.

Sold by practically every tobacco dealer in the U. S.

A book of "papers" free with each 5c muslin sack.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minnesota. July 27, 1912.

Notice is hereby given that Carrie Rothsten widow of John A. Rothsten, deceased, of Plummer, Minn. who, on May 15, 1911, made homestead entry Serial No. 06029 for SE¼, Sec. 27, Tp. 152 N., Range 41 W., 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on the 12th day of Sept., 1912.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to fine tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best addpted to the country.

Tomorrow (Saturday) opens the season for the annual slaughter of small game.

If the candidate's record is to be judged by the interest taken in the voters not much good can be said of some of the candidates in this county.

Mr. Voter you owe a duty on elecday and that is to cast your vote for Halver Steenerson. He has worked for the best interest of everyone in his district and deserves the vote of every fair thinking man.

Very few of the residents of eastern Red Lake comnty have as much as an inkling who is running for county offices this. From the entire lot of candidates from the western part of the county there is but one who seems to give a thinker's cuss how the population in these parts vote, or not vote, and we take pleasure in referring our readers to Albany DeForge, condidate for superintendent of schools, whose announcement appears in this issue. He is the only one who seems to care whether he gets any votes here or not and you may bet that the voters won't forget this either on election day.

Next week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is the Red Lake county fair but to judge by the amount of advertising the fair association has done in Plummer and surrounding country no one for a minute would suspect it. We have not so far encountered a single poster in any building or other conspicuous places, for that matter, advertising this event and we have taken particular pains to inquire around for any literature pertaining to the fair so that we could give our readers a general idea as to the exhibits, etc., but we have not yet ran across anyone that has received one word about it. Just what other way the association has of letting the people know about this event we will have to be excused for not answering, but it appears to us that if this matter has not been more thoroughly advertised in other parts of the county than it has right here they cannot expect a large attendance from the country.

In another column of this issue appears the announcement of Nic Nelson for the office of County Superintendent of Schools. Nic is so well and favorably known throughout the county that he needs no introduction, excepting to a number of late arrivals in our midst and to them we take pleasure in recommending him as a man thoroughly qualified to fill this position of trust. Mr. Nelson commenced teaching in 1880 and has ever since taught in the rural schools in this and adjoining counties. In addition to his duties as a teacher he has in many instances been the prime factor in getting rural schools established in this county and it is safe to say that there is not a man in this county that is more thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the rural schools than is Nic Nelson. In announcing himself he does not make any pledges excepting that in the event of his election he will do the best of his ability in his official capacity and this the people can rest assured of.

Political Announcements.

Notices under this head are paid advertisements and are authorized and paid for by the parties whose signatures are thereto attached.

County Superintendent.

VOTERS; I need your support. We are all working in this world for an honest living. Having lost a limb, I must rely on head-work to earn my way. This is the main reason why I am seeking the office of county superintendent. My life is dedicated to the noble work of educating, to develop in the child that degree of intelligence; that breadth of mind, of perception and understanding; that habit of industry necessary to root out all aversions to labor; that nack of home making, of saving, of valuing little things; that love of accomplishing, of perseverance which overcomes all obsticles—all of which and more, so essential to progress and contentment are the needs of every child and should be demanded in their name for them.

ALBANY DeFORGE.

Superintendent of Schools.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Schools and respectfully solicit your vote and support at the primaries, Sept. 17.

NIC NELSON.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for reelection as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulant schemes

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents, and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world, I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of dispute among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity.

All of our sportsmen who could possibly get away from their labors have been out in the fields since Saturday to test his ability as a hunter. Some of them return home with a nice bag of chickens, while others report luck as bad or indifferent. Some are highly elated over the pup's ability as a pointer while others complain that their cur found more true enjoyment in chasing Brier Rabbit than to point out chickens for master to bang away at. While we have had no reports so far of any hunter getting shot while being mistaken for a chicken, it is entirely probable that the market price of eggs will take a great jump this fall owing to the possible scarcity of tame chickens.

Peter Thune was a business visitor at St. Hilaire last Friday.

Ole Johnson shipped a carload of cattle to St. Paul Saturday and also at the same time Torger Frossness shipped one carload. Suppose the cattle don't like to be mixed up because a fight was started between two steers so bad in the stock yard that one of the steers got killed.

Better Plowing

(By Dr. W. E. Tayler, Soil Culture Expert, Moline, Ill.)

The maintenance and improvement of soil texture depends more upon plowing than upon any other tillage operation. Plowing adds neither humus or plant food, but if done right will keep the soil in good tilth and make plant food available.

The time to plow depends upon both the season and condition of the soil. The farmer should exercise his best judgement, always keeping in mind the necessity of having his seed bed in good physical condition.

There are a good many advantages to be gained by plowing in the fall. If heavy clay soils are lap plowed before winter, the soil is exposed to the action of the air and freezing which renders it mellow and friable or puts it in condition to be made so in the spring by the disc and harrow.

If clay soils are plowed in the spring when the ground is wet, puddling will result and the seed bed will be full of lumps that cannot be pulverized.

Sod should be plowed early in the fall; first, to destroy by freezing any cut worms and insects that may be brought near the surface; second, to give the sod more time to rot.

Ground with a cover crop of any kind should be plowed in the fall to insure rotting of the mass turned under. Again, if the ground is plowed during the fall and left rough it absorbs rain and snows. In semi-arid regions, however, surface cultivation after plowing is necessary to prevent the escape of stored water.

It is advantagous to plow light soils in the spring. Such soils are easily brought to good tilth by the disc or harrow and made compact by the subsurface packer or roller.

We advocate deep plowing, but the operation of deepening the seed bed should be gradual. Plants require humus. Soil bacteria, the laboratory workers that change unavailable into available food, do not exist where it is absent.

TO PENNINGTON COUNTY READERS:

I am a non-partisan candieate for Superintendent of Schools, and respectfully solicit your votes at the coming primaries, Sept. 17th.

I am born and raised in this (Pennington) county, and since I have lived on the farm I am naturally much interested in the welfare of our rural schools. I have four years teaching experience in the country here, and am a graduate from the five-year Adv. Latin Course of the Moorhead State Normal School. Since graduating in 1908 I have been principal of state graded schools, one year at Burtrum, and three years at Peterson, this state.

If nominated and elected, I shall work for the best interests of education generally, thruout the county.

GEORGE L. NETTELAND.

STATE CANDIDATES FINISH FILING

STAGE ALL SET FOR FIRST PRIMARY HELD IN MINNESOTA UNDER NEW LAW.

MANY ARE CONTESTANTS.

C. W. Stanton Enters Race for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court at Last Moment.

St. Paul.—The stage is at last all set for the first statewide primary to be held in Minnesota. Wednesday being the last day for filing, a host of candidates went to the secretary's of state office to make their affidavits. All those candidates whose districts extend over more than one county must, under the law, file at the secretary's of state office. The other candidates can file with their respective county auditors. All of the congressional candidates except those in the Fifth district, Hennepin county, file with the secretary of state.

Most of the important filings for state offices had been made before the final day. The most important of the final filings was that of C. W. Stanton, who filed as a non-partisan candidate for chief justice of the supreme court. W. Alexander Stewart, C. M. Start, the present incumbent, and F. Alexander Stewart have already filed for the office. Under the law the two highest are declared the nominees.

Many After Governorship.

Of the state offices the office of governor has attracted the largest number of men. There are six candidates.

Congressman-at-large has attracted a large number of men. This office can only be held for one term of two years because a reapportionment will take place in the near future.

Dan W. Lawler of St. Paul will have no opposition in seeking the Democratic nomination for United States senator. Senator Nelson will have James A. Peterson as his opponent for the Republican nomination.

The complete list of candidates for congressional and state offices at the primary election is as follows:

DROPS OUT OF SIGHT.

Drops Out of Sight—Officials Fail to Get Service on Carleton Hudson.

Minneapolis.—Carleton Hudson, the accused Chicago man who is made defendant in a suit charging fraud and blackmail brought by Mrs. Caroline M. King, has disappeared, according to J. F. McGee, attorney for Mrs. King, who returned from Chicago. Effort to secure personal service on him in court proceedings failed.

Mr. McGee returned with an affidavit signed by the man supposed to have sent the threatening letters to Mrs. King in 1906 and for the suppression of which, she says, she paid Hudson $120,000, her entire fortune. This affidavit declares that the man was abroad at the time the letters were sent. According to Mr. McGee, he has promised to come to Minneapolis and testify.

M. & I. R. R. ACCUSED.

Charged by Government With Double Violation.

Duluth. — Acting upon the suggestion of Attorney General Wickersham, a federal suit was filed here against the Minnesota & International railroad, charging double violation of the national hours of service law. It is charged that Engineer F. B. Bispham, on Jan. 18, 1912, was compelled to work 20½ hours. The second violation is in the fact that the railroad company failed to report the incident.

No Opposition to Petition.

Eden Valley.—To free the postal service from politics and to put it on its merits, a determined effort is being made throughout the country. Individual petitions are being gathered from over 55,000 cities and towns, as suggested at the national convention of postmasters at Richmond, Va. To facilitate the gathering of these petitions, the country has been divided into eight districts, each in charge of a superintendent. Minnesota is in the seventh district, which comprises Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota and Montana.

Agriculture Added to Course.

Blue Earth.—The public schools will be opened Monday. The high school teachers are A. C. Tibbetts, superintendent; Amelia L. Wier, high school principal; Jennie M. Owens, domestic science; Emma Hall, latin; Lillian Rosbach, science; Marian Richardson, history; Ray Campbell, manual training; Earl Martin, agriculture; Blanche Seeley, reading and expression; Una Hodson, drawing; Ella Becking, normal department; Clara Gruenhagen, kindergarten. Agriculture is being introduced under the Lee-Benson act.

Winona to Vote on Charter.

Winona.—The commission to prepare a new charter to feature the commission form of government is at last completed, working having been delayed by the failure of two appointees to qualify and the death of another. It is expected to submit the charter to the voters at the general election in November, thereby avoiding the expense of a special election. The new members of the commission are J. M. Holzinger, J. R. Baker and Charles Simon. The original appointees have qualified.

Wettest August in Years.

Minneapolis. — By far the wettest August in five years ended Saturday. The total precipitation recorded at the local weather bureau from Aug. 1, to 7 p. m. Saturday was 5.56 inches, exceeding the normal rainfall for August by 1.87 inches. The average precipitation for the month of August, since the local bureau was established in 1891, is 3.69 inches. Last year it was 3.65. The heavy rain of Thursday night when 2.02 inches fell in a few hours, helped make the August record a high one.

Storm Does Heavy Damage.

Winona.—A severe wind, rain, hail and electrical storm passed over this section causing heavy damage. Long-distance telephone communication is completely paralyzed and many of the lines in the city are out of commission. Between this city and Minnesota City, where the storm appears to have been the most severe, 40 telephone poles are down and lying across the roadway. Farm buildings, fences and frail structures were destroyed. There was also a damage by lightning.

CLAIMS BLACKMAIL

WIDOW OF COL. KING SEEKS TO RECOVER $120,000 GIVEN CHICAGO MAN.

A FICTITIOUS SCANDAL.

Woman Declares Cash and Realty Went to Hush It.—Remarkable Story of 10-Year Secret Negotiation.

Minneapolis.—A startlingly strange story of a system of alleged blackmail by which it is claimed that $120,000 was obtained from Mrs. Caholine M. King, 41 Island avenue, widow of Congressman William S. King, came to light in a suit filed by her in district court against Carleton Hudson of Chicago, asking the court to cancel notes for $45,000 given him, a deed to Minneapolis property valued at $40,000, and requiring him to give an accounting for $35,000 in cash.

Fearful lest a family scandal, which it is said never existed, would be given publicity, Mrs. King alleges that Hudson induced her to give him practically her entire fortune. Her dealings with Hudson were kept a secret from even the members of her own family for 11 years and it was only through an accident that an old friend of her late husband learned of them and became responsible for the court action.

J. F. McGee, lawyer for Mrs. King, is in Chicago to secure service on the civil proceedings. Hudson is said to have been out of the city for several days, but is expected to return at once.

Won Woman's Confidence.

The story of how, it is alleged, Hudson ingratiated himself into the confidence of Mrs. King, became a guest at her home, read the Bible on her front porch, won her confidence, learned of all her business and personal affairs, borrowed her money, and finally induced her to give him thousands of dollars to hush up an alleged family scandal, is recited in the complaint filed in district court.

Mrs. King is the widow of the late Col. "Bill" King, who was well known in Minneapolis and throughout the state. He was known as one of the early day boomers and became wealthy through real estate investments. He was congressman from 1875 to 1877. He died in 1890.

According to the complaint, Mr. King had made several investments in Chicago and Boston. A few years after his death, and while Mrs. King was in the East, she alleges that Hudson came to Minneapolis to see her. He found her grandson at home. Hudson told of litigation which had been brought involving their ownership in the Chicago and Boston properties and told the grandson to send word to his grandmother to stop over in Chicago on her way home and see him. That was in the fall of 1901. Mrs. King called on him, but refused to become involved in the case. She alleges that Hudson then came to Minneapolis to see her and she again declined to enter the case. When Hudson returned to Chicago he wrote letters to her advising her that the property was valuable and urging that she protect it. Hudson finally induced Mrs. King to go to Chicago. Hudson introduced Mrs. King to Louis E. Ehle, a lawyer, whom he recommended to take charge of her case. Mrs. King made a contract employing him to fight her case. According to the complaint the case hung in the courts for several years, during which time Hudson, it is alleged, induced her to give him thousands of dollars with which to pay attorneys' fees and his own personal expenses in the case.

In 1906, after Hudson had supposedly become a warm friend of the family, he advised Mrs. King that "if anything came up to l him know about it." She alleges that three days later she received an annoymous letter which in vile terms reflected on her family. Remembering Hudson's parting advise she sent the letter on to him. Mrs. King avers that he immediately came to Minneapolis, told her that he had received a similar letter and advised that immediate steps be taken to hush up the matter. Mrs. King avers that he said that it would take time and money to do it and at that time she gave him notes for $40,000 to hush the alleged scandal. During a period of nine years, Mrs. King alleges, she paid over to him rents on certain Minneapolis property the amount of which ranged from $250 to $400 a month.

Candidates to Tour in Autos.

Minneapolis. — The State Prohibitionists in Minnesota have decided that the only way to reach the voters is by using automobiles to cover every county of the state. Three machines have been purchased. Two have been sent out into the state. The third will go out next week. E. F. Lobeck, the gubernatorial candidate, will use a machine.

"Uncle Joe" Accepts.

Moorhead. — Congressman "Uncle Joe" Cannon, in a letter to State Senator Charles S. Marden, accepts the challenge of J. B. Blanchard, 90 years old, to a high kicking contest. Mr Cannon writes: "I cannot suggest that Mr. Blanchard first get a reputation before attempting to challenge me in this regard, for, of course, his prowess in this delightful sport is known to all men. In view of the tone of defiance indicated by this statement. I cannot do otherwise than accept the challenge."

Thousands For One Man.

Minneapolis. — Unless some very smooth legal technicality maneuver can find a way out of the difficulty the various counties of Minnesota will be obliged to print some hundreds of thousands of ballots bearing the name of only one candidate for office, a candidate with no opposition at the primaries. Charles W. Brandborg is the name to be carried on this unique and lonesome ballot. He is the sole candidate of the Socialist Labor party, a party distinct and separate from the Public Ownership party.

THESE SIX LETTERS
From New England Women

Prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Restore the Health of Ailing Women.

Boston, Mass.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from hemorrhages (sometimes lasting for weeks), and could get nothing to check them. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound (tablet form) on Tuesday, and the following Saturday morning the hemorrhages stopped. I have taken them regularly ever since and am steadily gaining.

"I certainly think that every one who is troubled as I was should give your Compound Tablets a faithful trial, and they will find relief."—Mrs. George Juby, 802 Fifth Street, South Boston, Mass.

Letter from Mrs. Julia King, Phœnix, R.I.

Phœnix, R.I.—"I worked steady in the mill from the time I was 12 years old until I had been married a year, and I think that caused my bad feelings. I had soreness in my side near my left hip that went around to my back, and sometimes I would have to lie in bed for two or three days. I was not able to do any housework.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me wonderfully in every way. You may use my letter for the good of others. I am only too glad to do anything within my power to recommend your medicine."—Mrs. Julia King, Box 282, Phœnix, R.I.

Letter from Mrs. Etta Donovan, Willimantic, Conn.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I was all run down in every way.

"I tried three doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. So I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and by taking seven bottles of the Compound and other treatment you advised, I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. Etta Donovan, 762 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Letter from Mrs. Winfield Dana, Augusta, Me.

Augusta, Me.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured the backache, headache, and the bad pains I had in my right side, and I am perfectly well."—Mrs. Winfield Dana, R.F.D. No. 2, Augusta, Me.

Letter from Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Newport, Vt.

Newport, Vt.—"I thank you for the great benefit Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I took eight bottles and it did wonders for me, as I was a nervous wreck when I began taking it. I shall always speak a good word for it to my friends."—Mrs. John A. Thompson, Box 3, Newport Center, Vermont.

Letter from Miss Grace Dodds, Bethlehem, N.H.

Bethlehem, N.H.—"By working very hard, sweeping carpets, washing, ironing, lifting heavy baskets of clothes, etc., I got all run down. I was sick in bed every month.

"This last Spring my mother got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and already I feel like another girl. I am regular and do not have the pains that I did, and do not have to go to bed. I will tell all my friends what the Compound is doing for me."—Miss Gracie B. Dodds, Box 133, Bethlehem, N.H.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ANGRY FISH BITES ANGLER

Brooklyn Man, the Sufferer, Sends Head to Pasteur Institute, Fearing Rabies.

Whether a fish can have hydrophobia is a question that Fred Henry of Hancock street, Brooklyn, would like to have settled, and for that reason he has sent to the Pasteur institute in New York the head of a pickerel that bit him at Swartswood lake recently, says a Newton (N. J.) correspondent of the New York Press. Henry was fishing in a boat that was a trifle leaky and he took off his shoes and socks. His first catch was a pickerel weighing three pounds. When he yanked the fish it flopped around in the bottom of the boat in a lively fashion.

As Henry was baiting up again he felt a sharp pain in one of his feet, and, looking down, saw that the pickerel had made a jump and fastened its teeth in his toe. He tried to kick the fish away, but the pickerel held on and Henry had to use the handle of his landing net to pry open the fish's jaws before he got free of it. The toe started to swell where the teeth had punctured it, and Henry became worried. He says he thinks it possible that the pickerel may have had hydrophobia and as a precautionary measure, he sent the head to the Pasteur institute.

Robert Browning's Will.

Diligent search is being made at Florence, Italy, for the will of Robert Browning, son of the famous poet, but so far it has not been found. The fact that there apparently is no will 's causing considerable gossip, as the property, of which there is a good deal, both in Asolo and Florence, will pass to his wife, who was Miss Coddington of New York, and from whom he lived apart for years, owing to incompatibility of temper.

Browning's property in Florence included Casa Guidi, where he spent his childhood days. When his mother died the property passed out of the family, and was acquired by him a few years ago.

Adulation Pleased Rousseau.

Rousseau, whose bicentenary celebration occasioned a riot in Paris the other day, created a sensation when he visited England in 1766. "Rousseau and his Armenian dress," wrote Lord Charlemont, "were followed by crowds when he first arrived in London, and as long as this species of admiration lasted he was contented and happy. Garrick not only gave a supper in his honor, but played two characters specially to please him. Rousseau was highly gratified, but Mrs. Garrick declared that she had never spent a more unpleasant evening in her life, the philosopher being so anxious to display himself, and hanging over the front of the box so much, that she was obliged to hold him by the skirts of his coat to prevent him from falling over into the pit."

Collective Housekeeping.

An English paper tells of an experiment in collective housekeeping in what is known as Brent Garden village. The dwelling houses contain all improvements except a kitchen. Meals for everybody are cooked at a central hall, and may either be eaten there or sent home. A four-course dinner costs only 1 shilling and 6 pence. Servants are supplied, when needed, from the central hall at a cost of about ten cents an hour.

MEANING OF "AT HALF MAST"

At First Universal Symbol Was Token of Submission and Respect For Enemy.

Perhaps you have noticed that whenever a prominent person dies, especially if he is connected with the government, the flags on public buildings are hoisted only part of the way up, remarks the Toronto Mail and Express. This is called "half mast." Did you ever stop to think what connection there could be between a flag that was not properly hoisted and the death of a great man?

Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the flag of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token not only of submission, but of respect.

In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed from purely military usage to public life of all kinds, the flag flying at half mast being a sign that the dead man was worthy of universal respect. The space left above it is for the flag of the great conqueorr of all—the angel of death.

Motor Cars and Mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes, flies and gnats of every description are said to be more numerous in Paris this year than ever before. It has become a veritable invasion. The explanation usually given is that the swallows are much fewer this summer, and also that the ubiquitous sparrow is notably on the decrease. Nobody can find a reason for the desertion of the swallows, but the reason of the scarcity of sparrows is not far to seek. The enemy is mechanical traction, which is supplanting the use of the horse. Before long horses will practically have disappeared in Paris and when their nosebags go there will disappear one of the principal staples of food for the Paris "pierrot," who is taking wing for the country in search of the grains on the boulevards and avenue. on the boulevard and avenues.

Child's Popularity Explained.

A winning lottery ticket of $100,000, in connection with the Nobles Bank was recently presented for payment at the State Bank in St. Petersburg, and it now transpires that the owner is an eight-year-old orphan, an inmate of the orphanage at Pskoff. The lottery ticket was her sole possession. Her relatives have hitherto done nothing for the child, but when the news of her good fortune became known they were one and all eager to adopt her. The authorities have placed her in the charge of an arch-priest, a distant connection of her father.

German Farmer Good Business Man.

Under a seemingly generous offer of hospitality, a North German farmer has managed to include a good stroke of business for himself. In a Hanover paper recently appeared an advertisement that from fifteen to twenty women and girls (not under twelve years of age) who needed recuperation could have free board and lodging on a country estate. But in exchange they would be required to pick peas from eight to ten hours daily. Industrious pickers might also be paid cash for their labor.

A FOOD CONVERT

Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve stomach trouble keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics.

Indigestion—dyspepsia — is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually crippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to tonics is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash diminishes his power to move the load.

Try helping the stomach by leaving off heavy, greasy, indigestible food and take on Grape-Nuts—light, easily digested, full of strength for nerves and brain, in every grain of it. There's no waste of time nor energy when Grape-Nuts is the food.

"I am an enthusiastic user of Grape-Nuts and consider it an ideal food." writes a Maine man:

"I had nervous dyspepsia and was all run down and my food seemed to do me but little good. From reading an advertisement I tried Grape-Nuts food, and, after a few weeks' steady use of it, felt greatly improved.

"Am much stronger, not nervous now, and can do more work without feeling so tired, and am better every way.

"I relish Grape-Nuts best with cream and use four heaping teaspoonfuls as the cereal part of a meal. I am sure there are thousands of persons with stomach trouble who would be benefited by using Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

KILLS 7; HURTS 19

HOLDER OF WORLD'S RECORDS PLUNGES FROM TRACK IN NEW JERSEY.

92 MILES PER HOUR.

Accident Occurs When He Tries to Pass Rival—Spectators in Panic Six More Are Said to Be Dying.

Newark, New Jersey.—Eddie Hasha of Waco, Texas, holder of several world's records for motorcycle racing, plunged over the rail of the course at the new Newark motordrome into a crowd, causing the death of six persons, killing himself, while six are dying and thirteen badly injured.

The only two of the six dead positively identified yet are Hasha and Johnny Albright, a Denver motorcyclist, who was riding third in the race. The other four dead were boys and young men among the spectators.

Was Going 92 Miles An Hour.

Five thousand spectators were witnessing the finish of a four-mile free-for-all race when the rider, doing 92 miles an hour, took his fateful plunge. He was riding high on the bank of the track when the wheel of his heavy machine swerved and struck the upper rail. He was pitched head first 50 feet into the air. He must have been instantly killed in the collision. His body was shapeless from broken bones when it was picked up almost at the feet of his wife, seated among men and boys in the bleachers.

Albright Struck By Wheel.

Albright was thrown head first in the other direction into the enclosure of the track, when the other champion's wheel came sliding down the steep bank and struck him. He was picked up for dead, but he lived in an unconscious state for more than two hours after removal to a hospital. He finally succumbed to hemorrhage of the lungs.

The spectators injured were mainly the men and boys who were leaning over the rail yelling encouragement to the riders when Hasha came tearing into their midst. Some of the spectators were hurled high into the air and landed in the laps of those seated behind. A scene of panic among the spectators generally followed the tragedy.

The stadium where the accident occurred is in Vailsburg, a suburb of this city, where bicycle and motorcycle racing has been a great fad this year. The season has been marked by a number of accidents, both here and at Brighton Beach, N. Y., but never in the history of local racing has such a death list been recorded as was yesterday.

27 ARE ARRESTED.

Twin City Police Take Rioters Into Custody.

Minneapolis. — At least twenty-seven persons were jailed in the Twin cities Saturday night following battles with the police, who sought to disperse two crowds of several thousand each which were blocking the streets. The Minneapolis police arrested nineteen persons, while the St. Paul police captured eight. The action of the Minneapolis police prevented what might have been a riot such as never had been witnessed before when several thousands gathered on Bridge Square gave utterance to inflammatory doctrines, shouted, screamed, cheered and threatened, blocked the streets and sidewalks and defied the police to do their worst. The nineteen persons arrested were charged with failure to obey the commands of the police to move.

IN BLACKBERRY TIME

Love and Fate Figure in Side-Lines.

By JOHN PHILIP ORTH.

Mr. Fred Islington was not referred to in the papers as a Napoleon of finance, but yet he held a responsible and well-paid position in an important bank.

Miss May Cranston was not mentioned as a second Patti, but it was admitted that she had a fine voice for song, and might some day become an operatic star.

It would seem to the logical reasoner that Mr. Islington and Miss Cranston ought to have kept clear of side-lines, and not have been tempted into risks. He took a few lessons in drawing, fitted up a garret studio and then went into turning out landscapes in his spare hours. They were not Corots nor Rembrandts. He was satisfied, for the time being, to play second fiddle to them.

Miss Cranston selected sculpture as her side-line. She worked on ice-cold butter. The same was 45 cents a pound, but cheaper at that than marble. Butter is also much easier to cut. She didn't astound the whole United States, but she was content to feel that every time she finished a new bust there was a decided gain. It was a diversion now, but the profits would come later on.

One day, at the house of a firend, Mr. Islington was shown a butter bust of what was called George Washington. He felt it his duty to remark that it could just as well have been called Nero, Columbus, Napoleon or Shakespeare. That is a privilege artists have—to bat each other, but it is always in a good-natured way.

A few days later Miss Cranston was shown one of Mr. Islington's landscapes, by a young friend who had received it as a gift on her birthday. Her criticisms were very frank.

And later on came Fate. That butter-artist and the landscape painter met, and admired, and fell in love. Neither had anything to say about their side-line for some time, and then there was a row at once. Other parties had repeated their criticisms, and they had naturally been added to. It is hardly fair to say there was a row. It was more a chilliness, as if the wind had suddenly changed to the north.

Yes, He Had Sat Where She Sat to Sketch.

"Miss Canston," (she had been "May" the day before), began Mr. Islington, "I understand you have harshly criticized some of my work as a landscape artist."

"I thought I was justified, Mr. Islington," (he had been "Fred" the day before), was the frigid reply. "I have also been informed that you criticized my efforts in sculpture very freely."

"If we both have what they call the artistic temperament—".

"Yes?"—

"It would be better—better—"

"Yes?—"

"I should not want to give up my work."

"No?"

"And you would not want to give up yours?"

"Certainly not."

"Then, Miss Cranston—then—"

"Then you have an important engagement this evening, and I will not detain you!"

That was all. That "Artistic Temperament" never gives in once it gets its back up. The possessor may realize that he or she is in training for an idiot asylum, but they must stick to it. A month later, without having seen each other again, both went on a summer vacation. Mr. Islington went down to loaf at his brother's, and Miss Cranston took herself down to Granny White's to read and swing in a hammock, and think and wonder. She had sculped—she had loved—she had lost! Grandma gave her joyful welcome, and though she saw that something was amiss she was discreet enough to ask no questions. She offered a four-pound cake of butter to be made into a bust of Cleopatra, but when it was allowed to melt in the sun she made no comments.

It was blackberry time, and half a dozen times Granny had donned her sun-bonnet, and taken her basket on her arm, and gone down the creek to gather the toothsome fruit, but on this particular afternoon she said:

"Now, my dear, it's your turn. Go down to the creek and cross and turn to the left and follow it up till you reach an old field. You'll find more berries there than you can pick in half a day. I'd go myself, but am expecting a tin peddler along any minute, and I must have a new dipper."

The place was easily found. There was not only an old field, but the ruins of a dam and a sawmill that Granny had forgotten to mention. As Miss May stood looking around her she felt that she had visited the place before. Yes? No? It had a familiar look, but she had never before been within miles of it. She sat down on the turf and looked again, and then she gave a little gasp.

The landscape by Mr. Fred Islington, warranted all-wool-and-a-yard-wide, and true to nature in every detail, was before her. Yes, he had sat where she sat to sketch it. And, as if that was not enough, the painter himself broke his way through the branches and stood before her.

"Miss Cranston!"

"Mr. Islington!"

"I—I did not know—"

"Nor I, either."

He sat down about five feet away, and for two long minutes was interested in the life and adventures of the grasshopper. Miss Cranston maintained a steady gaze on her feet.

"I have been thinking," he finally said.

"Yes?"

"We have been too hasty."

"Oh, I don't know."

"You see, your unjust criticisms provoked me."

"But they were not unjust. Your sketch shows an old mill with the roof half gone. There is no roof at all here."

"Um!"

"The creek flows to the right, as you see. In your sketch you have it flowing to the left or up-hill."

"Um!"

"In your sketch you show an old water-wheel. There is none here. If there was one it could not ever have turned with the water flowing the wrong way."

"Ahem!"

"Your sketch," continued the young lady, "has a sunrise or sunset in it. Which is it?"

"Sunset."

"But why do you have it set in the east? The top of a picture is like the top of a map—it's the north. Figuring from this, your sun has wobbled around!"

"That's queer," replied the painter.

"In an artistic way, and one proudly pointed out, you cover some of the fallen stones and stumps with what you mistake for brambles."

"You—you must be mistaken."

"There they are, and they are hazel bushes. I have no more to say, except that your sketch purports to be an autumn scene, and yet you have the maples all red, and two or three apple trees over there of a vivid green. I now yield you the floor to criticize my butter bust of Washington!"

"I thought—thought," began Mr. Islington, and then paused.

"Are you a good judge of butter?" asked the girl with a smile.

"Why, I thought that particular butter was all right."

"So it was. The trouble was with me. I sculped Shakespeare and called it Washington. If I had tried to sculp Nero people would probably have called it Xerxes. I am ready to admit that I am a dead failure in sculpture."

"And I don't believe it is in me to be a landscape artist."

There was nothing further said for the next two minutes. Then the young man cautiously queried:

"Wasn't there something said about the 'Artistic Temperament?'"

"Why, there might have been."

"Do you think we have it?"

"Not being artists, how could we have?"

"That's so. That's so. And not having got it, what becomes of the vows—the vows—"

"To be continued at the house!" laughed the blushing girl, as she extended her hand to be helped to her feet.

"How many quarts did you pick?" asked Granny, as she reached for the empty berry basket.

"My stars, but I forgot all about 'em;" was the reply.

"Never mind, deary. I didn't expect you to pick a single one—not a one."

"But—but—"

"You see, he was here the other day while you were taking a nap, and he told me all about it, and I told him I'd send you down by the creek, and he and you and the blackberries and the old mill and—and—and don't you let him get away while I am getting supper!"

And Mr. Fred Islington didn't get away.

First American Ensign.

Cooper ("History of the Navy") writes that "the first ensign ever shown by a regular American man-o'-war was hoisted in the Delaware aboard the Alfred by the hands of Paul Jones some time about the last of December, 1775." The only doubts in this incident concern the date and the design of the ensign. On the latter point Harrison ("The Stars and Stripes and Other American Flags," page 105) makes this statement: "It is not known with certainty what flag Jones raised over the Alfred, only that it was one of the rattlesnake designs."

Maine Is Young Yet.

One thinks of all New England as settled early, but in reality all of that half of Maine lying east of the Penobscot river is newer than the Ohio valley. The first permanent English settler anywhere in that section was Joshua Treat, who established himself in 1759 about where Stockton Springs now is. In 1769 there was not an English settler above Bangor. Even as recently as a century ago, so the census of 1810 shows, nine-tenths of the population of Maine was west of the Penobscot river.

Looking Forward.

The husband and wife were making a call on friends one evening. The wife was talking. "I think we shall have Marian take a domestic science course along with her music and regular studies when at college."

"Ah," said a man present, who had been a stranger until that evening, "you look rather young to have a daughter ready for college."

"Oh," said the mother natively, "she isn't old enough now; she is just eight months old, but I do so like to look forward!"

Uncle Pennywise Says:

A young man who has bought nothing but bonbons and violets for five years can hardly be expected to be a good judge of asparagus right after marriage.

ERUPTION LIKE PIMPLES

Wathena, Kan.—"My child's scalp trouble became so bad that I was ashamed to have anyone see him. His head had a solid scab on it. He also had a terrible breaking out on his face which was gradually growing worse. The eruption was like pimples which developed into sores when he scratched, which he did almost constantly. Baby would almost scratch himself raw.

"I had used several different kinds of salve, none of them helping in the least bit, when I saw the Cuticura advertisement in the paper and it made me think of the good results my sister had when she used it for her children. I had only used Cuticura Soap and Ointment about two weeks before I noticed that the sores were almost entirely gone, and it must have been a month or six weeks he was troubled before I began the treatment. He would get easy when I would put the Cuticura Ointment on him. Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured him and he has a clear complexion now." (Signed) Mrs. W. H. Hughes, Dec. 31, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Unfailing Stimulant.

Men have tried many things, but still the tsk for stimulant—the stimulant in use but requires the use of more. Men try to drown the floating dead of their own souls in the wine cup, but the corpses will rise. We see their faces in the bubbles. The intoxication of drink sets the world whirling again, and the pulses playing music, and the thoughts galloping, but the fast clock runs down sooner, and the unnatural stimulation only leaves the house it fills with revelry—more silent, more sad, more deserted, more dead. There is only one stimulant that never fails, and yet never intoxicates—Duty. Duty puts a blue sky over every man—up in his heart maybe—into which the skylark, happiness, always goes singing. —George D. Prentice.

California Woman's Good Shot.

While walking through the woods near Cohasset, Mrs. W. H. Pillsbury of Chico shot a large brown bear that measured six feet from tip to tip.

Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury were walking from their summer home near Cohasset to the "Promontory," a high point from which an excellent view of the whole valley can be had. Mrs. Pillsbury had a 30-30 carbine. Suddenly she saw a large bear coming down the hill about forty yards away. "It's a bear, shall I shoot it?" she shouted to her husband. Pillsbury answered in the affirmative and his wife asked, "Where shall I shoot him." "In the head," came the answer. With deliberate aim the woman fired, hitting the animal square in the right eye, killing him instantly.

The hide weighed seventy pounds and the weight of the carcass was estimated at 300 pounds.—Chico Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

The Love in Fiction and Life.

A periodical devoted to the drama pleads for plays based on some emotion other than love. The difficulty in producing such plays is that every play must have a hero, and in making a hero the playwright, as well as his audience, almost inevitably adopts the view expressed 2,000 years ago by a scribbler of the dead wall of Pompeii: "He who has never loved a woman is not a gentleman."

Instead of liquid antiseptics, tablets and peroxide, for toilet and medicinal uses, many people prefer Paxtine, which is cheaper and better. At druggists, 25c a box or sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Mintie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. Agnes V. Swetland, of Omaha, Nebr., says: "Your Castoria is the best remedy in the world for children and the only one I use and recommend."

Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it."

Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently madea trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country. . . . . . .

Mr. Voter, the candidate worthy of your support is the one who appreciates your support and tells you so and not the one who you do not know is in the race until you discover his name on the ballot.

The fight for offices in this county this year is centered on the contest for superintendent of schools. This contest, in this part of the county at least, should be between A. B. DeForge and Nic Nelson, if one is to judge by reports. These two candidates are well qualified for this office and deserve the vote of the people.

Next Tuesday is primary election and it behoves everyone to pick his candidate before that day and not cast your vote for any candidate how is not known to you to be trusted to the office he aspires to. Rotten politics is due solely to the fact that not enough attention is paid to the office seeker by the voters and oft times the least desirving is seated in office. Vote for him who you know will be fair and square with everyone.

The Duluth Herald

is the newspaper to read to get all the news. Wilson, Roosevelt, Taft, and the rest of the candidates share the Herald's news columns equally.

Slip a dollar bill in an envelope with your name and address and get The Herald for three months. That will cover the campaign.

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of great enterprises are men of great energy. Success today demands health. To all is to fail. It's utter folly for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took" writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylvania, Ga., After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Wilson-Roosevelt-Taft

and all the other presidental aspirants receive equal attention in the news columns of the Duluth Herald, the best newspaper in the northwest.

County Superintendent.

VOTERS, I need your support. We are all working in this world for an honest living. Having lost a limb, I must rely on head-work to earn my way. This is the main reason why I am seeking the office of county superintendent. My life is dedicated to the noble work of educating, to develop in the child that degree of intelligence; that breadth of mind, of perception and understanding; that habit of industry necessary to root out all aversions to labor; that knack of home making, of saving, of valuing little things; that love of accomplishing, of perseverance which overcomes all obsticles—all of which and more, so essential to progress and contentment are the needs of every child and should be demanded in their name for them.

ALBANY DeFORGE.

Superintendent of Schools.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Schools and respectfully solicit your vote and support at the primaries, Sept. 17.

NIC NELSON.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past, put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulant schemes

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents, and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world; I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of dispute among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity. Bring us the news.

All kinds of legal blanks for sale at this office.

Carl Magnell transacted business in town Saturday.

Miss Moran Sundayed with her parents at Thief River Falls.

Helmer Bjorge returned the first of the week from Detroit where he had been for the past two weeks.

For Sale—One I. X. L. second hand windmill. 20 feet high. John Mahla, 3 miles west of Plummer.

Attorney J. M. Bishop, of Thief River Falls, transacted business here between trains Monday.

Fr. LeFloch, of Bemidji, will hold mass at the school house Sunday Oct. 13th, at 10:00 o'clock.

Dr. Spofford will be at the Hotel Scotland Oct. 18. Eyes Examined. Glasses Fitted.

G. A. Krueger and Tudy Brink spent Sunday and Monday near Lancaster, on a hunting trip, and were fortunate in bagging a nice bunch of chickens.

It cannot be said that women are of a jealous disposition when she will let "hubby" go "chicken" chasing without even mentioning a word about divorce.

Wanted to Trade—A team of horses for a yoke of oxen, not younger than 5 or older than 10 years. Horses are 12 and 13 years of age and weigh about 1200. See H. C. Hanson.

K. A. Henderson is buying live stock and is shipping to St. Paul every week. He will be a steady cattle buyer from now on if the business accorded him merits it and kindly asks those who have any cattle for sale to let him know.

Tuesday of last week Dr. Dumas of Cass Lake was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the prison at Stillwater. The maximum term cannot exceed three and one half years. Dr. Dumas was convicted of attempted arson in connection with the attempt to rob and burn the postoffice at Puposky about a year ago.

One of the most dangerous habits people can indulge in is that of lying in bed. Nine-tenths of all the deaths occur in bed. Nearly one-half of all those who are murdered are murdered in bed. It is while you are in bed that your house is robbed and your chickens stolen. It is while you are in bed that the bugs bite you and bad dreams haunt you. Therefore, dear reader, never go to bed.

Quite a number from Plummer and vicinity attended the fair at Red Lake Falls last week but the extremely unpleasant weather prevented a large number more from taking it in. The rain of Friday and Saturday practically ruined the fair and a large amount of the feature numbers of the program had to be eliminated entirely. The splendid exhibits of every discription is evidence that considerable interest in the fair was manifest by the people and the association, and the only thing necessary to make it a grand success was a more favorable brand of weather.

It takes live men to make a live town. Dead men are only fit to inhabit cemeteries. If they are really decently dead, dead all over, we tenderly lay them away in the sleep of the tomb, but if they are only dead in all enterprise and spirit, outside of the narrow limits of their own selfishness, and yet persist in walking around, moving their calloused hearts and consciences where real business is wont to pulse and throb with vigor they are really like the drone bees, in they way until they are stung to death and dragged outside of the hive of legitimate industry. Twelve really live men are worth more to a town generally than a round full thousand of such useless material that lays around like rubbish in a rushing stream that is aching and foaming to turn mills and factories. Yes, live men bless and dead men curse a town.

On a recent visit to Thief River Falls the writer had the pleasure to attend the Lyceum theatre which is now located in its magnificient new quarters. To say that the building is beautiful in design and every other detail and a credit to that city is putting it mildly. The building is modern in every respect and everything that skilled workmanship can accomplish has been done for the convenience and comfort of its patrons. Manager Roy Morgan has more than given satisfaction in the moving picture business and that the public appreciates their courteous treatment and excellent service is evidenced by the fact that increasing business necessitated the erection of the present large building which has a seating capacity of over one thousand and which is filled at almost every performance.

M. Hovelsrud, of Trail, was here last Tuesday.

H. H. Opeseth, of Gully, was in town Tuesday on business.

Mr. Halseth came down from Thief River yesterday morning.

C. H. Martz, of St. Hilaire, transacted business here Wednesday.

—For Sale—The leading hotel Scotland. Call on Ole Bergdal, Plummer

Thom T. Peterson, of Gonvick, was a caller here the first of the week

F. E. Hunt and Chas. Christenson, of Red Lake Falls was in town Wednesday.

Louis Hanson, of Thief River Falls, was here Wednesday looking over work on the new elevator.

Henry Enderle entertained a few of his bachelor friends to a prairie chicken supper Wednesday evening.

Wanted to Buy—12 dozen checkens. Anyone having some to sell call or write to G. McKinney Plummer, Minn

Part of the lumber and material for the new Catholic church has arrived and work on the new building will be commenced in a short time.

Tom Norby treated a number of his gentlemen friends to a prairie chicken feast Wednesday, which was planned and prepared by himself.

Miss Mary Anderson, of St. Hilaire, arrived here last Saturday and has entered upon her duties as teacher in the school district southeast of town.

Do you want any thing in the line of stationary, writing or office supplies? If so, call at the PIONEER office and see what we can do to supply your wants.

Roy Halseth and John Oxley came down from Thief River Monday morning to put a few finishing touches to the Morrisette residence.

The fellow that deserves a gold medal is he who is crazy enough to take his 22 and go gunning for rabbits in the middle of the chicken season.

Friday the 13th was the last day in which the candidates had to file. Probably some candidate realizes that this was his undoing after all.

W. P. Stone, Bert Butelle, Abe Barrette, and F. E. McGregor all of Crookston, composed a happy hunting group who spent a couple of days here the first of the week rounding up the wild leghorns.

—Lost—Between Oklee and Wanke, a suit case containing a coat and several other articles of ladies wearing apparel. Finder call at Farmers & Merchants Bank, Oklee, for reward.

The new lumber shed of the Plummer lumber company is fast nearing completion. The office buildings as well as the shed are large and spacious and will be able to care for the increasing business for some time to come.

This is the time of the year when due consideration must be given the coal man, the clothier and in fact all lines of trade. The time for laying in the winter's supplies is not far hence and no one is better supplied with the withwital to do this with than the farmers. Their credit, if any, will be paid up and a new leaf turned over, and the merchant, the ice man and the rest, will rejoice in unsion. Last but not least you must not forget the editor. He needs the necessities of life like all the rest and has his bills to pay. The coal man, the merchant and John D. Rottenfeller will all share his patronage, and this, dear reader, will require silver cart wheels and many of them. Remember that subscription is way past due and should have been attended to before this. For fear that you may be a little backward to call on us fearing we my resent the delay we hasten to state that a couple of silvers will convert us into the most forgiving individual in the country. This is one time we appreciate a large debt, the bigger the better. Don't forget to pay up your subscription as we need the money.

Many Driven From Home

Every year, in many parts of the country, thousands are driven from their homes by coughs and lung diseases. Friends and business are left behind for other climates, but this is costly and not always sure. A better way—a way of multitudes—is, to use Dr. King's New Discovery and cure cure yourself at home. Say right there with your friends and take this medicine. Throat and lung troubles find quick relief and health returns. Its help in coughs, colds, grip, croup, whooping-cough and sore lungs make it a positive blessing. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Mrs. Erick Anderson and children left for Gull Lake, Sask., Canada, last Thursday night. Mrs. Anderson is going to join her husband at Gull Lake. Mr. Anderson left here with two carloads of horses, etc., a few days ago.

Carl Ahlberg was at the Red Lake county fair last Friday.

Paul Borge was in Red Lake Falls last Friday and Saturday taking in the fair.

John and Nels Alfson was in Red Lake Falls last week for the fair.

Ole Broten left for Crookston last Monday where he is going to have another operation performed.

A letter was received from John F Magnuson, of Kalston, Sask., Canada, who was formerly the storekeeper at Hazel. Mr. Magnuson likes Canada first-class. He is again engaged in the store business. He says crops are very good in Canada this season.

Miss Laura Larson came home from Grand Forks, N. D., last Wednesday.

NOT MUCH STIR AT PRIMARIES

36 Votes Cast In the Village of Plummer.

EBERHART LEADS IN THE COUNTY

11 Precincts Heard From So Far.

The primary election Tuesday passed off very quietly in this village as well as other parts of the county as the small vote would indicate.

36 votes were cast at the polls in the village including 10 women's ballots, out of these 31 were Republican, 5 Democratic and 1 Public Ownership ballot, the latter which is thought to have been mixed with the other ballots as no call was made for such a ticket.

No interest was manifest in the election as most of the candidates for county offices were without opposition. The main interest was centered on the three-cornered fight for county superintendent. From information received up to yesterday noon DeForge and Schusser were in the lead by a large majority, but the returns from this part of the county have not as yet been forthcoming.

Owing to complications under the new primary law we have been unable to get but a few unofficial figures as no record of the poll list was kept. Eberhart, for governor, received a larger vote here than was expected, 26 votes was cast for him while the remaining few votes were devided between Young and Gorden, with the former a few votes in the lead. Steenerson, for Representative in Congress polled a heavy vote as was expected.

Fellman, for sheriff, had a walk-away here as all over the rest of the county over his opponent, Mose. Ducharme. In the contest for county superintendent DeForge and Schusser received 15 votes apiece, with Nelson a close second with 14 votes.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Baker of Red Lake Falls we are able to give the returns from eleven precincts in the county, which is all that was received up to noon yesterday. The total vote of these precincts follows:

For governor—Eberhardt 127; Lee 62; Young 56; Spooner 39; Gorden 12; Falk 8.

Representative in congress—Steenerson 100; Peterson 61; Battey 21.

Domestic

A rush from a steamboat wharf at St. Albans, Vt., by a crowd of excursionists caused the death of Mrs. Charles Hurlbut of Georgia, who, with her husband, was jostled from the wharf into the water.

* * *

A mysterious tunnel just discovered under the street in Court square, Boston, is thought to have been made by prisoners attempting to escape from jail cells of three-quarters of a century ago in the old court house, recently demolished to make way for a city hall annex.

* * *

In revenge for the attention their husbands are alleged to have bestowed on Miss Minnie Lavally, a pretty twenty-two-year-old girl of Clarksville, near Norwalk, O., eight wives of that place, all dressed in men's clothing, took the young woman to a lonely spot on a road and stripped her and applied a coat of tar and feathers.

* * *

The jury which heard the evidence against Victor Allen, charged with firing the shot that caused the death of Commonwealth's Attorney W. M. Foster, in the Hillsville, Va., courthouse tragedy of March 14, returned a verdict of "not guilty" at Wytheville. This ends the Allen cases, except as to Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, fugitives from justice.

DUMAS TO PRISON

MUST WORK OUT PENALTY FOR CONVICTION IN PUPOSKY RAID AT STILLWATER.

A JEKYL-HYDE DRAMA.

Bemidji Courtroom Is Final Scene—Former Cass Lake Mayor Protests Innocence to the Last.

Bemidji. — Continually protesting innocence and asserting through his attorney, George Spear of Grand Rapids, that he has been prevented from ever telling his side of the story, Dr. D. F. Dumas, until last spring mayor of Cass Lake and one of the most successful physicians in Northern Minnesota, was sentenced in District Court here before Judge W. S. McClenahan to hard labor at Stillwater on the charge of attempted arson in the third degree.

This charge grew out of the Puposky raid of June in 1911, when Mike Davis and Martin Behan were trapped in the Postoffice Building while in the act of attempting to rob and burn the building, according to evidence produced by the State. Testimony also went to show that Dr. Dumas had planned this expedition and that he had been a confederate of some of the country's most daring and desperate criminals.

Dr. Dumas left here under the personal guard of Sheriff A. B. Hazen, to enter the prison at Stillwater to begin the daily routine of a convict. The maximum penalty is three and one-half years.

Attends Patients to Last.

Dr. Dumas spent Tuesday forenoon attending to his patients in Cass Lake, prescribing for eight persons. He closed up his office at noon and came to Bemidji. He previously had sent his wife and infant son to relatives.

Assistant Attorney General Alex James, Deputy Fire Marshall Sam Fullerton and Attorneys Thayer C. Bailey and E. E. McDonald, both of this city, who acted as special prosecuting attorneys, were in the court room and only Attorney McDonald spoke for the State, and then only brieby making formal demand that sentence be passed.

"Let the prisoner stand forward," ordered Judge McClenahan, and Dr. Dumas, smooth shaven and well groomed, quickly arose from his seat beside his attorney and faced the court. He told the Judge that he was born April 4, 1879; that he had lived in Minnesota all his life except the time spent in Chicago graduating from the Medical Department of the University of Illinois; that he had lived 26 years in the city of Minneapolis; had practiced medicine there and that for a year was house physician of the Minneapolis City Hospital.

Attorney Speaks for Him.

Dr. Dumas made no other statement and Judge McClenahan inquired if he had anything to say. Instead, Mr. Spear, as his attorney, addressed the Court and reviewed at some length the proceedings which were about to terminate with the imposition of sentence. Mr. Spear said that the expense of the case had proved a severe financial strain not only to Dr. Dumas, whose means were exhausted, but also to his father, a Minneapolis business man who had come to his assistance, and that when it appeared that the motion for a new trial would have to be based upon technical ground and that heavy expenses would accrue in the event of an appeal, Dr. Dumas himself determined that he would not allow the case to proceed further; that the defendant had been unwilling to place additional burden upon his father and had made up his mind that it would be wiser to end the uncertainty and suspense which would attend upon further proceedings.

This explanation, the attorney said, was made to advise the Court of the good faith of the defendant in obtaining a stay in order that the motion for a new trial might be made.

Candidates Are Picked.

St. Paul. — The Minnesota Republican Progressive League will recommend the following candidates to the voters of Minnesota: For United States senator, James A. Peterson, Minneapolis; congressman-at-large, James A. Manahan, Minneapolis; governor, William E. Lee, Long Prairie; lieutenant governor, J. A. A. Burnquist, St. Paul; attorney general, Thomas Frazer, Rochester; railroad and warehouse commissioner, J. W. Rosenwald, St. Paul.

James J. Hill Acquires a Bank.

St. Paul. — Announcement has just been officially made in St. Paul that James J. Hill had acquired two-thirds of the stock of the Second National bank, and is planning to establish a trust company with a capital of $2,000,000. St. Paul bankers say the trust company will probably be the largest in the Northwest.

Money Put Up for Good Roads.

Mankato.—Good roads work is opening usually early this fall and the prospect is favorable for a larger amount of road work being done than ever before. At a meeting of the county board last week, a petition was received asking for the improvement of the road between Lake Crystal and the Watonwan river, and with it came two subscriptions, amounting to $1,400. The board acted favorably, and appropriated an equal amount, one-half to be available before Jan. 1 and the rest after that date.

Suspect at International Falls.

Duluth.—A man who is being held by the authorities at International Falls on the Canadian border on suspicion of being "Gyp the Blood," murderer of Rosenthal, the New York gambler, has not been identified. A dispatch from International Falls says the police are still confident he is the man wanted, as he tallies with the description of the gun man. Identification will be impossible until some one who knows the New York fugitive is brought to confront him or the Bertillon measurements are received.

SENATOR CLAPP

Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota is chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections which is investigating campaign contributions, and he declares that committee will do no whitewashing.

DON'T THINK OF BABY.

Release Woman From Barb Fence Then Realize Child Is Missing.

Anoka.—Driving in an automobile, a party of five, including a little baby, came upon "death curve," two miles south of Anoka, before the person at the wheel was aware of the treacherous bend in the road. The car was overturned twice, righting itself by its own power.

Mr. and Mrs. Honer Andrews, of Pine River, and Ray Anderson, of Pequot, found themselves lying in a ditch. They had been severely shaken up, but were otherwise uninjured. Mr. Anderson thought of his wife, and turning around found that she was hanging in a barb wire fence. Mr. Anderson, assisted by the Honer family, unfastened the woman, found her unhurt, and the four congratulated themselves on their narrow escape.

"But where's the baby?" cried Mrs. Honer.

"Yes, where is it?" cried her husband.

They looked in the road. No baby. They peered in the automobile. Not a sign of the child.

Then one of them lifted some blankets that lay in the ditch. A wee face and a pair of wondering eyes met his gaze. The baby was hurt and was taken to Anoka where a doctor rubbed soothing oils on several bruises. Its injuries, however, are not severe.

SOCIALIST TICKET.

Two Harbors.—Lake county socialists will put a full county ticket in the field and will run N. D. Hillman for re-election as state representative. He will have as opponents B. F. Fowler (republican), who is at present county attorney, and J. M. Burwick, prohibitionist. John Kinsella, who was elected county attorney two years ago and who was removed from office by Governor Eberhart, will be a candidate for judge of probate.

Ore, lumber and pulpwood shipments continue unusually heavy and labor is scarce. The Masonic lodge contemplates the building of a $20,000 temple.

Find Good Profit in Tobacco.

Fergus Falls.—E. M. and W. G. Nelson, of the town of Friberg, have just harvested their tobacco crop, and believe they have demonstrated that tobacco can be successfully grown here, and that it is one of the most profitable crops it is possible to raise. They brought the seed from Wisconsin two years ago and raised a good crop last year, but were not in a position to cure it properly. This year they went into the business on a larger scale and they have just harvested a crop they are confident is worth $250 an acre. Wisconsin crops that were not nearly as good brought their owners $200 an acre. They sent a sample of the tobacco to the state fair to be shown with the Otter Tail county exhibit.

Riot Results.

Duluth.—While the street car strikers were holding a meeting a mob, estimated at 3,000 persons, gathered in the west end of the city. Sticks and stones were thrown at passing cars and three strikebreakers were pulled from their places and beaten. It is said that one of them was badly injured. Nearly all the windows in the cars were broken by the mob.

Ore Dock Strike Is Settled.

Duluth. — The recent strike of the ore dock men of the Great Northern System on Allouez Bay was settled on terms proposed by the company. The men had demanded an advance of 25 cents a day and the Great Northern offered them 20 cents as a compromise, which was accepted.

High Water Preserves Fish.

Winona.—This year has been an exceptional one for the rescue department of the government fish hatcheries at Homer. There has been practically no work for the steamer Curlew and her force of men for the reason that the river has been exceptionally high during the entire year. Captain Smith says that this year for the first time in a decade no fish will be killed in the pockets along the sloughs and river shore. The high stage has been maintained with only slight changes during the summer.

Devise Plan to Reopen Bank.

Winnebago.—At a meeting of the depositors' committee of the State Bank of Commerce it was learned that about $150,000 of the deposits have been signed over under a plan that has been devised for reopening the bank. M. C. Dalton, formerly of Rochester, is in charge of the bank's business at present. Judge Lorin Cray, of Mankato, addressed a meeting of the depositors Monday evening, as he has been consulted frequently by the committee on reorganization. He is president of a Mankato bank.

ONE DEAD; EIGHT ARE INJURED

MORE THAN 100 GUESTS FLEE FROM EXPLOSION.

Conditions At One Hotel to Be Investigated—Total Loss $16,000.

Minneapolis.—One Minneapolis man was suffocated to death by smoke, eight others were overcome and were resuscitated and rescued by the fire department's life saving squad and more than 100 guests, many of them half clad, fled to the street or were assisted out by firemen in a fire which started from a gasoline explosion in a garage, spread to two Washington avenue south hotels and menaced two other near-by hosterlries.

Many of those carried out by the firemen were women. A score of guests in the most seriously damaged hotel, the Star, 113, Washington avenue south, lost all their personal belongings. Fire Marshal Arthur C. Price said both of two explanations offered to him regarding the origin of the fire indicated that the fire ordinance had been violated. The blaze started in the garage of the National Express & Messenger company at the rear of 113 Washington avenue south and spread to the Star hotel in the same building and to the Warwick hotel, 115 Washington avenue south. Guests also fled from the American hotel, 111 Washington avenue south, and the Hotel Beaufort, 112 Third street south. The total loss exceeded $16,000.

A man who had registered as Morris Johnson, and who had been assigned room 33 of the Warwick hotel, was the guest who lost his life. The indications were that he had died struggling for breath. Before he lost consciousness he had torn his clothing to ribbons in a vein effort to make a rope by which he might escape from a window. The door of the room had become jammed, the police said, and there were indications that Johnson had tried vainly to open the window also.

CARMEN GO ON STRIKE.

Men Demand That Company Recognize Their Union.

Duluth.—About one hundred motormen and conductors of the Duluth Street Railway company went on a strike to get recognition of their union. The men claim that the company has dismissed some of their leaders.

The company not long ago gave the men a new wage schedule and the strike does not involve wages.

Railroads Getting Busy.

Minneapolis. — With wheat and other food crops breaking all records and a boom in all branches of industry, railroads of the Northwest are getting ready for handling the largest tonnage ever known in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. All the roads are appealing to shippers for aid in meeting the demand for rolling-stock to handle the grain movement of the next few months. Car builders are stocked with orders and new equipment is being turned out as fast as it is possible to manufacture it.

State Spiritualists to Meet.

Minneapolis. — The fifteenth annual convention of the State Spiritualists' association will open for a four-day session Thursday in the old Hennepin Avenue Methodist church. Several nationally known spiritualist workers will address the convention. Dr. George B. Warne of the National Spiritualists' association of Washington, D. C.; Will J. Erwood, pastor of the First Spiritual church, Baltimore, and Mrs. Belle Fuller, medium, Grand Rapids, Mich., will be among the speakers.

Best In Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Sept. 11.—According to the Journal of the American Medical association Minneapolis made a phenomenal record last Fourth of July with no injuries or deaths as a result of celebrating the national holiday. What makes this record all the more noticeable is the fact that the same thing was true for the previous year. There is not a city in the United States with a population of more than 300,000 persons, except Minneapolis, where there was not even an accident on this day.

Hope That Miners Are Alive.

Biwabik. — The officers of the Ruddy mine, which was filled by a cloudburst, drove a pipe through eighty-five feet of ground to two miners caught in a sub level to give them air, if they still are alive. If the men are alive they have not given any sign. Yet it is believed by mining men that the two are safe from the water and that they eventually will be found alive. The third man caught was at the bottom of the shaft and undoubtedly is dead.

Stillwater Reunion Ends.

Stillwater. — The first home coming ended with fireworks at Lowell park, the principal feature of which was a representation of Niagara Falls.

Painting Will Be Restored.

St. Paul.—An examination of the tenthousand dollar painting which fell from its place in the Capitol dome at St. Paul revealed only a small ragged tear in one corner and a few cracked places in the paint.

Bemidji Man Is Drowned.

Bemidji. — Vinton L. Ellis, who is a well known young real estate and insurance man of this city and formerly publisher of the Bemidji Daily Pioneer, was drowned in Tuttle Lake, while hunting for ducks.

Train Kills Judge Mott.

Faribault, Minn., Sept. 10. — Judge Rodney A. Mott, 87 years old, one of Rice county's pioneers, was killed at the Second street crossing on the Rock Island tracks by a northbound passenger train as he was coming down town to his office.

Buried Miners Believed Alive.

Biwabik. — The party of rescuers nearly have succeeded in reaching the two imprisoned miners in the Ruddy pit. They are believed to be alive.

TEXT TAKEN TOO LITERALLY

Ten-Year-Old Julia Gets Into Bad Graces of Mother by Giving Tramp a Half-Dollar.

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

The foregoing quotation is from chapter 13, verse 2, Book of Hebrews, and it is introduced solely because it constitutes a vital part of this story. Julia is ten years old and she goes to Sunday school. It appears that on a recent occasion the Sunday school teacher had considerable to say about this matter of "entertaining angels unawares." Anyway, it made a deep impression with Julia.

A few days after the lesson Julia's mother left her in charge of the house for a few hours. When the mother returned she went to a particular cup in the cupboard to extract therefrom one-half dollar. In this cup is kept the family pin money, and Julia's mother knew that she had put fifty cents there before she had gone out. But the half dollar was gone. There was an expression of anxiety on Julia's face and mother scented mischief.

"Did you take that money?" asked the mother, somewhat severely.

Julia broke into tears. "I gave it to a man that came to the back door," sobbed the little girl.

"Gave it to a man!" exclaimed the mother. "What for?"

"I thought he might be God," tearfully replied Julia.—Kansas City Star.

Old Roman Wall Unearthed.

A part of the wall which once enclosed old St. Paul's, London, has been discovered in excavations at the corner of Paternoster Row and St. Paul's alley in London. The wall, which is about 60 feet long, is made of chalk and rubble, and was built in the twelfth century. On the same site pieces of a Roman amphora, Roman vases and some Samian ware have also been found. Other "finds" include a camel's skull unearthed in High Holborn and a large quantity of pipes of the eighteenth century. Under some old stables in Bartholomew Close—one of the oldest parts of London—three Norman arches have been found. They are close to one another, and are believed to have formed part of the cloisters of the priory which once stood on this site.

BURNED AND ITCHED BADLY

539 Lincoln Park Blvd., Chicago, Ill. —"A year ago I received a very severe burn on my left arm. I caught cold in it and it was all sore and ulcerated. The sore was as large as a silver dollar. It was all red and inflamed and had pus running out of it. I suffered terribly from burning pain; could not sleep for two weeks it burned and itched so badly. I applied —— Salve, —— Salve and a salve my druggist recommended as his own, but got no relief. I then commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed the burned parts with Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment on a linen bandage. I got relief from the first, and my arm healed nicely. I was soon able to be at work again. Had I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment at first I would have avoided lots of suffering." (Signed) Harry Junke, Mar. 9, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Add. postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

One Universal Symbol.

Scientists at work on a universal language have one symbol to start with that already has the same meaning the world over," a traveler said. "That is the skull and crossbones. Its speech is even more universal than music or money. Musical values differ in different countries, so does money, but from one end of the earth to the other a skull and crossbones means poison."

FOREIGN BELIEFS ARE QUEER

Spanish Wedding Is Ruined If One Person Appears Entirely in Black —Some Other Signs.

In Spain the wedding is spoiled if one of the guests appears entirely in black, or if the bride looks into a mirror after orange blossoms and veil are fastened in her headdress.

When a person's hair ends split, it's taken by the superstitious for a sign that she is either a witch or has been bewitched. As blond hair splits more readily than dark hair, all witches, spirits and sorceresses have blond or red hair, according to popular belief. Likewise, according to the standard of art.

On the marriage eve there is often much good-natured rivalry between the groom and the bride in the Slav countries as to who shall blow out the candle, for the person who does will be "first to die." It is impossible to trace the origin of this superstition, yet it prevails in aristocratic society as well as in the peasant's hut, even as like this, that "to insure the life and health of the children" the woman must occupy the right side of the bed. In addition, she must not smoke before her forty-fifth year.

There is a superstition in this country and many others against burning a broom. The bud of birch broom is used in southern Germany as a preventive against erysipelas. These buds, a piece of yellow wax and some other articles are inclosed in a pink silk bag, secured with red silk and worn on the back of the neck. The person must change his shirt every Friday.

English Honors Cost Money.

The letter patent granted for the dignity of a baron cost £150, and for that of a baronet £100, payable to the board of inland revenue. Other expenses to be incurred by the newly-honored include crests or new coats-of-arms, while some wish to have their "genealogical trees" properly made out. Consequently the Heralds' college is busy after the issue of a list of honors, and the total expenses of a baron are not far short of £400, and those of a baronet exceed £200.

Move for Change In Time.

The French ministry of public works is indeavoring to have the government adopt the system of reckoning time on railways by the use of the hours from 1 to 24, instead of 12 noon to 12 midnight. This system has already been adopted by many continental railways and has been in operation for years on the Canadian Pacific railway.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. BENJ. H. STANSBERY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

Sang for Sultan.

Mulai Hafid, the ex-sultan of Morocco, while staying at Vichy, in France, made an excursion to Les Ardoisieres, says the "Matin," where Napoleon III. used often to go for rest. Three young girls, sisters, timidly approached the sultan and asked him to sign postcards. Mulai Hafid consented on condition that they would each sing a song to him. Two of the girls at once complied, and the delighted Mulai Hafid wrote on their cards words which, translated, mean: "Like Napoleon III., I have visited Les Ardoisieres, where I have enjoyed, together with the calm and freshness of nature, the grace and charm of the voices of Mlles. Paulette and Clotilde." The third girl did not know how to sing, but one of her sisters having sung for her the sultan added the name of Gabrielle.

"This appeared the next day;

"'Tis two, 'tis fifty, 'tis fifty, 'tis fifty-two.'"

Compensation.

A fairly prominent local pugilist was injured several months ago in an automobile accident and had three ribs broken. Fully recovered, he was discussing the incident recently with friends.

"I got $100 out of the auto owner," he said. "Had to give the lawyer half and it cost $56 for doctor's bills, but I made them pay $100 for the thing, anyhow."

American Tools Preferred.

A favorite suport in New Zealand, as also in Australia and Tasmania, is competition in wood chopping and sawing; and in these contests, which attract a great deal of interest, the championships are always won through the use of American tools. In fact, the expert woodsman working for a prize would never think of using any other kind of tools.

RIGHT HOME

Doctor Recommends Postum from Personal Test.

No one is better able to realize the injurious action of caffeine—the drug in coffee—on the heart, than the doctor. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it, too, contains the drug caffeine.

When the doctor himself has been relieved by simply leaving off coffee and using Postum, he can refer with full conviction to his own case.

A Mo. physician prescribes Postum for many of his patients because he was benefited by it. He says:

"I wish to add my testimony in regard to that excellent preparation—Postum. I have had functional or nervous heart trouble for over 15 years, and a part of the time was unable to attend to my business.

"I was a moderate user of coffee and did not think drinking it hurt me. But on stopping it and using Postum instead, my heart has got all right, and I ascribe it to the change from coffee to Postum.

"I am prescribing it now in cases of sickness, especially when coffee does not agree, or affects the heart, nerves or stomach.

"When made right it has a much better flavor than coffee, and is a vital sustainer of the system. I shall continue to recommend it to our people, and I have my own case to refer to." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

GUNMEN WONT TALK

EFFORTS TO BREAK SILENCE OF "GYP THE BLOOD" AND "LEFTY LOUIE" UNAVAILING.

EXPECT MUCH OF WIVES.

Pickpocket Also Kept In Custody. Arraignment of Prisoners on Formal Murder Charge Likely at Once.

New York, N. Y. — Every effort of the police and district attorney to induce "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" to break their silence has so far failed. The arrest of these two gun men, completing the round-up of all the men wanted in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, just two months ago, was followed by four hours' examination of the new prisoners.

The men were arrested in an apartment at 756 Woodward avenue, Brooklyn, by Central office detectives, and when brought to police headquarters by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty admitted their identity.

It was a careless word about a moving picture show which the fugitives could watch nightly from the rear window of their apartment, and incidently their wives, according to a statement by Dougherty, that gave the police their clue.

The deputy said that his men learned by listening to fragmentary conversations among East Side friends of the gunmen that they could see the picture show from their windows and that they lived in a house the first floor of which was occupied by a laundry.

The men were examined separately by Deputy Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty and by Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss in the absence of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, but according to both Mr. Dougherty and Mr. Moss, "Gyp" and "Lefty" were determined to "stand pat."

Wives Held at Witnesses.

In an effort to reinforce evidence against the men the police formally held their wives as material witnesses, as well as a third man, Max Kahn, who the police say is a pickpocket, and who was in the flat with the gun men and their wives when detectives broke in upon them at supper Saturday night. All three of these witnesses were arraigned before Coroner Feinberg and held in $1,000 bail each. The police also seized a large number of papers in the flat where the capture was made.

Mr. Moss said no promise of leniency had been given the prisoners for admissions such as some of those concerned in the murder have made, resulting in the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as the instigator of the crime.

Horowitz and Rosenzweig, the prisoners' real names, probably will be arranged at once in Justice Goff's court on a formal charge of murdering Rosenthal.

Police Barred From Reward.

Although the district attorney's office had offered $5,000 for the capture of "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the police detectives who brought about their arrest will not get the reward.

Sidna Allen Captured.

Des Moines, Ia. — Sidna Allen, wanted for shooting the judge, sheriff and others in the Virginia courtroom murder, was captured here and the police expect to apprehend Wesley Edwards as he is working near here in a grading gang. The arrest was accomplished by intercepting letters from Edwards to his Virginia sweetheart. The courthouse murder shocked the country, and the police officials all over the country have hunted for Allen and Edwards for months.

Girl Denies Being Traitor.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Securely handcuffed, guarded by three detectives and accompanied by the girl who unconsciously gave the police the clue to their hiding place, Sidna Allen and his nephew, Wesley Edwards, who took part in the shooting up of the Court at Hillsville, Va., on March 15 last, arrived here from Des Moines, on their way back to the scene of the crime. Edwards, as well as the girl herself, were solicitous in having a rumor denied that she had deliberately betrayed him.

BEING NICE TO HER

Vermont Girl Visits Relatives in Georgia.

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"What a funny name, anyway." Doris knelt on the nearest chair and leaned over her cousin's shoulder to get a better look at the letter. "Charity Lavinia Warren. I wish we could keep her out of sight until the Courtright dance is over, Eve."

Evelyn did not answer. She was reading the little faintly scented note once more. She had never dreamed that Charity Warren would ever have accepted her half-hearted invitation and come clear from Fairville, Vt., down to Pinehurst, Ga., to spend Thanksgiving.

"It won't be a bit what she expects, either," went on Doris. "No snow, harvest home festivals, barn dances, sleigh rides; nothing but us and the hotel. Whatever will we do with her, Eve?"

"How old do you suppose she is? Sixty?"

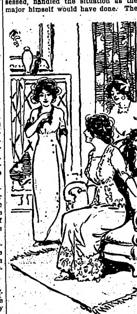
"No. She's thirty-two, I think. Ask father."

Major Warren raised his eyebrows when the girls broke the news and shook his head.

"Bless my heart, children, don't ask me. She's the only child of old Jed Warren, I know, my father's cousin. Rather distant, but all in the family. Treat her as nicely as you know, mind. Cousin Jed gave me a royal time years ago up in the old Vermont mountains. Never tasted such maple sirup in my life. Fine horses, too, Jed had. Be nice to his little girl, Doris."

"That's all the comfort he'll give us, Eve," Doris pouted. "Men never understand delicate situations."

Evelyn, twenty-four, and self-possessed, handled the situation as the major himself would have done. The little country cousin would arrive the day before Thanksgiving. The major was busy entertaining young Buell Carteret, the western judge, who had turned old politics upside down like a wornout basket in his state, and shaken out all the rubbish of years.



"We've Always Believed In Buell."

Doris was taken up with preparations for the dance, and Evelyn saw that a suite of pleasant rooms were set aside, for Charity. A group of northern friends had arrived from New York, and she found she could not meet her cousin, but the major readily agreed to "pick her up" in his own trap.

"Yes, but he's picked up Judge Carteret, too," said Doris, catching a flying glimpse of them as she hesitated on the broad veranda. "I hope he doesn't fall in love with Charity."

When the Northern express drew in the sun had just slipped behind the shoulder of Big Tumble mountain. The great pines on its unlifted crest looked gaunt and bare against the vivid sky. Lonely enough it looked to Charity as she stepped down from the sleeper, and the very first face that met her eyes was Buell's. Before the major could introduce himself the judge was before him, hat off, all his heart in his eyes as he seized Charity's little hand.

"Know her?" he exclaimed after the half-laughing explanations. "Why, I learned all I know in old Jed Warren's law office up in Fairville, major. He took me one day when I strolled into town with nothing but a violin and my mother's Bible to carry me through the world, and he put me on my feet. Little Miss Charity, here, was about seven then, I guess. I was a big country gawk of eighteen. Remember me, Miss Charity?"

Charity looked up at him shyly, but with a gleam of fun in her soft gray-blue eyes.

"I remember that you never called me Miss Charity then, Buell."

"But, bless my heart, child, don't you know he's the rising judge of the middle west," exclaimed the major. "We have to treat him with respect, and I'll wager my best fox hound you never were called Buell east of the Cumberland before, judge."

"But I have north of the Berkshires," laughed Carteret.

After the first shock of seeing Charity on friendly terms with the lion of Pinehurst, the girls corralled her in her own sitting room. Even Evelyn's critical eye could find no fault with her, this little distant cousin from the maple sugar state. She was as graceful and well poised as one of her own deer, eyes, gray-blue and heavily fringed, fair hair wound in broad plaits about her head, and little curly wisps escaping here and there. Besides, she had dimples, and a little demure one-sided smile that disarmed criticism.

"But where and how did you ever know Judge Carteret?" asked Doris, in surprise. "Do you know how wonderful he is, and that even father thinks he is the coming man of the country."

"My father thought that years ago," said Charity, happily. "We've always believed in Buell."

"It seems so strange, your coming way down here from the wilds of Vermont—"

"Oh, Fairville's quite a good-sized town," interposed Charity loyally "And we've got a new public library this year."

"Well, you are certainly a darling, and we're mighty proud to have you in the family," cried Evelyn, clasping her arms around the little northerner. "And I guess you'll have to lead the cotillon since you know the judge."

"Oh, but I don't know how to lead anything," laughed Charity. "And I think I'd better walk behind you Cousin Eve."

She did walk behind Evelyn at the dance, but beside her was Judge Carteret, and during most of the evening. Only Evelyn saw them slip into the moonlit gardens toward midnight, and she said nothing. If there was a little pang of heartache for the handsome young westerner, she smothered it loyally. It was a good thing he was even to be in the family, she told herself.

Out on the broad terrace looking seaward the judge asked Charity questions, several of them.

"I was about twenty-four when I went west, wasn't I, and you were thirteen, Charity; just a little girl? Why wouldn't you let me kiss you goodby? I've often wondered."

Charity looked down at the purple and white flowers in her hand.

"I was almost grown up."

"But when I came back to visit your father and you were sixteen, Charity, still you wouldn't let me kiss you goodby."

"I never thought you'd notice it," whispered Charity.

"Didn't you want to?"

"I—I don't know."

"Listen, love of mine—"

"I think we'd better go back."

"We're not going back." His hands clasped hers strongly. "I found out long ago that if I wanted anything more than all else in the world, I must fight for it and win it. Don't you know I've always wanted you, Charity? Don't you?"

"Oh, Buell," she lifted her face impulsively, and he could see the tears glisten on her lashes. "Let me go. I'm not the woman for you to marry. You're successful now, and the climbing up and up, they say, and I'm just here where I was when you saw me last."

"Thank God you are," said the judge huskily. "I know the face I love best in the world, and the fairest roses of life, dear, grow in the old-fashioned gardens."

The major coughed violently behind them.

"My dance, I believe, Charity, child," he began. Then one good look at the pair startled him. "Bless my heart, judge, I beg your pardon. Another time, child, another time."

MUST HUSTLE TO FIRST BASE

A Little Figuring Shows Why Batsman and Ball Generally Reach There Close Together.

How many baseball enthusiasts know how fast the average grounder travels during its first hundred feet from the bat? Ask any fan and his answer will be anywhere from 20 to 200 miles an hour.

Split-second watches and careful timing of many grounded balls have established the fact that the average speed of ground balls—that is, those struck by the bat of the batsman from a fair pitched ball, which strike the field before they are in a fielder's hands—is at the rate of almost 60 miles an hour. Sixty miles an hour is 88 feet per second. The bases are 90 feet apart. A man who can run 100 yards in 11 seconds, which is fast running for anyone, particularly so for a man with baseball shoes and uniform on, can run 90 feet in 3.3 seconds. Is it any wonder that a ball which is fielded in its first 100 feet of travel usually reaches first just a fraction of a second before or after the runner sets foot upon it?

Every fan knows that the many close decisions at first base form one of the fascinations of the game. The speed of the batted ball, the speed at which a fieldor can travel from his position to a point where he can meet and field the batted ball, pick it up, set himself for the throw, the speed of the ball across the diamond from his throw, and the speed of the traveling runner are so quickly balanced that it is always a question whether or not the runner will get there in time for the crowd to see the umpire's hand go down or whether he will face a thumb over a shoulder.

Not What He Meant.

Sir Leopold McClintock, the Arctic explorer, was once giving an account of his experiences amid the icefields of the north.

"We certainly would have traveled much farther," he explained, "had not our dogs given out at a critical moment."

"But," exclaimed the lady, who had been listening very intently, "I thought that the Eskimo dogs were perfectly tireless creatures."

Sir Leopold's face wore a whimsically gloomy expression as he replied:

"I—er—speak in a culinary sense, miss."

LOOK FOR THE CAUSE

Follow the Advice of Other Women Who Have Had Experiences Similar to Yours.

Have you ever stopped to consider what is the meaning of the various symptoms from which you are suffering? Certainly the paleness, pain in the back, headaches, loss of appetite, nervousness, shortness of breath must have some one cause. They are not diseases in themselves but are complaints and warnings from the different organs of the body that these organs are not being supplied with pure blood and cannot do their daily work well.

To be in good health a person must always have good rich blood. Every tissue of the body depends upon it for nourishment and strength. Knowledge of this fact makes possible a direct treatment for the various disorders from which women suffer. They can cure their troubles by making the blood pure with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Mrs. F. N. Kenning, of No. 411 Fifteenth avenue, North Minneapolis, Minn., who was completely cured by this remedy, says:

"For over a year I was in very poor health. I was very weak and thin and had terrible pains through my back. I would be in bed for a week at a time. I was subject to dizzy spells. My limbs would seem to give out and I would have no control of them during these spells. I was reduced in weight to 98 pounds and could not do my work.

"The doctor did not seem to help me and I quit his treatment. It was then a cousin recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to me and I gave them a trial. I soon felt much better and I now weigh 115 pounds. For years I had terrible headaches but since taking the pills these have disappeared. My health is better than it has been in years and I give the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I would advise all suffering women to take the pills for I know they will relieve them of much misery."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be used in anaemia, chlorosis or green sickness, sick headache, and for nervousness and a general run-down condition of the health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Our new booklet, "Plain Talks to Women," will be sent free on request. Adv.

WOMAN WORKS OUT PROBLEM

Mrs. Sarah Erickson Declares the Hen Lays an Egg at the Same Hour She Was Born.

What time o' day
Does a hen lay?

That question has puzzled poultry fanciers for unnumbered decades, but now, it seems, it has been satisfactorily solved by a woman. She is Mrs. Sarah Erickson of Falconer, N. Y. Having kept chickens for 37 years, she believes she qualifies as an expert in this line of effort.

"I have worked out the problem," she declares. By using marked legbands, trap nests and alarm clocks attached to the nests I have determined that a hen lays an egg at the same hour, minute and second that she was born, or, rather, hatched. For instance, if the hen happened to be able to peck its way through its shell at 7:43 a. m., she will lay an egg at precisely 7:43 a. m. And she will do this without variation every time she is inclined to lay. I have kept close, systematic watch on my hens for five years, and I have never known the rule to fail."

Obliging.

A young man who had never testified before was called before the court as a witness in a certain case. He was somewhat flustered over the attention that was being paid him, and mumbled his words so that the young woman stenographer could not hear them distinctly. He was told to speak plainly and to turn toward the stenographer.

"Speak to the stenographer," said the prosecutor.

At that the young man arose and with a deep bow to the lady said, "How do you do?"—Satire.

Matrimony in Australia.

Bridegrooms in Australia last year ranged from sixteen to ninety-nine years of age, and the records show the youngest bride was fifteen, and the oldest eighty-two. One man of seventy-seven married a girl of eighteen. It is not surprising to learn that more marriages were reported from the country than ever before.

A man must draw the line somewhere, but the chances are he will get on the other side of it later.

Crime to Kiss.

In Russia it is a crime for lovers to kiss in public, and not very long ago two young men and two young women were arrested in Odessa for having been guilty of this offense. They had all been dining together in a restaurant, and kissed on parting. They were condemned to short terms of imprisonment, and the sentences were confirmed on appeal. The general fine in Russia for a kiss in the open street is 15 shillings, but in a tramcar it may cost anything up to 25 shillings.

Riga's Trade Distinction.

The growth in lumber shipments from Riga, totaling 97,400,000 cubic feet in 1910, ranks this port among the world's greatest timber exporters. The greater part of this trade was in sawed lumber. Britain took over half of the amount exported.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., N. Y.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majarity of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of both clover and timothy we find that, even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Primary Election Returns

DeForge 344; Schusse 207. For some reason or other we were unable to get the total vote cast for Nelson.

From returns received from points throughout the state it shows Eberhart a winner by a large majority, and the early returns indicate that Lee will possibly run second, Young third, Gorden fourth and Spooner and Falk about evenly devided on the tail end.

For Representative in Congress there is little doubt but what Steenerson will win out by a large mrjority with Peterson second and Battey trailing behind.

From early returns it is entirely probable that the following will be the winners in the state-wide primaries:

Governor—A. O. Eberhart.

United States Senator—Knute Nelson.

Congressman-at-large—James Manahan.

Lieutenant Governor—J. A. A. Burnquist.

Secretary of State—Julius Schmahl.

Attorney General—Lyndon Smith

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—Ira B. Mills and C. E. Elmquist.

County Superintendent.

VOTERS, I need your support. We are all working in this world for an honest living. Having lost a limb, I must rely on head-work to earn my way. This is the main reason why I am seeking the office of county superintendent. My life is dedicated to the noble work of educating to develop in the child that degree of intelligence; that breadth of mind, of perception and understanding; that habit of industry necessary to root out all aversions to labor; that knack of home making, of saving, of valuing little things; that love of accomplishing, of perseverance which overcomes all obsticles—all of which and more, so essential to progress and contentment are the needs of every child and should be demanded in their name for them.

ALBANY DeFORGE.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for reelection as Representativ ; in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past; put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulant schemes.

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents, and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world; I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of dispute among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity.

Mrs. Salem Majou who returned to her home at Crookston Wednesday of last week following a few days visit with her husband and daughter here, received a telegram a few hours following her return home conveying the sad news of the death of her father, which had occurred at his home in North Yakima, Washington. Owing to the long distance Mrs. Majou was unable to leave for Washington to attend the last rites of her father.

Ten million pounds of butter, more than ever before produced by Minnesota in 12 months, is the record for the last year, according to the forthcoming annual report of the state pure food and dairy commissioner, Joel G. Winkjer. The cause of this according to Mr. Winkjer, is largely the increase in co-operative creameries throughout the state. Commissioner Winkjer purposes to show by a compilation of values that the butter industry of the state is one of the most important of all agricultural pursuits. One of the chief advantages in raising stock and feeding the grain at home and selling the products, is that practically no soil fertility is removed from the farm whereas when the grain is shipped away immense quantities of fertilization are removed that can never be returned except in the form of commercial fertilization.

Mayor Bottineau went over to Red Lake Falls Wednesday.

It is said that apples may be kept two years by wrapping them in newspapers so as to exclude the air. The newspapers must, however, be one on which the subscription is paid in full, or the dampness resulting from the "due" will cause the fruit to spoil.

The result of the primary election as given in our last week's issue, as far as this county is concerned remains unaltered with the report of the townships not available last week. For the office of county superintendent. A. B. DeForge retains the lead by a big majority, as likewise did Charley Fellman over his opponent Mose Ducharme for the office of sheriff.

Everyone is requested to have the chimnies of their residences and business places cleaned as soon as possible to avoid any danger from fire. By order of the VILLAGE COUNCIL.

Work on the Hanson and Barzen elevator was completed last Saturday and it is now ready to receive grain anytime. However, the work just completed is only temporary as more improvements will be made to the building in the spring, which was unabled to be done this fall owing to the limited time. The construction crew left Saturday evening for Warroad where they will complete a similar job.

The heaviest snow fall ever recorded in this portion of Minnesota this time of the year fell during Tuesday night and a portion of Wednnsday, and a nice coating of that flowery substance to the extent of about 8 inches. This outburst of the weather man is not only locally but is general throughout different parts of the continent. Different parts of Canada have been visited by Jack Frost, also North Dakota and even penetrating the south as far as in the state of Nevada.

7:45. Praise Service, led by a superintendent and assisted by local choirs and singers.
8:00. "Sunday School Extension", or "Training Sunday School Teachers." A. M. Locker.
Offering for Sunday School Work"
Benediction.

HE NEEDED SYMPATHY—NIT.

MAN MASQUERADING AS CRIPPLE IS ONLY A DRUNKEN VAGRANT.

A cripple was parading around town Friday afternoon calling the attention of everyone he chanced to meet to the empty coat sleve that was dangling by his side and recited, as usual, a piteful story of his sad misfortune, of hunger and privitation, and asked in exchange for a few shoe laces any fair remuneration a sympathetic public felt disposed to give to a "poor cripple". After he had made a canvass of the town he indulged in a most healthy spree and was last seen occupying the whole sidewalk in his effort to get to the Soo depot, to board the train for Thief River from whence it is reported he came. A wonderful change had also transpired in his empty coat sleeve for there, lo! and behold, hung the limb that had been so cruelly torn from its socket and was supposed to be buried in the dumping ground.

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of great enterprises are men of great energy. Success today demands health. To ail is to fail. It's utter folly for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took" writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylvania, Ga., After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. IT'S RINGDAHL AND EBERHART

GOVERNOR'S RENOMINATION BY HANDSOME MAJORITY IS GENERALLY CONCEDED.

NELSON BY OVER 7,000.

Present Railroad Commissioners Win —Other Incumbents Probably Renamed, According to Returns.

Minneapolis. — Governor Adolph Eberhart climbed steadily in the returns received and the finish is expected to give him a plurality of at least 15,000. This may be added to before the close of the week.

On the Democratic side of the house, P. M. Ringdal of Crookston has prevailed by a vote of nearly three to one. His opponent, Prof. Charles M. Andrist of Minneapolis, did not prevail in a single county in the state on the returns so far received.

As noted in previous reviews of the returns received Secretary of State Schmahl continued to lead in the vote cast, with J. A. Burnquist, the candidate for lieutenant governor, a close second. On the Democratic ticket, Harvey Grimmer of Sauk Center, candidate for secretary of state, leads. Mr. Grimmer was executive clerk under the late Governor Johnson and is well known. He is now a traveling salesman for a St. Cloud printing concern.

Both Judge Mills and Mr. Elmquist showed their anxiety over the returns from the country. Rosenwald made a showing that was surprising and it may yet require the official canvass to determine who will represent the commission on the election ballot. Elmquist is in the greatest danger. Judge Mills has a lead in the country of 637 and Elmquist 609.

Secretary of State Julius Schmahl leads the Republican ticket, with J. A. A. Burnquist a close second. Attorney General Smith is third in the count.

Schmahl Always Safe.

Burnquist, according to the returns, simply ran away from his rival, D. M. Neill of Red Wing. He surged ahead from the start and has been keeping up the lead ever since. There never was any question regarding the nomination of Secretary of State Schmahl. Attorney General Smith will win out by a handsome majority.

Insurance Commissioner J. A. Preus, early in the game predicted that Governor Eberhart would prevail in 70 counties and his claim may be realized. His excellency had a substantial majority over all and the figure is growing. W. E. Lee and E. T. Young pressed him hard in country districts during the day, but the distance between Governor Eberhart and the two has since been considerably widened.

Lee won out in his own county, Todd, and has prevailed in Sherburne county. Here the vote was Lee, 405; Eberhart, 356. Young ran third in Sherburne county. Picked to give Governor Eberhart the run of his life, the vote given S. Y. Gordon takes on the pathetic. The slump was predicted days before the primary and it has been realized to its fullest extent. It is likely that Mr. Gordon will only carry his own county, Traverse. So far only eight precincts in Traverse county have been heard from and they give Gordon 323, Eberhart 120, Lee 59 and Young 19.

The iron range country was supposed to be Mr. Gordon's stamping ground. Here it was said that he would carry every county. St. Louis county, his chief hope, went against him heavily. The best he could do in the iron county was to play third.

Returns on first choice only from St. Louis county give Eberhart 2,726, Lee 1,212, Gordon, 1,043, Spooner 900, and Young 606. Gordon fell short of the claims of his managers in every section of the state.

Mr. Gordon's friends, among them Representative Knapp of Chisholm and James Arneson, announced that the Browns Valley man would be for the winner. They are unalterably opposed to a third ticket. If the vote cast Tuesday is any indication of the trend of sentiment, Chief Justice Start will have hard sliding. J. Alexander has pressed him hard in many precincts, though Judge Start has a decided lead in the returns so far received. It is Judge Stanton of Bemidji, however, who gives him the most trouble.

Stanton has made a showing that is remarkable. Stanton carried his own county overwhelmingly, though exact figures are not obtainable.

Showing the closeness of the vote between the two the following is given: Big Stone, Start 102, Stanton 229; Crow Wing, Start 174, Stanton 1,064; Goodhue, Start 1,268, Stanton 972; Murray, Start 329, Stanton 287; Rosseau, Start 101, Stanton 335; Stevens, Start 265, Stanton 253.

The State Ticket.

The ticket follows, the Republican being found first:

United States Senator—Knute Nelson, Alexandria—D. W. Lawler, St. Paul.

Representative-at-large — James Manahan, St. Paul—Carl J. Buell, St. Paul.

Governor—A. O. Eberhart, Mankato—Peter M. Ringdal, Crookston.

Lieutenant Governor—J. A. A. Burnquist, St. Paul—Winn Powers, St. Paul.

Secretary of State — Julius A. Schmahl, Redwood Falls—Harvey Grimmer, Sauk Center.

Treasurer—Walter J. Smith, Eveleth—Henry P. Wessel, St. Paul.

Attorney General—Lyndon A. Smith Montevideo — William A. Donohue, Melrose.

Railroad Commissioner (four years) Ira B. Mills, Moorhead—Andrew French, Plainview.

Railroad Commissioner (six years), Charles E. Elmquist, Rush City—J. N. Gaynor, Litchfield.

The non-partizan ticket is:

Chief Justice—Charles M. Stanton, Bemidji.

Chief Justice—Charles M. Start, Rochester.

Associate Justice—Oscar Hallam, St. Paul; George L. Bunn, St. Paul; Andrew Holt, Minneapolis.

Congressional Ticket.

First District—Republican, Sydney Anderson, Lanesboro, renominated; democratic, James Keating, Wabasha.

Second District—Republican, F. F. Ellsworth, Mankato; democratic, W. S. Hammond, St. James, renominated.

Third District—Republican, Charles R. Davis, St. Peter, renominated; democratic, Frank L. Glotzbach, Faribault.

Fourth District — Republican, Fred C. Stevens, St. Paul, renominated; democratic, J. J. Regan, St. Paul.

Fifth District — Republican, George R. Smith, Minneapolis; democratic, Einar Hoidale, Minneapolis.

Sixth District — Republican, C. A. Lindberg, Little Falls, renominated; democratic, A. J. Gilkinson, Osakis.

Seventh District—Republican, A. J. Volstead, Granite Falls, renominated.

Eighth District — Republican, Clarence B. Miller, Duluth, renominated; democratic, John Jenswold, Jr., Duluth.

Ninth District—Republican, Halvor Steenerson, Crookston; public ownership, M. A. Brattland, Ada.

Stewart has the best of it on partial returns from Murray county and Wright county. In Goodhue county, he received 934 votes. In Rosseau county he distanced the chief justice.

Associate Justices.

In the case of the associate justices, Hallam of St. Paul is ahead of Judge Bunn of the same city. Both will go on the regular ballot, however, as will Judge Holt of Minneapolis. The latter, while without opposition, is in an embarrassing position according to the wise ones, because of the fight between Judges Bunn and Hallam. St. Paul, it is expected, will divide its vote between its home jurists and Judge Holt will naturally suffer as a result.

Dodge county complete gave Eddy 312 and Manahan 211. Murray, also complete, gave Eddy 216 and Manahan 211. Washington county, complete, however, reduced this lead somewhat. Here Eddy received 452 and Manahan 654. Manahan leads in Meeker county where he received 657 votes to 341 for Eddy. Stevens county gave Eddy 249 and Manahan 115. In Faribault county the vote was Eddy 320 and Manahan 380.

Thorpe and Eustis are divided as to third place in the race for congressman-at-large. Only a fraction of the voters availed themselves of the second choice provision in the case of governor and as a result it will have little effect into the finals on congressman-at-large, but the lead now held by Governor Eberhart will be in no way affected.

Thomas Fraser, candidate for attorney general against Lyndon A. Smith, lost out in practically every county of the state. In the country districts his biggest vote was in Goodhue. Here he received 1,463 votes to 1,676 for Smith. In Dodge county he ran Mr. Smith close, receiving 615 votes to 617 for Smith. Complete returns have not been received from the home county, Olmstead.

Kenyon Is Well Received.

Northwod, Iowa. — Senator Kenyon is very popular in the northern part of the state. Thursday he spoke at the Worth county fair and although the rain fell during his entire speech, sixteen hundred people heard him clear through his argument. A canvas was thrown above the junior senator and he was protected from the rain while he spoke. He states that the situation, so far as he was concerned, was all that he could expect. The divided party cannot hope to present the front it could were they united.

Father of Orozco Captured.

Washington, D. C. — The United States will hold Colonel Pascual Orozco, Sr., father of the Rebel general, with any other captured Mexican rebels probably for deportation to Mexico. No charges of violations of the neutrality laws are pending against either, and their position is the same as that of any of their men.

General Orozco, however, if captured, would be held for the Mexican government, which is prepared to ask for his extradition to face charges of embezzlement.

Wisconsin Electors Resign.

Madison, Wisconsin. — Colonel John Hicks of Oshkosh, and Algot C. Anderson of Menominie have formally resigned to the secretary of state as presidential electors on the Republican ticket for Wisconsin.

$20,000 Fire at Wausau, Wis.

Wausau, Wisconsin.—Fire in the Northern Milling company's flouring mill caused damage estimated at $20,000, partly covered by insurance. The mill is one of the oldest on the Wisconsin river.

Forty Indictments in a Day.

Detroit, Michigan. — Forty indictments against 32 persons were returned by a jury in federal court here. Twenty people are charged with white slavery. Prominent among the other cases is an indictment charging William Ferguson, a cripple, with murder on the high seas. Ferguson must stand trial for the shooting of Canadian Immigration Inspector Herbert, which occurred several weeks ago on a ferry between Detroit and Windsor. The punishment under the United States law is death.

Maybrayite Pleads Guilty.

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—H. K. Robine, formerly a barber of this city, pleaded guilty in the federal court to having been a party to swindling operations aggregating $10,000, in which J. C. Maybray and his associates were the principals.

G. O. P. Men Are Suspected.

New York, New York.—The special meeting of the Republican national committee called to take action in the case of members who are suspected of Roosevelt leanings is being held.

FOOD PRICES GROW

BUREAU OF LABOR DECLARES ADVANCE HAS BEEN 50 PER CENT IN LAST 10 YEARS.

CONSIDERS 16 ARTICLES.

Investigation Took in Coal and Most Important Necessities—Bacon Only Commodity that Decreased.

Washington, D. C. — The most marked upward trend of the cost of living is disclosed in the federal bureau official's labor report of an investigation of prices for the past 10 years conducted in the important industrial centers of 32 states. Fifteen most important articles of food, as well as coal, comprising two-thirds of a workingman's needs, were investigated.

On June 15, 1912, the report shows, 14 of the 15 articles of food were higher than a year before, and 10 had advanced in the past 10 years more than 50 per cent over the average retail price for the 10 years' period, 1890-1899.

During the last decade prices of potatoes changed most and sugar the least. Their advances were 111.9 and 8.5 per cent respectively. During the last year, bacon, which decreased just one-tenth of one per cent, was the only one of the 15 principle articles of food that showed a decline in price, while nine of the 15 advanced more than 10 per cent, varying from 2.4 per cent for milk to 18.6 for round steak. Of the 15, only eggs, butter, milk and sugar were lowered.

Reports from Cities.

Specimens of the statements of merchants in various cities, published in the report follow:

New York — Meats in general are so high that if prices continue much longer we will be obliged to close up business. Have lost about $200 since advance in prices.

Chicago—Jobbing price on flour has advanced 80 cents per barrel, and unless there is a decline in the near future retail prices will advance.

Salt Lake City—Everything seems to be at the top, but nothing shows any decline.

Showing in Last Year.

This was the showing made for the food prices in the last year, according to the report, on the foods investigated:

Decrease in price: Smoked bacon, 1 per cent.

Increase in price: Fresh milk 2.4; smoked ham, 2.7; hens, 3.8; granulated sugar, 6; Irish potatoes, 7.6; wheat, flour, 10.7; pork chops, 11.2; pure lard, 11.3; strictly fresh eggs, 11.8 1-8; cornmeal, 12.7; creamery butter, 15.3; sirloin steak, 17; rib roast, 17.5; round steak, 18.6.

The advance during the period, comparing the price June 15 last with the average for the ten years, was as follows:

Granulated sugar, 8.5 per cent; strictly fresh eggs, 26.1; fresh milk, 32.9; creamery butter, 33.3; wheat, flour, 39.3; pure lard, 55.3; hens, 58.1; sirloin steak, 59.5; smoked hams, 61.3; cornmeal, 63.7; rib roast, 63.8; round steak, 84; pork chops, 86; smoked bacon, 96.7; Irish potatoes, 111.9.

The price of coal on April 15, as compared with a year before was higher for Pennsylvania anthracite, stove size, in 25 out of 29 cities. During the same period, Pennsylvania anthracite, chestnut size, advanced in 25 out of 27 cities; and bituminous advanced in 17 out of 32 cities, the price remained unchanged in 12 cities and declined in 3 cities.

The net price of gas for household use on April 15, compared with the previous year, showed that reductions ranged from 5 to 15 cents for manufactured gas among 54 companies in 36 cities and practically unchanged among the natural gas plants.

Horse Disease in Pastures.

Pierre, South Dakota.—Secretary Sellers of the governor's department is keeping in close touch with the outbreak of horse disease in Bon Homme county, and has secured the assistance of government veterinarians.

To Control Aviation Abroad.

London, England.—The death of H. J. D. Astley by the fall of his aeroplane at Belfast has given impetus to the movement to found a national aviators' league. Astley was the 20th British airman to lose his life.

WEIGHT OF LOAD FOR HORSE

Should Not Be Asked to Pull More Than One-Tenth of Its Weight—Cost of Marketing.

(By PROF. R. M. DOLVE, North Dakota Agricultural College.)

Since horses use their weight in pulling they should be loaded in proportion to their weight, and observers are agreed that for hauls over country roads a horse is properly loaded when exerting a pull on the traces equal to one-tenth of his weight. For a team of 1,600-pound horses this would be exerting a pull of 320 pounds and if it requires a 140-pound pull to haul a ton on an average level country road they would haul about 21-3 tons. In order to haul this load up a 6 per cent. grade they would have to exert a pull equal to one-fourth their weight, which is an exhaustive pull and should not be much exceeded, especially if the hill is long. If the hill had a 10 per cent. grade the load would havo to be reduced to 1,690 pounds or nearly three tons less in order to keep the pull up the grade equal to one-fourth the weight of the horses.

Statistics show that it costs over 20 cents per ton-mile to market farm products, so that if the distance to market was five miles it would cost $1 to market a ton when the road is level or contains not more than a 6 per cent. grade.

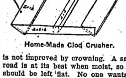
Assuming that is would take as long to haul the small load of 1,600 pounds necessitated by the 10 per cent. grade as it does to haul the larger load, the cost of marketing a ton would be increased to $2.25, or an increase of $1.25 because of the grade.

MAINTENANCE OF GOOD ROADS

Best Method Is by Systematic Use of Road Drag—Old Way Is Very Strongly Condemned.

No earth road can be maintained in good condition unless it be so constructed as to drain well and unless it be kept free from ruts and holes.

The best method of maintaining an earth road, especially a prairie road, is by the systematic use of the road drag. A sand road is never good under any circumstances, but certainly is not improved by crowning. A sand road is at its best when moist, so it should be left flat. No one wants a sand road; so, if possible, clay should be added to and mixed with the sand, making what is known as a sand clay road.



Home-Made Clod Crusher.

The old way, and it is used today by many, of filling a mud hole with brush with a little earth on top, cannot be too strongly condemned, and is only permissible in cases of emergency, when it is impossible to drain the hole or to get sand or stone to fill it. The overseer or foreman should in dry weathre center this work on such places until the road is raised to a sufficient height to drain well. Many overseers have brush hauled two miles to fill a mud hole when sand is within shoveling distance of it.

The illustration shows a home-made clod crusher, which is self-explanatory.

Garden Fertilizers.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is the best garden fertilizer. For late crops it is not necessary that it be thoroughly decayed, as there is time for it to decay before the plants need it. Nitrate of soda and some other commercial fertilizers are occasionally used for special crops, and will probably have to be used more by market gardeners thereafter on account of the difficulty in getting stable manure.

Concrete as Corn Saver.

A good way to make a start with the use of cement on the farm is to build a concrete feeding floor for hogs. If every farm could have a good feeding floor of some kind, it would mean the saving of many bushels of the corn crop.

Cross-Bred Tomatoes.

A test repeated for four years at the New York agricultural experiment station, Geneva, shows a decided gain in the yield by growing tomato plants from seeds produced by crossing two varieties.

Blanching Early Celery.

Blanch the early varieties of celery by banking them with soil. Boards, or even paper, can be used in place of soil. These are easier, quicker and as good in many respects.

Good Roads & Farm Notes

Manure is one of the by-products of the dairy farmer and it represents a decided profit.

From the time corn tassels out until it becomes ripe it increases its dry matter five-fold.

Hay stacked in the open loses 20 per cent. of its value by spoiling on the sides and bottom.

Better to have two small silos, than one too large. You can feed with less waste from a small silo.

It does not pay to devote high-priced land, for long periods to pasturage and the production of hay.

Rotation allows or assists nature to repair her waste places and incidentally facilitates the war with weeds.

Fall plowing of field areas will often be of service in controlling cut worms that are affecting field crops.

Mow the weeds along the road, thus preventing their seeding and also removing an eye-sore to the traveling public.

Do not build a silo less than 30 feet high if possible to avoid it. Depth gives solidity and keeping quality to the silage.

A CHECK TO RHEUMATISM

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Build Up the Blood and Overcome the Rheumatic Poisons.

Rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully.

Unless the blood is weak and impure, rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does the thin and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome the poisons alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood-building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains.

Mr. A. Hamann, a farmer on R. F. D. No. 2, Eldridge, Iowa, says: "I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for indigestion and rheumatism from which I suffered for over six years. As these attacks came on every spring, I think they were caused by impure blood. The rheumatism was always more severe in my ankles and knees and especially in my arms, when I had been husking corn or working hard. The pains were so severe that I could hardly sleep at night. I used liniments of many kinds, but they didn't do more than drive the pain to some other part of the body and I did not get any relief from the doctor's medicine.

"When I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in our weekly paper I made up my mind to try a medicine that had actually cured some one else. A few boxes cured me and I think so much of the pills that I keep them in the house to use as a tonic. My wife finds them strengthening and we think the pills are the best medicine for the blood."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the blood's greatest aid in overcoming rheumatism, headaches, anæmia, chlorosis, and after-effects of the grip and fevers.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Adv.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS

Board of County Commissioners Red Lake County.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota,
September 10th, 1912.

On the call of the County Auditor pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 230 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1905, and acts amendatory thereof the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, State of Minnesota met in special session at the office of the County Commissioners in the Court House, in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, on Tuesday the 10th day of September, A. D. 1912, at 10 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of hearing and considering the report of the Engineer in the matter of the repair of County Ditch No. 12 also known as Red Lake Falls Ditch No. 1, said repair Job being petitioned for by Napoleon Constant.

Meeting called to order by the Chairman at 10 o'clock A. M.

Members present: Hunt, Demann, Pigeon and Schultz,

Members absent, Kankel.

The matter of the repair of County Ditch No. 12 also known as Red Lake Falls Ditch No. 1 was taken up and the arguments of all parties interested for or against the repairing of the said Ditch were heard.

On motion made by Commissioner Pigeon duly seconded by Commissioner Demann the report of the Engineer was accepted by unanimous vote of the Board and the following order for the repair of County Ditch No. 12, also known as Red Lake Falls Ditch No. 1 was made.

Order to Repair Ditch.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
County of Red Lake,

In the matter of the petition of Napoleon Constant and others for the repair of County Ditch No. 12, also known as Red Lake Falls County Ditch No. 1.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the County Board of Red Lake County, State of Minnesota, at a meeting of said Board, duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for the repair of said ditch and the apportionment and assessment of the cost thereof, on the 10th day of September, A. D. 1912 at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day.

And it apearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon, and that the Civil Engineer appointed by this Board to ascertain the cost thereof, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the County Auditor of said County, said County Board did, at the time above specified, proceed to hear said petition and said Engineer's report thereon; and said Board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the repair of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

FIRST—That said Civil Engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

SECOND—That notice o fthis hearing of said petition and of said Engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the County Auditor of said County, and that all other proceedings in the ma-cordance with the provisions of law. ter have been made and taken in ac-

NOW THEREFORE, As conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the County Board of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at said sessions of said Board, held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed repair of said ditch is necessary for its maintainance and usefulness for the purpose for which it was constructed, and to enhance its usefulness for the purpose of drainage, do hereby order and direct that said ditch be repaired as prayed for in said petition and according to the report and the specifications of said Civil Engineer made and filed herein.

On motion duly carried the Board adjourned sine die.

NO TROUBLE IN COLLECTING

Lawyer Probably Was Willing to Pay More Than $10 Under the Circumstances.

A noted lawyer of Tennessee, who labored under the defects of having a high temper and of being deaf, walked into a court room presided over by a younger man, of whom the older practitioner had a small opinion.

Presently, in the hearing of a motion, there was a clash between the lawyer and the judge. The judge ordered the lawyer to sit down, and as the lawyer, being deaf, didn't hear him and went on talking, the judge fined him $10 for contempt.

The lawyer leaned toward the clerk and cupped his hand behind his ear.

"What did he say?" he inquired.

"He fined you $10," explained the clerk.

"For what?"

"For contempt of this court," said the clerk.

The lawyer shot a poisonous look toward the bench and reached a hand into his pocket.

"I'll pay it," he said. "It's a just debt."—Saturday Evening Post.

Passengers Had to Work Their Way.

A drummer and a friend climbed aboard a ramshackle train in an isolated Missouri town. The train was a feeble, asthmatic piece of mechanism, and the Humane society should have prosecuted its owners for allowing it to run at all.

It finally came to a dead stop just in the edge of town, and after a long interval of trying to make it go the engineer stuck his head in the door and bawled:

"Say, you two gents'll have to get out, till I git it started!"

CAREFUL DOCTOR

Prescribed Change of Food Instead of Drugs.

It takes considerable courage for a doctor to deliberately prescribe only food for a despairing patient, instead of resorting to the usual list of medicines.

There are some truly scientific physicians among the present generation who recognize and treat conditions as they are and should be treated, regardless of the value to their pockets, Here's an instance:

"Four years ago I was taken with severe gastritis and nothing would stay on my stomach, so that I was on the verge of starvation.

"I heard of a doctor who had a summer cottage near me—a specialist from N. Y.—and as a last hope, sent for him.

"After he examined me carefully he advised me to try a small quantity of Grape-Nuts at first, then as my stomach became stronger to eat more.

"I kept at it and gradually got so I could eat and digest three teaspoonfuls. Then I began to have color in my face, memory became clear, where before everything seemed a blank. My limbs got stronger and I could walk. So I steadily recovered.

"Now after a year on Grape-Nuts I weigh 153 lbs. My people were surprised at the way I grew fleshy and strong on this food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

"There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest. Adv.

BIG ORE SHIPMENTS

MOVEMENT FROM LAKE SUPERIOR COUNTRY WILL AGGREGATE 50,000,000 TONS.

GREATEST YEAR OF ALL.

Mesaba Mine, Fee of Which Is Owned by State, Will Set a New Record for the Season.

Duluth.—Shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior region are being maintained at a volume that gives every indication of a movement for the season of better than 45,000,000 gross tons—the greatest outgo in the history of the mines.

With approximately 29,000,000 tons forwarded to the first of September, and with three months remaining of the period of inter-lake navigation, some observers see even prospects of a record falling but little under 50,000,000 tons. However, while some ore carriers doubtless will continue in commission until early in December, the fact that the big open-pit mines will begin suspending operations in November will make for a steady waning production a few weeks prior to the actual close of the season and will scale down the present monthly average materially.

The bulk of the shipments, of course, is being forwarded from the Mesaba district. The outgo from the older ranges is, however, running close to the high-water mark established in 1910—more ore, for instance, having been sent from Marquette in August than in any month in the hostory of the port—and in general stock piles will have been removed almost to the point of disappearance by the time that wintry conditions make further lake forwardings impossible.

Mesaba Mines Making Record.

Already far ahead of the production a year ago and considerably in advance of that of 1910, the shipments from the Mesaba mines, the fee of which is owned by the state of Minnesota, will set a new record this season. One of the largest of these is the Scranton property at Hibbing, operated by Pickands, Mather & Co., of Cleveland. The Scranton has been shipping from shaft and stock pile at the rate of eighty cars daily. This ore is going out over the United States Steel corporation's Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, whereas early in the season the Great Northern had the business. The product is a non-Bessemer hematite.

At the Buffalo mine at Hibbing four shovels are at work in the pit. As much as 300 carloads of ore daily are being sent from the Shenango Furnace company's Shenango property in the Hibbing district, the outgo having recently been doubled owing to the decision to operate at night as well as at day. Additional train and switching crews have been put on duty on the Mesaba road.

As busy as is this line, however, the Great Northern is busier. From its assembling yards at Kelly lake the Great Northern is moving to the docks at Superior 2,200 cars daily. More than 500 steel cars, newly turned out at the shops, have been added to the rolling stock lately, notwithstanding which the road is hard pressed to meet all the demands of shippers. Complaints are unavoidable, but arise, not so much from the car situation as from delay at the water front.

Spying Out More Ore.

On the western Menominee range, there is no cessation of exploratory work either in the Crystal Falls or the Iron River district. Options on desirable tracts are in demand. Among the most active explorers is the Steel corporation, the lands of the Michigan Iron & Land company, held by it under option, receiving its particular attention.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

Thirty-sixth Convention to Convene in St. Paul Friday.

St. Paul. — Sessions of the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Minnesota Women's Christian Temperance union will be held at the First Methodist Episcopal church in St. Paul Sept. 20 to 24. The convention will open with a reception and banquet at the church, Friday evening. Miss Rozette Hendrix, state president, will preside as toast mistress and Rev. Charles N. Pace, Mrs. E. W. Randall, Miss Mary Cramsie, Hugh McLeod, Benjamin Beulke, Miss Eva Jones and Mrs. Edith Smith Davis, will give short after-dinner talks.

Monday afternoon will be the institute session and different subjects pertaining to the policies of the organization will be discussed. In the evening there will be a demonstration of the work of local departments and the district jubilee.

Lose Chickens, Form Posse.

Mankato.—Armed with shotguns and constituting a posse, farmers surrounded and captured a man who, they allege, has been stealing poultry. Their losses aggregate several hundred dollars, they say. They trailed the man into the bushes five miles north of Lake Crystal, where he was surrounded and at the point of the weapons forced to surrender. The man is said to go under the names of H. G. Brewer and H. G. Palmer. He had no fowls in his possession when captured.

Windom.—The visiting nurse advocated by the university extension course last June has become a reality for Windom. Through the efforts of the women, committees were appointed and sufficient subscriptions guaranteed to insure success in financing the undertaking. The board of education has contributed liberally and the work will be directed through school inspection as a means to control the spread of any contagious disease in the community. A committee, of which H. C. Beise is chairman, has been appointed to secure a nurse.

JAMES J. HILL.

HILL IS HONORED.

Twelve Hundred Act as Hosts to Empirt Builder.

St. Paul.—All St. Paul, a representative part of the big Northwest and distinguished men from all parts of the United States Monday night honored James J. Hill, the Northwest's big man, who could forsee and who built as he foresaw. It was Mr. Hill's seventy-fourth birthday.

Such a birthday party had never been seen hereabout. It seldom has been equaled in its magnitude, spontaneous enthusiasm and obvious sincerity. The auditorium was gorgeously decorated. A band played. The 1,200 hosts to Mr. Hill sang and cheered ecstatically. Some speakers poured forth flattering laudation of the honor guest; some gave sober, business-like, impressive analyses of his commercial genius and personal popularity and philanthropies.

Through it all Mr. Hill sat smiling happily, now leading an unfollowed cheer for a friend or associate whose name crept into the talk of empire building in the Northwest, now deprecating with violent gesture of negation some bit of superlative praise. At times when he smiled it was through swimming eyes.

Mr. Hill himself celebrated his birthday by doing rather more work than usual. Nominally, he has retired from the Great Northern railway system, successively as president of the road and chairman of the board, giving place to his son and confidant, Louis W. Hill, whom the Northwest knows as "Jim Hill's son who has made Jim Hill's dreams come true." But only nominally has the elder Hill retired. Those who know him best say he never will retire any other way.

The climax to the dinner came with the presentation by William B. Dean, vice-president of the Second National bank, of a loving cup to Mr. Hill as a remembrance of the occasion. Mr. Dean and Mr. Hill, friends for fifty-six years, upon facing each other for this ceremony, brought down upon the 1,200 men seated in the Auditorium a silence almost profound. Mr. Dean, in an uncertain voice, told Mr. Hill that the cup represented the love of the people of St. Paul for him.

DULUTH SERVICE GOOD.

Company Claims That the Strikers Are Returning.

Duluth. — The street carmen's strike situation is quiet and even the customary shouts of derision at the strike breakers on the cars are not forthcoming.

The service is better than Sunday night. As far as can be learned, fares turned in to the company are very meager and the strike breakers are waxing rich, it is alleged. According to the "student" employes they cannot be held for larceny when they do not ring up the fares.

General Manager Warren said that the city is getting as good service as could be expected under the conditions and that cars would be run until midnight if no demonstration of violence were in evidence.

He declared that more of the men had asked to be taken back and that those who had not been active to the detriment of the company would be reinstated shortly.

Secretary Mackin, of the carmen's union declares that the strike is far from being settled. He said there are 160 conductors and motormen and 60 car repairers still out. Fourteen men have returned to work on cars according to the union; 40 men returned according to General Manager Warren.

North Dakota Postmaster Arrested.

St. Paul. — Frank Foster, postmaster at Bessie, North Dakota, was arrested by officers connected with the secret service department in St. Paul. Foster is charged with a shortage of $330 in the money order funds of the office.

St. Paul Woman Loses Life.

Center City.—Mrs. Ambrose Grout, oldest daughter of Mrs. Adelaide Messenger, 26 West Tenth street, St. Paul, was drowned in Chisago lake here. The mother and daughter were spending the week-end at their cottage and had gone out on the lake in a rowboat. Mrs. Grout began to pull up the anchor preparatory to returning to shore, when she stepped on her dress and the boat tipped, filling with water. The women began to bail, but the boat overturned and sank in seven feet of water.

Bemidji Pressman Killed.

Bemidji. — Earnest Anderson, 23 years old, a pressman, was crushed to death in the Pioneer office. Anderson had adjusted the mechanism beneath the press and was crawling out when a young woman press feeder started the machine, catching the plunger of the air chamber, catching Anderson in the stomach. This is the third tragic death of young men in Bemidji within a month. Deputy Sheriff Helmer was shot and Vinton Ellis was drowned.

FOR DELINQUENT ONES.

Minnesota Club Women to Work for Reformatory.

Minneapolis.—If Minnesota club woman have their way, Minnesota will have a state reformatory for Minnesota delinquent women. Minnesota club women years ago started a move to that effect, but the efforts were sidetracked, owing to the work for the girls' training school at Sauk Center, but Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson, the vice president-at-large of St. Peter, will take the matter before the annual convention of the M. F. W. C. in Dodge Center this week.

The Minnesota federation is honor bound to give this project its support, because at the time the vote was for united efforts in behalf of a school for delinquent girls, it was done with the distinct understanding that at the suitable time the federation would pledge itself body and soul to work for a reformatory for women.

When Mrs. E. M. LaPenotiere was president of the federation a reformatory committee was organized of which Mrs. G. O. Welch, Mrs. A. C. Rogers and Mrs. Tomlinson were the members and a bill was ready to be presented before the legislature for the establishment of such a reformatory, the committees of the state charities and correction and the board of control fully approved, and the work will now be resumed where it was dropped in 1904.

The federation will not have the reformatory known under this name, but suggests that it be known as a "social hospital for delinquent women."

Many of the club women left today for Dodge Center, for the morning sessions of the executive board and the board of directors are early tomorrow morning. It is expected that about six hundred delegates will be at the convention, which begins tomorrow morning and concludes Friday at noon.

330 ENROLL AT CARLETON

Record Attendance at the Congregational College at Northfield.

Northfield. — The attendance at Carleton college is the largest ever known and regular work has been started in all departments. At the opening exercises Dean Luther A. Weigle announced that the preliminary registration was the largest on record, 330 having enrolled.

The total enrollment is expected to be more than 350. Of the number enrolled 125 are freshmen. These figures do not include the enrollment in the conservatory of music where thirty students have entered with more expected.

Changes in, and additions to the faculty have also been announced. In the biology department the work will be in charge of James Ewing, of the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, Prof. Neil S. Dungay having been granted a year's leave of absence. The work in the German department will be directed by Dr. Axel E. Vestling, of Yale. In this department also will be Dr. Ray A. Sigsbee, who holds a degree from the University of Heidelberg. Dr. C. H. Gingrich has returned, after a year's absence, to take up his work as associate professor of mathematics and astronomy.

YOUNG MEN DROWNED.

Sivright and Lyon, Sons of Officials, Lose Lives.

Hutchinson.—Guy Sivright, son of W. W. Sivright, one of the managers of the Minnesota State Agricultural society, and Myron Lyon, son of Dr. H. C. Lyon, a member of the state livestock sanitary board, were drowned in Lake Marion, eight miles south of here.

Sivright was 27 and a member of the firm of W. W. Sivright & Son, implement dealers. He was president of the Union club of Hutchinson. Lyon was 25 years old and a bookkeeper in the Citizens' bank. Both were Masons.

They had been camping with young people on the shores of Lake Marion. About 8 a. m. they set out in a canoe, saying they were going bathing. That was the last seen of them alive.

Several members of the party rowing on the lake saw Lyon's hat floating on the water. They thought it queer and a search was made for the young men. Soon their canoe was found. The searchers returned to shore and notified others. The lake was dragged and both bodies recovered. How the drownings happened is only a matter of conjecture. Sivright was an excellent swimmer. Both young men were single.

Plunge of Auto Injures Four.

Mankato, Minnesota.—Four persons were injured when a big touring car slid over an embankment and went rolling to the bottom, 75 feet. Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Roust and son, Joseph, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Scott, all well known Belgrade farmers, composed the party.

Antietam Will Be Recalled.

St. Paul. — The half century anniversary of the battle of Antietam, in which the First Minnesota took part, was celebrated by the survivors at the old capital. The veterans held a business session and the proposition was discussed to ask the next Legislature for an appropriation to take the survivors to Gettysburg for the national celebration which takes place there July 1 next. The gathering was the fiftieth anniversary of the great battle.

Northfield.—Officials of the Rice County Agricultural association are making elaborate plans for the annual Rice county fair, which will be held in this city September 26, 27 and 28. Work on the new stock building is being rushed, and it is hoped to have it completed in time for the fair. One of the strongest features of the fair will be the lectures by experts from the extension division of the college of agriculture of the University of Minnesota. Prof. Andrew Boss will be in charge [illegible]

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Hairy Food.

A traveling man stopped at a hotel recently, said the Cassody Times. He found a hair in the honey. He went to the proprietor and kicked. "I can't help it," said the landlord. "I bought it for combed honey." The next day the traveling man found a hair in the ice cream, but the landlord said that was all right, as the ice had been shaved. Again he found a hair in the apple pie. This surprised the landlord greatly. "Why," said he, "they told me those apples were Baldwins."—Kansas City Journal.

The Case.

"How did it happen that Jopps did not keep the good position he had?"

"On one important occasion he lost his head."

"How did that happen?"

"It was cut off."

A Guess.

"Why did Maud want to go into the garden, sir?"

"I suppose, dear child, she thought Sweet William was there."

Willie's Strategy.

"Uncle George, I wish you wouldn't give Willie any more nickels."

"Why, that's all right, Jane. The little fellow ran right up the front stairs to put the coin in his savings bank."

"And he ran right down the back stairs to the nearest candy shop."

GENUINE
DURHAM
Smoking Tobacco
SMOKING TOBACCO

The story of a muslin sack

THE real wonder-story of the tobacco that is smoked by more millions of men than all other high-grade tobaccos combined—

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Forty "rollings" in each 5c muslin sack

In quaint old Durham, North Carolina—that's where the story starts.

That's where those golden leaves first grew in the sunny fields of Greene's farm. That's where they first filled those simple muslin sacks with good, sweet, native tobacco—fifty-two years ago.

No thought then of fancy packages—nor of "processes" for improving on Nature.

Just surprisingly good tobacco! That was what they had discovered—that was what interested those critical Southern smokers who gave a rousing welcome to "Bull" Durham as the greatest tobacco they had ever tasted.

And then the soldiers came. They came—and smoked—and were captured!

Scattering to their homes all over the nation they carried the fame of this wonderful smoke.

Wasn't that Durham postmaster busy with letters from up and down the land asking how to get more of that "Bull" Durham!

And—for over half a century, just because it's so downright good—it's been earning and winning and holding new friends, both among pipe and cigarette smokers, faster than any other tobacco ever grown.

Faster! Twenty-two million pounds—352,000,000 packages—were sold and smoked last year! Yet this was merely the normal growth over the year before.

That sack might have been displaced by a fancy box. But the increasing millions of smokers who have an affection for this plain, convenient, muslin cover have shown that they want the value where it belongs—in the tobacco. You can't smoke the cover, and you can't get better quality for pipe or cigarette in the fanciest of packages.

"Bull" Durham has stood the long test. Its purity, its natural, undoctored goodness as a smoke, have held and splendidly multiplied its friends—have won for it the leadership over all the tobaccos of the world.

Fodder Corn

Owing to the fact that so much land has been sold during the past season in this country to actual settlers that are moving here this spring and the majority of these being unimproved land the result will be that hay land will be more scarce than ever as also more people during the last two years have gone into the dairy business thus requiring about twice the amount of hay that was used in former years so it would be well for the farmers to make arrangements for the feed as early as possible, and having recently made a trip thru a certain dairy district in the southern part of the state, where there, of course is no wild hay but an abundance of, both clover and timothy we find that even there the farmers are prefering the fodder corn to the tame grass and that about the same amount of feed can be gotten from 10 acres of well cultivated fodder corn as they would get from 160 acres of either clover and timothy besides being a great deal more nutrius and especially far better for mil cows for milk purposes. Even people now moving here that have no old fields on the land need not hesitate to put in fodder corn on the prairie sod broken this spring provided they will break it well and thoroughly disc it up and if given a good coat of old manure the result will still be better. We would advise the farmers figuring on planting fodder corn to make arrangements for the seed in good season and see to it that they are getting the right kind and best adapted to the country.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for reelection as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past; put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican—and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fraudulant schemes

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents; and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world; I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of dispute among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity.

CALL ON ADOLPH ALRICK.

AS TOLD BY MR. HOODSBARN

One Story Incloses Several Others Before He Gets to the End of His Tale.

"East Somerville—East Somerville!" shouted the brakeman.

As the words went rambling around in the brain of Mr. Hoodsbarn, he came upon a long-lost second cousin.

"That reminds me," said he to his fellow commuter, "I heard a mighty good little story last summer in a village down in Maine."

"So?"

"Yes. You see, a family had just moved to the village from back in the country, and before they were fairly settled they sent the boy to school. Boy went to the school, and took a seat, feeling like a cat in a strange garret. After the morning exercises were over the teacher called him up and asked him his name. That's the way they did when I was a boy. First morning of school, you know; new teacher nervous and afraid of scholars; scholars nervous and afraid of teacher; like the little girl who met the fox in the path; both ran, girl one way, fox the other; see it done myself every day.

"Well, the new teacher would rap to order, then each one of us would read a verse from the Testament in turn, the teacher would make a prayer and then begin the taking down of names and ages.

"Now while I think of it, did you ever hear about that prayer of old Pres. Hill of Harvard?

"No? Well, he was a great student of philosophy—it was his regular hobby—and he stood up in chapel one morning and began his prayer this way: 'Paradoxical as it may seem, O Lord, yet, nevertheless it is true—' That caught the boys, and for years afterward tough statements to one another were always started by saying 'Paradoxical as it may seem.'

"Why, 'twas like old Seth Willard up in Swanzey; he down on his knees in class meeting in the Methodist church one night and says: 'As Thou well knowest, O Lord, my sparked steer died last week.'

"Well, about that new boy in school; whether the teacher called him up before prayer or after I can't say; but she asked him his name and he told her; his street and number and he told her. Then she asked him what his father's occupation was.

"Boy was stuck for a minute. 'Father's occupation?' 'Yes.' 'Well, ma'am, I ain't sure, 'cause we've just moved here, but I think he occupied five rooms.'"

Minneapolis. — From 3,500 to 4,500 physicians attend the annual meetings of the American Medical association, which will meet in Minneapolis in June, 1913, and they bring with them members of their families who swell the numbers of visiting guests to about 7,000.

Brainerd.—Henry Blackwood, aged 25 and married, one of the members of the racing chemical engine crew, who was run over on the Fourth of July at Deerwood, when he slipped from his place in the ranks, died of his injuries, death being due to a fractured skull.

"When seals were taught to do tricks, balancing and to whirl flaming torches, and ordinary barnyard cocks crowed a duet at the command of a trainer, we thought the highest point in that commercially valuable line of education had been reached," says a writer in a Berlin paper. "But a new 'first place' has been created for a grass-green cockatoo. This educated member of the parrot family rides a tiny bicycle at command and seems to enjoy the sport. He does many tricks for which professional riders receive applause. The same collection of animal wonders' contains a monster lion, which is shown in a cage provided with a grand piano. A woman trainer enters, seats herself at the instrument and strikes a chord, at which the lion leaps upon the piano and glares at the pianist. Then she plays, and the lion roars in time with the music. What next?"

After trying several devises it was finally forced to vacate the puddle and was ohereafter taken to the town pump and given a shower bath.

As soon as the harvest is giving leisure to the men who have been working hard all summer, they should think about their winter sleeping quarters. According to the state Anti-Tuberculosis society, much of the consumption which attacks country residents is aided by poor ventilation in the bed room. Everyone needs plenty of fresh air when he sleeps, and with blankets on the bed, you will be warm enough if the windows are open, even in the coldest weather. Storm windows should be put on hinges so they can be opened during the night. Thousands of people all over the state are sleeping in the open air all the time on sleeping porches. These are open on three sides, shut off from the house and have given renewed energy to every one who has used them. Fresh air will prevent as well as cure tuberculosis.

Saves Leg of Boy

"It seems that my 14-year old boy would have to loose his leg, on account of an ugly ulcer caused by a bad bruise," wrote D. F. Howard, Aquone, N. C. "All remedies and doctors treatment failed till we tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and cured him with one box." Cures burns, boils, skin eruptions, piles. 25c at all druggists.

Everyone is requested to have the chimnies of their residences and business places cleaned as soon as possible to avoid any danger from fire. By order of the VILLAGE COUNCIL.

HELPS WOMAN IN BAD LUCK.

Woman Stranded Here With Four Small Children Is Helped by Our Citizen.

A Finnish woman and four small children arrived here Thursday evening of last week, hailing from some point on the Iron Range, with the intention of joining her husband here only to find that through some misunderstanding he was not here to keep his appointment. As the woman could not speak a word of English her predicament was not learned for some time. Friends suspecting that she was in some trouble got busy and secured an interpreter and through him learned of the woman's sad state of affairs; learned how she had left her home on the Iron Range with the understanding to join her husband at this point only to find that he was not here to meet here, that the trip had taken nearly all of the money in her possession and that she was almost penniless and a stranger in a strange land. Sympathetic friends took her in and fed her and the children while a search was made for her husband. He was finally traced to Kansas City, Missouri, and was there communicated with, but was unable to furnish the money necessary for the long trip.

Thursday evening Mayor Bottineau circulated a petition among the citizen in an endeavor to secure enough money to make it possible for her to make the trip to Kansas City, and secured in all about $40, an amount sufficient for the trip and incidental expenses, and the happy group departed on their long journey on the Soo flyer that evening.

The generosity of our citizen in this instance is highly commendable, both for the generous contributions towards the trip as well as for providing the poor unfortunates with all possible comfort during their stay here.

The woman's husband worked here about a month ago, having been with the crew of painters who painted the Hanson and Barzen Milling Company's Elevator this summer.

It is believed locally that a misunderstanding was responsible for the unfortunate incident and that attempted desertion was not the cause

SUCCUMBS AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Carl Hanson Dies Sunday Morning From Consumption at Age of 25 Years.

Last Sunday morning occured the death of Carl Hanson, son of Gustaf Hanson Stal, from consumption, death occuring at the parental home four miles south of town.

The deceased has been suffering for some time with a complication of pluresy and tuberculosis and the best of medical care could not prevail against the ravages of this dreaned disease, death coming as a relief after a long period of suffering.

Hanson was called from his earthly labors in the prime of manhood, being only 25 years of age. He leaves a large circle of admiring friends over whom his death has cast a cloud of intense sorrow and to his aged parents and only sister his demise means the loss of a dutiful and devout son and a beloved brother.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon.

DREDGEMEN'S DANCE SATURDAY

Large Attendance Is Expected for the Opening Dance of The Season.

The opening dance of the season will occur Saturday evening when the Dredgemen's Dance will be held in the city hall. This being the first dance of a series which are bound to follow it is nothing but reasonable to anticipated a large attendance. The committee in charge of the dance promises everyone who attend that nothing but the best of order will prevail and everyone can be assured of a good time.

The Red Lake Falls orchestra has been secured to furnish music for the occasion and the Plummer Hotel will be on deck to feed the hungry during the mid-night intermission.

The price of the tickets will be one dollar.

Notice to Taxpayers.

Please remember that the second half of the 1911 real estate tax must be paid before November 1st in order to avoid the 10 per cent penalty added that date.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Happenings That Are Making History —Information Gathered from All Quarters of the Globe and Given in a Few Lines.

Politics

Dissatisfaction with the prison reform policies of Gov. George W. P. Hunt of Arizona on the part of those opposed to the "honor system" and the liberal use of the executive's parole powers has led to an attempt to invoke the recall against the governor.

* * *

Congressman William Sulzer was nominated for governor of New York at Syracuse by the Democrats after a four-hour session that was filled with exciting events. Although Sulzer was really nominated by acclamation, the fourth ballot was completed in compliance with the statutes. Martin H. Glynn was nominated for lieutenant-governor.

* * *

President Taft made seven speeches in front of a talking machine. These speeches will be "canned," used in the campaign and filed away in the congressional library or state department files beside moving pictures of Mr. Taft.

Washington

"I asked no man to contribute to the campaign fund when I was elected president of the United States, and I wish to reiterate that Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou both assured me that no promise had been made as a return for any contribution. Neither they nor anyone else having authority asked me to act or refrain from acting in any matter while I was president because any contribution had been made or withheld. Gentlemen, could I put it more sweepingly?" In these words Theodore Roosevelt summarized his testimony at his hearing before the Clapp committee of the senate investigating campaign funds.

* * *

The state department at Washington gave permission to President Madero to transport a brigade of his troops from El Paso to a point near Del Rio on the Mexican frontier. The Madero government was informed that the rebels had massed at that point notwithstanding the frequent reports that the "northern half of Mexico had been pacified."

* * *

Domestic

The trustees of Bryn Mawr college, Bryn Mawr, Pa., which has just opened its twenty-eighth year, have decided to make it a resident institution, thereby limiting the number of students to 400.

* * *

Nearly four thousand United States troops were reviewed at Honolulu by Secretary of State Knox and Secretary of the Interior Fisher prior to the departure of the cabinet officers for Seattle on the cruiser Maryland.

* * *

A dangling rope from a balloon caught the leg of Lorenzo Howland, fifteen years old, as it ascended at Tuscumbia, Ala., manned by H. C. Petty, who was making his first flight there. The boy hung on until five hundred feet up, when both men fell to their death with an unopened parachute.

* * *

North-bound Kansas City Southern passenger train No. 4, en route from Port Arthur, Tex., to Kansas City, was held up and robbed by masked men, north of Poteau, Okla. Two safes in the express car were destroyed with nitroglycerin, the bandits escaping with $7,000.

* * *

John D. Archbold failed to respond to the subpoena served upon him to appear as a witness in the Waters-Pierce-Standard Oil litigation at New York, and was held "in default" by Commissioner Jacobs.

* * *

"You will never punish me again," said John Whitaker, a twelve-year-old boy at Pocatello, Idaho, as he fired a shotgun at his mother, killing her instantly. The boy had just been whipped for failure to assist in the family washing.

* * *

With fifty thousand persons watching him at the Interstate fair grounds at Trenton, N. J., Charles F. Walsh, making a special descent in a Curtiss biplane, fell to instant death about a quarter of a mile outside of the fair grounds.

* * *

The forward boiler tubes of No. 3 fireroom on the battleship Nebraska blew out while the vessel was under forced draft trial at Newport, R. I., but the prompt action of two water tenders in closing valves prevented injury to the crew.

* * *

George Shaw, a farmer of West Pelham, Mass., shot his wife, probably fatally, and then blew himself to pieces with dynamite, which he placed in a stump before sitting on the stump.

* * *

The twentieth international irrigation congress, in session in Salt Lake City, came to a close with a ball and reception. A large number of cities seek the next congress, Phoenix, Ariz., and Boise, Idaho, being among the last to present invitations.

A fine memorial to Carl Schurz was unveiled in New York, the German ambassador and other distinguished men taking part in the ceremony.

* * *

The national Irrigation congress elected Maj. Richard W. Young of Salt Lake City as the next president. Phoenix, Ariz., was chosen for the 1913 meeting of the congress.

* * *

With 50,000 persons watching him at the interstate fair grounds at Trenton, N. J., Charles F. Walsh, while making a descent in a biplane, fell to instant death. Practically every bone in his body was broken.

* * *

Kankakee, Ill., was attacked by the worst fire in its history, two city squares of buildings being practically destroyed and a loss of approximately $200,000 suffered. No lives were lost.

* * *

Fourteen persons were killed when the second section of the Boston-New York express, leaving New Haven, Conn., at 3:55, jumped the track at Naugatuck Junction. Many of the victims were burned to death.

* * *

By the use of railroad spikes laid in grooved rails at sharp curves sympathizers of the striking Duluth carmen sent four cars into the ditch. None of the passengers were injured, but service was disrupted.

* * *

Lieut. Robert Lounsberry, quartermaster in the First cavalry, Second squadron, was thrown from a horse at Fort Yellowstone, Wyo., and killed when a troop horse ran into his mount. Lieutenant Lounsberry three months ago married Miss Florence Earl of Lake Mills, Wis.

HUTCHINSON IS HOST

CELEBRATION IS ENLIVENED BY REPRODUCTION OF PIONEER DAYS.

6,000 PEOPLE ATTENDED.

Cavalry and Troops on Foot Add to The Gayety of The Occasion.—All is Success.

Hutchinson.—A mimic Indian uprising seemed to have placed this town in immediate danger, the second and last day of the semi-centennial celebration. Indians galloped through the street, but the people for miles around came by team and auto to the defense of the city.

Before the day was over fully 6,000 people were here, as the day was ideal and the roads fine. The soldiers camping in the public square were constantly firing and the din of battle was heard again after a quiet of 50 years.

Women Preserve Town.

It was due to the women 50 years ago that the town was not abandoned, and they were given appropriate honor in the program. The few families here at the time of the Indian outbreak were ready to go back East but for a petition signed and circulated by Mrs. Ellen Harrington, Mrs. Julia Ellis and Mrs. Sarah Harrington. Although picturesque and amusing floats were shown in the parade, the Indians, painted and decorated, and the soldiers on foot and horseback were the chief attraction and sent a thrill through both the old and younger generations. Calling for fair play, Frank Edy, former congressman, discussed the controversy between J. J. Hill and Dean Wood of the university agricultural college. He said: "Both are right and both are wrong."

The afternoon program was begun with appropriate exercises in the public square. A historic pageant was the feature of the day. The old prairie schooner occupied a place of honor in the parade, and decorated floats of various kinds illustrative of pioneer days were also shown.

Streets Illuminated.

Profuse electric illumination on all of the principal streets helped to add to the gayety of the occasion, and almost turned the night into day. The soldiers entertained the crowd during the evening with fancy drills. A company of cavalry made up of young men from the country paraded the principal streets, which together with the presence of the Fort Snelling troops gave Hutchinson a decidedly military appearance.

The celebration concluded with addresses in the public square by Capt. A. H. Reed of Glencoe, A. C. Baker of Brownton, Peter Hanson and others.

STATE LANDS LURE.

Back to the Farm Movement Shown by Auditor Iverson's Report.

St. Paul.—Minnesota state lands are not being bought by non-resident speculators, but by people who intend to farm them according to the report of State Auditor Iverson, on sales for the years 1911 and 1912.

The average number of acres sold to non-residents was 180 in 1911 and 188 in 1912; to residents of Minnesota counties other than in which the land was located, 157 acres in 1911 and 144 in 1912; to residents of the counties in which the land was located, 73 acres in 1911 and 77 in 1912. The general average was 112 in 1911 and 109 in 1912.

The total amount of sales in 1911 was $638,013.60, averaging $6.73 per acre, exclusive of timber, and in 1912 the total amount of sales was $1,087,499.14, averaging $6.46 per acre, exclusive of timber.

In 1911 there were 943 buyers of 94,745.76 acres of land, divided as follows: Non-residents of state 27,267 acres, Minnesota people non-residents of county 31,243.79 acres, and to residents of the counties 36,234.97 acres.

In 1912 there were 1,535 buyers of 168,270.95 acres, divided as follows: Non-residents of the state, 27,146.03 acres; Minnesota people non-residents of county, 72,798.09 acres, and residents of the county 68,326.93 acres.

These figures bear out the contention that outsiders are not grabbing the land for while in 1912 nearly twice as much land was sold, non-residents secured less than they did the preceding year and residents of the state bought more than twice as much.

Warrant Out for Missing Farmer.

Pipestone.—The authorities are looking for Fred Krockenmusz, a farmer residing south of Pipestone, who has disappeared. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, charging grand larceny in the first degree.

Suit to Annul Started.

Winona.—There has been a new development in connection with the construction of the three state highways in Winona county, the contracts for which were let to the Carlson & Prinz company. An application has been made to the district court for a writ of mandamus against County Auditor Winczewski and the company for an annulment of the contract on the ground that in submitting its bond the company furnished a bidders' bond, whereas the advertisement for bids called for a certified check.

Engineer Saves Three Children.

Brainerd. Minn. — Three young children were saved from death by the presence of mind of Engineer Tom Russell. While running 15 miles an hour, near the railroad shops here, Russell saw the three tots attempt to cross the tracks. Frightened at the sound of the engine's whistle the children, who were holding hands, stumbled and fell directly in front of the oncoming train. Russell reversed his engine and stopped his train only a car's length from the children.

FRED W. CARPENTER

Fred W. Carpenter, of Sauk Center, Minn., formerly secretary to President Taft, and now minister to Morocco, has been appointed minister to Siam in place of Hamilton King, who died recently.

HUTCHINSON'S BIG DAY.

Fiftieth Anniversary of Attack by Sioux Indians.

Hutchinson. — An exceedingly large crowd attended the opening of the 50th anniversary of the Sioux Indian massacre in Hutchinson. The feature of the day's celebration was the cornerstone laying of the new public school building which will be erected on the site where the old school building was burned by the Indians 50 years ago.

The principal address was made by Dr. George Edgar Vincent of the University of Minnesota. Carl A. Anderson, superintendent of county schools, H. L. Merrill, superintendent of city schools; George B. Aikon, state inspector of high schools and state superintendent of schools, B. Schultz, were also speakers at the cornerstone laying.

Carlos Avery, president of the Hutchinson school board, presided at the ceremonies connected with laying the corner stone. Dr. Vincent was given the honor of laying the corner stone and was assisted by O. W. Lundsten, secretary of the school board. The parade, which was one of the features, started through the main streets. It was headed by a large float on which was built a reproduction of the old school building burned 50 years ago.

ACCUSED OF ROBBERY.

Representative of Montenegro Held in Duluth.

Duluth.—Charged by the police with taking four thousand dollars from four estates left in his care, V. D. Nikolitch, royal Montenegrin general representative for the United States and Canada, was arrested here.

The consul upon being taken to jail declared that international law protects him from arrest by civil authority and threatens, it is said by the police, to invoke international law in his defense.

The charge against Nikolitsch is equivalent to grand larceny in the first degree. Nikolitsch waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury. In default of $1,500 bail he went to the county jail. Bonding companies caused his arrest. Chief of Police Troyer of Duluth swore to the complaint.

The prisoner claims that he has already written to Montenegro for 30,000 francs, equivalent to about $6,000, and that he will soon square up everything.

Creameries Thriving.

Cloquet.—The report of the three creameries of Carlton county for August show an excellent business. Cloquet has the newest creamery. In August, the second month of its operation, it made 4,547 pounds of butter, paying the highest price for butter fat in the county, 27.7 cents a pound. The present price is 30.5 cents. Barnum made 13,416 pounds of butter and paid to farmers for butter fat $3,316.18. The largest check to a farmer was made out to William Hass of Barnum for $57.35. The Moose Lake creamery made 4,241 pounds.

Two New Roads Nearly Ready.

Cloquet.—The new road running north frm Iverson and connecting with Cloquet by way of the state experimental forestry station is about completed. The government road from the city to the Indian villages north, construction of which is under the supervision of F. J. Adams, Indian farmer for the Fond du Lac reservation, will be finished in a week or ten days, and will be one of the best in the country, doing away entirely with the old road to the Indian village. An immense amount of road repairing has been done in Carlton.

To Draft Compensation Bill.

St. Paul.—Senator A. J. Rockne, chairman of the state senate committee which is to report a workingman's compensation act to the senate next winter, said that a meeting of the committee will be called for some day early in October, at the capitol. The other members are Senators Albert Schaller, Hastings; George H. Sullivan, Stillwater; J. P. Boyle, Eveleth, and Manley L. Fosseen, Minneapolis. The committee has collected copies of the statutes of other states on the subject.

Peculiar Accident Fatal.

Owatonna.—William Blazena, one of Steele county's most prominent farmers, was the victim of a fatal accident here. Blazena and his son, a young man, had been hunting and upon returning began to operate a corn shredder. The gun belonging to the boy was set at rest against the shredder and fell into the gearing and was discharged. The bullet entered the elder Blazena's head, killing him instantly. The son is almost frantic with grief as a result.

ORE PRODUCTIONS.

Shipments Will be Close to Fifty Million Tons.

Duluth.—Iron ore is still being forwarded from the Lake Superior mines at a racord-breaking rate. The indications point to a combined lake and rail outgo of close to fifty million gross tons. The nearest approach to a production so tremendous was the 43,400,000 tons sent out in 1910. With a full two months remaining of the season of interlake navigation, September is closing with the total shipments by water rising above the 36,000,000-ton mark.

Last year at the corresponding date the fleet had moved 24,600,000 tons, and in 1910, heretofore the banner season, 31,000,000 tons, with 11,000,000 or more tons to be moved by lake in October and November, and with the all-rail shipments for the year to be added to the outgo by water, the figures for 1912 will not fall much under fifty millions. The movement from the mines in 1911 aggregated 32,800,000 tons.

The Mesaba range has sent out 4,000,000 tons more than it forwarded all of last year and with 26,000,000 tons to its credit, lacks only 3,000,000 tons of equaling its high record of 29,200,000 tons for all of 1910. On the other hand, only 10,000,000 tons have been forwarded by way of the lakes from the old ranges to date this season, which is below the outgo registered in some former years. The comparatively poor showing of the older districts is in part due to the policy of the United States Steel corporation. The leases to the Great Northern properties still retained by the big industrial concern will be relinquished at the close of the season of 1914. Thus, in order that the corporation may realize the greatest returns from its heavy investment in developing the lands, as big a tonnage as feasible to produce is being taken out. With the leases surrendered the steel corporation will be more active on the old ranges. It is operating its shafts at Iron Mountain only five days a week and nowhere in the Marquette, Menominee, Gogebic or Vermilion districts is it producing at normal capacity. Some of the mines are closed.

BAD WAREHOUSE FIRE.

The Damage Is Estimated at Over $100,000.

Minneapolis.—Flying sparks from a passing locomotive are supposed to have started a fire in the warehouse of McKulloch-Khun-Atkinson Co., Seventh street and Second avenue northeast, causing a damage estimated at more than $100,000 on the building and contents, which consisted mostly of doors, sash frames, mouldings and other material of a similar nature.

The fire started in the loading shed, near the railroad tracks, and spread rapidly. The alarms brought 12 engine companies to the scene. But even with such a force in action, practically nothing could be done to stop the blaze, the firemen confining their efforts to preventing the fire from spreading to nearby mills and lumber yards, in which they were successful.

Picks the Buds Until August.

Faribault.—P. H. Volstad, a farmer, brought an exhibit of fresh strawberries to the county fair here recently and caused a sensation among nurserymen and lovers of the berries. He has three acres of berries which he has just harvested and says the frost will get lots of the blossoms which are still plentiful. The berries are of an early variety known as the Senator Dunlap. Mr. Volstad's method of raising late strawberries is simple. He says: "As soon as the vines start to blossom in the spring we go out and pick the buds."

Girl Strangely Disappears.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The East Side police spent the greater part of the night trying to solve the mysterious daylight disappearance of Miss Ruth Burns, 18 years old, stenographer for the state board of health, the offices of which are on the university campus. Miss Burns was last seen when she left the offices of her dentist. She told him she was going to the office. She had notified the office that she would be a little late. Somewhere during the two and a half squares from the dentist's office the girl disappeared.

Hutchinson to Celebrate.

Minneapolis. — Portraits of the Indians who took leading parts in the Sioux outbreak of 1862 will be displayed in Hutchinson, Minn., Monday and Tuesday, when the fiftieth anniversary of the Indian attack on that village will be observed. The portraits are from the collection painted by H. H. Cross, which are owned by T. B. Walker.

Houston Prepares for Fair.

Caledonia.—The agricultural association has completed plans to hold the biggest fair in the history of the county, beginning next week and lasting three days. Over $500 will be given in premiums. Arrangements have been made to have free attractions each afternoon and evening.

Tobacco Crop Harvested.

Caledonia.—The harvesting of the tobacco crop is well along in this county. The price is the best in years and the success of the tobacco planters will encourage others to go into the industry. Miss Georgina Lommen, for eight years superintendent of schools of this county, has entered the contest for the November election, although defeated at the primaries. At a meeting of the stockholders of the new Caledonia State bank new directors were elected.

Mrs. Eggleston at Winona.

Winona.—Winona is being visited by Mrs. Sarah C. Eggleston, who was the first teacher in the kindergarten of the Winona Normal school, having organized the department in December, 1880. She also enrolled the first members of the kindergarten training department in the Winona Normal school, the graduates previous to 1884 being recorded by an independent kindergarten organization rather than by the normal board.

PLOT EXPLANATIONS

DISTRICT ATTORNEY DIFFERS WITH DEPUTY COMMISSIONER DOUGHERTY.

VICTIM'S END PLANNED.

"Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" Declare They Think So.—Trial of Police Lieutenant Becker Opens.

New York, Oct. 7.—Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty declares that he is satisfied the motive for the murder of "Big Jack" Zelig by "Red Phil" Davidson here Saturday night was not to seal Zelig's lips against Former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who will be placed on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

After questioning Davidson for several hours and investigating events leading up to the killing of Zelig, the deputy commissioner said he was inclined to credit Davidson's story that he killed Zelig in revenge because the latter had robbed him.

"Lefty Louis," "Gyp the Blood," and other gunmen who are awaiting trial for the murder of Rosenthal ridiculed Davidson's story when seen in their cells and instisted that Zelig's taking off was planned and the plot executed to prevent his appearance at Becker's trial. It was reported that "Bald Jack" Rose, who will be a state witness against Becker, had warned District Attorney Whitman that Zelig never would live to testify against the police.

Whitman Sees Conspiracy.

District Attorney Whitman though admitting that no proof has yet been found to indicate that Zelig's death was the result of a conspiracy, is inclined to regard the murder as "more than a coincidence." The prosecutor insists that he had subjoenaed Zelig in the Becker trial and said he had expected his testimony to have an important bearing on the case. He added, however, that he had other witnesses who knew the facts he had planned to reveal through Zelig.

Investigation of Davidson's story revealed the fact that the revolver he used in killing Zelig had been the property of a Brooklyn policeman. It was purchased in a Jersey City pawnshop. The policeman, called upon to explain, declared he had lost the revolver. The pawn broker corroborated Davidson's story that he purchased the revolver Saturday. The broker said the weapon had been pledged more than a year ago.

Tells Two Stories.

Commissioner Dougherty broke down Davidson's first statement that Zelig had held him up in a hallway and robbed him of $400. Zelig, Davidson asserts, held him up at the point of a revolver in the cloak room of a Bowery dance hall Friday night, and took about $17 from him.

Davidson was arranged and remanded without bail to the Tombs. He was placed on the same tier with Becker and some of the gunmen charged with Rosenthal's murder. Both he and Becker denied they know each other. Davidson admitted acquaintance with "Lefty Louie" and "Whitey" Lewis.

He also told Dougherty he came from Toledo 12 years ago and had successive jobs as harness maker, dance hall performer and jewelry and clothing peddler.

Chicago Grain.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Enlarged receipts northwest gave the bears an inning today in wheat. Speculators seemed inclined to ignore war news as having lost novelty. Although foreign markets were higher, there was no keenness to the demand here.

Subsequently for a brief time prices hardened because of assertions that exporters had bid higher. The close, however, was weak with December ⅞c net lower at 91⅛c.

The opening was a shade lower to ⅛c up. December started at 91⅞c@92c to 92⅛c, the same change from last night as the market taken altogether. A decline to 91⅝@91¾c followed.

A further advance ensued but the market later declined with wheat. The close was easy, ⅜c net lower for December at 53⅜c.

Buying on the part of local speculators made corn relatively firm. December opened a shade to ⅛c down at 53⅝c to 53⅝@53¾c, touched 53½c and then rallied to 53⅞c.

Oats sagged because demand was only of a scattered sort. December started unchanged to ⅛c lower at 32⅜c to 32½c, and weakened to 32¼@32⅜c.

Engine Spark Starts Big Fire.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Sparks from a locomotive started a fire here that destroyed 5,000 tons of coal and burned over a four acre coal yard belonging to the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. A train of empty freight cars in the B. & O. railroad yards were abandoned in the path of the flames and consumed. The loss is about $75,000. Christopher Jensen, foreman of the burned coal yard, was rescued from the burning stable by "Wild Bill" Case, a professional baseball player.

Airmen Killed in Germany.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—Aviation week at Johannesburg was concluded after two more deaths had been added to the long list of fatalities among European aviators during the last two months. A monoplane, driven by Ernest Ellg and carrying a mechanician, suddenly fell from a height of 600 feet when a wing collapsed.

Japanese Aviator Killed.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Mothesia Kondo, a Japanese aviator, aged 27 years, was killed near Savona.

WHY THE FIFTH MAN LEFT

He Wore a Wig and the Other Four Men at the Table Were Bald —and Talkative.

In the smoking room of a westbound ocean liner two days out from an English port five men sat at a "small game" of poker. When the chips had been cashed in the men retained their places, and presently one of the party said: "This is funny; four bald heads in a possible five," and then there was a discussion as to the causes of baldness, in which all took part except the unaffected man, who was a good listener for a while. He then bade the others good night. When he had gone the youngest of the group, who was less bald than the others, said: "Do you know why Mr. Blank made the getaway? He wears a wig, and is probably as bald as any of us." And for the rest of the journey Mr. Blank's head was the object of study—at a distance—for he never again appeared in the smoking room.

BREAKING OUT ON LEG

Hilltop, Kan.—"About two years ago I began to notice a breaking out on my leg. At first it was very small but soon it began to spread until it formed large blotches. The itching was terrible and almost constant. Many nights I could not sleep at all. After scratching it to relieve the itching it would burn so dreadfully that I thought I could not stand it. For nearly a year I tried all kinds of salves and ointment, but found no relief. Some salves seemed to make it worse until there were ugly sores, which would break open and run.

"One day I saw an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies. I got a sample of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and began by washing the sores with the Cuticura Soap, then applying the Cuticura Ointment twice a day. I noticed a change and got more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few weeks I was cured. It has healed so nicely that no scar remains." (Signed) Mrs. Anna A. Lew, Dec. 17, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Marie Divided the Candy.

When the uncle of a couple of Brooklyn youngsters last called at the household whereof they form a part he brought with him some pieces of candy, which were given to the little girl to divide with her brother.

Later the uncle summoned this child to the living room and asked:

"Marie, when you divided those five pieces of candy with your brother, did you give him two and a half pieces?"

"No, sir," said Marie. "I saw they weren't going to come out even, so I ate one before I began to divide."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Getting Along Fine at School.

Now that school has been "going" several weeks parents are beginning to inquire of their young hopefuls as to their progress. The other day a mother out on Harrison boulevard, while eating luncheon with her six-year-old, asked:

"And how are you getting along in school, Dorothy?"

"Oh," replied Dorothy between mouthfuls of bread and milk, "just fine! I and Frances Smith are the smartest and best dressed girls in the school."—Kansas City Star.

WHEN A TONIC IS NECESSARY

If You Are Run Down and Debilitated the Health Can Only Be Restored by Building Up the Blood.

When the body is weak and the blood thin it is sometimes difficult to find the cause unless a wasting illness has preceded the decline in health.

Obscure influences, something unhealthful in one's surroundings or work, may lead to a slow impoverishment of the blood and an enfeeblement of the whole body. When a serious stage has been reached there seems to be nothing that will account for it.

In such cases a complete change of climate or of work will sometimes effect a cure. It takes a long time, however, and for the great majority of sufferers is out of the question.

Mrs. G. P. Boutwell, of Clear Water, Minn., whose husband is a hardware merchant there, says:

"About two years ago, when I was living at West Union, Iowa, I was all run down through hard work and worry. I called a doctor who said I was suffering from general debility. He treated me for some time but was unable to do much for me. I had cold chills all of the time and seemed to be nearly bloodless. I could not keep anything on my stomach and lived on eggs and milk for some time. My stomach was sour and the gas on it kept me from getting much sleep at night. The doctor's medicine made my stomach feel worse.

"My father had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit and advised me to try them. After a week or so I could notice a change. I soon became stronger, my appetite came back and the headaches disappeared. I was then able to eat without distress and began to do my work. I had a good color and gained in flesh. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cannot be praised too highly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a general tonic and are useful in all diseases arising from poor blood or weakened nerves, such as sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, pale and sallow complexions and many forms of weakness.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request. Adv.

New Stage in Inebriety.

Mr. Borden has been telling an anecdote concerning two "brither Scots" who used to foregather in a "dry" district, each bringing with him a portable spring of comfort in the shape of a bottle of whisky.

One of them was asked one day by a "third party" whether the other, Jack Anderson, did not get a little drunk sometimes.

"Drunk?" was the reply. "Man, the last time I was wi' him Jock was that drunk I couldna see him."—London Mail.

Youthful Woman Pastor.

Rev. Miss Ina L. Morgan, of the Methodist church of Georgetown and Arrowsic, Me., is the youngest woman pastor in New England. She is in her early twenties and has been engaged in church work for nearly four years, having received a license in 1908 from Bishop John W. Hamilton, of Worcester.

IT'S THE FOOD.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite, for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shrieking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and liked it fine; made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then in five weeks. I kept on with the Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained 15 pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't feel badly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

ALTRUISTIC ELIZABETH

Agrees That Flirting Is Height of Altruism.

By F. HARRIS DEANS.

"Who's that?" I demanded, as Elizabeth bowed and then tried to look as if she hadn't.

"Where?" she asked, gazing round in every direction but one.

"He's on the ground," I informed her, as she finally glanced skyward; "he hasn't brought his aeroplane out with him today. I mean the man on the other side of the road, who doesn't appear to be able to make up his mind whether to pretend that he didn't see your bow, or that you didn't see his."

"Oh," said Elizabeth uncertainly, "oh—I don't know who he is."

"What made you bow to him, then?"

"I didn't. He bowed to me. I cut him. You know I did. I'll never speak to you again if you say he didn't."

"Anything for the sake of conversation," I said agreeably; "keep talking. You cut him so severely that I saw the blood come—to his face."

"No," said Elizabeth, clutching at my arm in her eagerness, "not really? Do you mean he—blushed?"

"Well," I hedged, "if he wasn't blushing he was feeling particularly healthy at the moment; he distinctly glowed."

"Is he"—with an effort she stopped herself glancing round—"is he still staring at me?—horrid creature!"

"No," I reassured her, looking over my shoulder, "he's gone on."

"Beast!" she snapped viciously, "that's just like him."

"Seeing you are unacquainted," I mentioned mildly, "you seem curiously familiar with his manners."

"I never said I didn't know him."

"You did."

"I didn't. I said I DON'T know him."

"Where's the difference?"

"Wasn't there a law to make children go to school when you were a boy? One's the present tense, and the other's the past."

"I see, and he's a past tenser?"

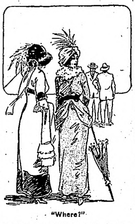
"M'm," said Elizabeth, with an air of one exhausted with the subject. "Just look at that woman's hat, Dick; did you ever see anything like it?"

"Awful, isn't it?" I agreed.

"How can you know?—you're not looking."

"I know without looking; that's why I let you come out with me sometimes; I hate ugly things, and you always point out where I don't want to look."

"I'm sure I don't; I always tell you if I see anything pretty. There's a smart hat over there, now—at least, they were all the rage last year; nobody decent could wear one. . . . I wonder why on earth she wears the thing—it doesn't suit her a bit."



"Where?"

"Perhaps the poor woman hasn't any friends to tell her. She looks a lonely soul."

"More likely they have told her, and that's why she hasn't any friends." She hesitated for a moment, and glanced at me from the corner of her eye. "Talking of friends," she resumed, in a curious tone of embarrassment.

"Don't let's start talking scandal on a lovely day like this," I pleaded.

"I wasn't going to." She paused, and dug at the gravel path with the end of her sunshade. "Let's sit down, shall we? I want to tell you something."

"About—?" I gave a backward jerk of my head as we seated ourselves.

"Ye—es, though I don't know however you guessed."

"Intuition," I said complacently. "I have a frightfully keen intellect some days—I think it must be something in the air." There was a restful silence for a moment, during which I mused over how clever I was, and Elizabeth sat trying to think out how clever she could be.

"I wouldn't tell you," she burst out at length, "only I know it's really my duty."

"Duty!" I sneered disparagingly. "If it's your conscience that's egging you on to tell me, Elizabeth, let's talk of something more interesting."

"And anyhow, if I didn't, somebody else would."

"Ah, that sounds more hopeful. I knew I shouldn't hear much if it only depended on your conscience."

"His name," she said, beginning for once at the beginning, "is Greatorex—Marmaduke Greatorex."

"Marmaduke," I said reflectively—"I knew a boy of that name at school; we called him 'Marmaduke.' Still, it's a good name if you can live up to it—he couldn't; he became a stockbroker in the end."

"I met him," she went on, "at my aunt's last year; he was a misogynist."

"A what?" I cried, aghast at this display of erudition.

"It means a woman hater. I looked it up in the dictionary when they told me what he was."

"Good Lord!" I said, still unsettled. "Fancy having people looking one up in the dictionary!" No wonder he

"He used to say most awful things about us girls," she pursued. "I shouldn't like to tell you half he said."

"Wouldn't you?" I murmured sympathetically. "Try. Don't think to spare me."

"Well, for one thing," she said, thus urged, "he said—he said—well I don't know what he didn't say."

"Don't worry about what he didn't say—that's not the part I feel I shall be interested in."

"Well, he said—mind you, this isn't a quarter as bad as some of them, only I can't remember those—he said the feminine sex—that shows you the sort of man he was, doesn't it?" she broke off. "Fancy saying 'feminine sex.' Well, anyhow—don't get so impatient, I'm telling you as quickly as I can; you keep interrupting so. He said the feminine sex was the rock on which men were—wrecked, or foundered, or—something nautical, anyhow. He was a horrid man."

"To some extent," I admitted, "I can sympathize with your feelings."

"And then he said," she went on, "that marriage was a snare to which woman was a successful but inadequate bait." She paused, flushed with indignation, and eyed me expectantly.

"A felicitous phrase," I said, feeling bound to say something, "but sadly lacking in tact."

"Yes, it was, wasn't it? So, of course——" she spoke in the tone of one who had made many sacrifices—"I had to——"

"Snub him," I interposed. "Naturally. That, of course, accounts for his behavior just now."

Elizabeth flushed a little, and gazed interestedly at the tip of her shoe.

"Well," she said, a trifle awkwardly, "I didn't exactly SNUB him. I—I talked to him—tried to persuade him . . . differently, you know." Her expression was vague.

"Oh," I said, not following her. "What did you say?"

"I didn't say anything. Don't pretend to be dense. Don't you understand?"

"Hanged if I do."

"Why, don't you see, of course I had to convince him that women were not—well, weren't quite what he thought them. I had to try and make him have a higher opinion of them."

"I see," I cried, my brow clearing. "Well?"

"Well?"

"What happened; did you succeed?"

"Temporarily, anyhow."

"Do you mean you couldn't live up to it or what?"

"No, there was nothing to live up to; he—he misunderstood my motives."

"I suppose," I ventured, "he thought you had converted him for personal reasons?"

"I think he must have. I don't think, you know, he could have been quite a gentleman."

"To have entertained such a base suspicion?" I queried.

"Not only that. To say the things he did."

"Why, what did he say?"

"For one thing he called me a flirt. That wasn't flirting, was it?"

"FLIRTING! It was the height of altruism."

"The height of altruism," Elizabeth murmured reflectively, at the same time glancing at me approvingly. "Do you know, I think that's rather a nice description. And it's true, too, isn't it?"

"Why, yes," I answered, "comparatively."

Day Set for Marriages.

Visitors to the quaint old city of Plougastel, in Brittany, are struck with the fact that all marriages are solemnized in a single day of the year. Why this unusual custom prevails is easily explained. The men are all fishermen, many of them going as far as the Newfoundland banks, and are at home only during a few months in the winter. One day in early February is set apart for the weddings. Little courting is done, but much haggling over the dowry of the girls. They have to bring a certain quantity of linen, chickens, pigs, and vegetables. Frequently a match is broken off because a father refuses to add a sack of potatoes to the dowry. On the day set the inhabitants of the entire region go to Plaugastel. The whole population goes to churuch to hear mass, to take communion. Often 50 or more couples are united on the same day. Bride and bridegroom do not walk together until the ceremony has been completed.

Swatting the Fly in Korea.

Flies are the staple product of all parts of Cho-sen and make life miserable for the Japanese residing there. Flies are also well known to be mediums for the spread of epidemics. Last year the authorities of Cho-la-do offered to buy flies, and, encouraged by their success, they will repeat the experiment this year. Last year the police were asked to take the trouble of buying flies with money supplied by philanthropic contributors and 4.68 koku (one koku is equal to 5.13 bushels) of flies were bought from May 26 to December 2 for 212.97 yen. This year 5.68 koku have already been bought for 268 yen at three to four sen a go. Local taxes were appropriated for a portion of the expense required. The flies are burned on being purchased. Rats are valued at three sen a head on the mainland, but flies have never been known to exist in such immense masses before as to acquire monetary value.—Japan Weekly Mail.

It Was the Boss, All Right.

In the window of a downtown restaurant somebody had placed a sign which read:

"SECOND COOK WANTED."

An applicant made his way to the kitchen and found the head cook.

"There's the boss over there," said the galley chief, jerking his head in the direction of a man washing dishes.

"Don't kid me," said the caller. "Tell me if you want me or tell me if you don't. There's no use of ringing in a dishwasher."

The man at the sink picked a stack of plates out of the water and let them all fall to the floor with a smash.

"Now," he exclaimed, "tell me who you think the boss is!"

THE CHILDREN'S HEALTH

In observing the physical characteristics of her children, the careful mother soon learns that health is dependent on the regularity of the bowels. When the bowels become clogged with the stomach's refuse, loss of appetite, restlessness, irritability, and similar evidences of disorder are soon apparent. Keep the bowels regular and a healthy, happy child is assured.

At the first sign of constipation the mother should administer a mild laxative to carry off the congested waste from the stomach that is fermenting and forcing poisonous gases into the system. A simple compound of laxative herbs with pepsin is highly recommended as being very mild, yet positive, in its action, a teaspoonful at bedtime usually serving to bring an easy, thorough, natural movement next morning. This compound is known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and is sold by druggists everywhere for 50c a bottle. A larger bottle, put up especially for the family medicine chest, costs one dollar.

The use of salts and violent purgatives and cathartics should be avoided. They are too harsh and drastic, tending to upset the entire system. Write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 West St., Monticello, Ill., for a trial bottle of his Syrup Pepsin, if you have never used it. He will be glad to send it without any expense to you. Adv.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move. After using 5 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Inexperienced.

In a boarding house for bachelors, Amanda, typical "Mammy," looked after the guests' comfort in true southern style so well that one of the men thought he would take her away with him in the summer in the capacity of housekeeper. Toward spring he waylaid her in the hall one day and said:

"Mandy, do you like the country?"

Mandy reckoned she did.

"Would you like to go away with me this summer and keep house for me?"

Mandy was sure she would.

"Suppose I get just a bungalow. Do you think you could take care of it nicely by yourself?"

Mandy gasped and rolled her eyes.

"HOGGING OFF" IS PRACTICAL

No Better Way to Fatten Swine With Profit to Owner Than to Turn Them Loose in Field.

There is no better way to fatten hogs with profit to the owner, than to turn them loose in the cornfield and let them pick the corn themselves. This is what is called "hogging off corn."

It has been found in experiments by the Minnesota Experiment station and by practical farmers in all parts of the state, writes A. R. Wilson, superintendent of the Minnesota Farmers' institute, that this method of fattening hogs is a profitable one. Every farmer who has tried it agrees that it is an economical method of fattening pork. The time required to husk and crib corn is saved. Not only that, but the hogs get the corn when it is fresh and more relished. No wonder, then, the station found that more pounds of pork could be made from a bushel of corn by "hogging off," than by eating husked corn.

All that is necessary to make the plan a feasible one is to obtain enough fencing to inclose a small area of corn. It is not advisable to give the hogs a large field to run in at the outset. There will be too large a waste. Twenty pigs weighing 100 pounds each, or their equivalent, should not be allowed to run on more than an acre at a time. On the average, an acre of corn should last three pigs from two to three weeks.

Hogs may be confined in the field as long as weather is suitable. They should not be turned in until the corn has ripened. Farmers should not hesitate to try this method of pork production, for it has been found entirely practical.

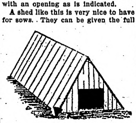
SUITABLE SHELTER FOR HOGS

Some Kind of Protection From Inclement Weather in Fall and Spring Is Important.

When the hogs are turned out to pasture in the spring or fall they need some kind of protection from the weather, and a shed, such as is shown in the accompanying illustration, is very convenient, therefore, to have, says the American Cultivator. It can be made any size desired, but if only about six feet wide, five feet long and four feet high, it can be more easily handled than if larger.

It is composed of one-inch roofing boards spiked to 2x4 studding at the combs and eaves, with the back gable boarded up and the front one left with an opening as is indicated.

A shed like this is very nice to have for sows. They can be given the full run of the pasture or lot, allowed to select their own nesting place, and then, if desired, the shed taken to the nest and set over.



Shelter for Hogs.

It should always stand in such a way as to afford the most protection possible from wind and storm, and court the sunshine, and often a bundle of straw put inside will make it more comfortable, and repay the care required to keep the inmates warm and dry.

Raising Swine.

In many phases of swine husbandry the question of location or climate has an important bearing. Where mild weather is apt to be the rule in late fall and early spring, breeding for two litters a year will obviously be considered in a different light than in a section much farther north. The breeder in Canada or on the Atlantic coast will modify many matters regarding breed or feeds that are accepted gospel in the corn belt. Locally, the extent and kind of pasture at the breeder's disposal, like his other facilities and resources, will, to a greater or less extent, influence his practices.

Kicking Habit of Mule.

If a mule is properly trained he will not develop the kicking habit any more than a horse will. Mules have a bad name on this score simply because they are not as well broken as horses are.

Value of Good Halters.

It is cheaper to buy good halters than to pay the damages resulting from a runaway.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

The cry is for hogs—and then some.

Keep the sleeping places dry and clean.

Kindness beats gruffness in getting work out of horses.

Scours in pigs is an indication of indigestion in the mother.

Your horse may intend to please you, but does not understand your wishes.

Try to arrange to give each horse on the farm a three weeks' vacation on grass.

Farming on a business basis eliminates small mules just as it displaces small horses.

Sheep, if given half a chance, and if of good, healthy stock are sure to pay their way.

The levelness with which a horse walks is one of the best evidences that his legs work in harmony.

Sweet clover and alfalfa feed heavily on the lime which accounts for the larger growth of young stock.

Don't leave the sheep in a dry, short pasture. Give them a chance in a fresh pasture, or give a good grain ration.

The past season has seen more silage beef on the market than ever before, as the feeder has recently taken up the silo.

Sagacious Phrenologist Mistaken in His Conclusion, as It Turned Out.

The learned professor was giving his public lecture on phrenology, and for purposes of demonstration he invited a boy to the platform, says the New York American. After a critical examination of the lad's cranium, he turned to the audience:

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "the protuberance on this little boy's head is remarkably well developed. It is the bump of philoprogenitiveness. In the present case it proves that the boy has an extraordinary love for his parents. (Addressing the boy.) Isn't that true, Johnny?"

Johnny hesitated a moment, then said:

"Well, I get along pretty well with the old lady, but the old man ain't such a much."

"Why, how is that, my boy?" asked the professor.

"Well, if yuh want me ter let it out, the bump yer blowin' about is where pop hit me yesterday wit a belt buckle."

Vegetable Fiber for Shoes.

A Haverhill (Mass.) shoeman has obtained patents giving him the right to make vamps and tops of vegetable fiber which he has invented and perfected to be used in the manufacture of shoes. A few cases of shoes have been made of this material, which appears to be a good substitute for leather. The fiber is said to be particularly adaptable for warm weather wear because, being of a woven material, air can penetrate the vamp and top. The inventor also claims that a shoe made of this material is waterproof.

Women
From Forty-Five to Fifty Are Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

Mrs. Estella Gillispie

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headaches, was nervous, irritable and was despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good and more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end of two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my housework. I know your medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mrs. ESTELLA GILLISPIE, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 34, St. Anne, Illinois.

Representative in Congress.

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Representative in Congress I desire first of all to thank the people of the district for the honor bestowed upon me in the past and to assure them that, if it shall please them to continue me in the service I shall in the future, as I have in the past; put forth every effort to serve them faithfully to the best of my ability.

I am a Republican—a progressive Republican— and have supported all progressive legislation for the more complete government regulation and control of railroad and interstate commerce, the policy of conservation of water powers and other natural resources in the interest of the people and the development of unsettled lands on liberal terms to actual settlers.

While I voted against the Payne-Alrich Tariff Bill and Canadian Reciprocity because, in my judgment, they were against the best interests of my constituents; I am a protectionist and favor a tariff high enough to preserve the home market to American industries, but not so high as to make it a shield for exorbitant prices.

I voted for the amendments to the Constitution recently passed by congress, providing for election of Senators by the people, and an income tax, which now waits ratification by the states.

I aided in the elimination of railroad and ship subsidies from postal expenditures, and the improvement and extension of the postal service, including parcel post and rural free delivery, and am trying to get improved laws to prevent using the mails to promote fradulant schemes

I favor strict government regulation of interstate commerce, as well as transportation; supervision of corporations and capitalization, and, if necessary, even limitation of prices; and workmen's compensation for the benefit of victims of industrial accidents, and all legislation in favor of temperance and morality.

Liberal pensions in their declining years is due from a grateful nation to its gallant defenders, the veterans of the Civil War, as a matter of right and justice. While I believe in due military preparation on the part of the leading civilized powers of the world; I believe the time has come there should be renewed efforts to substitute international arbitration for war in the settlement of dispute among nations, and to limit armaments, thus saving immense sums for more useful purposes in the service of humanity.

Timber must be getting extremely scarce because we have heard it asserted that Teddy was compelled to steal 21 planks out of the Socialist party to complete his platform.

There's only one thing that the candidate does not pledge himself to remedy when he gets into office and that's the condition of the weather.

We have heard it expressed that the Eberhart nomination for governor at the primaries showed conclusively that the people are in sympathy with the Governor and that the critizism of his administration by the press has again proved the old threadbare saying that "every knock is a boost." While literally this sounds pretty good, we must admit that we do not believe it has hit the nail on the head regarding this situation. It is a well known fact that the primaries hold very little interest for a majority of the people, which the light vote cast is the best evidence. While it was generally believed that Eberhart would not wage much of a fight for the nomination, it is only too evident that his backers did not waste a minute in rounding up every Eberhart vote in the state. Just when the Governor was hollering the loudest that he would conduct no campaign but "stand on his record" his lieutenants were quietly but ceaselessly exerting every effort to bring about his nomination, and they succeeded well. However, we believe that he was no more entitled to the nomination then we believe that he will occupy the governor's chair after the general election.

"When seals were taught to do tricks balancing and to whirl flaming torches, and ordinary barnyard cocks crowd a duet at the command of a trainer, we thought the highest point in that commercially valuable line of education had been reached," says a writer in a Berlin paper. "But a new 'first place' has been created for a grass-green cockatoo. This educated member of the parrot family rides a tiny bicycle at command and seems to enjoy the sport. He does many tricks for which professional riders receive applause. The same collection of animal wonders' contains a monster lion, which is shown in a cage provided with a grand piano. A woman trainer enters, seats herself at the instrument and strikes a chord, at which the lion leaps upon the piano and glares at the pianist. Then she plays, and the lion roars in time with the music. What next?"

EDITORIAL

United we stand——divided we go Democratic.

Taft was so fond of appointing Democrats to office that it was no doubt an easy matter to write a Democratic Thanksgiving.

It is all over now and there is nothing left for you to do but rub the sore spots and put a little vasaline on your bruises and begin training yourself for unraveling the fool job you helped to put on the country the 5th.

The Roosevelt vote over the country is not bad for a party three months' old, was it Bill? Just wait till the kid puts four years behind it and you'll see something that will make the Donkey and the Elephant, the Waterwagonists and the Debsites all look like a bobtailed shirt on a barbed wire fence next whirl.

It has been given out from headquarters that after a certain date the Standard Oil Company will cease to sell oil over a large part of the territory where it has formerly been doing business. If such should happen and very likely it will, what are some of these vigorous bust cussers going to do for light or a subject to cuss about. It will be a spectacle for the Gods to see a fellow sitting in dark cussing the Standard Oil Company for going out of business.

The annual short course in connection with the agricultural high school at Thief River Falls will open for the winter term on Monday, December 2, and continue until the spring holidays. This is a part of the extension work required of the Putnem high schools and it will be organized on similar lines to that of last year and will be made as practical and useful as possible. The subject taught will include the common branches, agriculture, accounting, some typwriting, cooking, sewing carpentry and blacksmithing. The arithmetic will deal exclusively with practical problems and with work closely related to the activities of the student. The bookkeeping will comprise the study of ordinary accounts, as well as the various forms and uses of commercial paper. Agriculture will deal with farm crops, dairying, stock raising and judging, farm mechanics. The latter will permit of the attendance at a school for gas tractor engines in this city, as well as the handling of various forms of smaller gas engines at the Lincoln building. Carpentry and iron work will permit the students to make any iron articles for use at home, such as wagons, sleighs, wagon boxes, wheelbarrows, etc. The cooking and sewing will meet the needs of those taking this work. Any resident of the state who is over 16 years of age is eligible to enroll for the course, regardless of other qualifications. Lack of book knowledge ought not to keep any ambitious young person from enrolling, and the course will be especially planned for those who can attend school but a few winter months, whether they come from city or country. Books are loaned to the students, except that the wood and iron used in the shops will be sold at cost. The students will be welcomed to all athletic and literary organizations in the high school. Board and room can be easily secured at reasonable rates in good homes in this city. Further particulars will be furnished by the undersigned on application. J. H. Hay, superintendent.

America in English Eyes.

America—Discovered by Christopher Columbus. Since exploited by English peers. There are several lines of railway running in different directions. All are dangerous. English is understood, especially when spoken with an Irish accent. The principal industries are patent medicines, politics and the manufacture of moving picture films. The chief social diversions are interviewing distinguished foreigners, lynching bees and visits to Europe. The customs regulations are strict—diamonds are subject to a heavy duty. Anarchists and known murderers are excluded. It is proposed to add cornet players to the list. Emigrants intending to settle in Texas are advised to go elsewhere.—From "Hints to Emigrants," in Vanity Fair.

Resourceful Editor.

"The late General Booth," said a Salvation Army official of New York, "often used to urge the 'down-and-outer' to cultivate the quality of resourcefulness.

"He would illustrate this quality by the story of a resourceful western editor, who found one night that he had neither advertisements nor copy for his third page. The page accordingly appeared blank, with a note in small type at the top:

"'This space will be useful for the children to write upon.'"—New York Tribune.

STRICT AS TO DIVORCE

NORWEGIAN LAWS PROMISE TO SOLVE A PROBLEM.

Recognize Incompatability of Temperament, but Are Not in Haste to Act Upon It—Children, and Division of Property.

A Norwegian woman, Fru Ella Anker, a leader of the feminist movement in Norway, announces that the divorce problem is solved in her country. The law is new as yet, having been framed in 1910, but so far it has worked well and is of promise.

The Norwegian law is based on the principle that the only moral basis of marriage is a mutual love. When this ceases and the parties are convinced they can no longer live together happily, the law steps in and provides for divorce. The first step is admission to separation. No divorce is granted under a year after separation is asked for. This is the stated period when both parties ask for divorce on grounds that intimate mutual good will no longer exists and reconciliation is impossible. If only one party asks for divorce the period of separation is two years.

The proceedings are largely in the hands of the administrative officials, and do not ordinarily get into court. When a couple decide they wish to be divorced they appear before a magistrate and ask for "an order." They then go to the "Conciliation Board," whose business it is to examine into the case and if possible bring about a reconciliation. Finding this impossible, they are granted an order of separation, for one year or two, as above, at the end of which period, if either demands it, the decree of divorce is granted. The administrative officials investigate the charges, settle the financial question and arrange as to the care of children. The cost is very slight, from $1 to $25, no lawyers being necessary.

After divorce, the common property is divided equally between husband and wife. Usually the husband is called on to contribute to the support of his wife. If the divorce is caused by her conduct he can be excused from this duty; if she marries again he is also excused. The magistrate fixes the amount of the levy and collects his contribution. When a Norwegian husband dies or is divorced his wife can claim half of his possessions. He cannot give away more than one-third of his property without her consent, whereas she has a right to all she earns after her marriage.

Children are regarded as a mutual obligation and both parents must aid in their support. No fixed rules are laid down, the circumstances deciding the case according to the view of the magistrate. The parents may decide upon a plan, subject to the magistrate's approval. If they cannot agree the minister of justice settles the matter.

True Love.

The course of true love never did and never can run smooth. If it did it wouldn't be true love. The single certain sine qua non of true love is that it shall not run smooth. For such is the constitution of human beings.

When people set out to be friendly and congenial they can succeed only by keeping up a gentle hostility. Consider the average evening call. How tiresome it is until some one starts an argument or a game of cards is proposed. That accounts for the popularity of games. They furnish a sham and innocuous hostility without which society with one's fellows is deadly. Men and women can be happy together for days at a time if they are contending at golf, at tennis, at cards or at other games.

People who can sit around drawing rooms or verandas and chat agreeably are degenerate. They have lost their spirit and might as well be dead.—Ellis O. Jones, in Lippincott's.

Learn Composition From Love Letters

Dr. Arthur Holmes, who advocates the exchange of love letters between students as a means of acquiring the art of composition, might point to Samuel Richardson as a proof of the efficacy of his method. Richardson began by acting as scribe for a number of young women, for whose correspondence with their sweethearts he frequently supplied not only the words, but the sentiments. His reputation for this kind of composition led a firm of printers to propose that he should prepare a "complete letter writer" for the use of "those country readers who cannot indite for themselves." Two or three of the epistles written for this purpose suggested a separate story, "and thence," in Richardson's own phrase, "sprang 'Pamela.'"

Friendship in Business.

The salesman who was formerly intent on getting orders by means of the "happy days" system of cigars and drinks now courts the friendship of his customer on utilitarian lines. He tries to make suggestions that will be of use. He essays an idea or drops a piece of news, intended to do the customer some good. Not infrequently an expert salesman will study the methods of a customer, and even the methods in use in his establishment, before approaching him, so as to be in a position to talk intelligently on his needs, and perhaps spring a new idea that will attract attention. Then the customer is liable to be indebted to him in a friendly way, which is the better way of securing a man's business and holding it.

PITABLE PLIGHT OF TURKISH ARMY

RETREAT ON CONSTANTINOPLE IS DESCRIBED BY PARIS PAPER.

WRETCHES FIGHT FOR FOOD

Starving and Shivering, They Beg in Vain for Relief—No Medical Assistance for the Wounded, Who Perish by Wayside.

Paris, Nov. 13.—Jean Rodes, a staff correspondent of the Temps, who has reached Constantinople from the war zone, sends a vivid picture of the misery of the Turkish soldiers and the disorganization of the Turkish army.

"We have witnessed the failure of the Turk as a soldier," says Rodes "We have seen him dying of hunger, worn out by fatigue, wrecked by suffering, and running away after having abandoned his place in the combat.

"I have never seen a more poignant picture of human distress than that presented by these unhappy men, thrown into one of the most terrible wars in history without food, without medical attention, almost without chiefs, almost without arms. At Seidler I saw a soldier whose right hand had been severed hold out to us, begging for medical help, the bleeding stump around which he had tied a piece of twine.

"I saw long lines of famished men who came to our tent begging for a crumb of bread and staggering away without a murmur of complaint when told that we had none to give. I saw a thousand wounded leaving a trail of blood as they dragged themselves toward Tchorlu. I saw hundreds of others fall by the wayside dying from wounds and fatigue.

Soldiers Fight for Food.

"At Tchorlu a column of soldiers, terrible in appearance, staggered through the streets in a driving rain and wind storm. No one paid any attention to them. They had no shelter, nothing to eat. From a near-by bakery an officer threw out handfuls of bread and the soldiers fought for the loaves. More than half of them got nothing, and turned away, ragged, pallid, and weak.

"All the houses were closed. Practically all the population had fled, and those who remained barricaded themselves within, trembling with fear. The soldiers knocked vainly at the barred doors.

"Groups shivering in the cold tried the doors of stables to seek refuge; even the stables remained inhospitable. Refugees smashed their way into shops and devoured all they found, including raw vegetables and candles, and sucked at pieces of greasy wood.

Calls It Image of Inferno.

"I never saw such an image of inferno. One of the most miserable of the wanderers succeeded in getting into a house where we were staying, drenched to the skin and teeth chattering. 'Take all my money; take my clothing, if you will,' he cried, 'but I beg of you to give me some bread.'

"I questioned him. He said he came from Asia Minor and had not eaten for eight days. I gave him a slice of bread and a chocolate tablet, and he went away to join the remnants of the retreating army, of which this was the end.

"Thus did the Turkish soldier appear to me. He seemed to have no understanding of the great drama in which he was participating, but his infinite misery and his horrible animal distress were enough to break one's heart.

"I do not know whether the accusations of a massacre are exact, but so far as I have observed, I can affirm that not only have the Turks committed no excesses but I believe that no army in the world under such frightful circumstances would have been more moderate, more docile."

NAZIM PASHA

Nazim Pasha, minister of war, was in general command of the Turkish forces in Thrace, which were so decisively defeated by the Bulgarians.

Properly Qualified.

The Youth—Sir, I came to ask your consent to my marriage with your daughter.

The Old Man—Is your income sufficient to support a wife?

The Youth—It is; and, in addition to that, it is sufficient to enable me to stand an occasional touch from my wife's father.

The Old Man—Say no more, young man. She's yours. Bless you, my son.

His Coming-Out Sermon.

She—You should have been at church Sunday. The minister preached such an interesting sermon.

He—Indeed.

She—Yes, you know it was his debut as a heretic.

Onward and Upward.

"So you are going to be a grand opera singer?"

"Only for a little while," replied the ambitious young vocalist. "Just long enough to get a reputation which will enable me to establish a business in educating people in how to reduce weight and become beautiful."

The Alternative.

"Will they hang your client?"

"Not if we can manage to hang the jury."

No Trouble.

"I hear you had a little trouble down at the corner the other night, Mike."

"Throuble? Phwat throuble?"

"Weren't you in a fight or something?"

"Oh, yis, we had a little mixup, but it was no throuble. All I had t' do was hit me mon once."

Eccentricity.

Gillet—Anything eccentric about Macey's children?

Perry—Yes; they all mind.—Judge.

Maybe She Has.

Gladman—I think my wife has decided to give up bridge and afternoon teas.

Sadman—On what do you base your idea?

Gladman—I found a button sewed on my shirt that had been missing for months.

The Result.

"No shams for me!" declared Jones.

The result in the house was a pillow fight.

Not the Real Kind.

The Doctor—But my dear sir, you must masticate your food; what were your teeth given you for?

The Sufferer (calmly)—They weren't given me—I bought 'em.—London Sketch.

A PENALTY OF AGE

The tendency of advancing years to restrict activity and exercise is responsible for the constipated condition of most elderly people. The wear of years impairs the action of the bowels and the digestive organs are more sensitive to the demands upon them and rebel more quickly. Cathartics and purgatives are violent and drastic in their action and should not be used to correct constipation. A mild, yet positively effective remedy, and one that is recommended by physicians as well as by thousands who have used it, is the compound of simple laxative herbs with pepsin prescribed by Dr. W. B. Caldwell over thirty years ago and now sold by druggists everywhere under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Dr. Caldwell wants everyone troubled with constipation to try Syrup Pepsin and will send a trial bottle, free of charge, to all who write for it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 West St., Monticello, Ill. Adv.

Lawyer, However, Qualified Admission With a Remark That Had Unkind Sound.

The jury was hearing the closing arguments in a damage suit before Judge Ben M. Smith, in which slander was alleged. The attorney for the plaintiff had been directing his broadsides against the defendant for his show of ingratitude, when the latter's counsel objected.

"Gratitude is inspiring but not a constitutional requirement," interposed the objector, who had borrowed several law books from the other lawyer some time before.

"One look at your face convinces me that you are right," said the first lawyer. "If gratitude were a constitutional requirement you couldn't be a citizen."—Chicago Evening Post.

FIGHT NEAR CAPITAL

SULTAN'S ARMY MAKING LAST DESPERATE STAND AGAINST BULGARIAN FORCES.

TROOPS ARE FORWARDED

All Day Long, Constantinople Crowds Listen to Booming of Cannon—Moslem Ships Take Part in Artillery Duel.

Constantinople, —The great battle between the Bulgarians and Turks is on all along the line of the Tchatalja fortifications. Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief, sent the following dispatch:

"The battle which commenced yesterday morning with an attack by Bulgarian infantry lasted until one hour after sunset. The enemy, who advanced chiefly facing our right wing and our center was repulsed by our infantry and artillery fire. Three Bulgarian batteries were destroyed."

Heavy Guns Heard.

All through the day the sound of the heavy guns, booming distantly was heard in Constantinople. It ceased only with darkness. The firing along the entire line evidently was preparatory to an infantry attack.

The Turkish batteries replied vigorously. The Turkish ships in the sea of Marmora shelled the Bulgarian positions. Undoubtedly the fleet in the Black sea also took part in the engagement, though details from those points are lacking.

In the afternoon the wind shifted and it seemed for a time as though the battle had ended but again the booming was heard and the movement of troops could be observed not far from the very gates to the capitol. A detachment of several thousand from the Tchatalja lines was replaced by fresh troops who had been held in reserve near the city.

The refugees behind the lines began breaking camp early in the day and moved back toward Constantinople. The Greek villagers, who heretofore had remained admirably indifferent to events, prepared to desert their homes.

Fate of Capitol at Stake.

While calm prevailed, there was a deadly tension in the knowledge that the fate of the capital, the Turkish army and those who waited anxiously in Constantinople, were at stake.

Several members of the legations and other foreign residents witnessed the artillery duel which they describe as magnificent, and the shelling from height to height across Bimyua Chekmedye lake and over the plains towards the north. The flashes of the guns on both sides were visible to observers over miles of low country.

Streets Guarded Closely.

Within the city every military precaution was taken. Pickets were posted at various points and patrols guarded the streets. The ambassadors held a meeting at the foreign ministry with the commanders of the Ottoman gendarmerie and advised for the safety of the foreigners.

It decided that detachments for the protection of foreign institutions will be landed at dawn today. They will remain concealed in the buildings and will only co-operate with the local Turkish forces should assistance be required.

The Austrian ambassador, Marquis De Pallavicini, notified the porte of this determination, but emphasized the friendly character of the measures undertaken, explaining that they were in the interests of the safety of foreign subjects and institutions.

The sanitary board at a meeting yesterday urged that steps be taken to prevent the armies now facing each other at Tchatalja from entering the capitol owing to the cholera epidemic. The resolutions to that effect were proposed by the British delegate.

Question of Gratitude.

"Suppose I were to ask you to contribute a hundred dollars to my campaign fund," said the ambitious young man. "What would you do?"

"That isn't the important question," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "If I should help to elect you, what would you do?"

Farms for Children.

Perhaps the smallest farms in the world, each four by eight feet, have been devised by Mrs. Henry Parsons for the International Children's School Farm league, and demonstrated in New York. Each child becomes owner of his diminutive farm, in which he works, grows and harvests seven different kinds of vegetables, and these are borne by him in triumph to his family. About each farm is an 18-inch path, which he keeps in order; under his instructor it becomes a tiny object lesson in good roads.

Her Name Was Not Polly Ticks.

During the late campaign an Illinois candidate for the legislature was driving through the country, seeking votes among the farmers, when he met a young man in farmer's garb, walking by the roadside.

Having in mind a prospective vote he stopped his horse, and saluting him in a familiar manner, inquired:

"Are you paying any attention to politics nowadays?"

The young man stopped, looked at him suspiciously, and drawled out:

"No, stranger; that don't happen to be my gal's name; but ef it was, I wouldn't think it was any of your durned business."

This ended the interview as well as the prospect.

SCOFFERS

Often Make the Staunchest Converts.

The man who scoffs at an idea or doctrine which he does not fully understand has at least the courage to show where he stands.

The gospel of Health has many converts who formerly laughed at the idea that coffee and tea, for example, ever hurt anyone. Upon looking into the matter seriously, often at the suggestion of a friend, such persons have found that Postum and a friend's advice have been their salvation.

"My sister was employed in an eastern city where she had to do calculating," writes an Okla. girl. "She suffered with headache until she was almost unfitted for duty.

"Her landlady persuaded her to quit coffee and use Postum and in a few days she was entirely free from headache." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) "She told her employer about it, and on trying it, he had the same experience.

"My father and I have both suffered much from nervous headache since I can remember, but we scoffed at the idea advanced by my sister, that coffee was the cause of our trouble.

"However, we finally quit coffee and began using Postum. Father has had but one headache now in four years, due to a severe cold, and I have lost my headaches and sour stomach, which I am now convinced came from coffee.

"A cup of good, hot Postum is satisfying to me when I do not care to eat a meal. Circumstances caused me to locate in a new country and I feared I would not be able to get my favorite drink, Postum, but I was relieved to find that a full supply is kept here with a heavy demand for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

RASH SPREAD TO ARMS

759 Roach Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.—"At first I noticed small eruptions on my face. The trouble began as a rash. It looked like red pimples. In a few days they spread to my arms and back. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them and of course the result was blood and matter. The eruptions festered, broke, opened and dried up, leaving the skin dry and scaly. I spent many sleepless nights, my back, arms and face burning and itching; sleep was purely and simply out of the question. The trouble also caused disfigurement. My clothing irritated the breaking out.

"By this time I had used several well-known remedies without success. The trouble continued. Then I began to use the sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Within seven or eight days I noticed gratifying results. I purchased a full-sized cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in about eighteen or twenty days my cure was complete." MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION.

Issued by Governor Eberhart.

The return of another Thanksgiving season finds the people of Minnesota with more cause for sincere gratitude toward the Supreme Giver of Good Gifts than at any other period in the history of the state, for at no time in that history has there been larger and more widespread prosperity, and more convincing evidence of marked advance along the lines of right thinking and humane and unselfish conduct, tending to the mental and spiritual uplift of this great commonwealth.

Many of the great sociological problems of the hour are being seriously studied and gradually worked out in this state, while encouraging progress is being made along all lines of material development.

It is fitting, therefore, in recognition of these most gratifying conditions and in conformity with the proclamation of the president of the United States, that I join with him in designating Thursday, the 28th day of November, 1912, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the state, and I earnestly recommend the observance of the day by a revival of the spiritual enthusiasm that marked the establishment of this annual custom in the trying hours of a young and struggling nation.

ADOLPH O. EBERHART,
Governor.

Duluth.—Victor Salo, aged 27 years, committed suicide because he could not save sufficient money.

Duluth.—John Lake, a business man of Nashwauk, pleaded guilty to having venison and was fined $53.50.

Winona.—The Tawney family held a reunion here for the first time in many years. Fifteen members were present.

Lakefield.—J. M. Putnam, mayor of Lakefield, president of the Jackson County State bank and a pioneer resident, recently suffered a stroke of apoplexy and is not expected to live.

Pipestone.—The annual campfire of Simon Mix post, G. A. R., will be held here on Nov. 15. The guest of the occasion will be Department Commander William P. Roberts of Minneapolis.

St. Cloud.—John L. Sundean of the Modern Woodmen addressed insurgent Woodmen here Wednesday evening. His talk dealt with revision upward of lodge insurance rates and he will suggest remedies.

St. Cloud.—Joseph Tschumperlin of Richmond, this county, left Monday for Kuesnacht, Switzerland, his old home, which he has not visited since he came to the United States forty-four years ago. Since coming here he has become a prosperous farmer.

Mankato.—Passenger train No. 517 on the Chicago & North-Western road struck and killed five colts owned by Daniel Williams in Cambria township. Some one left the pasture gate open and the colts strayed out at night. Mr. Williams places his loss at about $1,000.

Winona.—Another road improvement determined upon for Winona county, through the efforts of D. B. Pritchard, president of the Winona Automobile association, is the widening to twenty feet of the Minnesota City road for the two miles west of the Milwaukee railway tracks and resurfacing with gravel.

Winona.—The only one of the amendments that carried in Winona county was the one mill good roads tax. All the others failed to receive more than half of the total number of votes cast. There were 3,288 votes cast for the good roads amendment, while the total vote of the county for president was 6,211.

Winona.—The only amendment that carried in Winona county was the 1-mill good roads tax. All others failed to receive more than half of the total number of votes cast. There were 3,288 votes cast for the good roads amendment, while the total vote of the county for president was 6,211. The votes in opposition were 1,208.

Lake Crystal.—Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Brooks celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Elliot Upson who was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Mary Ireton of Minneapolis. A large party was present, among the visitors being Miss Ada Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Ireton of Minneapolis and Miss Bernice Upson of St. Paul.

Winnebago.—Jacob Leips, after suffering terrible agony since he was burned by the explosion of a gasoline tank at his home the night of Oct. 20, is dead. He was single and about 34 years of age, and had resided here twenty-two years. A sister from Minneapolis cared for him since the accident. The remains were taken to his former home at La Crosse for burial.

Fergus Falls.—The fine weather has enabled the farmers to complete their threshing and practically to finish their plowing. The farmers not only raised a large crop this season, but they have succeeded in clearing up their fall work and will be in excellent shape for next spring.

St. Cloud. — Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler, is having a monument made here to be erected over the grave of his father in Humboldt, Iowa. So that his mother, who is blind, may be able to read the inscription with her fingers, the letters will be raised.

Mankato.—Mrs. Louisa Bierbauer, one of the best known of the early residents of Mankato, is dead. She was the widow of Captain William Bierbauer, who won his military title during the Indian war of 1862, when he commanded a company that went to the relief of New Ulm. Four sons and two daughters survive.

Pipestone.—Fire on the farm of S. B. Nelson, south of here, destroyed a large barn and eight horses. Martin and Gullick Sundem, who work the place, lost in the neighborhood of $4,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

ROYALTY WELCOMES THE AMERICAN SETTLER

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS, THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, WELCOMES AMERICANS TO CANADA.

It was a happy speech, that on that beautiful October day, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, made at Macleod, Alberta. It was an opportune speech, heartful and resonant with good fellowship. And, as it was specially intended for American ears, the audience, comprised largely of so many American settlers in Canada, the time and place could not have been better chosen.

It was in reply to an address of welcome tendered to him at the pretty city of Macleod, with the foothills of the Rockies as a setting, and the great wheat fields between, and in fact all around the place as the foreground, that His Highness, true to the best interests of the country and to those of the Americans who choose to make Canada their home, said in part:

"I am well aware that among those whom I am now addressing, there are a very great proportion who were not born under the British flag. Most of these will have realized by now that residence under that flag implies no disabilities. All we ask is that the laws of Canada should be obeyed.

"With this provision every one is free to come and go, to marry, to live and to die as seems best to him, and as it pleases Providence.

"We bring no pressure to bear on anyone to adopt the Canadian nationality, for we do not value citizenship which is obtained under compulsion.

"Our American cousins are welcome from over the border. Thrice we welcome our Canadian and British brothers, who return to the Union Jack, after living under the Stars and Stripes.

"History is repeating itself. For many years hundreds of young Britishers have sought fortune in the western States. Time has brought about a change, and the tide has set in the other direction, bringing across the frontier numbers of our neighbors to whom we are glad to return hospitalities.

"One of the chief dispensers of such hospitality in proportion to its population has, as we have said, changed its character from an important cattle town to a thriving wheat producing area.

"What it has lost from the picturesque point of view, it has gained in the material side, and I wish, in conclusion, to express the hope that the prosperity which has evinced itself here for the past ten years, may continue unabated in the future."

There is no reason why at a hundred places on this educative, instructive and interesting trip of His Royal Highness he might not have expressed himself in the same terms, and on each occasion, addressed large gatherings of Americans who are now settled on the prairies of Western Canada.—Advertisement.

Stretching It Some.

The men were boasting about their rich kin. Said one: "My father has a big farm in Connecticut. It is so big that when he goes to the barn on Monday morning to milk the cows he kisses us all goodby, and he doesn't get back till the following Saturday."

"Why does it take him so long?" the other asked.

"Because the barn is so far away from the house."

"Well, that may be a pretty big farm, but compared to my father's farm in Pennsylvania your father's farm ain't no bigger than a city lot!"

"Why, how big is your father's farm?"

"Well, it's so big that my father sends young married couples out to the barn to milk the cows, and the milk is brought back by their grandchildren."

Calumet Ends "Bad Luck."

Remember when you were a youngster, what a trial baking day was? If Mother was lucky, everything went finely—but if she had "bad luck" her cakes and her pies and her bread were failures. Her success in baking seemed to depend almost altogether on "luck."

Nowadays there's no such thing as "baking luck." At least, not in the kitchens of the up-to-date cooks. Simply because Calumet Baking Powder has smashed that old time idea. It has made baking sure of success. It has made inexperienced cooks able to bake perfectly, and day after day it is saving hundreds of dollars' worth of time and materials by doing away with costly failures.

Calumet Baking Powder is the purest baking powder made—and guaranteed not only to BE pure, but to stay pure in the CAN and in the BAKING. Calumet has twice been officially judged the BEST baking powder made—receiving the highest awards at the World's Pure Food Expositions in Chicago (1907) and in Paris (1912). Adv.

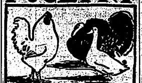
POULTRY



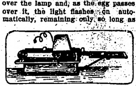
DAYLIGHT TESTER FOR EGGS

Michigan Man Has Invention That Will Prove Innovation in Poultry and Produce Business.

An electric daylight egg tester has been invented by Mr. S. J. Fish of Jackson, Mich., which will be an innovation in the poultry and produce business, for it is far ahead of candling in a dark room, says the Popular Electricity.

Electric No. 2, as it is called, is about 3 feet in length and contains a belt, with small metal trays about 6 inches apart for holding the eggs, which is run over rollers at each end of the case by the aid of a crank. This machine is equipped with an electric lamp and a cord attachable to any electric light socket.

A hood with an opening is placed over the lamp and, as the egg passes over it, the light flashes on automatically, remaining only so long as the egg is under examination; a perfect one is a clear deep orange color, while a bad one is black; the eggs turn automatically on the belt, enabling the tester to examine from all sides. The good eggs are allowed to roll out on a canvas table, which is done without danger of breakage, while the operator discards the ones which are spoiled.



Egg Tester.

When the ordinary lighting current cannot be secured, the machine is equipped with 24 dry batteries in multiple series, which furnish current for low voltage electric lamps.

An expert and two helpers can test about 80 cases per day with absolutely no danger from fire. Eggs are tested in a daylight room, and with great rapidity.

PROPER FEEDS FOR POULTRY

Best Rule Is to Watch Fowls and Give Them What They Will Clean Up —Milk Is Excellent.

Generaly speaking, the poultryman need not worry much about feeding formulas. If he will feed about one-third as much corn as all other grains and feed animal and vegetable feeds in connection he will get fairly satisfactory results. Those who are accustomed to compounding rations might remember that a ratio of about 1.5 is considered a good ration for laying hens and 1.6 a good one for fattening poultry of all kinds.

Fowls require the equivalent of about 27 pounds of dry feed for each 500 pounds of live weight. That is, 100 hens weighing 5 pounds each would require about 27 pounds of dry matter each day. If they are given milk, green, or other wet or juicy feeds, they will require less grain. About 4 ounces of dry matter per day is the quantity required for best results.

The very best rule is to watch the fowls and feed them about all they will eat. It is not a good plan to allow feed to lie uneaten. There is no danger of the hens becoming too fat as long as they are kept busy scratching for their feed. It is the fat hen that lays the eggs regularly.

GOOD POULTRY FEED TROUGH

Useful for All Kinds of Poultry and So Self-Explanatory That No Description Is Necessary.

The accompanying illustration, which shows a feeding trough very useful for all kinds of poultry, is so plainly self-explanatory that no description is necessary, says the Iowa Homestead. By the use of this trough no food can be wasted nor can the fowls get into the trough with their feet and thus soil it or impair the feeding value of the food.

Poultry Feed Trough.

Telling Fresh Egg.

It is claimed that a freshly laid egg placed in a bucketful of water will sink to the bottom, one day old will sink nearly to the bottom; two days old about half way up; three days old, will float not quite at the top; four days old, just touch the top; five and six days, rise a little above the top, rising a little higher as it daily grows older.

Preparation for Winter.

This is a mighty good time to do the cleaning-up work around the chicken-house. A liberal coat of whitewash, followed by a spraying of the perches, and dusting of infested fowls, will go a long way toward making comfortable for the winter the workers that turn out $600,000,000 worth of eggs a year.

Green Food for Winter.

Sprouted oats, cabbage and brittle, well-kept turnips furnish the best green poultry food for winter. Alfalfa or clover leaves or sweepings from the big barn floor, if scalded up and fed clear or with a little ground feed, will largely take the place of green food and in a way is better than all other green stuff without it.

FINAL RESULT OF IMPURE BLOOD

The System Is Left Weak, Run Down and Helpless Against the Attacks of Disease.

If you need strength, if your blood is thin, your digestion disordered, it will pay you to investigate the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy that has transformed so many weak, anæmic, dyspeptic, ambitionless people into strong, healthy, hungry men and women.

Mrs. Lena May Roberts, whose address is R. F. D. No. 3, Aberdeen, So. Dakota after several months of suffering finally found the right tonic in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For months after the birth of my baby, I suffered terribly from a general breakdown in health. I was in bed for three months and after that was able to be up only part of the time. I was sick all over, being pale, weak and thin. My appetite was gone and my head ached most of the time. Oftentimes there seemed to be a rush of blood to my head and I would faint away. I was very nervous and was not strong enough to do any work.

"As the treatment I was taking did not help me, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which a friend said had helped her. After taking a few boxes, I began to get well rapidly. I continued using them for a time and am now as well and strong as ever in my life."

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in general debility lies in their direct response to the needs of the blood. Their work is to make new blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and health. They lay the foundation for permanent health in the future.

For the same reason these pills have cured anæmia, after-effects of the grip and fevers, rheumatism, indigestion, and nervousness, dizziness, neuralgia and St. Vitus' dance, and are recommended wherever a tonic for the blood and nerves is needed.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Adv.

Elected to First Place by Three Generations of Smokers

Every year "Bull" Durham scores a bigger victory.

Every year for half a century it has been chosen leader of all high-grade tobaccos by a majority of American smokers.

Three generations have found delight in the genuine, wholesome flavor of this grand old tobacco—and still its popularity continues to grow.

Today "Bull" Durham numbers more smokers than all other high-grade brands combined.

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Forty "rollings" in each 5c muslin sack

"Bull" Durham is a granulated tobacco made from the choice, tender portions of bright golden Virginia and North Carolina leaf. Try "Bull" Durham in your pipe or roll yourself a cigarette of this pure, mild, fine-flavored tobacco, and see for yourself why for years and years so many million smokers have made it their choice.

A Plain Sack—but a Better Tobacco

The homely muslin bag that has become familiar to so many millions of "Bull" Durham smokers, is inexpensive; but you know this very cheapness makes it possible to give you a better tobacco.

OLD MAID FOR WISDOM

BEST ADVICE OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS HERS TO GIVE.

Especially About Matrimony, Says One, Is the Married Woman Apt to Be Actuated by Her Own Experiences.

"I don't know what to think," said the college graduate.

"It's the first admission of the kind since you got your diploma," said the old maid.

"What to think about what?" asked the matron just turned thirty. Her mouth was down at the corners, and there was a wrongs-for-women look in her eye.

"About marrying. Dave is beginning to insist on marrying just as I am beginning to see that I have some future ahead if I work life out by myself."

"Don't hesitate a minute," said the matron just turned thirty, and brought her teeth together with a noticeable click. "What can you do better than anything else?"

"I am interested, you know, in celestial mechanics."

"Then go in for it. Go in for anything that has that word celestial in it. It sounds promising. It may lead you into heaven. Marrying won't. There's no use to pretend that it will."

The telephone bell rang, then, and while the matron just turned thirty answered it, the other two regarded each other with looks that said that they were astonished at her and commiserative of her. Then her voice at the telephone came on to them in languid cadences: "Why, yes, I suppose I can go. Oh, yes, I suppose I want to. Really? You surprise me. From the way you rushed off this morning I should hardly have thought — Yes, but what made you forget? You have missed— Ye-es, I have, too. You old darling! All right, then, hurry home. I'll be ready."

She came back from the telephone to the two who had listened in conscienceless attention. "Jim and I are going to have a little celebration tonight," she announced shamelessly. "It's our anniversary." She went out of the room then, red but radiant.

"If you really want any advice about marrying," said the old maid, turning upon the college graduate, "you will have to come to us single women. You can't believe anything the married ones tell you. They are here today and there tomorrow. Their conclusions about matrimony rest upon no surer base than whether or not their husbands remembered to kiss them goodby this morning. They haven't any perspective. It takes an old maid to be the president of a congress of mothers, and it takes one to illuminate the subject of matrimony for the young and undecided."

"Turn on your searchlight, then. Let's have the illumination."

"Oh, all that it comes to is that each woman has to decide for herself," said the old maid.

Strange, Indeed!

Bishop Rowe, now of South Dakota, was upon a certain occasion obliged to start out afoot to reach a church in an eastern state. The August day was close and hot and the road was dusty, so that after half an hour's pedestrianism the reverend gentleman was well pleased when a man drew along in a spring wagon and offered a lift. His reverence wore no clerical garb and the state of his apparel after the tramping gave small indication of his calling.

The team jogged into a deep wood. The churchman deemed the time and the place fit for the broaching of spiritual things. Accordingly he opened the subject—rather abruptly, he confesses.

"Young man," he demanded solemnly, "are you prepared to die?"

"Do you know," the bishop innocently explained afterward, "the fellow gave a whoop, dropped the reins, jumped off the seat, and, before I could say a word, he had gone crashing through the woods! Now, why do you suppose he did that?"

Is Letter Writing Lost Art?

It is a well-known fact that in the present rush of life the art of letter writing is dying rapidly, especially among women. There is no time lost in long-winded sentences and needless fancy comments. The up-to-date mondaine in question expresses herself in a short, precise, crisp manner, and merely betrays her frame of mind, while corresponding, in the selection of her ink. If the lady means to show herself in an amiable, friendly mood, she chooses green ink. Yellow or orange implies that the writer is exuberantly happy. The various shades of violet demand a careful study on the part of the reader, blue predominating over red to an important extent when the writer seeks consolation. The most eccentric case of all is the use of white ink upon red paper. The latter expresses exceptional pride and energy carried to an excessive degree.

Germany Makes Magnesia Floors.

They are making the floors of big office buildings in Germany of a mixture of magnesium chloride, pulverized magnesia and sawdust, laid from two to four inches thick. Consul General Robert P. Skinner reports from Hamburg that such floors are waterproof, almost fireproof, crack-free, warm under foot, elastic, sound-proof and cheaper than pine flooring, tiling or stone.

MOON'S INFLUENCE ON TIDES

Survival of Old-Time Superstition Which Has Been Found Impossible to Eradicate.

The influence of the moon upon the weather was in ancient times assumed in much the same way as the influence of the moon upon the tides of the sea was assumed. There was no proper knowledge of the facts in either case, and it was accepted in both cases merely because the regular changes of the earth's shadow on the moon were used as the great primitive timekeeper, and any frequent changes in other things must happen after some one or other of those regular changes. The barbaric guess, "Post hoc ergo propter hoc," proved, when careful study of the matter was made and Newton's law of gravitation was applied to it, to be right in regard to the tides, but wrong in regard to the weather. The "banking up" of the sea in a moving hood which passes, as it were, "over the face of the waters" twice (approximately) in the 24 hours is now known to be due to the "drag" or gravitational attraction exerted on the heavy but mobile mass of the ocean by the moon as it circles round the earth, with a returning change in its relative position to earth and sun, the phases of which occupy a month.

But it has no such action on the flimsy vapors of the air. An immense number of exact numerical details, depending on the weight of the moon, its position, and movements in relation to the earth at successive moments, consequently of its action in producing the tides of the sea, have been ascertained with astounding accuracy. At the same time astronomers and meteorologists (those who study the atmosphere of our earth) have come to the conclusion that what we call "the weather" is not affected by the position of the moon in regard to the earth, either at any hour of the day or any part of the month (phase or "quarter" of the moon), or at any part of the year.

BEAT STREET CAR COMPANIES

Standard of Height Set for Children Does Not Always Work Out With Exact Justice.

"In cities where the street car companies attempt to determine the age of a child by its height, some pretty complications ensue," said the traveling salesman. "Forty-one inches has been established as the average height of a child of five years, but the injustice of that rule is frequently demonstrated in cities with a large foreign population.

"Into the car of a western city whose street railway has adopted the forty-one-inch gauge came a child carrying three books. His mother refused to pay fare.

"'If that kid's under five what's he doing with all those books?' the conductor demanded.

"The mother was serene in her right. 'Measure him and see,' she said.

"He marched the child up to the door jamb. The youngster fell a quarter of an inch below the topmost notch.

"'Seven, if he's a day,' the conductor growled; 'but she evades payment because of his nationality. He's Italian, and Italians run small.' On the measurement basis half the Italian children could ride free till they are twelve years old.'

"In that same town they have a large Bulgarian and Greek population. They are mostly undersized. A Swede, on the other hand, would overtop the mark so much that even a birth certificate would not entitle him to a free ride."

Potpourri of Peoples.

In this most cosmopolitan of cities (Buenos Aires) the foreigners foregather in little worlds of their own. Most are represented by newspapers published in their own languages; most have clubhouses more or less pretentious.

On the same evening one season recently "The Merry Widow" was produced in Spanish, French and Italian in as many different theaters. And there are all sorts of places of amusement where foreigners can enjoy themselves each after his own fashion—from an immense artificial skating rink (a very fashionable resort by the way) to a tropical coffee house, from a golf or race course to a poolroom or bowling alley, from the most attractive and elegantly equipped of modern cafes to a little French domino parlor or German beer saloon, from a magnificent opera house to a cheap vaudeville or moving picture theater.—From "Through South America," by Harry W. Van Dyke.

Loved for His Infirmity.

A case where bodily and not moral weakness brought happiness was that of Sergt. Thomas Plunkett of the Twenty-first Massachusetts regiment during the Civil war. In a charge at Fredericksburg the color bearer was among the first to fall. Seizing the flag Sergeant Plunkett bore it almost over the ramparts, where he fell with both arms shot away.

When the news was carried to his sweetheart, so the story goes, she protested that she could never marry him. "Then I'll be proud to," declared her sister. They were married as soon as he recovered. He was voted a medal by congress and made a messenger in the Massachusetts state house, where he served for many years.

OLD MAID FOR WISDOM

BEST ADVICE OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS HERS TO GIVE.

Especially About Matrimony, Says One, Is the Married Woman Apt to Be Actuated by Her Own Experiences.

"I don't know what to think," said the college graduate.

"It's the first admission of the kind since you got your diploma," said the old maid.

"What to think about what?" asked the matron just turned thirty. Her mouth was down at the corners, and there was a wrongs-for-women look in her eye.

"About marrying. Dave is beginning to insist on marrying just as I am beginning to see that I have some future ahead if I work life out by myself."

"Don't hesitate a minute," said the matron just turned thirty, and brought her teeth together with a noticeable click. "What can you do better than anything else?"

"I am interested, you know, in celestial mechanics."

"Then go in for it. Go in for anything that has that word celestial in it. It sounds promising. It may lead you into heaven. Marrying won't. There's no use to pretend that it will."

The telephone bell rang, then, and while the matron just turned thirty answered it, the other two regarded each other with looks that said that they were astonished at her and commiserative of her. Then her voice at the telephone came on to them in languid cadences: "Why, yes, I suppose I can go. Oh, yes, I suppose I want to. Really? You surprise me. From the way you rushed off this morning I should hardly have thought— Yes, but what made you forget? You have missed— Ye-es, I have, too. You old darling! All right, then, hurry home. I'll be ready."

She came back from the telephone to the two who had listened in conscienceless attention. "Jim and I are going to have a little celebration tonight," she announced shamelessly. "It's our anniversary." She went out of the room then, red but radiant.

"If you really want any advice about marrying," said the old maid, turning upon the college graduate, "you will have to come to us single women. You can't believe anything the married ones tell you. They are here today and there tomorrow. Their conclusions about matrimony rest upon no surer base than whether or not their husbands remembered to kiss them goodby this morning. They haven't any perspective. It takes an old maid to be the president of a congress of mothers, and it takes one to illuminate the subject of matrimony for the young and undecided."

"Turn on your searchlight, then. Let's have the illumination."

"Oh, all that it comes to is that each woman has to decide for herself," said the old maid.

Strange, Indeed!

Bishop Rowe, now of South Dakota, was upon a certain occasion obliged to start out afoot to reach a church in an eastern state. The August day was close and hot and the road was dusty, so that after half an hour's pedestrianism the reverend gentleman was well pleased when a man drew along in a spring wagon and offered a lift. His reverence wore no clerical garb and the state of his apparel after the tramping gave small indication of his calling.

The team jogged into a deep wood. The churchman deemed the time and the place fit for the broaching of spiritual things. Accordingly he opened the subject—rather abruptly, he confesses.

"Young man," he demanded solemnly, "are you prepared to die?"

"Do you know," the bishop innocently explained afterward, "the fellow gave a whoop, dropped the reins, jumped off the seat, and, before I could say a word, he had gone crashing through the woods! Now, why do you suppose he did that?"

Is Letter Writing Lost Art?

It is a well-known fact that in the present rush of life the art of letter writing is dying rapidly, especially among women. There is no time lost in long-winded sentences and needless fancy comments. The up-to-date mondaine in question expresses herself in a short, precise, crisp manner, and merely betrays her frame of mind, while corresponding, in the selection of her ink. If the lady means to show herself in an amiable, friendly mood, she chooses green ink. Yellow or orange implies that the writer is exuberantly happy. The various shades of violet demand a careful study on the part of the reader, blue predominating over red to an important extent when the writer seeks consolation. The most eccentric case of all is the use of white ink upon red paper. The latter expresses exceptional pride and energy carried to an excessive degree.

Germany Makes Magnesia Floors.

They are making the floors of big office buildings in Germany of a mixture of magnesium chloride, pulverized magnesia and sawdust, laid from two to four inches thick. Consul General Robert P. Skinner reports from Hamburg that such floors are waterproof, almost fireproof, crack-free, warm under foot, elastic, sound-proof and cheaper than pine flooring, tiling or stone.

MOON'S INFLUENCE ON TIDES

Survival of Old-Time Superstition Which Has Been Found Impossible to Eradicate.

The influence of the moon upon the weather was in ancient times assumed in much the same way as the influence of the moon upon the tides of the sea was assumed. There was no proper knowledge of the facts in either case, and it was accepted in both cases merely because the regular changes of the earth's shadow on the moon were used as the great primitive timekeeper, and any frequent changes in other things must happen after some one or other of those regular changes. The barbaric guess, "Post hoc ergo propter hoc," proved, when careful study of the matter was made and Newton's law of gravitation was applied to it, to be right in regard to the tides, but wrong in regard to the weather. The "banking up" of the sea in a moving hood which passes, as it were, "over the face of the waters" twice (approximately) in the 24 hours is now known to be due to the "drag" or gravitational attraction exerted on the heavy but mobile mass of the ocean by the moon as it circles round the earth, with a returning change in its relative position to earth and sun, the phases of which occupy a month.

But it has no such action on the flimsy vapors of the air. An immense number of exact numerical details, depending on the weight of the moon, its position, and movements in relation to the earth at successive moments, consequently of its action in producing the tides of the sea, have been ascertained with astounding accuracy. At the same time astronomers and meteorologists (those who study the atmosphere of our earth) have come to the conclusion that what we call "the weather" is not affected by the position of the moon in regard to the earth, either at any hour of the day or any part of the month (phase or "quarter" of the moon), or at any part of the year.

BEAT STREET CAR COMPANIES

Standard of Height Set for Children Does Not Always Work Out With Exact Justice.

"In cities where the street car companies attempt to determine the age of a child by its height, some pretty complications ensue," said the traveling salesman. "Forty-one inches has been established as the average height of a child of five years, but the injustice of that rule is frequently demonstrated in cities with a large foreign population.

"Into the car of a western city whose street railway has adopted the forty-one-inch gauge came a child carrying three books. His mother refused to pay fare.

"'If that kid's under five what's he doing with all those books?' the conductor demanded.

"The mother was serene in her right. 'Measure him and see,' she said.

"He marched the child up to the door jamb. The youngster fell a quarter of an inch below the topmost notch.

"'Seven, if he's a day,' the conductor growled; 'but she evades payment because of his nationality. He's Italian, and Italians run small.' On the measurement basis half the Italian children could ride free till they are twelve years old.'

"In that same town they have a large Bulgarian and Greek population. They are mostly undersized. A Swede, on the other hand, would overtop the mark so much that even a birth certificate would not entitle him to a free ride."

Potpourri of Peoples.

In this most cosmopolitan of cities (Buenos Aires) the foreigners foregather in little worlds of their own. Most are represented by newspapers published in their own languages; most have clubhouses more or less pretentious.

On the same evening one season recently "The Merry Widow" was produced in Spanish, French and Italian in as many different theaters. And there are all sorts of places of amusement where foreigners can enjoy themselves each after his own fashion—from an immense artificial skating rink (a very fashionable resort by the way) to a tropical coffee house, from a golf or race course to a poolroom or bowling alley, from the most attractive and elegantly equipped of modern cafes to a little French domino parlor or German beer saloon, from a magnificent opera house to a cheap vaudeville or moving picture theater.—From "Through South America," by Harry W. Van Dyke.

Loved for His Infirmity.

A case where bodily and not moral weakness brought happiness was that of Sergt. Thomas Plunkett of the Twenty-first Massachusetts regiment during the Civil war. In a charge at Fredericksburg the color bearer was among the first to fall. Seizing the flag Sergeant Plunkett bore it almost over the ramparts, where he fell with both arms shot away.

When the news was carried to his sweetheart, so the story goes, she protested that she could never marry him. "Then I'll be proud to," declared her sister. They were married as soon as he recovered. He was voted a medal by congress and made a messenger in the Massachusetts State house, where he served for many years.

Seaweed Substitute for Rubber.

A substitute for hard rubber, gutta percha and leather has just been put on the market in England under the name of seagumite. It is prepared from seaweed. The properties of the new discovery are said to be that it is non-inflammable, proof against heat, cold, oil and weather; its insulation resistance increases with immersion in water; it is unaffected by dilute sulphuric acid, which makes it especially valuable for use in storage battery jars and separators. It is well adapted for motor gears, switchboard panels, switch handles, steam and gas packings and to replace leather in beltings.

FIRE DOES CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE

Total Destruction of Himley Residence Prevented By Hard Work of Fire Fighters.

The fire department was called out about ten o'clock Tuesday forenoon to combat a threatening fire in the Himley residence, on Main street. The fire originated in the kitchen in the rear of the range and had gained considerable headway before it was detected. Miss Himley, who was the only one at home at the time, sounded the alarm, which was responded to very promptly by the fire department. During the mean time a bucket brigade were busy endeavoring to keep the fire at bay until the department arrived but their efforts proved futual and the fire kept gaining rapidly and there seemed little hope of saving the building from complete destruction.

All the household goods that could conveniently and quickly be removed from the building were deposited a safe. distance from what would apparently become a total mass of flames.

When the new chemical was put into service the situation changed immediately, and it was but a short time until the fire was under complete control.

The wall between the kitchen and dining room was quite badly burned but this was the extent of the damage to the building.

BEAT THE CATALOG HOUSE.

Local Dealer Saves Town $88 On a School House Bill.

For some time past, the Chicago House Wrecking Company has made a practice of offering to furnish the material for some structure for a reasonable sum. They, however, positively decline to furnish a list of the quantities to be supplied. The object of this policy has been to prevent the retail lumberman from offering to duplicate their proposition. Recently, the school officials at Strandquist, Minnesota, announced their intention of erecting a school house. The Chicago House Wrecking Company was asked to submit an estimate as to the cost of the material to be used. We give below a copy of their estimate which illustrates their method of figuring bills. They decline and refuse to specify the number of pieces or the number of feet they will supply. Apparently for the purpose of prejudicing those seeking to buy this material, they have made one exception to their rule in submitting this estimate. Their specifications call for thirty-six rolls of red rosin paper, although there was no possibility of using more than eight rolls in the construction of this school house. This may have been a typographical error, but we are inclined to the opinion that it was intended as sharp practice on the part of the Chicago House Wrecking Company. They well know that the legitimate retail lumbermen will furnish the prospective patron with a complete list of the material which he is preparing to furnish. In comparing these two estimates, the buyer would very likely be surprised because of the very marked differences in the amount of building paper offered to be furnished by the local dealer compared with that specified by the Chicago House Wrecking Company. This discrepancy might prejudice the consumer, who would argue that a similar difference might exist in various other items.

The material for this school house, complete, was furnished by Bertram & Wright, the local dealers who received $680.70 for the material called for according to the plans. They gave the assurance that they were entirely satisfied with the profits they made from this transaction. The Bertram-Wright Lumber Company made the school board of Strandquist two propositions; one, being that they would furnish the material called for by the plans for the same amount as the Chicago House Wrecking Company, or would sell the lumber at their regular prices allowing them a five per cent discount for cash. It is needless to say that the school board accepted the last proposition as a comparison of figures will show that the estimate of the Chicago House Wrecking Company and the lumber bill of the Bertram-Wright Lumber Company are quite different. In justice to the Chicago House Wrecking Company, however, it must be stated of their estimate of $849.00 also included hardware and paint, which the Bertram-Wright Company did not handle. This part of the bill, however, was furnished by the local hardware dealer at a cost of $80.27 to the school board. This made the total bill including the hardware, as sold by the local merchants $760.97, which when deducted from the estimate of the Chicago concern, meant a saving of $88.03 to the village by buying from the home merchant. After the school house had been inclosed it was found that some extra material would be needed not called for in the plans. This was furnished by the local company at regular prices subject to the five per cent cash discount this would have cost a good deal more had the original bill been purchased from the Chicago concern. On the other hand when final settlement was made it was found that the saving was even greater than the above mentioned as there

NEVER TIRES
Of the Food That Restored Her to Health.
"Something was making me ill and I didn't know the cause," writes a Colo. young lady: "For two years I was thin and sickly, suffering from indigestion and inflammatory rheumatism.
"I had tried different kinds of diet, and many of the remedies recommended, but got no better.
"Finally, Mother suggested that I try Grape-Nuts, and I began at once, eating it with a little cream or milk. A change for the better began at once.
"To-day I am well and am gaining weight and strength all the time. I've gained 10 lbs. in the last five weeks and do not suffer any more from indigestion, and the rheumatism is all gone.
"I know it is to Grape-Nuts alone that I owe my restored health. I still eat the food twice a day and never tire of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
The flavour of Grape-Nuts is peculiar to itself. It is neutral, not too sweet and has an agreeable, healthful quality that never grows tiresome.
One of the sources of rheumatism is from overloading the system with acid material, the result of imperfect digestion and assimilation.
As soon as improper food is abandoned and Grape-Nuts is taken regularly, digestion is made strong, the organs do their work of building up good red blood cells and of carrying away the excess of disease-making material from the system.
The result is a certain and steady return to normal health and mental activity. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

PRESIDENT SENDS ANOTHER MESSAGE

Tells Congress About the Fiscal, Military, Insular and Judicial Affairs of the Nation, Including Panama Canal and Tolls Established.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Congress today received from President Taft the second of his messages to the short session. It deals with fiscal, military, insular and judicial affairs and in part is as follows:

The condition of the country with reference to business could hardly be better. While the four years of the administration now drawing to a close have not developed great speculative expansion or a wide field of new investment, the recovery and progress made from the depressing conditions following the panic of 1907 have been steady and the improvement has been clear and easily traced in the statistics. The business of the country is now on a solid basis. Credits are not unduly extended and every phase of the situation seems in a state of preparedness for a period of unexampled prosperity. Manufacturing concerns are running at their full capacity and the demand for labor was never so constant and growing. The foreign trade of the country for this year will exceed $4,000,000,000, while the balance in our favor—that of the excess of exports over imports—will exceed $500,000,000. More than half our exports are manufactures or partly manufactured material, while our exports of farm products do not show the same increase of domestic consumption. It is a year of bumper crops; the total money value of farm products will exceed $9,500,000,000. It is a year when the bushel or unit price of agricultural products has gradually fallen, and yet the total value of the entire crop is greater by over $1,000,000,000 than we have known in our history.

Condition of the Treasury.

The condition of the treasury is very satisfactory. The total interest-bearing debt is $963,777,770, of which $134,631,980 constitute the Panama canal loan. The non-interest-bearing debt is $378,301,284.90, including $346,671,016 of greenbacks. We have in the treasury $150,000,000 in gold coin as a reserve against the outstanding greenbacks; and in addition we have a cash balance in the treasury as a general fund of $167,152,478.99, or an increase of $26,976,552 over the general fund last year.

Receipts and Expenditures.

For three years the expenditures of the government have decreased under the influence of an effort to economize. This year presents an apparent exception. The estimate by the secretary of the treasury of the ordinary receipts, exclusive of postal revenues, for the year ending June 30, 1914, indicates that they will amount to $170,000,000. The sum of the estimates of the expenditures for that same year, exclusive of Panama canal disbursements and postal disbursements payable from postal revenues is $732,000,000, indicating a deficit of $22,000,000. For the year ending June 30, 1913, similarly estimated receipts were $667,000,000, while the total corresponding estimate of expenditures for that year, submitted through the secretary of the treasury to congress, amounted to $656,000,000. This shows an increase of $76,000,000 in the estimates for 1914 over the total estimates of 1913. This is due to an increase of $25,000,000 in the estimate for rivers and harbors for the next year on projects and surveys authorized by congress; to an increase under the new pension bill of $32,500,000; and to an increase in the estimates for expenses of the navy department of $24,000,000. The estimate for the navy department for the year 1913 included two battleships. Congress made provision for only one battleship, and therefore the navy department has deemed it necessary and proper to make an estimate which includes the first year's expenditure for three battleships, in addition to the amount required for work on the uncompleted ships now under construction. In addition to the natural increase in the expenditures for the uncompleted ships, and the additional battleship estimated for, the other increases are due to the pay required for 4,000 or more additional enlisted men in the navy, and to this must be added the additional cost of construction imposed by the change in the eight-hour law which makes it applicable to ships built in private shipyards.

The president then explained at some length the national reserve association system recommended by the monetary commission and urged congress to examine the plan impartially from all standpoints and then to adopt some plan which will secure the benefits desired.

Concerning the tariff he had little to say in view of the fact that a new congress has been elected on a platform of tariff for revenue only.

Army Reorganization.

Our small army now consists of 83,809 men, excluding the 5,000 Philippine scouts. Leaving out of consideration the coast artillery force, whose position is fixed in our various seacoast defenses, and the present garrisons of our various insular possessions, we have today within the continental United States a mobile army of only about 35,000 men. This little force must be still further drawn upon to supply the new garrisons for the great naval base which is being established at Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian islands, and to protect the locks now rapidly approaching completion at Panama. The forces remaining in the United States are now scattered in nearly fifty posts, situated for a variety of historical reasons in twenty-four states. These posts contain only fractions of regiments, averaging less than 700 men each. In time of peace it has been our historical policy to administer these units separately by a geographical organization. In other words, our army in time of peace has never been a united organization but merely scattered groups of companies, battalions and regiments, and the first task in time of war has been to create out of these scattered units an army fit for effective teamwork and co-operation.

To the task of meeting these patent defects, the war department has been addressing itself during the past year. A comprehensive plan of reorganization was prepared by the war college division of the general staff. This plan was thoroughly discussed last summer at a series of open conferences held by the secretary of war and attended by representatives from all branches of the army and from congress. In printed form it has been distributed to members of congress and throughout the army and the national guard, and widely through institutions of learning and elsewhere in the United States. In it, for the first time, we have a tentative chart for future progress.

The National Guard.

Under existing law the national guard constitutes, after the regular army, the first line of national defense. Its organization, discipline, training, and equipment, under recent legislation, have been assimilated, as far as possible, to those of the regular army, and its practical efficiency, under the effect of this training, has very greatly increased. Our citizen soldiers under present conditions have reached a stage of development beyond which they cannot reasonably be asked to go without further direct assistance in the form of pay from the federal government. On the other hand, such pay from the national treasury would not be justified unless it produced a proper equivalent in additional efficiency on the part of the national guard. The organized militia today cannot be ordered outside of the limits of the United States, and thus cannot lawfully be used for general military purposes. The officers and men are ambitious and eager to make themselves thus available and to become an efficient national reserve of citizen soldiery. They are the only force of trained men, other than the regular army, upon which we can rely. The so-called military pay bill, in the form agreed on between the authorities of the war department and the representatives of the national guard, in my opinion adequately meets these conditions and offers a proper return for the pay which it is proposed to give to the national guard. I believe that its enactment into law would be a very long step toward providing this nation with a first line of citizen soldiery, upon which its main reliance must depend in case of any national emergency. Plans for the organization of the national guard into tactical divisions, on the same lines as those adopted for the regular army, are being formulated by the war college division of the general staff.

Porto Rico, Mr. Taft says, continues to show notable progress and he urges the senate to pass the bill granting the Porto Ricans American citizenship.

Philippines.

A bill is pending in congress, continues the message, which revolutionizes the carefully worked out scheme of government under which the Philippine islands are now governed and which proposes to render them virtually autonomous at once and absolutely independent in eight years. Such a proposal can only be founded on the assumption that we have now discharged our trusteeship to the Filipino people and our responsibility for them to the world, and that they are now prepared for self-government as well as national sovereignty. A thorough and unbiased knowledge of the facts clearly shows that these assumptions are absolutely with justification. As to this, I believe that there is no substantial difference of opinion among any of those who have had the responsibility of facing Philippine problems in the administration of the islands, and I believe that no one to whom the future of this people is a responsible concern can countenance a policy fraught with the direst consequences to those on whose behalf it is ostensibly urged.

Our true course is to pursue steadily and courageously the path we have thus far followed; to guide the Filipinos into self-sustaining pursuits; to continue the cultivation of sound political habits through education and political practice; to encourage the diversification of industries, and to realize the advantages of their industrial education by conservatively approved co-operative methods, at once checking the dangers of concentrated wealth and building up a sturdy, independent citizenship.

Regulation of Water Power.

There are pending before congress a large number of bills proposing to grant privileges of erecting dams for the purpose of creating water power in our navigable rivers. The pendency of these bills has brought out an important defect in the existing general dam act. That act does not, in my opinion, grant sufficient power to the federal government in dealing with the construction of such dams to exact protective conditions in the interest of navigation. It does not permit the federal government, as a condition of its permit, to require that a part of the value thus created shall be applied to the further general improvement and protection of the stream. I believe this to be one of the most important matters of internal improvement now confronting the government. Most of the navigable rivers of this country are comparatively long and shallow. In order that they may be made fully useful for navigation there has come into vogue a method of improvement known as canalization, or the slack-water method, which consists in building a series of dams and locks, each of which will create a long pool of deep navigable water. At each of these dams there is usually created a long pool of deep navigable water. At each of these dams there is usually created also water power of commercial value. If the water power thus created can be made available for the further improvement of navigation in the stream, it is manifest that the improvement will be much more quickly effected on the one hand, and on the other, that the burden on the general taxpayers of the country will be very much reduced. Private interests seeking permits to building waterpower dams in navigable streams usually urge that they thus improve navigation, and that if they do not impair navigation they should be allowed to take for themselves the entire profits of the water-power development. Whatever they may do by way of relieving the government of the expense of improving navigation should be given due consideration, but it must be apparent that there may be a profit beyond a reasonably liberal return upon the private investment which is a potential asset of the government in carrying out a comprehensive policy of waterway development. It is no objection to the retention and use of such an asset by the government that a comprehensive waterway policy will include the protection and development of the other public uses of water, which cannot and should not be ignored in making and executing plans for the protection and development of navigation. It is also equally clear that inasmuch as the water power thus created is or may be an incident of a general scheme of waterway improvement within the constitutional jurisdiction of the federal government, the regulation of such water power lies also within that jurisdiction. In my opinion constructive statesmanship requires that legislation should be enacted which will permit the development of navigation in these great rivers to go hand in hand with the utilization of this by-product of water power, created in the course of the same improvement, and that the general dam act should be so amended as to make this possible. I deem it highly important that the nation should adopt a consistent and harmonious treatment of these water-power projects, which will preserve for this purpose their value to the government, whose right it is to grant the permit. Any other policy is equivalent to throwing away a most valuable national asset.

The Panama Canal.

During the past year the work of construction upon the canal has progressed most satisfactorily. About 87 per cent. of the excavation work has been completed, and more than 93 per cent. of the concrete for all the locks is in place. In view of the great interest which has been manifested as to some slides in the Culebra Cut, I am glad to say that the report of Col. Goethals should allay any apprehension on this point. It is gratifying to note that none of the slides which occurred during this year would have interfered with the passage of the ships had the canal, in fact, been in operation, and when the slope pressures will have been finally adjusted and the growth of vegetation will minimize erosion in the banks of the cut, the slide problem will be practically solved and an ample stability assured for the Culebra Cut.

Although the official date of the opening has been set for January 1, 1915, the canal will, in fact, from present indications, be opened for shipping during the latter half of 1913. No fixed date can as yet be set, but shipping interests will be advised as soon as assurances can be given that vessels can pass through without unnecessary delay.

Recognizing the administrative problem in the management of the canal, congress in the act of August 24, 1912, has made admirable provision for executive responsibility in the control of the canal and the government of the Canal Zone. The problem of most efficient organization is receiving careful consideration, so that a scheme of organization and control best adapted to the conditions of the canal may be formulated and put in operation as expeditiously as possible. Acting under the authority conferred on me by congress, I have, by executive proclamation, promulgated the following schedule of tolls for ships passing through the canal, based upon the thorough report of Emory R. Johnson, special commissioner on traffic and tolls:

1. On merchant vessels carrying passengers or cargo, $1.20 per net vessel ton—each 100 cubic feet—of actual capacity.
2. On vessels in ballast without passengers or cargo, 40 per cent. less than the rate of tolls for vessels with passengers or cargo.
3. Upon naval vessels, other than transports, colliers, hospital ships, and supply ships, 50 cents per displacement ton.
4. Upon army and navy transports, colliers, hospital ships, and supply ships, $1.20 per net ton, the vessels to be measured by the same rules as are employed in determining the net tonnage of merchant vessels.

Rules for the determination of the tonnage upon which toll charges are based are now in course of preparation and will be promulgated in due season.

Panama Canal Treaty.

The proclamation which I have issued in respect to the Panama Canal tolls is in accord with the Panama Canal act passed by this congress August 24, 1912. We have been advised that the British government has prepared a protest against the act and its enforcement in so far as it relieves from the payment of tolls American ships engaged in the American coastwise trade on the ground that it violates British rights under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty concerning the Panama Canal. When the protest is presented, it will be promptly considered and an effort made to reach a satisfactory adjustment of any differences there may be between the two governments.

Promotion for Col. Goethals.

As the completion of the canal grows nearer, and as the wonderful executive work of Col. Goethals becomes more conspicuous in the eyes of the country and of the world, it seems to me wise and proper to make provision by law for such reward to him as may be commensurate with the service that he has rendered to his country. I suggest that this reward take the form of an appointment of Col. Goethals as a major general in the army of the United States, and that the law authorizing such appointment be accompanied with a provision permitting his designation as chief of engineers upon the retirement of the present incumbent of that office.

Navy Department.

The navy of the United States is in a greater state of efficiency and is more powerful than it has been before, but in the emulation which exists between different countries in respect to the increase of naval and military armaments this condition is not a permanent one. In view of the many improvements and increases by foreign governments the slightest halt on our part in respect to new construction throws us back and reduces us from a naval power of the first rank and places us among the nations of the second rank.

A year ago congress refused to appropriate for more than one battleship. In this I think a great mistake of policy was made, and I urgently recommend that this congress make up for the mistake of the last session by appropriations authorizing the construction of three battleships, in addition to destroyers, fuel ships, and the other auxiliary vessels as shown in the building program of the general board. We are confronted by a condition in respect to the navies of the world which requires us, if we would maintain our navy as an insurance of peace, to augment our naval force by at least two battleships a year and by battle cruisers, gunboats, torpedo destroyers, and submarine boats in a proper proportion. We have no desire for war. We go as far as any nation in the world to avoid war, but we are a world power. Our population, our wealth, our definite policies, our responsibilities in the Pacific and the Atlantic, our defense of the Panama canal, together with our enormous world trade and our missionary outposts on the frontiers of civilization, require us to recognize our position as one of the foremost in the family of nations, and to clothe ourselves with sufficient naval power to give force to our reasonable demands, and to give weight to our influence in those directions of progress that a powerful Christian nation should advocate.

Department of Justice.

This department has been very active in the enforcement of the law. It has been better organized and with a larger force than ever before in the history of the government. The prosecutions which have been successfully concluded and which are now pending testify to the effectiveness of the department work.

The prosecution of trusts under the Sherman anti-trust law has gone on without restraint or diminution, and decrees similar to those entered in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases have been entered in other suits, like the suits against the powder trust and the bath tub trust. I am very strongly convinced that a steady, consistent course in this regard, with a continuing of Supreme court decisions upon the new phases of the trust question not already finally decided, is going to offer a solution of this much-discussed and troublesome issue in a quiet, calm and judicial way, without any radical legislation changing the governmental policy in regard to combinations now denounced by the Sherman anti-trust law. I have already recommended as an aid in this matter legislation which would declare unlawful certain well-known phases of unfair competition in interstate trade, and I have also advocated voluntary national incorporation for the larger industrial enterprises, with provision for a closer supervision by the bureau of corporations, or a board appointed for the purpose, so as to make certain compliance with the anti-trust law on the one hand and to give greater security to the stockholders against possible prosecutions on the other. I believe, however, that the orderly course of litigation in the courts and the regular prosecution of trusts charged with the violation of the anti-trust law is producing among business men a clearer and clearer perception of the line of distinction between business that is to be encouraged and business that is to be condemned, and that in this quiet way the question of trusts can be settled and competition retained as an economic force to secure reasonableness in prices and freedom and independence in trade.

End of New York Landmark.

Another New York landmark is passing—the Mott Memorial Surgical and Medical Library property. It will be altered for business purposes. The library was established in 1866 by Dr. Valentine Mott, father of American surgery, as he was later called. At that period he was one of the foremost surgeons. There were no medical libraries in New York then, and to help along students Dr. Mott gave his private library, which was one of the best in the country. Besides his books, medical instruments of the different periods were on exhibition there. The books and instruments of Dr. Mott have now been taken by the New York Academy of Medicine.

Millions of Electric Lights.

In Manhattan there is an electric light for each inhabitant of the city, but, taking the city as a whole, this average would be considerably reduced, as, for instance, the borough of Brooklyn has but one thousand. The other boroughs which go to make up the city would show a lower figure. Some of the other cities of this country may have a percentage almost, if not as great. In Denver, for instance, the use of electric signs and lights for illuminating and decorative purposes has become so general that some of its business men are advertising it as the Electric City. One building in that city is outlined outside with 72,000-candle power.

It is a duty of the kidneys to rid the blood of uric acid, an irritating poison that is constantly forming inside.
When the kidneys fail, uric acid causes rheumatic attacks, headache, dizziness, gravel, urinary troubles, weak eyes, dropsy or heart disease.
Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys fight off uric acid—bringing new strength to weak kidneys and relief from backache and urinary ills.
A TEXAS CASE.
Mrs. L. H. Garmany, 391 E. Bluff St., Fort Worth, Texas, says: "I was in bed for weeks with terrible pains in my back. My feet were so bloated I could not wear shoes and my eyes swelled so I could hardly see. After doctors failed, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. I rapidly grew better and in a short time was entirely well."

IND OF OUR FOREFATHERS

ward Everett's Tribute to England as the Cradle and Refuge of Free Principles.

For myself I can truly say that ter my native land I feel a tender- ss and a reverence for that of my thers. The pride I take in my own puntry makes me respect that from hich we are sprung. The sound of native language beyond the sea a music to my ears beyond the rich- st strains of Tuscan softness or Cas- lian majesty.

I am not—I need not say I am not— he panegyrist of England. I am not lazzled by her riches nor awed by her ower. The scepter, the miter and e coronet, stars, garters and rib- ons seem to me poor things for great en to contend for.

But England is the cradle and the efuge of free principles, though often ersecuted; the school of religious iberty, the more precious for the truggles through which it has passed; e holds the tombs of those who have eflected honor on all who speak the nglish tongue; she is the birthplace f our fathers, the home of the Pilgrims; it is these which I love and enerate in England.

I should feel ashamed of an enthusiasm for Italy and Greece did I not also feel it for a land like this. In an American it would seem to be degenerate and ungrateful to hang with passion upon the traces of Homer and Virgil and follow without emotion the nearer and plainer footsteps of Shakespeare and Milton. I should think him cold in love for his native land who felt no melting in his heart for that other native country which holds the ashes of his forefathers.—Edward Everett.

Heavy Coal Producers.

The concentration of the anthracite industry of Pennsylvania into strong and relatively few units is shown by the fact that in 1911 nearly 75 per cent. of the mines were producers of more than 100,000 tons each and that all but 3 per cent. of the total production was from this gdoup of mines. According to the geological survey the anthracite mines exclusively in the first class—those producing over 200,000 tons each—yielded 87.2 per cent. of the total output, and the 168 mines included in this class had an average production of 444,697 tons each. In 1910 there were 157 anthracite mines in the 200,000-ton class and their average production was 419,035 tons each; in 1909 170 mines had an average production of 386,628 tons each.

The Hohenzollerns.

The house of Hohenzollern, of which is the present emperor of Germany, had its origin in Thassilo, who built the castle of Hohenzollern about the year 800. In 1417 Frederick of Nuremberg, his descendant was made Elector of Brandenburg. The Prince of Hohenzollern abdicated in favor of the King of Prussia in 1849. Charles, son of Charles Anthony, was elected Prince of Roumania in 1866. His brother, Leopold, was nominated for the throne of Spain in 1870, but withdrew on account of the excitement of the time, brought on by the Franco-Prussian difficulty.

AND IT WASN'T HUBBY AT ALL

Mr. Younghusband Unjustly Blamed for Fault of Choleric Driver of the Mules.

Another practical application of the advisability of believing only "half of what you hear" had an inning in a South side home recently. An upper apartment is occupied by a bride and groom. The groom on this fatal morning happened to be the first one up. A teamster with a pair of balky mules on the street below the bedroom windows was admonishing the mules in the only language mules are said to understand.

While the groom was in the process of a morning plunge he was astonished to hear sobs coming from the adjoining room. Hastily repairing to the scene of trouble, he was about to inquire what on earth the matter was, when in muffled tones cames the heartbroken accents of the bride:

"Oh, how dare you speak to me that way, you horrid thing. I'm going straight home to m-moth—" and the balance was smothered again in the sympathetic pillow.

The astonished groom stood, gaping and speechless, while the sobbing was resumed Just then, wafted in by the gentle morning breeze, came this dulcet admonishment from the street below: "Get up, you blankety-blink-blank lazy houn' pup, yuh! How do you expect me to get anywhere? D'you think you kin stay here all day, yob blankety-zip-whoop-blank, etc!"

The shout of laughter that broke the tense silence in that bridal apartment made even the aggrieved bride sit up in her misery and negligee and take notice of her convulsed "brute" of a husband. Indignation was beginning to flame high in her eyes when he recovered his breath enough to tell her to just listen a moment. She listened to the choicest bit of profanity the teamster had yet relieved his system of.

"Oh," she gasped, and before the morning was over had the whole apartment wondering what the joke was.—Kansas City Journal.

HOW ROMAN WENT COURTING

Prospective Wife Had Nothing to Do With the Match, Though Accorded High Position.

When a boy had completed his studies and had reached the age of perhaps twenty-five or thirty, it was his duty to marry. After deciding upon a lady whom he thought suitable to be his wife he arranged the betrothal with her father, as the maiden was usually too young to be consulted in the matter, and, furthermore Roman women were always under guardianship. The marriage ceremonies began with the feast and sacrifices in the house of the bride's father.

In the evening a procession of youths, torch-bearers, musicians and guests escorted the bride to her future home, where the groom carefully lifted her over the threshold, as it was an ill omen for her to touch the sill with her foot. In case the wedding was of the ancient sacred form termed confarreatio, the newly married pair, after entering the house, ate together a sacred cake in the presence of ten witnesses and of the chief pontiff and priest of Jupiter. The ceremonies of the evening ended with a bridal song by the guests, and on the following day the husband gave a marriage feast to his friends.

Though early custom placed the wife in the power of her husband, she went freely into society, attended the theaters and public games, taught her children, and sometimes aided her husband in his political career. Her position as mistress of the household commanded respect from government and society.—Exchange.

Rare Attraction for a Sideshow.

"I next have the pleasure, lay-dees and gen-tle-men," announced the side show lecturer in orotund tones, indicating a pale, wan, spectacled person on the platform, "of calling your kind attention to one of the most remarkable curiosities on exhibition. He—"

"Huh!" hypercritically ejaculated Tobe Sagg, who had nosed into the forefront of the crowd around the rostrum. "He looks just about like the rest of us."

"Very true!" replied the orator "But, despite that fact, he is, so far as we have any knowledge, the only specimen of his kind in existence—a country editor who worked and fought and labored for his party, with heart and soul and might and main, merely because he thought it was right and not because he wanted the postoffice!"

Household Maneuver.

"And what," asked the caller, after he had been shown all over Mr. Bobb's new house, "is that pretty little article hanging over the piano?"

"Don't you know?" answered Mr. Bobbs, enthusiastically. "Why, that is a handy match receiver, made by Mrs. Bobbs. I scratch a match and use it. It must not be thrown on the floor—there is the receiver. Holding the burnt match carefully in my fingers, I move the piano away from the wall to the center of the room. Then I go down in the basement and get the stepladder. I place the stepladder against the wall, mount it, deposit the match in the receiver, climb down again. I then return the stepladder to the basement, come back and move the piano into its former position. There's nothing like having these handy things about the house. It makes for neatness and discourages smoking."

Father of Orozco Captured.

Washington, —The United States will hold Colonel Pascual Orozco, Sr., father of the Rebel general, with any other captured Mexican rebels probably for deportation to Mexico. No charges of violations of the neutrality laws are pending against either, and their position is the same as that of any of their men.

General Orozco, however, if captured, would be held for the Mexican government, which is prepared to ask for his extradition to face charges of embezzlement.

LATEST NEWS FROM HADES

John Armstrong Chaloner Gets Authentic Information From Departed Friend.

Washington.—John Armstrong Chaloner, a member of the Chaloner family of New York, who is legally insane in that state, although legally sane in Virginia, says he has received a message from hell through his deceased friend, Thomas Jefferson Miller. Chaloner, who lives at Merry Mills, Va., came to Alexandria to get the message from Miller.

Chaloner says Miller informed him that "Hell is more an affair of the intellect, will power and aspiration than merely combustion," and that the temperature is of the nature of our temperate zone. Thus Chaloner quotes Miller:

"In hell, morality is as enthusiastically and scientifically taught as mathematics and physics at any university. Justice rules, but it is untempered by mercy."

Chaloner says Miller declared that on arriving in hell he found himself to have been Marshal Ney in life. He had assumed his stature and features, and had conversed with Napoleon Bonaparte, who later appeared before him in the costume of Michael Angelo. Again Chaloner quotes Miller:

"On reaching here, the first sensation experienced was that of awakening after a sound and peaceful sleep. When I opened my eyes what did I behold? Napoleon Bonaparte sitting upon a throne the like of which never before was seen."

In the opinion of Miller, according to the message of Chaloner, Satan "is a thoroughly misunderstood personality. Satan is no enemy of Jehovah as is sin. Satan is Jehovah's public prosecutor. Briefly, Satan is the highest power in heaven after the Trinity. He reigns in hell, but appears in heaven as he pleases."

Satan, Miller says, according to Chaloner, is a prince, a gentleman, a hero and a noble creature."

WHOLE HOUSEHOLD IN PAWN

Wedding Ring Included, Says Charles Rothweiler in Suit for Divorce in California.

Oakland, Cal.—Something turned up for Charles Rothweiler every minute after he found a note informing him that Mrs. Clara Rothweiler had gone to the country. The first revelation came when his daughter found a batch of pawn tickets, according to his complaint for divorce. The tickets showed Mrs. Rothweiler had pawned her wedding ring, a diamond brooch which he had given her, and articles of jewelry belonging to their daughter, he said.

Rothweiler also averred that he found Mrs. Rothweiler had arranged several loans secured by mortgages on their furniture. The next thing that came to light was that she had failed to deposit money in the bank which he said he had given her, spending it instead.

Mrs. Rothweiler is charged with all these things to gratify her alleged desire for strong drink. Rothweiler said she was often under the influence of liquor, letting bread burn up in the oven while she slumbered, and also of falling asleep on the porch. He said he had seen her spill her soup at the table while under the influence of liquor.

The note which he said he found conveyed the information she had betrayed her trust and had gone to the country and would not return.

Some Words You Don't Know.

What is the use of coining slang words to express your meaning in a more picturesque fashion than your neighbor when the dictionary is full of words just as queer and far more correct. Here are a few perfectly good words to be found in any complete dictionary of the English language. But don't you go to the dictionary for them—yet. See first if you can figure out their meaning. Then, when you have looked them up, spring them on the next fellow. He will either brand you as a highbrow or else admire you as the inventor of a new language, though you are neither. Here are the words:

Opuscule, tobacconing, noddy, node, futtock, gallimatias, fadie, duvet, dziggetail, dwale, periotic, predicant, younker, quintal, propense, quib, becket, chauvinism, beluga, gar, hypostyle, aoudad, incondite, inly, kelp, jorum, rundlet, rupertrine, caddis, fissle, calcar, flinder, hopple, horary, thorp, usltative, woof, arcolitu, gaum.

All of them in the diction. Almost none of them jawbreakers or over long. What do any of them mean?

They Did Better Then.

"We are losing all our secrets in this shabby age," an architect said "If we keep on, the time will come when we'll be able to do nothing well.

"Take, for instance, steel. We claim to make good steel; yet the blades the Saracens turned out hundreds of years ago would cut one of our own blades in two like butter.

"Take ink. Our modern ink fades in five or ten years to rust color, yet the ink of mediaeval manuscripts is as black and bright today as it was 700 years ago.

"Take dyes. The beautiful blues and reds and greens of antique oriental rugs have all been lost, while in Egyptian tombs we find fabrics dyed thousands of years ago that remain today brighter and purer in hue than any of our modern fabrics.

"Take my specialty, buildings. We can't build as the ancients did. The secret of their mortar and cement is lost to us. Their mortar and cement were actually harder and more durable than the stones they bound together, whereas ours—horrors!"

PROGRESSIVES MEET

NATIONAL MEETING BEING HELD IN CHICAGO BY BULL MOOSERS.

SOLIDIFICATION PLANS.

Roosevelt and Leaders East and West Lay Plans for Future of Third Party.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Colonel Roosevelt and Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, are the chief speakers at the session of the national conference of the Progressive party, being held in Chicago the first of this week. Medill McCormick has charge of arrangements. The program for the two days follows:

Tuesday.

11:00 a. m.—Conference called to order by National Chairman Joseph M. Dixon of Montana.
11:30 a. m.—Address by Colonel Roosevelt.
2:00 p. m.—Address by Miss Jane Addams, who also will preside. Reports of the committees.
6:30 p. m.—Dinner, presided over by Alfred L. Baker. Brief speeches by Colonel Roosevelt and other leaders.

Wednesday.

10:00 a. m.—Third session of the conference. Discussion and reports.
2:00 p.m.—Final session of conference.
4:00 p. m.—National committee meeting to act on recommendations of the conference.

Colonel to Visit Hull House.

On Wednesday night, Colonel Roosevelt will pay his first visit to Hull House, where he will be entertained at dinner by Miss Addams.

The committee on arrangements hopes to have in attendance on the sessions of the conference every state chairman and all the members of the national executive committee. In addition, it was said at Progressive headquarters that hundreds of members of the party, including many women, would come from various sections of the Middle West.

Colonel en Route to Chicago.

New York, Dec. 9.—Colonel Roosevelt and 150 other Progressive party leaders and members are en route for Chicago on a special train of 10 cars, from the rear of which in electric letters, was emblazoned "Bull Moose Special." The occasion of this mid-winter political activity is the proposed solidification of the new party and the laying of plans for future campaigns. Members from other states are on the way to join in the Chicago conference and a number of New England and New Jersey members accompanied the New York delegation. Others were to join the party at Albany.

Although Colonel Roosevelt had no comment to make upon the situation several members of his party, particularly Oscar Straus and Frank A. Munsey, asserted that if the Republican party hoped to rejuvenate itself it would have to be by turning Progressive.

Governors Would Wait Year.

These sentiments were in reference to the decision of the Republican governors' conference in Washington Saturday to wait another year before taking steps to reorganize the party, with the hope expressed that the Progressives might be brought back into the fold.

Many Women in Party.

More than a score of women were in the party which took the train here. New Englanders included Charles H. Thompson, state committeeman; D. W. Gibson, H. Nelson Jackson and O. A. Ricksford, all of Vermont; State Senator J. W. Alsop and Mrs. Alsop, F. D. Leighton and G. A. Romans of Connecticut.

$250,000 Fire in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Can., Dec. 10.—Fire which started in Potters' wholesale furniture warehouse and completely gutted that building threatened the wholesale houses of Bromley and Hague, tent and awning manufacturers; MacKenzie Bros. hardware specialties and the Simpson Produce company, all situated in the wholesale district on Princess street. The fire had a big start before the call was sent in and resulted in a property loss of a quarter of a million.

Credit System Will Be Pushed.

Washington, Dec. 9.—A general credit system for the financing of farmers, as outlined by President Taft to the governors' conference here, will be considered as a part of the general currency reform to be attempted by the sub-committee of the house banking and currency committee. Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, will be accorded a special hearing by the sub-committee seeking a substitute for the Aldrich currency plan of which Representative Glass of Virginia is chairman.

RINES AS SPEAKER

MORA MAN CLEVERLY GAINS A VICTORY OVER HIS OPPONENTS.

RIVALS ACKNOWLEDGE IT

Lundeen's Attitude Indicates Fight for Progressive Organization May Go on Regardless of Result.

St. Paul.—Henry Rines of Mora is the successful candidate for the speakership of the next house.

A clever coup was perpetrated by the Rines forces by which the entire Republican delegation of Ramsey was lined up for Mr. Rines. This gave the Mora man 68 votes.

All of the opposition candidates recognizing the futility of further opposition withdrew from the race, leaving a clear field for Mr. Rines. The First district caucused at Rochester.

Mr. Rines felt extremely gratified over the result and said: "It has been a clean fight and absolutely no pledges have been made to any one. I feel very gratified over the action of my opponents in withdrawing from the fight at this time and thus bringing about a more harmonious situation."

Losers Take It Cheerfully.

Both P. H. McGary and G. W. Brown appeared early in the lobby of the Merchants hotel, showing themselves cheerful losers.

"I recognize that Mr. Rines has a majority of the members pledged to him," said Mr. McGary, "and I withdraw from the fight. As the choice of the majority of the house I shall seek to co-operate with Mr. Rines in every way possible for the best interests of the state. I have no regrets over the outcome. I have received some loyal support and am grateful for that. It is with a sincere feeling of relief that the responsibility of the speakership will not be upon my shoulders. I would have appreciated the honor, but I have realized all along that it is a position full of grief and trouble."

Splendid Victory Admitted.

Garfield W. Brown of Glencoe was an equally cheerful and equally game loser.

"It is all over," said Mr. Brown, "and I am feeling extremely comfortable over the result. Mr. Rines has won a splendid victory and there is nothing but the best of feeling in my heart towards him. We can now interest ourselves in framing the legislation that should be passed this winter."

Lundeen to Fight on Alone.

Ernest Lundeen of Minneapolis also recognized that Mr. Rines had carried off the palm of victory, but Mr. Lundeen maintains that he will not go into the caucus, but will continue his fight alone for what he regards as Progressive principles. He said:

"Reliable information reaches me that Representative Rines has the unanimous indorsement of the Ramsey Republican delegation, which, added to the solid Ninth and heavy support in all but the Third district, gives Mr. Rines the lead in the Republican caucus and also on the floor of the house by seven votes. I congratulate my successful opponent and wish him a successful administration. The neatness and dispatch with which he put through his program speaks well for his executive ability.

"Personally, I have no regrets to offer. The men, however, who put aside outworn ideas and sacrificed committees, chairmanships and employes to follow me, without hesitation along more modern lines, have my sincere thanks. I release them from all pledges, to vote as they think best; as for me, I will join in no caucus or click combine. I am fighting for principle. Two years ago I fought the canonized rules alone, and if necessary I am not afraid to stand alone now."

Mr. Lundeen's attitude indicates that, while the election of Mr. Rines as speaker is acknowledged, the fight for organization of the house along more progressive lines may be continued.

Result of Clever Moves.

The victory of Mr. Rines is the result of a series of clever moves, starting with the secret caucus held recently in Minneapolis. At that time Representatives Rines, Nolan, Holmberg, Frankson, Johnson and Ofsthun, who had been mentioned as candidates for speaker, brought as many of their friends as possible into the caucus, and after balloting decided upon Rines as their candidate. The band-wagon movement thus started carried Rines over. There is considerable mystery about the Ramsey county action which finally clinched Mr. Rines' choice as speaker.

Young Trapper Drowned.

Frazee.—Edward, aged 22, son of Martin Koplin, of Vergas, was drowned while trapping along the shore of Leon lake, near that village. He started on skates across the lake, when he went through an airhole and did not appear again. Had not an old man who was living in a cabin on an island felt some strange impulse to go to his door it would perhaps never have been known what became of the lad, as the man had just reached the door when he saw the young fellow sink from sight.

Alleged Bigamist Silent.

Minneapolis, Dec. 7.—Lola M. Pierce the woman who is charged with having married three husbands in a year without the formality of divorcing any of them, waived examination in municipal court and was held to the grand jury in $500 bail. Mrs. Pierce was arrested Wednesday night at the instigation of her second husband, Union Rothe of Des Moines, who traced her to Minneapolis and found her living at 26 Western avenue with John Berg, whom she married last Monday.

NAME FARM SCHOOL BUILDINGS

BOOSTERS OF NORTHERN MINNESOTA AT EXERCISES.

J. J. Hill Praises Red River Valley Amid Great Applause—Many at Banquet.

Crookston.—On the eve of the greatest day in its history, members of the Northern Minnesota Development association mingled in dedicatory and building-naming exercises at the Northwest school of agriculture here, attended by some of the state's biggest men, including James J. Hill, who came in a special train; Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota; B. F. Nelson, Minneapolis, president of the university board of regents; Dean Woods and others.

Hill Given a Big Ovation.

At the naming of the new agricultural building in his honor, Mr. Hill was applauded until he held up his hands for silence, but hand clapping frequently interrupted his remarks, especially his tribute to the soil of the Red River valley.

"There is no other place of equal area that possesses as much wealth as the Red River valley," said Mr. Hill. "Once I said every acre was worth $50; I made a mistake—it is worth $100."

Mr. Hill made a strong plea for the teaching of domestic science to girls.

"Most of the wrecked homes and most of the divorces are caused because the girl has not been properly trained in domestic duties."

Refers to Woods' Controversy.

Mr. Hill referred indirectly to his recent controversy with Dean Woods, relative to the standing of the agricultural college.

"If the agricultural college is not what it should be, or agricultural teaching in the state is not what it should be, the people have only themselves to blame," said Mr. Hill.

The school's farm engineering and dairy building was officially given the name of Sidney M. Owen hall, and in tendering the name Professor T. L. Haecker of St. Paul referred to Mr. Owen as the originator of advanced education in Minnesota. Hugh J. Hughes of Minneapolis responded.

The administration building was given the name of David L. Kiehle building, Fred B. Snyder responding for Mr. Kiehle, now a resident of Portland, Ore. The girls' dormitory was named William Robertson hall. Mrs. Robertson made the response.

Pledges Best Services of "U."

The new agricultural building was next dedicated, followng which Mr. Hill spoke. C. G. Selvig presided. One of the three speeches made by President George Edgar Vincent of the University of Minnesota was made at this meeting. He pledged the best services of the university to an extension of agricultural education.

All these meetings were incidental to the development association's convention, and the delegates attended in a body, being taken to the experiment station in a special train.

In the evening the state served a banquet at the farm school, attended by 300 persons. Toasts were responded to by A. J. McGuire of the North Central state farm at Grand Rapids, who pleaded for Americans to "stop going away to live under a foreign flag when you can do better by coming to Northeast Minnesota;" E. C. Higbe, superintendent of the state farm school at Morris; A. A. Miller, Crookston; John Dwang, Two Harbors; J. J. Hill and President Vincent. Dr. Vincent's toast was to "The University."

JUDGE ELLIOTT RESIGNS.

Former Minneapolis Jurist's Retirement From Island Commission Surprises His Friends.

Minneapolis.—Judge Charles B. Elliott, who was formerly of Minneapolis, member of the Philippine commission and secretary of police and commerce for the Philippine island, has resigned his position with the government. Judge Elliott's resignation was announced from Washington, D. C., and is a complete surprise to his Minneapolis friends. He was in Minneapolis recently and said then that if Woodrow Wilson were elected president he probably would lose his Philippine position.

Plan to Build Interurban.

Thief River Falls.—At a meeting of citizens it was decided to proceed with the construction of the proposed electric railway from this city to the eastern country, some twenty-five miles towards the woods in Beltrami county. This territory is well settled and supports a good population of farmers who have no market place nearer than Thief River Falls. To care for the heavy business incident to this territory a company has been launched and the right of way secured and the capital necessary for the enterprise has been assured.

To Conduct Stearns County Fair.

Sauk Center.—The Agricultural society of Stearns county, at its annual meeting here, elected the following officers: President, J. N. McGibbon; vice president, J. B. Schoenhoff; secretary, B. F. Du Bois; corresponding secretary, M. D. Aygarn; treasurer, A. F. Strebel; board of directors, G. Hillerud, J. A. Brown, H. F. Hennemann, S. F. Merryman and J. A. Schoenhoff. The secretary's report showed receipts for the year of $5,721.65 and disbursements of $5,700.77.

Women Gain Control.

St. Paul. — Women "insurgents" in the Minnesota Educational association, meeting in St. Paul, put through their program at the business session and the sex was in control of the body. Having won the right to equal representation in the elections of the organization, the victors refrained from pushing their advantage and, in the nominations for officers, declined to present to present a candidate, the nomination of Dean L. A. Weigle of Carleton college, Northfield for president being allowed to stand.

STEAMER AGROUND

TUGS RUSHED TO AID OF THE EASTON—BOAT NOT BADLY DAMAGED.

DENSE FOG IS TO BLAME

Stranded Vessel Expected to Be Floated Within a Few Hours —Size of the Ship.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 6.—The steamer Easton, of the Booth line, went hard ashore 35 miles from Port Arthur, Ontario, Lake Superior.

None of the passengers was injured, it is said. Tugs immediately were sent from Port Arthur to its aid.

The Easton carries wireless, and it later reported that it was in sand and not badly damaged. The tugs, according to the wireless operator aboard the Easton, are taking off the passengers, while a lighter has been sent from Port Arthur to remove the Easton's cargo. The stranded vessel probably will be floated within a few hours.

A heavy fog hung over Lake Superior all morning, and the Easton went ashore, acording to report, at half speed.

The Easton is of 460 tons displacement, is 155 feet long and 30 foot beam. It runs between Duluth and Port Arthur, Ont.

Rumors Persistent.

Rumors of heavy loss of life on the vessel are persistent, but the local manager of the line, Louis T. Hogstad, says that so far as he has learned all of the fifty members of the crew and passenger list are safe.

The wind was blowing from the north in the Port Arthur district and as the vessel lay within about five miles off shore, Mr. Hogstad expressed the belief that the seas were not heavy enough to pound her to pieces.

Score of Ships in Danger.

The storm on Lake Superior endangers more than a score of ships up and down bound. A big fleet of coal carriers, hurrying fuel to obviate a threatened famine in the fuel situation in the northwest, has left the Soo up-bound within the last 24 hours, and must have met the storm in the vicinity of Keweenaw point, long known as the graveyard of the lakes.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 9.—Released at 7:15 p. m., the steamer Easton of the Booth Line escaped from the clutches of the Iroquois reef, two hours out of Port Arthur, and proceeded under her own steam to that port. All on board are safe.

She is expected to arrive in Duluth this afternoon. Since 5:30 Thursday morning, the boat had been fast on the rocks.

Captain Hawkinson's examination of his vessel brought to light no serious injuries, and by a wireless message he reported the boat's release and safety.

NEIGHBORHOOD SCARES.

Two Shots Fired Through the Panels of Door—Another Through Window.

Minneapolis. — A man, said to be Austin Hall, a janitor, threw an entire neighborhood into a panic. He fired three shots from a revolver, two through the panels of a door and another through a front window of a second house. A police search for Hall was unsuccessful.

Hall roomed with Mr. and Mrs. A. Croll, 525 Tenth avenue south. It is said that he had not been home for some time when he returned and demanded to see Mrs. Croll. Mr. Croll answered the door and ordered Hall to leave. Croll asserts that Hall thereupon pulled out a revolver and flourished it, as he demanded admittance.

Croll slammed the door shut and Mrs. Croll joined him in the hall. Hall then fired two shots through the panels of the door and one through the window, but hit no one. Mrs. Croll fainted and was hysterical.

Two young women, Miss Mary Brown and Miss Anna Anderson, were in the room at the time, but the bullet crashed past them into the wall. Before the police could reach the scene Hall had disappeared.

Adopts Commission Plan.

Duluth.—This city by the overwhelming majority of 5,524 to 3,386, the voters of Duluth decided to do away with the cumbersome ward system of municipal government and place the administration of the city's affairs in the hands of five commissioners, by adopting the new charter and commission form of government.

Child Is Scalded to Death.

Hastings.—The 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claudius Irrthum of New Trier met death by falling into a kettle of hot water.

Winona Calls South Dakotan.

Winona. — St. Paul's Episcopal church of this city has just extended a call to Rev. George S. Keller of Huron, S. D. The call has the approval of Bishop Edsall. The pastorate here was left vacant through the death of Rev. Edward Borncamp while abroad last August. The new rector, if he accepts, it is understood, will not come to Winona until after the first of the year. He is said to be very popular with his congregation at Huron, where he has been serving for some time.

Election Judges Careless.

St. Paul.—The laxity of election judges in requiring qualifications of electors was shown in the Ramsey district court when Leo Novak was excused from jury service on the ground that he was not a citizen of the United States. Novak has voted in St. Paul for years. He took out his first papers many years ago. He failed to secure his second papers, as required under the law, but was always accepted by the election judges.

"My wife is always bringing home so much toothpowder," complained a man the other day to a friend. "It's a waste of money. As for me I just take the bathtub cleanser and scrub my teeth."

The pair were walking down Chestnut street and his companion stopped in amazement. "What! Doesn't it hurt your teeth and gums, too?" he exclaimed almost in horror.

"No," came back the surprising reply. "You see they're the kind you buy at the dentist's."

RASH ON FACE FOR 2 YEARS

Sioux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck, but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal, especially at night, on account of its itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years, sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends.

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days' time, the soreness and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also use them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Pansy Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

O. H. Langlie has been absent from his duties at the store for a few days. On Thursday of last week he was taken quite seriously ill with rheumatism, and has been confined to the bed ever since. He is improving quite rapidly at present and hopes to be back to the store in a couple of days.

Tuesday was the coldest day we have had this winter. Local thermometers registered all the way from 32 to 35 degrees, but it is estimated that the lowest figure just about hits the point. Mercury redeemed herself on Tuesday when she went up a few degrees. There seems little likelihood of a great deal of cold weather the remainder of the winter unless the good nature of the weather man should suddenly turn into a violent frenzy.

Albert Lindesmith, who had been a guest at the Priebe home, west of town, returned to his home in Staples, Friday where he has a lucrative position in a large cheese factory. Mr. Lindesmith stated to the scribe that he liked this section and its people just fine and had had a splendid time during his holiday vacation. He stated also that he was very much impressed by the many congenial and good-looking girls that he had the pleasure of meeting during his short stay and looked forward with pleasure to another visit in this neighborhood at a future date.

Fishing at this time of the year is not a very prominent pastime generally but some of the local braves who have a keen eye for sport have tried it lately, with considerable success. On a wager that he could not pull any fish out of the river one of the local sports returned some time ago with three fishes that he had pulled out of the waters, and with eye witnesses to prove that he had actually turned the trick. Strange to say, however, these fishes had never inhabited the waters of the Clearwater as they were smoked herring and were procured from the local butcher. Other hunting expeditions have later tried their luck but the smoked herring route seems to be the only way in which to pull any fish out of the river.

Feeling for Death.

For a week the self-appointed guide to the blind on their daily walks had noticed that the two men who were her special charges felt carefully of the wall on either side of the door of the asylum when passing in and out. Since she was there to lead them, that precaution seemed not at all necessary, and she finally asked their reason for it.

"I am looking for crape on the door," one old man told her. "They don't like to let us know here in the asylum when any one dies for fear of making us feel bad, but they put crape on the door, and by feeling for it when we pass in and out we can find out for ourselves when one of us has gone."

Beneficial Stimulant.

The coca leaf is highly prized by the native of Bolivia as a stimulant. He chews it like tobacco, but with a better excuse, since by its use he can perform great feats of endurance and go many hours without food. With a pouch of coca leaves and a small bag of parched corn he can run 50 miles a day. Fleet-footed Indians constitute the telegraph service of the country.

EMARDVILLE.

The most of the people in this vicinity are well pleased with the county we have. A few bachelors are kicking but they too would be better satisfied if they would go on a deer hunt and get a dear.

At East Grand Forks robbers used James Paretts' fur cap to good advantage when they assailed him in the rail road yard. The cap was drawn over the victims face so he was unable to get a look at the robbers. Altho the affair happened in a lighted portion of the yards. The robbers then went through the pockets obtaining $35 and a gold watch.

Eighty eight wolves were killed in Stearns county during the last year 15 full grown and 73 cubs. That's what Red Lake county should do too.

Souix City—The body of the murdered boy found here Thursday who probably was the victim of a degenerate was identified as Eddie Moravec 15 years old who disappeared last September and who formerly worked in Omaha. A man named Grath, formerly a packing house worker here is under suspicion, as the handkerchief found on the boy's body bore the name Grath. A man of the same name; a packing house worker, is now under arrest in Omaha.

Mason City—Irving Huckins, aged 25, was found two miles west of here with his head nearly blown off. He went hunting this afternoon and it is presumed his death was accidental. Near the body was his shot gun with one barrel empty.

Curtis-Francis Bout to be Staged at Thief River Auditorium Jan. 14.

Thief River Falls Minn., Dec. 28th, 1912.—Wrestling enthusiasts of the northwest are greatly interested in the coming match between Loren C. Curtis of Halstad, and Albert Francis of St. Paul. These men are in the middle-weight class and are cosidered good as any in the game at the present time. Both Curtis and Francis are hoping for a match with the present champian Walter Miller of Duluth and the approaching match will pave the way for a go with miller. The Curtis-Francis match will be staged at Thief River Falls on Tuesday, Jan. 14th, 1913 and will take place in the large Auditorium there.

Trousseaux.

In ancient Greece the trousseau were made by all the women of the bride's house. Later the Merovingian chiefs exacted that their brides should come to the marriage bringing all their possessions. When the daughter of the seigneur of Covey married, her trousseaux, or "trousses," included "nine servitors, thirty liegemen, a chaplain, and an astrologist." The customs of the seigneurs evolved popular "fashions," and, high and low, the women multiplied their garments and the fashions of them.

Under the empire the trousseau was composed of jewels, lace, fine underwear, bonnets, and veils.—Harper's Weekly.

THE PARCEL POST

AS A MEDIUM TO FIGHT THE MAIL ORDER CONCERNS

Many people regard the coming of the parcel post as the one great demond which has came among us only to kill towns and small tradesmen and to increase the prestige of the mail order houses. The situation is just the reverse if the proper methods are pursued. If not their belief will come very near being correct. The mail order house has a monoply on the American trade, is a fact that cannot be denied. There is one way, and the only way that the country merchant can now fight the mail order house, and that is with their own medicine. They have now the weapon in hand in which to do this successfully—the parcel post. Every merchant can conduct a mail order house on a small scale as successfully as the larger ones. All that is necessary is to convince the public that he is saving his money by trading at home from his own merchant. Mere talk will not turn the trick, but the comparisons will have to be placed before them in black and white, and in letters that cannot help but convince at that. The home merchant has everything on the mail order concern, price, quality and prompt service—everything—and he knows it, but the public generally does not know it. The glowing bargains and handsome illustrations in the catalogue looks pretty good to the average man, but ten chances to one that he is paying a first-class price for an article of inferior quality, but as he is not informed of the bargain that he might have got on the same article from the local merchant he is satisfied with his purchase. A few comparisons is all that is necessary to convert this man to do his trading at home, but as it is he scans the pages of the great household companion—the catalogue—every night before the fire-side and is inwardly depressed that he can not take advantage of all those charming bargains. This section as well as every section in this commonwealth have hundreds of such men, and the amount of money sent away yearly is astonishing. With the parcel post the home merchant is in a better position than ever to compete with the mail order house, as articles sent thru mail within the fifty mile radius of the local post office, known as zone one, costs but a mere piftance while the rate increases with every additional fifty miles. With well-prepared advertising, circular letters price lists and comparisons, the local merchant can win back the trade that he has carelessly let the mail order house snatch right from under his nose. The mail order houses are right now getting out new catalogues and are on a verge of a vigerous campaign to retain their monoply on the trade and the question is whether the merchants thruout the country will make any efforts to check it now that they have a chance. The New York Journal in commenting on the situation remarks that the "area of prosperity for the country merchant is knocking at their door", but the question in our mind is, will they heed the knock?

SHIP SINKS; 22 DIE

EIGHT SURVIVORS ARE PICKED FROM RIGGING OF BATTERED STEAMER AFTER SIX HOURS.

BARK RAMMED AND SUNK

Captain and Wife Among the Victims—Rest of Dead Are Mostly Foreigners—Laden With Phosphate.

Newport News, Jan. 6.—Eight survivors of the steamer Julia Luckenbach, rammed and sunk in the Chesapeake bay by the British tramp steamer Indrakaula, arrived here and told how twenty-two of their number had gone down without a chance for life. The fortunate eight, after a six-hour battle with the gale which swept the coast, were taken from the rigging of their sunken ship by the Danish steamer Pennsylvania and brought here.

About To Anchor.

The Luckenbach, from Port Tampa to Baltimore, was about to anchor off Tangier Gas Buoy, at the mouth of the Potomac, early yesterday, when the Indrakaula caught it and cut the steamer practically in two. It went down like a rock and only the men on deck had a chance for life. The Indrakaula, badly damaged and in danger of sinking, drew off and beached. Captain Gilbert of the Luckenbach and his wife were among the lost.

The survivors had little more than taken to the topmast parts of the rigging of the submerged hulk when the gale passed over the bay and for six hours they fought for life while some of their number, exhausted, dropped off one by one to death.

With a wind blowing at cyclonic velocity and waves beating against them, the hardiest ones held fast until their clothes were torn to shreds and they were on the verge of exhaustion.

Chief Engineer Chris Knudson was one of those in the rigging. He endured the gale until his hands were bleeding from gripping the ropes. He became exhausted and dropped into the sea.

The Pennsylvania could not reach them at first, even with lifeboats, because of heavy seas. After many unsuccessful attempts lifelines were run to the struggling men and they were taken off one at a time. When taken on board the Pennsylvania some were unconscious.

According to the survivors, Captain Gilbert and the first and second officers were standing on the bridge when the collision occurred. There was no opportunity to give the alarm to those below. Captain Gilbert made a desperate effort to reach his wife and when last seen was swimming aft of the sinking ship.

"I don't know how I escaped," said Chief Officer Hunt. "After the ship went down I found myself dangling in the rigging and there I stayed. Not a lifeboat was to be had, so quickly did the Luckenbach go down."

Crew Mostly Foreigners.

Baltimore.—With the exception of Captain Gilbert, First Officer Hunt and one of the engineers, the crew of the Julia Luckenbach was composed of foreigners. They were signed here December 12, just prior to the sailing of the steamer for Port Tampa, laden with phosphate rock for Baltimore.

Kills Woman; Confesses.

Minneapolis.—John Conley, twenty-26 years old, late Saturday strangled Mrs. Bertha Anderson to death in her home, 411 Seventh avenue S, with one of her husband's neckties. He lit a match to see if she was dead. Then, terrified, he fled from the house and confessed the whole gruesome crime to the police an hour later. Meantime, the husband of the murdered woman found the body, and believing she had, suffered a heart attack, called a physician. A pet poodle sat on the dead woman's body.

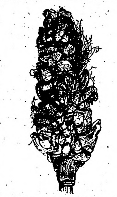
TO PREVENT CORN DISEASE

Only Way to Control Smut Is to Destroy Balls and Avoid Use of Fresh Manure.

(By E. M. FREEMAN.)

Every farmer is familiar with corn-smut. The largest masses are sometimes over six inches in diameter and are usually found in the ear. Smut is also found in the tassel, on the leaves and stem, and even on the roots which hold the corn plant to the soil. The smut-mass is blackish, and is at first covered by a whitish film, which soon breaks and lets loose the spore-powder, which is blown about by the wind. In general, there are two ways by which the spores get back on the land, ready to infest the next years' crop. First, they may be scattered by the wind, or the smut-masses may be left on the field. Second, the smut-dust may get into the fodder and may pass through the alimentary canals of the cattle, without being injured, and may thus get into the manure pile. Or, again, the smut-masses may be thrown into the refuse or manure pile. In either case they may be carried back to the soil when the latter is manured. Now, it is an important fact that the smut spores not only may live through the winter in the manure pile, but they may actually increase in number by growth when the pile remains of proper temperature. Fresh manure containing smut is therefore very likely to increase smut in a corn field. The smut may live for several years in a manure pile, but will gradually die out. For this reason, old manure is much better for fertilizer on a corn field than fresh manure.

In the spring the spores germinate, producing long chains of new spores, which are blown about in the wind and infest any growing part of the corn plant; producing, finally, smut-balls. The spores may live in the soil or in manure piles for years. This, of course, makes seed treatment useless; and the only way to control the smut is to destroy all smut-balls, when possible, to prevent them from shedding their spores on the ground into the manure, and avoid placing fresh manure on corn land. Changing corn land from year to year also is beneficial.



Ear of Corn Reduced to a Smut-Mass.

Since the smut-masses that are left in a corn field may assist in spreading the disease, they should be cut out of the field during the growing season. They should, moreover, be cut out before they have fully opened up and spread their spores, and should be collected and burned. They should not be thrown on the manure heap or the refuse pile, thence to be carried back to the land.

Rotation of crops is valuable in preventing corn-smut. The reason for this is plain. The corn-smut in the soil will not live many years, and that which is in the soil will not damage any other farm crop. After several years, corn may again be planted, with less danger, since the smut in the soil will have at least partly died out.

Seed treatment has not been found to be of any use. The smut does not get into the seedling plant, as in the stinking smut of wheat, and hence seed treatment does not seem necessary.

The sugar corns seems to have more smut than the field corns, though no varieties even of the latter are known that are free.

Hen Manure.

Hen manure as a fertilizer has greater value than any other fertilizer on the farm. It is generally supposed by some poultrymen that the manure will pay for taking care of the hens, but this depends much on how it is kept. The dropping boards under the roosts should be kept covered with some absorbent to preserve the strength of the droppings. Land plaster or South Carolina rock is good. Never use wood ashes or lime with the poultry droppings. The ammonia, or nitrogen would, be set free, and part of the value of the fertilizer lost. The droppings should not be applied to the soil as made, but used on a growing crop, or covered soil. We use it on corn by putting a handful on each hill at the time of last hoeing. It should be kept under cover until used.

The Line Fence.

How many long and terrible feuds have arisen between neighbors often over nothing, more important than the location of a line fence ten feet one way or another, and sometimes these feuds have led even to murder. If we could only bring ourselves to tear out our hearts the first appearance of any growth of hate. Let's try it.

Salt for the Stock.

Shall we salt stock? A friend says to feed the salt in the feed and not let them have access to it. His grounds are that he does not like to eat unsalted food, and then go in the pantry and eat a lot of salt, and he takes it that the sheep or cow is like him in this respect. This looks like good logic.

Maine's Potato Crop.

Maine's potato crop is reported at fully 100 per cent. Heavy shipments are already being made and the growers are receiving prices which make the crop this year very profitable to them.

FOUND WORKS OF STEVENSON

Manuscripts and Works of Popular Writer Unearthed in Samoa and Hawaii, by an Admirer.

It is learned that a number of new and relatively important manuscripts of Robert Louis Stevenson have been discovered in Samoa and in Honolulu by an ardent admirer of the great novelist, who had been for some time in both Hawaii and Samoa seeking such writings of the famous Scotsman as might possibly be found in the possession of some of the many friends of Stevenson during his years in the Pacific.

The result of this research has been the finding of an essay, said to be highly poetical in character, written by the novelist after witnessing a volcano in action, supposedly either the famous crater of Savaii or the pit of Kilauea in Hawaii; a piece of fiction dealing with South Sea life, and a number of smaller verse compositions.

Still another manuscript, a blank verse relation of a well-known legend of Maui, of considerable length, but unfinished, has also come to light, and the enthusiastic admirer of Stevenson feels highly rewarded for his month of effort.

LOGICAL.

"The manager always keeps back a portion of the villain's salary."

"Why does he do that—afraid he'd skip?"

"No; but he always acts his part better when he's mad."

A Weakling.

"I am sorry to say," remarked the young wife, "that my husband seems to lack initiative and decision."

"What has caused you to think so?" her friend suggested.

"I have to suggest it every time when he asks for a raise in salary and then he hesitates for a long time about doing it."

Made a Complete Job.

"Mrs. Dungleford, has your husband been cured of his cacoathes scribendi yet?"

"I—I think so; the surgeons took that out when they removed his vermiform appendix."

Its Status.

"I am compiling a Pedicure manual."

"I suppose you have plenty of footnotes."

The Condition.

"Can your wife keep a secret?"

"Certainly, if there is nobody around for her to tell it to."

When a woman gets fat it doesn't broaden her mind.

He's Not a Chicken Fancier.

Speaking of chickens, a funny man writing in Puck says:

"They are the most dadbusted, uncertainest creatures that walk the family acres. Almost everybody tries to raise chickens at one time or another. Looks easy—that's the deceiving part of it.

"And it is easy after you learn one thing. Little chickens don't know anything, medium sized chickens don't know anything. If there is any change of an intellectual nature as the size increases the big ones know less if possible than the little ones.

"If there is a wire partition in your pen with an open door at one end the chickens will try to plunge through the wire instead of going around and walking through the door."

SKIN ERUPTION ON CHEEK

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen-months-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use.

"Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Roses in Medicine.

Roses at one time figured prominently in the pharmacopoeia. Pliny gaves 32 remedies compounded of rose leaves and petals. Sufferers from nervous complaints used to seek relief by sleeping on rose pillows and one is told that Heliogabalus used to imbibe rose wine as a pick-me-up after his periodical gormandizing hours. The flower was also served at table, both as a garnish, in the way parsley is now used, and as a salad, and rose water was largely used for flavoring dishes. Roses as food have gone out of favor among western nations, but the Chinese still eat rose fritters.

Shopper's Cramp.

Simeon Ford, at a dinner of hotel men in New York, discussed a new disease.

"There's a new disease called shopper's cramp," he said. "It appears early in December, becomes violently epidemic about the middle of the month and ends suddenly on the evening of the 24th.

"Women feel shopper's cramp in the arms, the limbs, everywhere; but it attacks the husband only in one place—the pocket."

Their Cinch.

"Guns have an easy job, haven't they?"

"How do you mean?"

"They're employed only to be fired."

NO LONGER SELECTS THE HAT

Hubby's First and Last Experience at a Millinery Store, Was Altogether Too Costly.

Congressman Ralph W. Moss of Indiana did not care much for a hat his wife wore. He finally spoke about it. Mrs. Moss admitted that it was plain, and, instead of taking exceptions to her husband's remark, invited him to accompany her the next time she bought a hat.

"I can certainly pick out a better one than that," said Mr. Moss.

So they went to the store together, Mrs. Moss said not a word as the comely milliner displayed one beautiful bonnet after another. It was the first time Mr. Moss had ever been in a millinery store, but he appeared to be at ease, and finally selected one of the most joyful creations in the entire stock. Mrs. Moss looked well in it. She was pleased.

"I'll take that," said the Hoosier congressman. "How much is it?"

"Forty dollars," said the pretty girl without even a wink.

Mr. Moss saw blue stars, but luckily had just come from the bank and was able to produce that much in cash. Now he lets Mrs. Moss buy her own hats and he does not complain about their being plain.—Judge.

Problem in Physics.

A native of T., on the coast of Scotland, when the contract for the building of the first three steamers fitted with electric lights at the local shipyard was completed, formed one of the social party gathered to entertain the electricians, says Ideas. In a burst of candor and comradeship, he was heard to say to one of the wiremen:

"Mon, Peter, efter workin' wi' you on they boats, I believe I could put in the electric licht masel', but there's only one thing that bates me."

"Aye, aye, Sandy, what is that?" inquired his interested friend, willing to help him if it lay in his power.

"Weel, mon," replied Sandy, "it's juist this: I dinna ken hoo yet get the ile tae rin alang the wires."

Surprised Him.

There was a fellow who proposed to all the girls just for fun. He had no idea of getting himself engaged, but he enjoyed the preliminaries. So he was disagreeably surprised once and served him right.

"Miss Evelyn," he said soulfully, "do you think you could love me well enough to be my wife?"

"Yes, darling," she cried.

"Well—er—now I know where to come in case I should want to marry."—Detroit Free Press.

Crushing Rejoinder.

A workman sat on a curb nursing an injured foot which had been struck by an iron casting which had fallen from the top of a building.

"Did that big thing hit you?" asked a sympathizing bystander.

The workman nodded.

"And is it solid iron?"

"No," replied the victim, "half of it is only lead."

Straggling Along.

"Is that a monthly rose?"

"It looks more like a weakly one to me."

Many a young man is up with the lark because he kept the lark awake all night.

1912 BIG ORE YEAR

IRON OUTPUT FROM NORTH LIKELY TO SURPASS THE 1912 RECORD.

48,500,000 TONS IN 1912.

General Tendency Seems to Be to Increase the Production In Every Possible Way for Next Year.

Duluth.—As large as were the shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior region this year—in round numbers, 48,500,000 tons—the outgo in 1913 will be bigger still, judging from the preparations being made by the mining companies. The general tendency is to increase production, either by reopening idle properties or increasing working forces. On the old ranges, at least, the United States Steel corporation is not operating this winter as briskly as are some of the other concerns. This does not, however, indicate that the big company will not increase its shipments from the region as a whole; on the contrary, it is expected it will send out materially more ore than this year. This increase will come from the Mesaba range; more particularly, from the Great Northern properties. The lease to these holdings will be surrendered Jan. 1, 1915, in accordance with notice given months ago, and for this reason it is intended to operate with vigor the Hill mines already developed. No especial effort to enlarge production at other properties of the Steel corporation is therefore required.

Forces are Doubled.

On the Marquette range, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, the bigger operator in the district, has doubled its forces at the Cleveland Lake mine at Ishpeming, now working that property both night and day, and it is steadily adding names to the payrolls at the Negaunee and Maas mines at Negaunee. Previously, the Chase and the Princeton No. 2 had been restored to the active list. The Smith property at Gwinn and the Imperial at Michigamme, both also of the Cleveland Cliffs company and idle for months, are being made ready for mining. The Imperial produces a limonite ore of non-Bessemer grade which is in demand only in prosperous periods. Its neighboring property, the Ohio, closed for months, yields a product of similar description. It will resume operations in the spring, it is reported. The Ohio, is under lease to the Rogers-Brown interests.

Many New Mines.

On the Menominee range, eight or ten new mines are being made ready for production, the most of these in the Iron River district, with the Crystal Falls district also represented, as well as the Commonwealth field, in Wisconsin. In the Gogebic country, the Newport Mining company of the Schlesinger interests of Milwaukee is especially active. It has shafts sinking at the Palms and Anvil to open ore bodies and it is operating its big Newport on a vigorous scale, needing additions to its already big working forces there. Probably two properties, and perhaps others, will be added to the list of Vermillion range shippers next season. The new Cuyuna district will have several additions to its producers, among these the Hanna company's Barrows mine and the Adams property near Deerwood. Production on the Mesaba will break all previous records in 1913.

Dissatisfaction among the 550 men employed at the Breitung company's Mary Charlotte mine at Negaunee has been removed by the concession of a minimum wage scale for the contract miners.

Business for Crushing Plants.

While the Breitung interests are doing the most of their mining in the Negaunee field, they are operating the Baron mine at Humboldt, Marquette range. The Baron produces a non-Bessemer ore of the hard variety. A crushing plant has been erected and all of the output of the mine is now put through it. Nearly all the hard ores produced in the Marquette country are crushed before being shipped to the furnaces. The Cleveland Cliffs company has a fine new plant at its Cliffs Shafts mine at Ishpeming. The Lake Superior Iron company, a subsidiary of the Steel corporation, has a crusher at the Section Sixteen property at Ishpeming and a similar plant of larger capacity at Escanaba, this latter also treating the product of the Dober mine, Menominee range. At Negaunee the Cleveland Cliffs company has a crusher at its South Jackson property, at which the product of both that mine and the Moro property at Ishpeming is handled. M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Richmond mine, in the Cascade district, has one crusher and is to install a second in order that ore crushed still finer may be sent out.

Bank Officials Swindled.

Fairmont.—Officers of the First National bank of Ceylon, this county, say they have been swindled out of $6,000 by a smooth stranger calling himself John Carr of Fairbanks, Alaska, in a manner creditable to a J. Rufus Wallingford. The man came here a month ago and negotiated with B. H. Ward of Minneapolis for a stock of general merchandise at Ceylon owned by Mr. Ward. To finance the deal he produced a certificate of deposit on the First National bank of Fairbanks, Alaska, for $6,000.

Baby Named After Wilson.

Austin.—President-elect Wilson, notified of the naming of an Austin baby, sent this letter:

"Trenton, N. J.—My Dear Mr. and Mrs. York: I beg to acknowledge with the warmest appreciation your generous letter, telling me that you had named your new boy after me. I hope that no future act of mine will cause you to regret the high compliment you have paid me. Cordially and sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

CENSURES EXPENSES.

State Public Examiner Criticizes Practice of Employees Hiring and Paying Other Help.

St. Paul.—Two state government branches, the highway commission and Fire Marshal Charles E. Keller's office, are criticized in reports submitted to the governor today by Public Examiner Andrew E. Fritz in regard to their expenditures of money, though he adds that in each case the office accounts are well kept.

Both departments are censured for permittting subordinates to hire and pay other persons for services and reimbuse themselves from the state treasury, and highway department engineers for hiring their own relatives. The highway commission is said to be "very liberal" in its allowance of expense money to engineers. The fire marshal, it is said, has almost used up all available funds by paying expenses of arson prosecutions, when the amounts should be paid by the counties in which the crimes were committed.

"Allowance for expense bills for different engineers appears to be very liberal," says Mr. Fritz, discussing the highway commission's expenses. "I notice several instances where an engineer has been reimbursed for money paid for the services of his own relatives and the item for livery hire seems to be exceedingly high. One engineer is allowed $65.25 for using a team one month, exclusive of feed. In other departments no employee is allowed to pay his own help. The rule that any one entitled to pay from the state for work done shall get his own check from the state treasurer ought to apply to every state department because it fixes responsibility upon the proper party for rendering a true bill."

In the itemized statement the amount for livery is $7,970.98.

"The commission upon motion," continues Mr. Fritz, "authorized the secretary to audit and approve the semi-monthly payrolls. This responsibility has by law been placed upon the chairman of the commission."

Mr. Fritz declares that fourteen of the fifty-three district and assistant engineers have not filed their bonds of $3,000 each as required by law. He remarks that road inspectors, road patrols and other employes ought to file oaths of office. In the fiscal year covered by this report, the department expended $107,439.74, of which $14,096.74 was used for office expenses and the remainder for the field work.

Mr. Fritz states that the fire marshal's department has exceeded its appropriation for maintenance over and above the receipts appropriated by the legislature of 1911. "By using up nearly all the balance of 1910, the fire marshal is now in far worse position financially than he was at the same time last year," says Mr. Fritz. "The state auditor's books gave him a credit balance of only $429.30 and no receipts to be expected before March 1. This situation might have been avoided by a careful estimate of all available resources and by the employment of a less number of regularly paid assistants. The fire marshal claims that conditions have been such as to warrant the heavy expense and that the result of his work speaks for itself, but a close examination of the expense vouchers reveals the fact that a great part of the expenses incurred in prosecuting arson cases should have been paid by the counties in which the crimes were committed. Evidently it is not the intention of the law that the cost of legal proceedings and prosecutions shall be borne by the fire marshal's department.

"I would respectfully repent the recommendation made at the last examination that moneys should not be paid out by assistants or clerks for services rendered by a third party."

M'LEAN WINS ELECTION.

Court Decides Probate Judgeship Contest of Wabasha County.

Winona.—James E. McLean of Wabasha was legally elected to the probate judgeship of Wabasha county at the last general election, according to an opinion written and mailed by Judge Snow of Winona to the clerk of that county. It is said the matter will be carried to the supreme court.

McLean, according to the official canvass of the votes in Wabasha, was elected probate judge by 173 majority over Walter A. Munger, the incumbent, who contested on the ground that the names were not rotated on the ballots.

Judge Snow says, first, that the statute does not require the rotating of names where only two names appear on the ballot; and, second, that there is no evidence that the will of the voters was not fully expressed in the total figures.

McLean Legally Elected.

Winona.—James E. McLean of Wabasha was legally elected to the probate judgeship of Wabasha county at the last general election, according to an opinion written by Judge Snow of Winona.

Asks Return of Marriage Fee.

Minneapolis—Wolf Altagen, sixty years of age, heavily bearded and bent with his years, sought to recover $2.50 that he paid for his marriage license Monday, when he thought he would marry Divora Berinsky, 52 years old. "I want to wait a little while," Altagen explained to Deputy Clerk Ed Goff, through the aid of an interpreter. "My girl says she is not ready to marry yet and when she is I will come back and buy another license." But the deputy explained that a marriage license once sold stays sold.

All Low Land to Be Saved.

Albert Lea.—Freeborn county, where so much land has been reclaimed by ditching, has several additional projects under way. One project affects land inside the city limits and much just outside, many hundred acres being affected. The other ditches contemplated are farther away and will affect large areas of land. Already the state and county have been enriched by the reclamation of 40,000 or 50,000 acres in this county, and no state appropriations have been asked.

GREAT INDIAN COUNCIL.

Chippewas of Minnesota Will Organize to Protect Interests and Obtain Rights.

Cass Lake.—At a general council of Chippewa Indians on the Fond du Lac reservation, resolutions were adopted constituting the council a working body for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the Chippewas in Minnesota. All chiefs, leaders and head men on all the Chippewa reservations in Minnesota were invited to attend a convention, or great council to be held at Cass Lake, on Feb. 4, for the purpose of organizing the Chippewas of Minnesota into a corporate body, to enable them to act in unison to protect their property and obtain their dues from the government.

It was suggested that members of each reservation call a council immediately and choose delegates to attend the convention. It is proposed that a constitution and by-laws be adopted to govern the body to be created. This corporate body will have permanent headquarters selected by the convention and will be represented by commissioners from each of the several reservations in Minnesota, who will be chosen for a term of years.

The work in contemplation is the settlement of all old treaties yet in dispute by the Chippewas upon any of the reservations in Minnesota and to aid the government in administering the Rice treaty, under the act of Jan. 14, 1889, so as to carry out all of the promises of the Chippewa commission. The Indians will also suggest to the Indian office modification of rules and regulations not in harmony with the best interests of the Chippewas, and urge the enactment by congress of new laws which will carry into effect the principles of citizenship.

CEYLON BANK SWINDLE.

Stranger Gets $5,500 by Means of Fraudulent Certificate of Deposit.

Ceylon, Minn.—It has come to light that the First National bank of this village has been swindled out of more than $5,000 by a "sharper" who came here about a month ago and bought a mercantile business from B. H. Ward of Minneapolis, which that gentleman had secured in exchange for land. The stranger gave his name as John Carr, and claimed that he had come from Fairbanks, Alaska.

The swindle was worked by means of a certificate of deposit on the First National bank of Fairbanks, Alaska, the bank here accepting it without investigation. Carr then paid $500 down and received a telegram stating that his wife, while on her way here from Alaska, had been taken ill at Seattle. He departed at once for her bedside.

Before going he drew all of the $5,500 he had in the bank except $5, and disappeared. He had been absent about two weeks before the bank suspected that all was not straight with the alleged Carr.

Investigations were then set on foot which revealed the startling facts that no such person had ever lived at Fairbanks, Alaska, that there had never been any money in the bank there to the credit of such a person, and that so far as could be learned no woman named Mrs. John Carr had been ill at Seattle.

RING IS PRESIDENT.

Good Roads Promoters of Scott County Hold Meeting at Shakopee.

Shakopee.—At the annual meeting of the Good Roads association of Scott county the following officers were elected: President, Joseph A. Ring, Shakopee; vice president, Colonel G. L. Nye, Shakopee; secretary, H. C. Casey, Jordan; treasurer, Michael Schreiner, New Prague.

A resolution indorsing the state highway commission, in presenting to the legislature a bill compelling the working out of road taxes by property owners, was adopted.

The Shakopee Boosters club was reorganized and will be known as the Shakopee Commercial club. The following officers were elected: President, Henry Mergens; vice president, John B. Ries; secretary, W. N. Southworth; treasurer, John Theim; directors, Joseph C. Berens, Henry Mergens, John B. Ries, Joseph A. Ring, John Theim, W. N. Southworth and William F. Duffy.

Judicial Reforms Studied.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—The commission appointed by Governor Eberhart to consider a scheme for reform in judicial procedure met in the supreme court and made their plans. The meeting was executive. Governor Eberhart presided and outlined the reforms he desired. The commission has been flooded with suggestions from lawyers and litigants. Many were worthless, but some are to be considered. To expedite cases in their progress from the lower to the higher court is the principal thing desired by Governor Eberhart.

Hills Won't Aid Plan.

Minneapolis.—Mr. James J. Hill, Louis Hill and President Carl Gray of the Great Northern railroad, definitely and deliberately turned down a proposal of the Civic and Commerce association to co-operate in the erection of a union station in Minneapolis. The Great Northern officials indicated a willingness to co-operate to a certain extent if a dual station plan were projected, but the terminal facilities committee is of the opinion that a union station in fact is the only solution to the traffic problem.

Attacked at Home.

Minneapolis.—"It's only me, Lizzie; let me in," called out a stranger after knocking at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Krudwig, 2911½ Nicollet avenue south. Believing that the knocker was her husband, George Krudwig, a plasterer, she unlocked the door. Before she could survey the caller, Mrs. Krudwig was knocked down and kicked into insensibility. She recovered consciousness an hour later, and her screams of terror and pain brought neighbors. No trace of her assailant could be found.

Geography of Liquor.

Mayor Gaynor, discussing city government in his wonted illuminating and brilliant way, said in New York:

"We must not have one reform law for the rich and another for the poor. It is as bad for the millionaire to gamble in his club as for the laborer to gamble in a stuss joint. It is as bad to become intoxicated on champagne as on mixed ale.

"To many reformers, so-called, think that when a man is drunk on Fifth avenue he is ill, and when a man is ill on Third avenue he is drunk."

THE BEST TEACHER.
Old Experience Still Holds the Palm.

For real practical reliability and something to swear by, experience—plain old experience—is able to carry a big load yet without getting swaybacked.

A So. Dak. woman found some things about food from Old Experience a good, reliable teacher.

She writes:

"I think I have used almost every breakfast food manufactured, but none equal Grape-Nuts in my estimation.

"I was greatly bothered with weak stomach and indigestion, with formation of gas after eating, and tried many remedies for it but did not find relief.

"Then I decided I must diet and see if I could overcome the difficulty that way. My choice of food was Grape-Nuts because the doctor told me I could not digest starchy food.

"Grape-Nuts food has been a great benefit to me for I feel like a different person since I begun to eat it. It is wonderful to me how strong my nerves have become. I advise everyone to try it, for experience is the best teacher.

"If you have any stomach trouble—can't digest your food, use Grape-Nuts food for breakfast at least, and you won't be able to praise it enough when you see how different you feel."

Subscription Rates $1.25 Per Year In Advance

A man was frozen to death this week in the balmy regions of "Sunny California, which would never have occured if he had came north to a warmer climate.

The New Jork Journal states that the newspaper man who refuses to accept mail order house advertising is a bally ass. Considering the rate we would secure on such advertising there is very few of us that do not fully agree with the Journal that the name is just appropriate.

After the 15th of January no subscriptions will be accepted for the Plummer Pioneer at less than our regular rate of $1.25 per year. This means that all combination offers such as the Farm Stock and Home, Thief River Falls Times or any other bargain offers or concessions in connection with the Pioneer for a lower cash rate than the amount mentioned above will cease. The cost of publishing a newspaper is steadily increasing and the newspapers thruout the country are standing face to face with financial destruction unless they advance their subscription price and readjust their rates so as to meet the advancing prices on all printing material. On all such material there has been an advance of 10 to 25 per cent, which means that the meager profits of the newspapers have received a severe jolt, in fact there is an absolute loss on many articles if continued at the former rate. On and after the above mentioned date the subsciption to the Pioneer will be $1.25 per year, excepting to Canada or foreign countries, where the price will be $1.75. This is quoting the lowest possible rate without sustaining a positive loss, and applies to CASH IN ADVANCE subscriptions alone. The clubbing offers mentioned above can be taken advantage off until the above mentioned date only, after which they will be discontinued.

COATING FOR PLASTER CASTS

Simple Treatment That the Chicago Art Institute Has Found to Be Effective.

According to the bulletin of the Art institute of Chicago, that organization has been very successful in keeping its plaster casts presentable by means of simplest treatment.

The cast is first sized with an application of linseed oil and turpentine. This is put on with a brush, and it is immaterial whether it is done when the cast is new and clean or after it becomes dirty, provided only that it has not been painted or in any way coated with foreign matter. The only object is to make it impervious to water, so that subsequent applications will not sink in.

Then the cast is washed over with a coat of whiting and water with a little glue (practically a fine whitewash), applied quite thin, with a brush, and stippled or pounced on, so as not to show brush marks. A little yellow ochre is put into the wash, so that it will not be a blue or dead white. This wash is perfectly soluble, and when it gets dirty it is easily removed and a fresh coat applied. It is obvious that the cast is no more coated or loaded after the twentieth application than after the first.

It is surprising in fact how little the modeling is obscured, even when it is delicate and detailed. It is doubtful if anybody, however, skillful, can tell at a distance of eight or ten feet whether a cast has been whitened or not, and eight or ten feet is not a great distance at which to view a life-size statue. The larger forms are not in the least affected by the process of whitening.

SPIES HELP TO WELLINGTON

Archivist of French War Office Says Spanish Officers Betrayed the Great Napoleon.

An interesting statement was made not long ago before the French Academie des Sciences Morales et Politiques, by M. Bonnal, archivist to the French war office. According to M. Bonnal, Dumouries, "coached" Wellington from 1808 to 1814, and the latter often reaped the benefit of betrayals by aristocratic French officers who had relatives in London.

M. Bonnal goes to the archives of the Spanish war office, there to hunt up confessions by Spanish officers in the service of King Joseph Bonaparte of their own treason—some of these confessions recorded as early as 1815, under Ferdinand VII. Without any sort of shame they acknowledge then that they betrayed Joseph to secret agents of Wellington.

In a time of universal scare, Wellington saw more clearly than anyone—this was his great merit—that Napoleon was fast using up the military resources of France, and, indeed, all but its soil, climate and genius, and tiring out the latter. He managed to keep Spain an open sore in the enemy's flank, and thus left hopes to the continental courts for the downfall of the Corsican if they could coalesce against him.

M. Bonnal says that plans dictated by Napoleon for his brother King Joseph's guidance were found by guerrillas and passed on to Wellington. The idea of the lines of Torres Vedras to defend Lisbon has been placed to the credit of that renowned captain. Their real author is now discovered in the French Colonel Vincent, who knew the country and had served as a military engineer under Junot and Dupont. His plans to fortify the Torres Vedras hills were stolen and sent to Wellington.

Senator Heyburn's Wit.

Senator Heyburn was half admired, half heartily disliked by the newspaper correspondents, for whom, in return, he had, collectively speaking, little use. He watched the press carefully, and often he would rise in his seat to denounce a reporter who had quoted him inaccurately. He was, however, "good copy," as the phrase goes, because he was often brilliant and witty in his speeches and in his frequent tilts with colleagues. On a dull day at the last session, for example, Senator Heyburn was making a prolonged address on a matter of little immediate interest. It was close in the senate chamber, and the correspondents withdrew to a cooler spot. Noticing their absence, Heyburn raised his voice so that it might carry into the farthest corners of the telegraph room, and said: "I make the point of no quorum in the press gallery!" The correspondents returned and he resumed his speech.—Boston Transcript.

A woman who has traveled widely says one of the most acceptable gifts one can make to a friend going on a steamer is a box or jar of stuffed prunes. These are rarely given, can be eaten when other fruits are indigestible and are mildly laxative.

As one authority advises free use of prunes for nervous people, declaring they have a quieting effect, the eating of prunes on shipboard should help to check seasickness—always augmented by "nerves."

Fourth Class Postmaster Examination, Saturday, January 4, 1913.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that on the date named above an examination will be held at Thief River Falls, Minn., as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a contemplated vacancy in the position of fourth class postmaster of class (a) at Plummer, Minnesota, and other vacancies as they may occur at that office, unles it shal be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by reinstatement. The compensation of the postmaster at this office was $632,00, for the last fiscal year.

Age limit, 21 years and over on the date of the examination, with the exception that in the state where women are declared by statute to be of full age for all purposes at 18 years, Women 18 years of age on the date of the examination will be admitted. Applicants must reside in the territory supplied by the postoffice for which the examination is announced. The examination is open to all citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application forms and full information concerning the requirements of the examination can be secured from the postmaster at Plumer and the local secretary at Thief River Falls or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington within 7 days before the date of the examination, otherwise it may be impracticable to examine the applicants.

New Elevator as Hazel

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at Hazel last Thursday to organize a Farmer's Elevator Co. A temporary organization was affected and stock to the amount of $1500 was subscribed for. A committee was appointed to make a thorough canvas among the farmers. From present indications there will be no difficulty in securing enough capital to erect a modern and up-to-date elevator this cominf spring. Another meeting will be held in the near future to make the final arrangements and perfect the organization.—Thief River Falls Times.

Buys Oklee Yard

W. E. Bertram, president of the Bertram-Wright Lumber company, was here the first of the week looking after his interest in the local yard. He went over to Oklee Monday where he closed a deal for the purchase of the I. O. Manger lumber yard, which he will add to his string of yards in this part of the state. Mr. Hofto who has managed the Oklee concern will be retained as manager by Mr. Bertram.

A Big Sale

Owing to the tremendous crowds that have attended the big E & E sale at Thief River Falls the managers have found it necessary to continue it another week, closing Saturday, Feb. 1st. This sale is considered the biggest venture of its kind ever attempted in that city, and has gained wide noteriety thruout the country generally. Read their big ad in this issue.

T. R. Times Changes Hands

Word was received at this office yesterday to the effect that Homer F. Mussey had disposed of his interests in the Thief River Falls Times to some outside parties, whose name we were unable to learn. The Times was launched two years ago by H. E. and H. F. Mussey, the former having retired from the business a few months ago to take up similar work at Grygla. Aside from being a splendid news medium the Times has gained a reputation for its appearance and editorial comments. With the departure of Mr. Mussey Thief River Falls loses one of the most capable newspaper men in this part of the state. Just what Mr. Mussey's plans are for the future we do not know but wherever he decides to cast his lot our sincere wishes go with him and his family for success and happiness in abundance.

Educational Convention

A joint meeting of the Northwestern and North Central Educational associations will convene at Thief River on Feb. 13, 14 and 15. It is suggested that schools be kept open Feb 12th, a legal holiday, to make it more convenient for teachers to attend. Among the large list of speakers are President Vincent, Dr. Puffer C. G. Schultz and others. So far as possible free lodging for lady teachers will be granted.

The committee urge everyone interested to attend as it is quite a rare occasion that so much talent can be secured for an educational meeting.

Pioneer Resident Dead

C. H. Martz Dies

News was received here last week, too late for publication; that C. H. Martz had passed away at his home in St. Hilaire Monday, of last week, after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Martz was in Thief River Falls Saturday and appeared in his usual good health, but complained of a bad cold to a few of his friends. On returning to his home at St Hilaire that evening he retired to the bed and becoming steadily worse a physician was summoned who pronounced his case as plurisy and pneumonia.

Despite all medical care his condition became steadily worse and he passed away Monday morning at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Martz was well known thruout this county, having up to the division of Red Lake county, held the office of county surveyor, and since the creation of Pennington county has held a similar office.

Burial took place at his former home in Leroy, Minn., Thursday.

Badly Frozen

While on his way home from Thief River Falls, Ole B. Omlid fell out of his sleigh somewhere near Mavie and when found some time later by Halvor Homme his arms were so badly frozen it is thought both will have to be amputated.—Erie Eleven Towns.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking will not cure children of wetting the bed, because it is not a habit but a dangerous disease. The C. H. Rowan Drug Co., Chicago Illinois, have discovered a strictly harmless remedy for this distressing disease and to make known of its merits they will send a 50 cents package securely wrapped and prepaid Absolutely Free to any reader of The Plummer Pioneer. This remedy also cures frequent desire to urinate and inability to control urine during the night or day old or young. The C. H. INDIANS FIGHT POSSE

PITCHED BATTLE IS EXPECTED BEFORE CAPTURE IS MADE.

PROTECTING TRIBESMAN.

Big Rabbit, a Ute, Charged With Shotting a Sheep Herder—Redmen Strongly Intrenched.

Cortez, Col., Jan. 21.—Determined not to deliver Big Rabbit, one of their tribesmen, to the authorities to answer a charge of assault, the 50 Ute Indians, who are entrenched in the mountains 18 miles from here, defied a sheriff's posse of 100 men Sunday.

To Fight Till Death.

The Indians Saturday took up their position in the mountains after they had left the Ute reservation in southwestern Colorado and declared that they would fight the white men to death rather than give up Big Rabbit.

Indian Agent Spear has been appealed to by the county authorities in the hope that he might be able to induce the Indians to return to the reservation and surrender Big Rabbit.

Spears' advances, however, have been rebuffed by the Indians and he wired the interior department at Washington for instructions.

As soon as the Utes learned that Big Rabbit was wanted by the sheriff, who would place him under arrest to face the charge of having shot and wounded Joseph Vichel, a Mexican sheep herder, the Indian's friends departed with him into the mountains. All are armed with repeating rifles and are said to be amply supplied with ammunition.

A Clannish Feeling.

The Indians, it is said, are actuated by a clannish feeling of resentment against the whites because of insults to which they say a camp of sheep herders subjected them.

Two weeks ago Big Rabbit and another Indian attempted to camp near the spot where a group of sheep herders had pitched their tents.

The sheep herders, it is said, resented the appearance of the Indians and ordered them away. The Indians retaliated and a fight ensued in which one of the Indians was killed and one sheep herder, Joseph Vichel, was injured.

Big Rabbit carried his dead comrade back to the reservation and the killing aroused the anger of the Utes.

Chorus Goes on a Strike.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—A scheduled performance of Pagliacci by the Chicago Grand Opera company here was abandoned 15 minutes before the curtain was to have gone up because of a walkout of the chorus. The chorus demanded $2.50 for the performance instead of $2, and being refused, left the building in a body. A concert by the leading artists was substituted for the opera.

Food Kills Livestock.

Golconda, Ill., Jan. 21.—The rise of the Ohio river is causing the most damage to livestock and crops since the flood of 1884. The river rose nine inches in the last 24 hours. Thousands of bushels of corn and many head of hogs and cattle have been destroyed.

Mrs. May L. Douglas Dies.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 21.—Mrs. May L. Douglas, president of the National Association of Army Nurses of the Civil War and past national chaplain of the Women's Relief corps, is dead at her home in this city, aged 76.

DAILY MARKET REPORT.

Chicago Grain.

Chicago, Jan. 20. — Wheat was inclined to firmness at the opening today. May opened ⅛c higher to unchanged at 94c to 93⅞c and sold to 93⅝@93¾c. A recovery to 94⅛@94¼ ensued.

The close was easy; May, ⅛@¼c lower at 93⅝@93¾c.

Considerable corn was for sale at the opening, but when this pressure was relieved, covering of shorts caused a reaction. May started ⅛c to ¼c down to 51⅛@51⅜c and after selling at 51¼c recovered to 51⅝c.

The closing was weak; May, ⅜c lower at 51¼c.

Oats were quiet and steady. May opened unchanged to a shade lower at 33¾c to 33⅝@33¾c, sold off to 33½c and then reacted to 33¾c.

Women Battle Police.

New York, Jan. 20.—With hatpins and umbrellas several hundred women fought the police in one of the fiercest riots since the beginning of the garment workers' strike. A policeman who tried to protect male strikebreakers was severely beaten. The officer arrested one woman, but had to summon twelve more bluecoats before he could get his prisoner to the station. The police accomplished this by forming a hollow square which was beset on all sides by the battling garment workers.

De Wolf Hopper Divorced.

New York, Jan. 20.—Justice Scudder has granted to Mrs. Nella Bergen Hopper an interlocutory decree of divorce from De Wolf Hopper.

Still Rising at Cairo.

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 20.—The Ohio river here still is rising, and it seems certain that it will go above the flood stage, 45 feet.

James Metcalf Dead.

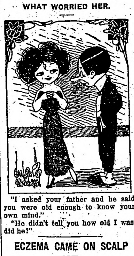
New York, Jan. 20.—James Metcalf, well known in musical circles of many cities is dead.

BREAKS A COLD IN A DAY

And Cures Any Cough That Is Curable. Noted Doctor's Formula.

"From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime. Smaller doses to children according to age." This is the best formula known to science. There are many cheaper preparations of large quantity, but it don't pay to experiment with a bad cold. Be sure to get only the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it in stock he will get it quickly from his wholesale house. This has been published here every winter for six years and thousands of families know its value. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical laboratories of Chicago.

WHAT WORRIED HER.



"I asked your father and he said you were old enough to know your own mind."

"He didn't tell you how old I was, did he?"

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Mark Twain and T. R.

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, kept the mirth alive with story after story. One had reference to a game in which the players, so Mr. Thomas said, were Colonel Roosevelt, the late Mark Twain and himself.

"In the course of the game Colonel Roosevelt talked much of war," said Mr. Thomas. "And I remember him turning to Mark Twain and asking him if it were true that the bravest men were nervous when they faced the enemy, and Mark Twain, being an old confederate soldier, replied: 'Yes, that is quite true, for I remember vividly to this day that I had the quality of maintaining it all through the engagement.'"—New York Sun.

You can jolly the average man by referring to him as a prominent citizen.

Anyway, the man who contradicts himself may be right.

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

Westwood, Md.—"I am a farmer's wife and do most of my own work when I am able. I had nervous spells, female weakness and terrible bearing down pains every month. I also suffered much with my right side. The pain started in my back and extended around my right side, and the doctor told me it was organic inflammation. I was sick every three weeks and had to stay in bed from two to four days.

"It is with great pleasure I tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I have followed your directions as near as possible, and feel much better than I have felt for years. When I wrote you before I was almost a wreck. You can publish this letter if you like. It may help to strengthen the faith of some poor suffering woman."—Mrs. JOHN F. RICHARDS, Westwood, Maryland.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Red Wing.—Vincent Gobis, 23 years old, was fatally burned by the explosion of a leaking gasoline can.

Rochester.—The explosion of an alcohol stove in the Kahler sanatorium caused a fire. The loss is about $1,000.

Bemidji.—Fire starting from a chimney destroyed the new general store of N. B. Nelson in Leonard. The loss is $5,000.

Rochester.—James Deseres fell 25 feet and landed on his head fracturing his skull and breaking his collar bone. He died instantly.

Duluth. — Frances Schmid, aged 84 years, who five years ago was considered one of the great educators of the east is dead here.

Winona.—The Political Equality League has arranged for a public meeting on the evening of January 24, when Miss Florence Youmans will be the speaker.

Warren.—At the meeting of the county board of Marshall county the Warren Sheaf was designated as the official paper. P. B. Malberg was elected chairman of the county board.

Elk River.—Ernest Moos, the young man whose back was broken a week ago when a tree which he was cutting fell upon him, died from his injuries. The funeral was held yesterday.

Riverton.—The home of Fred Hagadorn, near Rabbit lake, was destroyed by fire. Herbert Bill, who was endeavoring to extinguish the flames, fell from the roof and was badly injured.

Luverne.—The precedent for bids for the county printing for 1913 was that of the Rock County Herald, which offered to do all the work, including the delinquent tax lists, for 1 cent. The bid was accepted.

Caledonia.—Lauritz Johnson of Black Hammer township, a farmer, 35 years old, died in a hospital here from a gunshot wound in his abdomen. He was hunting rabbits in the woods near his home when the accident happened.

Elk River.—Mr. and Mrs. John Stretch, among the oldest settlers of Sherburne county, celebrated their golden wedding at their home here Tuesday. They were married in Ontario in 1863, and came to Sherburne county in 1865.

Mankato.—The Lutheran Immanuel congregation will erect a new church in this city to cost, when furnished, about $50,000. Half of this sum has been raised in subscriptions. The new building will be put up on the site of the present one.

Mankato.—The city council has adopted a resolution making it unlawful for any police officer while on duty to drink intoxicating liquor or to go into a saloon, and unlawful for any one to sell or give intoxicating liquor to a police officer who is on duty.

Redwood Falls.—H. Kennedy, aged 50, a farmer, sustained serious injuries when the dump boards of a wagon on which he was riding broke, letting him fall to the ground. The wagon, heavily loaded with corn, passed over his body above the waist. Physicians say he is injured internally.

Winona.—The Winona council, Knights of Columbus, together with members from La Crosse, Arcadia and several other points, will leave here on a special train January 29 for St. Charles, where a new council will be launched. A banquet and entertainment will follow the initiation.

Rochester.—A prohibition club has been organized here to work in the interests of the prohibition party, and increase the strength of the cause by securing the co-operation of all temperance workers of other political faiths. It is proposed to raise $37,000 in Minesota for future campaign purposes.

Winona.—The St. Charles high school eliminated the Spring Valley school debating team in the state high school debating league. The judge's decision favored St. Charles two to one. St. Charles will meet Caledonia for the first district championship. The question is, "Resolved, That the government should own and operate railroads doing an interstate business."

Hallock.—At the meeting of the commissioners for Kittson county, Reynard Anderson was elected chairman; Drs. Dahlquist, Shaleen and Rees were appointed county physicians; Dr. Engson and Commissioners Swanson and Coleman were appointed to the county board of health; Mons Anderson was appointed superintendent of the county poor farm, and the Kittson County Enterprise was named the official paper.

Morris.—Olaf Christopherson, 16 years old, who killed Rev. John Kling at Donnelly December 18, was given a preliminary hearing and held to the grand jury. Only three witnesses were sworn by the state, Coroner C. E. Caine, David Kling, son of the murdered man, and Sheriff F. A. Zahl. David Kling told how he left his father home alone with the boy and on his return found him dead with a gunshot wound in his back. Sheriff Zahl testified to the confession which the boy made to him just after his arrest.

Montevideo.—P. H. Hjelle, proprietor of the Bee Hive, lost his stock and fixtures by fire early Monday. The cause of the fire is supposed to be an overheated stove. The building is owned by Mrs. O. B. Johnson of Granite Falls and was damaged to the extent of $400. Hjelle estimates his loss at about $1,500.

Caledonia.—The county board elected Leonard Hill chairman and Thomas Corcoran vice chairman. The bonds of the newly elected officers were approved. Peter Clem was appointed overseer of the poor farm and Dr. J. S. Collins county physician.

Mapleton.—The Commercial club gave a good roads banquet Thursday evening, at which the board members of several towns were guests. Among the speakers were County Commissioners J. H. Hohmann, of Mankato and Ole K. Olson of Sterling, H. C. Hotling and B. F. McGregor, Dr. F. J. Bomberger was toastmaster. Much enthusiasm was aroused.

Pipestone.—Vandals are busy at Lake Benton, twenty miles north of Pipestone. The most recent act was the coating of a residence of a prominent citizen with tar applied with a squirt gun.

Start Your Baby With Sound Health

Regular Bowel Movement from Childhood on Forestalls Future Serious Diseases

We cannot all start life with the advantages of money, but every child born is entitled to the heritage of good health. Through unfortunate ignorance or carelessness in the feeding of a baby its tiny stomach may become deranged. The disorder spreads to the bowels and before the mother realizes it the two chief organs on which the infant's comfort and health depend are causing it great suffering. If the condition is allowed to continue grave ailments often result.

There is, however, no occasion for alarm, and the sensible thing to do—but it should be done instantly—is to give the baby a small dose of a mild laxative tonic. In the opinion of a great many people, among them such well-known persons as the parents of Dixie Dudley, Magnolia, Ark., the proper remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. Earl Dudley writes: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine I ever used. It cured my baby of flatulency colic when the doctors failed; it cured my husband of constipation. My home shall never be without Syrup Pepsin." It is a pleasant-tasting laxative, which every person likes. It is mild, non-griping, and contains that most excellent of all digestants, pepsin.

This remedy is especially intended for infants, children, women, old people and all others to whom harsh cathartics, salt waters, pills, etc., are distressing. In fact, in the common disorders of life, such as constipation, liver trouble, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, and the various other disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels nothing is more suitable than this mild laxative-tonic. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

DIXIE ASKEW DUDLEY

Two generations of people are using it today, and thousands of families keep it constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the size bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

DIDN'T NEED TO READ LINES

Amateur Palmist Had Other Lines of Information Which Aided Her in Revelations.

The fair amateur palmist looked at the left hand of the sweet girl long and earnestly. Breathlessly she waited for the palmist's next words.

"Ah! I see by your hand that you are engaged to be married," said the palmist. "And," continued the reader of the future and the past, in a more cutting tone, "I see that you are engaged to Mr. Mooney."

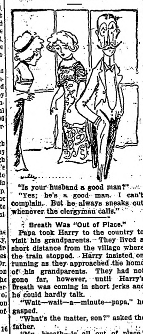
"Oh! It's perfectly extraordinary," burst out the blushing girl. "How can you know that?"

"By my long study of the science," was the reply.

"But surely the lines on my hand—cannot tell you the na——"

"Who said anything about lines?" replied the prophetic one, with withering scorn. "You are wearing the engagement ring I returned to him three weeks ago."

HIS ONE FAULT.



"Is your husband a good man?"

"Yes; he's a good man. I can't complain. But he always sneaks out whenever the clergyman calls."

Breath Was "Out of Place."

Papa took Harry to the country to visit his grandparents. They lived a short distance from the village where the train stopped. Harry insisted on running as they approached the home of his grandparents. They had not gone far, however, until Harry's breath was coming in short jerks and he could hardly talk.

"Wait—wait—a—minute—papa," he gasped.

"What's the matter, son?" asked the father.

"My—breath—is all out of place," gasped the little fellow.

It's tough on the society bud who marries a blooming idiot.

A GOOD BREAKFAST.

Some Persons Never Know What It Means.

A good breakfast, a good appetite and good digestion mean everything to the man, woman or child who has anything to do, and wants to get a good start toward doing it.

A Mo. man tells of his wife's "good breakfast" and also supper, made out of Grape-Nuts and cream. He says:

"I should like to tell you how much good Grape-Nuts has done for my wife. After being in poor health for the last 18 years, during part of the time scarcely anything would stay on her stomach long enough to nourish her, finally at the suggestion of a friend she tried Grape-Nuts.

"Now, after about four weeks on this delicious and nutritious food, she has picked up most wonderfully and seems as well as anyone can be.

"Every morning she makes a good breakfast on Grape-Nuts eaten just as it comes from the package with cream or milk added; and then again the same at supper and the change in her is wonderful.

"We can't speak too highly of Grape-Nuts as a food after our remarkable experience." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Man's Preference.

Miss Lillian Hill, lecturing on eugenics in Cleveland, said:

"It is a good thing for the human race that beauty counts for more than intellect when it comes to love. Intellect too often means nerves—insomnia—hypochondria.

"Yes, it is a good thing for the human race that, as an old maid from Vassar put it rather bitterly:

"'Men prefer a well formed girl to a well informed one.'"

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move. After using 5 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Revolving Toothbrush.

Bill—I see by using handles resembling those of a pair of pliers to rotate a spindle, an inventor has brought out a revolving toothbrush.

Jill—Now, if a fellow mislays his toothbrush he needn't look for it, it's liable to come around to him; but, on the other hand, if it is going around all the time, some one else may get it.

For a Rubber Plant.

When the leaves turn yellow and fall off the plant is dying. Feed it a tablespoonful of olive oil every two weeks. Also wash the plant once a week with warm soapsuds, letting the warm suds moisten the earth thoroughly. Sprinkle every other day. This same treatment should be used on ferns.

Better Way.

"Does your wife raise a rumpus when you stay away from home at night?"

"No; but she does when I get home."

Its Pace.

"So time runs its race?"

"Yes, in the laps of years."

TIRED BLOOD CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

(Copyright 1913 by the Tonitives Co.)

When the blood is tired, it fails to burn up the dead matter, which like clinkers, clog the little kidney tubes, causing Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Stone in Bladder, Uric Acid, etc. Tonitives contain substance to fertilize the blood stream and make the burning complete, so that the kidneys unhampered by clinkers may drain from the blood all waste matter, the natural way of eliminating the cause of all kidney disorders. 75c. per box of dealers or by mail. Grip Germs Are Everywhere

The grip needs only a few days to wreck the health. In this short time it so thoroughly poisons the blood and every tissue of the body that the victim is prostrated. Every muscle and joint of the body aches, sleep is fitful and disturbed, and there is pain back of the eyes and in the head. The grip stays in the system for years unless the blood is cleansed and built up so that it can overcome the poisons of the disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills taken in time will save you much suffering and will so tone up your system that you will enjoy the best of health.

Something to Be Thankful For.

Michael Meehan was the proud possessor of a brand new silk high hat. At the wake of his dearest enemy he had guarded it carefully, and as a consequence was strolling home with the tile unscathed. As he passed the site of a building operation, a lady acquaintance nodded pleasantly.

With an ostentatious wave of the hat, which exhibited it to excellent advantage, Michael bowed. At the same moment a brick sailed down from an upper floor and bounced from his bared skull. Upon coming to he inquired anxiously for the hat. A bystander restored it unharmed. Mike felt the egg-sized lump on his head occasioned by the impact of the brick, and then regarded his undamaged tile. "Begorry," he sighed in satisfaction, "it's lucky it is I saw the loidy in toime!"

Familiar to "Mike."

A negro clairvoyant who for some time masqueraded as a Hindoo was recently visited by a collector, Mike O'Conner.

"Ah," smiled the clairvoyant, "ze genzelman wantz ze palm read?"

"No," said Mike, "ze genzelman has ze bill for you."

When the bill was produced the palm reader forgot his Hindoo ancestors and a stream of perfect English swear words poured from his lips.

"Ah," said Mike, smiling, "ze genzelman sounds more like ze Indiana avenue zan ze Hindoo."—Indianapolis News.

Queer Sex.

"Yes," said the man at the end of the bar, as he ordered his second drink, "women sure are queer creatures. I came home tonight and thought my wife looked a little down in the mouth. So I said: 'After supper let's go to the theater.' And she burst into tears and said: 'Me busy all day doing up preserves and you come home and ask me to go to the theater.' She was still crying when I came out. It beats all, doesn't it? Bartender, I think I'll take just one more."

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—In a report in which the first recommendation is the increase of the number of state supreme court judges rather than reform in judicial procedure, the commission of attorneys appointed by Governor A. O. Eberhart to suggest reforms in court methods, has just made its report to the governor. Changes in legal procedure are recommended, but the commission does not go to the extent suggested by Governor Eberhart, who asserted that all appeals to the supreme court except on final judgments should be abolished.

The report of the commission will be sent to the legislature together with a message from Governor Eberhart.

In addition to changes in legal procedure, the governor will recommend to the legislature the creation of a permanent commission to consider proposals for changes in all state laws, not alone laws involving the legal system.

The Recommendations.

The following changes in Minnesota legal machinery are proposed in the report:

Increase of the number of supreme court judges from five to seven.

Making the district court instead of the supreme court, the court of appeals for the municipal court.

Five-sixths of the jury in any civil action, after the jury has deliberated not less than six hours, may return a verdict. The present law requires all jurors to agree.

Appeals may be taken from an order refusing a new trial or from an order sustaining a demurrer, but not from an order granting a new trial or overruling a demurrer, providing, however, that when an order granting a new trial is based exclusively on errors occurring at the trial an appeal may be taken, and also providing that when a new trial has once been granted on the ground the evidence is not sufficient to support the verdict, appeals may be taken from subsequent orders granting new trials wholly or in part on that ground. Providing further, that when in overruling a demurrer the court shall certify that the question presented by the demurrer is doubtful an appeal may be taken.

Original copies of judgment rolls, settled cases or bills of exceptions to be filed with the supreme court when requested, thus avoiding the necessity for the expense of having copies printed.

The state, instead of the defense, to have the closing argument to the jury in all criminal cases.

In criminal cases punishable by life imprisonment or death, the state and defense each to have ten peremptory challenges instead of the state having ten and the defense twenty, as at present. In other criminal cases the state and defense shall each have five peremptory challenges instead of three for the state and five for the defense as at present.

During examination of jurors the court may exclude from the courtroom all other jurors on the panel.

One Point of Difference.

In making its recommendations the commission is unanimous except on one question—the advisability of permitting the state instead of the defense to make the closing argument to the jury in criminal cases. Four of the commissioners opposed this proposed change: Judge W. E. Hale and George P. Flannery of Minneapolis; Judge H. B. Dibell of Duluth, and H. C. Carlson of Albert Lea. Other members of the commission are Chief Justice Calvin L. Brown of the supreme court, chairman; Judge W. S. McClenahan of Brainerd; Stiles W. Burr, Price Wickersham, Pierce Butler and Judge H. R. Brill of St. Paul.

St Paul, Jan. 20.—Early action is to be taken on the Cashman distance tariff bill. Chairman B. E. Sundberg of the senate railroad committee announced that the committee will give a hearing on the bill Tuesday afternoon.

Would Provide Pure Seed.

A pure seed bill was introduced by Senator A. C. Olson of Windom. It requires all agricultural seed except when sold by farmers to dealers for recleaning to state the percentage of germination and the date of the germination test, the percentage of quack grass, Canadian thistle and certain other weed seeds contained as well as the total percentage of weed seeds. The state experiment station at St. Anthony Park is directed to make tests and to prosecute violations of the law.

The so-called "bushel tax" adopted by the 1909 legislature and prescribing a small tax upon all grain handled in elevators during the year instead of the usual ad valorem tax upon the grain in the elevator May 1, is repealed in a bill offered by Senator G. H. Sullivan of Stillwater. The state tax commission recommended that the law be either repealed or amended to make the tax larger.

Dunn Hits Railroad.

Declaring that speedy action by the state is necessary to prevent the Duluth & Iron Range railroad from "committing larceny" in securing valuable iron lands for the unfilled portion of its land grant, H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea, former speaker of the house, secured the advancement to general orders of his bill reserving to the state all mineral rights in lands hereafter selected to fill land grants. The bill forbids the issuing of patents for lands by the state without such a reservation.

General Investigation Ordered.

Shortly after Mr. Dunn had the bill advanced to general orders Representative W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis introduced a resolution asking a general investigation of all state departments by the house committee on public accounts and expenditures. The resolution provides that the committee shall report back to the house recommendations for changes in the present system. The house passed Mr. Nolan's resolution without a dissenting voice. In his message to the legislature Governor A. O. Eberhart asked that the land department may be made a separate department of state and Senator John Moonan has introduced a joint resolution providing for an inquiry into the governor's recommendation. Mr. Nolan's resolution will be authorized to investigate all state departments and recommend changes in the present system.

To Simplify Amendments.

Simplifying of the process of amending the state constitution is the object of a bill introduced by Senator Haycraft. It would provide that a majority of all the votes cast.

Senator Haycraft's proposition would have to be submitted to the people as an amendment and voted on under the old system.

At the last general election only two of the seven amendments submitted to the people were passed. There were comparatively few votes against the amendments, but since all votes not cast for are in reality against such amendments five of them were lost.

In order that there may be a fair expression of opinion Senator Haycraft would provide that at least 50 per cent of all those voting at the election must vote on the amendments.

Big Meeting on Pension Bill.

Representative W. A. Campbell, whose bill to provide state pensions for widows is pending before the Minnesota legislature, attended a conference in the mayor's reception room at the Minneapolis city hall at 2:30 p. m. Mr. Campbell took with him as many of the members of the labor committee of both houses as could find it possible to attend. The meeting was arranged by the committee on child welfare of the Civic and Commerce association, with the object of giving careful attention to the legislation under discussion.

The bitter northern Minnesota normal school fight, which attracted so much attention at the 1909 session of the legislature has been revived. D. P. O'Neill introduced a bill locating a sixth normal school at Thief River Falls.

P. H. McGarry, who led a successful fight for a bill locating the school at Cass Lake, four years ago, which was vetoed by Governor Johnson, presented his bill locating the school at Cass Lake. A third bill asking for the normal at Bemidji will also be presented.

NO INAUGURAL BALL

President-elect Writes Asking If Function Can Be Omitted.

Washington, Jan. 18.—"There will be no inaugural ball," declared William C. Eustis, chairman of the inaugural committee, after an informal conference with several members over a letter from President-elect Wilson requesting that the committee consider the feasibility of omitting the function.

"The wishes of President-elect Wilson will be complied with," said Mr. Eustis. "The committee will take official action later."

Finally it was decided to learn more of President-elect Wilson's wishes and the committee will wait until next week before taking formal action.

Illegal Fencing Alleged.

Washington, Jan. 17. — That the Warren Live Stock company of which Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming was the head, was in 1906 "maintaining unlawful enclosures" on public lands in Wyoming and Colorado; was the substance of a report adopted by the house committee on expenditures in the interior department.

Skunk Hides in Parcel Post.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 16. — Somebody threw a wrench into the smoothly running parcel post machinery at the Decatur postoffice. It was a package of fresh skunk hides, mailed by a trapper on a rural route. Because fresh breezes were blowing in the country the rural carrier was able to bring the parcel to Decatur, but as soon as he carried it into the building the force of clerks went out by another door. The parcel will be returned to the sender.

Probe of "Arson Trust" On.

New York, Jan. 20.—Additions to the striking revelations of the extent which arson for profit is practiced in this city, furnished by "Izzy, the painter," convicted firebug informer, were made by him to the district attorney, whose office spent a busy Sunday preparing for the examination in the "arson trust" investigation by the grand jury today when more indictments may be returned. "Izzy," who is more formally known as Isador Stein, continues to tell of fires that he made throughout the city.

Filipinos for Independence.

Manila, Jan. 16.—Forty former leaders in the revolution have formed a national association under the leadership of Emilio Aguinaldo, for the avowed purpose to work for peace and give help during the period provided for in the Jones bill, which aims at establishing a provincial government in the Philippine Islands. With ultimately independence for the Filipinos. It is understood that Arguinaldo aspires to the presidency in event that the Jones bill becomes a law.

Prosecution of Combination.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A giant combination practically controlling American coastwise trade on the Atlantic and operating under an agreement with the railroads by which prorating is refused to independent steamship lines, except on full cargoes, was described to the house shipping trust committee yesterday by A. H. Bull, president of the A. H. Bull Steamship company of New York. Mr. Bull described efforts of the combine to drive his company out of the New York-Porto Rican trade.

LET GOOD CHANCE GO BY

Bluffers Had Perfect Right to Be Mad, Considering the Extremely Unfortunate Circumstances.

Bluffers bounced into the club, jammed his hat down on a table with a fierce, resounding bang, and flung himself into an easy chair.

"What's wrong today, Bluffers? You look bad."

"I'll never forgive myself. I kicked a man out of my house last night!"

"Humph! I've kicked out many a one. Young fellow, I suppose?"

"No; past middle age."

"Well, these old codgers have no business to be coming round courting young girls. I would have kicked him out myself."

"Yes, but I have found out since that this man wasn't courting my daughter. He was after my mother-in-law."

THE BAROMETER OF THE POST OFFICE, THE READING OF WHICH SHOWS WESTERN CANADA'S GROWTH.

Several of Western Canada newspapers coming to hand during the last part of the year 1912 contained items of news such as the following, speaking of the Christmas work in the postoffice:

"Other years have been heavy and the employees have had plenty of opportunity of learning what it was to work overtime, but the past has had nothing equal to the present. Forty extra men have been employed (in Winnipeg), and mail trains have been run special. The increase in the mail this year has been due to the enormous influx of people into Western Canada during the season, and also the general prosperity which the prairie provinces have enjoyed. To the latter cause has been due the heavy increase in the number of parcels which have been shipped to the old country and Eastern Canada."

The above extract taken from a Winnipeg paper gives a fair idea of the great work that the Canadian postoffices have had all through the western prairies. During the past year hundreds of new postoffices were established, many of them at remote points from the railway, but all forced upon the country on account of the new settlements that have taken place during the year. It is said of the Canadian government that in its immigration and settlement policy there is nothing left undone to take care of the people and their welfare, whether it be in the new town along a new line of railway or in the remotest hamlet. This solicitude and care are not confined to the postoffice, but with every branch that has to do with organizing new districts. Bridges have been built, roads constructed, the district policed, and a dozen other things have to be done and are done. Is it any wonder that with the splendid land, the high yielding land, the land that is free to the homesteader or open to purchase at reasonable prices from the railway and land companies, that the Canadian immigration records for 1912 will show arrivals of upwards of 400,000, one-half of this being from the United States. The new literature being sent out by the immigration branch at Ottawa, and its agencies throughout the United States deals with many of the new and interesting features that will mark the work of that branch for the year 1913.—Advertisement.

Touching the Cardinal.

At the Democratic convention in Baltimore last summer two of the sergeants-at-arms were Ohioans, Col. John Bolan of Toledo and Capt. Joseph Dowling of Dayton. Bolan is the wit who laid down the maxim that "anny man who parts his hair in the middle is no Dimmycrat."

When Cardinal Gibbons had finished the opening prayer, he descended from the rostrum and made his way toward the door. As he neared the exit where the two Ohioans were on guard, Bolan whispered:

"Joe, touch him whin he passes ye."

"All right, colonel," replied Dowling, with an inocent air. "What pocket has he got it in?"—Popular Magazine.

Partial Success.

"Oh, I have known some that cured faith in them."

GAPES GET WEAK CHICKENS

If Fowls Are Kept Dry, Thrifty and Well Fed They Will Seldom Be Subject to Disease.

(By W. B. LEUTZ.)

Perhaps it would not do to say that all chickens that die from gapes are those that are poorly fed and cared for, but it is undeniably true that if the chickens are well fed on feeding boards and kept dry and thrifty they will seldom be attacked.

It is generally believed that gapes are produced by minute worms which are propagated in the soil. It follows that if the chickens are fed on the same ground all through the season they are more liable to be troubled by the gapes than if they are fed on dry floors.

Preventative is better than cure always and if the chickens are fed on dry floors for the first few weeks of their lives and the yards in which they run changed two or three times during the season they will seldom suffer from the gapes.

We believe that this trouble is the result of poorly kept quarters just as lice and mites come when the coops and grounds are neglected. We have never yet heard of an epidemic of gapes in a flock of chicks where every sanitary precaution was taken and they were cared for just as they should be.

When you come to study this assertion you will see that a high standard is set for the amateur chicken-raiser, but if it is maintained your chickens will not die from gapes.

To those whose flocks are suffering the best cure is a simple one—carbolic acid.

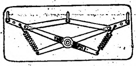
As soon as the chicks show signs of gapes make a small coop with two compartments, an upper and lower. Place a hot brick in the lower one and drop on it three or four drops of carbolic acid. The upper compartment in which the chickens are placed should not be air tight as the youngsters will suffocate, but it should be tight enough to cause them to sneeze and show considerable agitations.

One or two careful treatments in this way will kill the worms in the air passages and it is time for the owner of the flock to put his chicks on new ground, disinfect their roosting quarters and everything else about the place if he would keep them healthy.

DRAFT EQUALIZER ON TRUCKS

Invention Involves Plurality of Levers In Pivotal Relation—Plan of Device Shown.

In describing and illustrating a draft equalizer for trucks, invented by D. M. Murken of Manhattan, N. Y., the Scientific American says: This draft equalizer is adapted for use on trucks or other vehicles, drawn by either one, two or three animals pulling abreast so that the leverage will be equalized, the invention involving a plurality of levers in pivotal relation with each other and also articulated through the medium of springs. The equalizer is adapted for use with one, two or three swingle-trees, it being desirable in some instances that the animals used with vehicles be changed at short notice, and the structure of the device is particularly adapted for such change. The accompanying engraving shows a plan view of the device.



Draft Equalizer For Trucks.

Cutting Crops.

Considerable loss is occasioned on many farms every year by allowing crops to become too ripe before harvesting. This is especially true of grass or clover, or any crop intended for hay or as a substitute. With grasses when the seed begins to form well and with grain crops when the grain begins to harden is the best stage to harvest.

Manuring Garden in Winter.

Any time during the winter or early spring the garden may be manured. The spring rains will dissolve richness from fertilizers and carry them down into the soil for feeding the plants next summer. If the garden is manured in winter fresh manure may be used with safety, as it will have lost much of the heat by planting time.

Profit in Cockerels.

There is nearly as much profit in a cockerel fed for $1 to $1.50 as there is if kept till March and sold for $1 each more, for lusty growing cockerels are good feeders, but you might as well feed what you need, as to feed your own that have been inbred too long already.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Keep a record—our memories are short.

Now is a good time to examine the seed corn.

Almost all our common garden vegetables require a somewhat alkaline soil.

Let the manure freeze after being hauled to the field; not around the barn.

When the silo is thoroughly dry it is well to treat the inside of it with coal tar.

The finer the soil, the better the vegetables, both in quantity and quality.

Most farms should carry more live stock, in order to help maintain the fertility of the soil.

To kill Canada thistles in a field, put the field in some cultivated crop and keep the weeds down.

Riding on a manure spreader has assisted many a man to where he could ride in an automobile.

If you'll save a little seed corn earlier in the season, you'll save a little money later in the season.

The growth of oats and young grass should be allowed to start well before turning animals on the pasture.

A bill introduced in the state legislature that we think will be of interest to people locally is one providing for state aid towards establishing parks. A village park has at various times been discussed in this village and should this bill pass renewed interest in the park proposition will undoubtedly be taken, and we feel positive that Plummer could boost of a park ere long, that for natural beauty will compare favorable with the best of 'em.

Anyone believeing in variety ought not to complain about this brand of weather, of which Tuesday and Wednesday of this week furnished an excellent example. Tuesday shivered with a 35 below temperature and Wednesday all the summer birds and barn yard fowl were out singing their praises and basking in the sun. It keeps a person too awfully blamed busy for anything, one day chasing the coal buckets and making grand rushes for the wood pile and the next measuring out that garden spot.

A measure of some kind which personally we would like to see passed by the state legislature, would be one making it compulsatory for incorporated villages to maintain a jail and to provied aid for the erection of same. No town can hope to maintain order unless it has a lock-up, but in order to meet the strict requirements of the state the expense of erecting a jail is rather a heavy burden for most small villages to carry.

A bill was introduced in the House Monday offering an amendment to the constitution providing for legislative re-apportionment on basis of population, to apply only to naturalized citizens. This measure is calculated to hit this part of the state, where quite a big per centage of the population is foreigners. Since these same 'foreigners' are compelled to pay taxes and contribute to the state's welfare as the next one, there is absolutely no ground for this discrimination and we hope to see it receive a 'black eye' with but little argument.

A 2-cent fare bill, based on the earnings of the railroads, has been introduced in the lower house of the Minnesota legislature by C. M. Bendixen of Wells. The bill provides that where railroads earn $1,200 or more a mile they shall not charge more than 2 cents. The measure has taken the roads' earnings for 1911 as a basis and as all Minnesota railroads earn more than $1,200 a mile, the bill, if passed, will practically establish a uniform rate of 2 cents a mile.

Henry Torski transacted business in town Saturday.

S. A. Berg, of Ottertail, was in town last Monday.

R. L. Renne, of Wadena, was a caller here the first of the week.

Allck Churries, of Clearbrook, was a caller here the first of the week.

Miss Nellie Short of Lillo, spent Saturday and Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Jas. Alrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, of Gonvick, were guests at the Rose home last week.

For Sale.—Post Office building, or will trade for horses. Inquire of O. J. Johnson.

K. O. Dock, of Thief River, called on the trade here Thursday of last week.

Miss Mary Johnson, of Gonvick, visited her sister, Mrs. Henry Rose last week.

The O. H. Peterson family arrived here from Sully Thursday evening of last week and are now in charge of the Scotland hotel.

We would like to see all the weather prophets exterminated. All reports of coming mild weather we've seen this winter have most always brought a spell of cold weather.

We are living in high hopes. Mr. Groundhog made his appearance Sunday, and to stay as he was unable to see anything that looked like his shadow. Now we are anxiously looking for the first sign of spring.

Miss Ellen Kolstoe, the reader, will give an entertainment at the Plummer city hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 8, commencing at 8 o'clock. Miss Kolstoe gave an entertainment at Oklee recently and those who were fortunate to attend speak highly of her work and pronounce her an excellent entertainer. No one should fail to attend this highly instructive and elevated entertainment. Remember the date, Feb. 8. Admission 25c, Children 15c.

Rev. A. G. Anderson, missionary for the American Union Sunday school is here and is holding services every evening this week in the school house in Plummer. Rev. Anderson is assisted by Rev. E. F. Olander who will preach next Sunday evening. He has also promised to deliver three lectures on the bible while here. Everybody welcome.

One of our exchanges, at least, does not take a particular fancy to the manner in which the postoffice department generally advertises for bids, and we are right in line to say ditto. When an appointment is to be made for postmaster or mail carrier, etc., the department sends out a couple of notices to the local postmaster authorizing him to post one or two and send one to the newspaper for publication. Of course the notices that are posted very seldom catches the public eye, and we do not amagine they are intended to cut much of a swat in the matter anyway, as long as the newspaper has been authorized to publish it. These notices vary in size from one-half to three-quarters of a column in length and as the newspaper is supposed to publish it au gratis there is cause for much rejoicing around the print shop when it is handed in for publication.

The masquerade ball given at the city hall Saturday evening was well attended despite the cold weather and the fact that hardly any outsiders were present as dances had been pulled off at all the surrounding towns on the evening previous. There was a splendid array of costumes both handsome and otherwise, and made quite a spectacle when they were all on the floor at one time. Preceding the unmasking prizes were awarded for the most handsome and comical dressed couples, Tom Norby received the prize for the best dressed man, being arrayed in an elaborate costume representing King Louis II, and presented a splendid appearance. Miss Lou Green carried off honors for the best dressed lady, portraying in a dainty costume Little Red Ridinghood. Mr. and Mrs. Lamay Morrisette "took the cake" for the comical dressed, representing Geo. McManus' "The Newlyweds and the Baby". After the un-masking the crowd withdrew to the Plummer Hotel where supper was served, dancing being resumed at about one o'clock and continuing until about four o'clock.

Coal-heavers Peterson and Olson had narrow escape from death some time ago, an item of news we did not learn until the other day, but which will be news to many of our readers. Before 'flier time' they went to start the engine in the pump-house and while so engaged were over-come by coal gas. When upon the arrival of the flier the train crew did not find the "heavers" at their job a search was made for them and they were found a few minutes later stretched out on the pump-house' floor unconscious. They were carried to a shack where they regained consciousness in a short time.

Father Rol Dead

The death of Fr. Rol, of Lambert, which occurred at Blackduck the latter part of last week, was learned here the first of the week. Fr. Rol has served as priest in the Lambert parish for a number of years and his demise will be a sad blow to his parishioners and those who know him. He was over 80 years of age and has been in failing health for the past few months. Rev. Fr. S. Beaulieu has been assigned to the Lambert parish.

Rotate Wheat

Minnesota has long held rank as the greatest wheat-producing state in the Union, with the greatest milling industry in the world. This supremacy may be maintained, and production increased, under new systems of rotation. It is true that we grow too much wheat now, in comparison with other crops that should be grown in rotation with it.

It does not follow that we should grow less wheat, but it is certain that we should grow more of the other crops in rotation. Our plant-breeders have developed varieties of winter and spring wheats, of the Turkeys and Blue Stem varieties, of a much higher yielding power and quality than the ordinary strains. These, with proper rotation and fertilization, should average from twenty-five to thirty bushels per acre. With such yields, at present prices, which are certain to be maintained, wheat will be a profitable crop in the rotation, and will be in the future even more extensively grown than at present.—Dean A. F. Woods, University Farm, St. Paul.

To Reorganize Band

A meeting has been called for 8 o'clock next Sunday evening at the band hall at which time efforts will be made to re-organize the local band, which disbanded last fall. Everyone of the old members and all those interested and would like to join are requested to be present at the meeting. The enrollment of the band last summer amounted to fourteen members and the boys intend to put in some hard work to try and swell this number to twenty, which we think can easily be done. Any previous experience in band work is not necessary in order to join. Anyone with an ear for music and a willingness to learn is eligable for membership. Just who will be secured as leader is not known but it is believed that an effort will be made to secure Ben Lonson, of Thief River whose excellent work as director of the band last year is spoken very highly of among the band boys.

Educational Convention

A joint meeting of the Northwestern and North Central Educational associations will convene at Thief River on Feb. 13, 14 and 15. It is suggested that schools be kept open Feb 12th, a legal holiday, to make it more convenient for teachers to attend. Among the large list of speakers are President Vincent, Dr. Puffer O. G. Schultz and others. So far as possible free lodging for lady teachers will be granted.

The committee urge everyone interested to attend as it is quite a rare occasion that so much talent can be secured for an educational meeting.

A Fine Flowing Well

Wilbert E. Roese, who had been visiting relatives at Osceola, Wisconsin for the past month, returned to his home here Wednesday evening, and was very much elated over the fact that he had a bit of good fortune during his absence. Andrew Letvig who has been engaged in digging a well on Mr. Roese's place four miles north of town struck an excellent 'flow' on Tuesday of last week, at a depth of 193 feet. This good fortune was hardly looked for and is a convenience very few farmers in this section can boast of, and is one that Mr. Roese says he would not part with for hundreds of dollars

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Notice to Feed Grinders

On account of cold weather the feed mill will be closed until the 28th of February. Chris. Olson & Son. 2t

The business men of Red Lake Falls are about to suggest to the people of the county a way of improving the rural highways without increasing road taxes, if, in fact, the plan to be suggested will not result in an actual reduction in taxes. It will certainly make for better roads without additional expense and that is worth considering. The state law, Section 1241 Revised laws, now provides for changing of the manner of handling road work to the township system. At the spring election the voters of any township may, by petition, vote on the proposition to change to the township system. The advantages of making the change are that under the township system road taxes are paid in cash and all road work is done by contract. The man who has the job for road repairs or road construction must do his work according to specifications. His work is inspected by the town board just as public work might be inspected, by the county board, and he does not get paid for his work until it is completed. There will be no wasted time or wasted energy and it is evident that there will be results for the road tax money expended. Blank petitions asking for the privilage of voting on the proposition to change will be sent to people in all of the townships within a short time. It will be necessary to secure signers to these petitions to bring the matter to a vote. All public spirited citizens are urged to sign the petitions and to work for the change. Much is to be gained by the change and nothing can be lost. This is a proposition on which all good people can do some campaigning. Be a booster for good roads.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

WORKS BILL PASSES

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT SECURES ONE VOTE MORE THAN IS NECESSARY.

SIX YEAR PRESIDENTIAL TERM

House and Thirty-six States Must Ratify It First, However—Bill May Affect Wilson—Attempts to Alter.

Washington, Feb. 3.—By a vote of forty-seven to twenty-three, just one more than the required two-thirds majority, the senate late Saturday passed the resolution introduced by Senator John D. Works of California, which would so amend the constution as to fix the presidential tenure of office at six years instead of four. The constitutional amendment, which must be ratified by the house of representatives, and three-fourths of the states, also provides that any person elected to the office is ineligible for re-election.

May Extend Wilson's Term.

If the measure is approved in the lower legislative chamber and ratified by the states within the next four years, it is possible that it will automatically extend the four-year term to which Governor Wilson was elected last November to March 4, 1919.

Works' resolution contemplates substitution of the following in lieu of the first paragraph of section I, article II, of the constitution:

> "The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. The term of the office of the president shall be six years and no person who has held the office by election or discharged its powers or duties, or acted as president under the constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof, shall be eligible to again hold the office by election.
>
> "The president, together with a vice president, chosen for the same term, shall be elected as follows:

Here the language of the constitution is resumed.

The Vice Presidency.

The proposed constitutional amendment would not affect the vice presidency except to lengthen the term to six years. There would be no prohibition against re-election of the president's running mate. Several senators were uncertain, however, whether, in case a vice president succeeds to the chief magistracy, he could again be elected to the presidency. Senator Cummins of Iowa, who reported the Works' resolution, however, held it was plain that if a vice president held the presidential office even for a short time, it would make him eligible, under the proposed amendment, to assume the presidency for another trem.

Probably never before in the history of the senate did a single measure provide such a fertile field for authority. Saturday's discussion ranged from the rise and fall of the Roman empire, through the reign of the Napoleons in France and the revolutionary days in America up to and including the issue of new nationalism of today.

It precipitated a lengthy wrangle between Senators Cummins of Iowa and Poindexter of Washington, wherein the latter predicted the ultimate dissolution of the republican and democratic parties, and the forming of two new political organizations—progressives of both old parties arranged against the reactionaries of both old parties. Cummins could not agree.

The debate between these two led Senator Williams of Mississippi, bitterly to denounce Roosevelt and the new nationalism. He characterized the bull moose leader as "the knight of the twentieth century with the political theories of Alexander Hamilton," but nevertheless opposed any amendment to the Works resolution which might specificially prohibit Roosevelt's re-election, declaring that the six-year term would certainly be rejected by the states, if such a provision were included.

Following Williams' speech, the senate rejected Senator Hitchcock's amendment, fixing March 3, 1917, as the time when the six-year term and no re-election provision shall become effective.

Senator Sutherland's plan to fix the term for president in office at the time of final ratification of the constitutional amendment at four years was then rejected, 27 to 38.

Ten Killed in Havana Explosion.

Havanna, Feb. 4.—An explosion in a hardware store at Cienfugos Saturday resulted in the death of 10 persons, including the proprietor and his wife and their children. The others killed were persons in the immediate community, where scores also were injured. It is believed that the explosion was due to combustion of a large quantity of blasting powder which was kept for sale.

Frank M. Ryan Released.

Leavenworth, Kan., Feb. 4.—Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Ironworkers' union, serving a sentence on conviction in the dynamite conspiracy has been released from the federal penitentiary here on $70,000 bond. He was met by E. N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago branch of the Federation of Labor, and they took en evening train for Chicago. Ryan is the seventh of the 33 men convicted to be released. President Ryan was cheerful and appeared in good health.

$100,000 Bank Fraud Alleged.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 4.—A banking swindle that may amount to $100,000 is claimed by several hundred Italian workmen who have discovered that money sent home by Christmas through a local banking concern, known variously as the [illegible] and the Banca Bressi, never arrived. [illegible] Saturday a great crowd of [illegible] assembled with their pass books before the bank's officials and found that the bank's proprietor, Annibal Bressi, had apparently fled.

St. Vitus' dance makes children awkward at first, then restless; later comes the twitching of the muscles and jerking of the limbs and body.

At the first sign of nervousness, inability to sit still, sleeplessness or continued irritability give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, one after each meal. The change will soon be apparent. As the thin blood becomes rich and red, the starved nerves get the needed nourishment and the alarming symptoms vanish. There is no danger of St. Vitus unless the blood is thin.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50 at druggists or from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Temperate Humanity.

The driver of a brewery wagon stopped at a restaurant where he delivered beer and prepared to water his horses. He had filled a pail from the street hydrant and was about to offer it to the near horse when the command "Put that down" caused him to drop the bucket with a splash. Then a woman plunged a thermometer into the water.

"Too cold by several degrees," she said. "Get a pail of hot water from the restaurant."

The driver mumbled "What for?" but he was awed by the woman's commanding manner and he fetched the hot water as directed.

"Now," she said, "pour some of that cold water out and pour hot water into the pail until it registers about 57 degrees. Then water your horses. It is cruel to make a horse drink water colder than that, and every member of the S. P. C. A. that I have any influence with is going to keep an eye on you drivers and see that you temper the water you give to your houres."

What a Funny Teacher.

An east side lad of six summer has a child's faculty for seeing things, often in the way they are not. He came home from school the other day and found his father reading the daily paper.

"Pop," he said, "my teacher don't know nothin'!"

"Why, son, what the matter now?" asked the father.

"Well," replied the youngster, "she held a big red apple up in front of us this morning and said: 'Children, what is this I have in my hand?'"—Indianapolis News.

COFFEE THRESHED HER.

15 Long Years.

"For over fifteen years," writes a patient, hopeful little Ills. woman, "while a coffee drinker, I suffered from Spinal Irritation and Nervous trouble. I was treated by good physicians, but did not get much relief.

"I never suspected that coffee might be aggravating by condition. (Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) I was down-hearted and discouraged, but prayed daily that I might find something to help me.

"Several years ago, while at a friend's house I drank a cup of Postum and though I had never tasted anything more delicious.

"From that time on I used Postum instead of coffee and soon began to improve in health, so that now I can walk half a dozen blocks or more with ease, and do many other things that I never thought I would be able to do again in this world.

"My appetite is good, I sleep well and find life is worth living. A lady of my acquaintance said she did not like Postum, it was so weak and tasteless.

"I explained to her the difference when it is made right—boiled according to directions. She was glad to know this because coffee did not agree with her. Now her folks say they expect to use Postum the rest of their lives." Name given upon request. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

"Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavour is always uniform. Sold by grocers—45 to 50-cup tin 30 cts., 90 to 100-cup tin 50 cts.

A 5-cup trial tin mailed for grocer's name and 2-cent stamp for postage. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.—Adv.

Winona.—Next Sunday will be field day in Minnesota for the State Anti-Saloon league. A party of workers will come here and speak in different churches. A union meeting of some of the churches has been arranged for the evening, when Mr. Youngdahl of the league will speak. Collections will be taken for the work.

Fergus Falls.—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Riley, who have walked from Pennsylvania to the Pacific coast and are now walking back again on a wager, were in this city last week. They left Pittsburgh, Pa., March 30, 1912, and reached Seattle on Nov. 2. They must reach Pittsburgh by July 4, to win the wager, but will have plenty of time to spare, they say. They average 23 miles a day in winter and thirty miles in summer.

St. Peter.—Physicians of the Nicollet and Le Sueur Counties' Medical society, at their annual meeting, elected Dr. H. A. Hartung of Le Sueur, as president; Dr. W. H. Powell, Kasota, vice president; Dr. F. P. Strathern, St. Peter, secretary, and Dr. J. W. Daniels, St. Peter, treasurer. Dr. Hartung read a paper on "Eugenics," and Dr. George Basket, assistant superintendent of the St. Peter state hospital, one on "Insanity."

Minneapolis.—John Sampson and Michael McDermott, alias Mike Murray, who, with R. F. Russell were foiled in an attempt to overcome their guards and escape from the Minneapolis workhouse on Jan. 4, pleaded guilty in St. Paul to safe blowing. Sampson will serve a term in the state penitentiary. McDermott is being held for federal authorities who suspect him of being implicated in a postoffice robbery at Cook, Minn.

Hancock.—The Hancock Creamery association elected the following: President, F. W. Beisterfield; vice president, V. C. Huntley; secretary, J. L. Morton; treasurer, A. Charles; directors, A. Christensen, John Landes, F. H. Taplin. The creamery made a splendid showing for the eleven months it has been in operation. Number of patrons, 163; total receipts, $20,405.86; paid to patrons, $18,019.07; placed in sinking fund, $616.55; expenses, $1,770.24.

New Richland.—The "wets" and the "drys" are already lining up for their annual battle. The town has been dry for two years and the "wets" are making their last stand for victory at the spring election. The "drys" say the town has made better progress under the dry regime than formerly and that business has not been affected except for the better. Heretofore the election has been close and exciting, and neither side is claiming victory in advance.

Detroit.—The coming summer promises to be a busy one for men in the building trades. John Mercer has taken a contract to erect a summer home for a citizen of Winnipeg on the north shore of Detroit lake near the mouth of the Pelican. G. C. Nunn will erect a business block to replace the one destroyed by fire. L. J. Norby & Co., will build a store on the site now occupied by the old Star restaurant. A $10,000 Carnegie library will be built near the Baptist church.

Cloquet.—O. H. Johnson, manual training teacher in the public schools, has accepted a position in the normal school at River Falls. The offer came unsolicited, the school having heard of his efficient work. He will remain with the Cloquet schools until the vacancy can be filled.

Litchfield.—At a largely attended meeting of Seventh Day Adventists here resolutions were adopted opposing the Johnston Sunday bill now before congress on the ground that it is the first step towards the union of church and state. The resolutions will be forwarded to Washington.

Pipestone.—Great Northern railway detectives are trying to ascertain the identity of persons making two attempts to wreck passenger trains at a point about twelve miles north of Pipestone. Both attempts were made at the same place in a cut on a sharp curve. It is expected arrests will be made soon.

Hastings.—At a special session of the county commissioners Tuesday afternoon L. N. Isaacs, formerly of South St. Paul, was elected county superintendent of schools of Dakota county for the ensuing two years. This breaks a long deadlock.

The Young Bride's First Discovery.

Their wedding tour had ended, and they entered their new home to settle down to what they hoped to be one long uninterrupted blissful honeymoon.

But alas! the young bride's troubles soon began, when she tried to reduce the cost of living with cheap big can baking powders.

She soon discovered that all she got was a lot for her money, and it was not all baking powder, for the bulk of it was cheap materials which had no leavening power. Such powders will not make light, wholesome food. And because of the absence of leavening gas, it requires from two to three times as much to raise cakes or biscuits as it does of Calumet Baking Powder.

Thus, eventually, the actual cost to you of cheap baking powders is more than Calumet would be.

Cheap baking powders often leave the bread bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are not always of uniform strength and quality.

Now the bride buys Calumet—the perfectly wholesome baking powder, moderate in price, and always uniform and reliable. Calumet keeps indefinitely, makes good cooking easy, and is certainly the most economical after all. Hit the Danger Spot.

A tippler with a very red nose got a day's work as a laborer in a boiler works. The same day he appeared before the surgeon at the hospital with his nose smashed.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the surgeon. "How did you manage to get your nose smashed like that?"

"Oh," cried the sufferer, "I put my nose through a hole in the boiler for a sniff of fresh air, and the man outside with the hammer mistook it for a red-hot rivet. And he only hit once—that's all."

The Real Villain.

"Are you the villain of this troupe?" asked the baggeman who was handling theatrical trunks. "No," replied the youth with black, curly hair. "I used to be, but the real villain is the treasurer of the company, and by this time he must be about five hundred miles on his way to somewhere west."—Washington Star.

Irreclaimable Skeptic.

How big an income should a young man have before he is justified in getting married? This question is asked in various departments of the Sunday papers at various seasons of the year, and it is variously answered. Conditions change and domestic happiness changes with the conditions.

The best answer we remember to have heard was given by a cynical bachelor and skeptic last week. This person was in the newspaper office when the woman editor opened her mail and read forth this question:

"Could a young couple be happy on $900 a year?"

"Sure they could," answered the skeptic eagerly. "They couldn't live together on it."

To Pop Corn.

Very often corn will not pop quickly, even over a very hot fire. If you will put the corn to be popped in a sieve and pour cold water over it, not allowing the water to stand on the corn, it will not only pop quickly, but the open kernels will be larger and lighter and more flaky than they otherwise would have been.

REALLY NAMED FOR STATE

Mississippi River Steamers Originated Cognomen That Has Now Become Universal.

On the Mississippi river in olden days the passenger steamboats were very ornate affairs, vying with each other in garish glory. One owner hit on the idea of naming his steamboat's cabins instead of numbering them. So he named them in honor of the states of the union, each having above the door the gilt title of some state, the big central cabin being called the "Texas," after the largest state. Other boat owners took up the idea, and thus the word cabin was gradually alternated by "state" room. For years the best cabin was still known as the Texas. Then that sobriquet died with the ebbing glory of the old river steamers. But the word "stateroom" became incorporated into our language, and in time even broke into the dictionary, as does many another catch phrase. Not one person in a thousand who occupies a stateroom knows the term once meant "a room named for a state."

FACE A SIGHT WITH TETTER

Moberly, Mo.—"My trouble began with a small pimple on the left side of my face and it spread all over my face and to my neck. It would be scarlet red when I got warm. My face was a sight. It looked very unpleasant, and it felt uncomfortable. My face was something awful; it just kept me in agony all the time. Some said it was tetter, and some said it was that awful eczema, but I rather think it was tetter. I had been troubled with it for about two years and tried many remedies, but got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"When I would wash my face with the Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment it would cool my skin and draw great big drops of matter out of the skin. You would think I was sweating; it would run down my face just as though I had washed it. It itched and smarted and I suffered in the day time most. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for a month and I was cured of it." (Signed) Mrs. J. Brooksher, April 15, 1912.

After Long Suffering

Women Are Constantly Being Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Worth mountains of gold," says one woman. Another says, "I would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all the other medicines for women in the world." Still another writes, "I should like to have the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound thrown on the sky with a searchlight so that all suffering women could read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their ills."

We could fill a newspaper ten times the size of this with such quotations taken from the letters we have received from grateful women whose health has been restored and suffering banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such a universal success? Why has it lived and thrived and kept on doing its glorious work among the sick women of the world for more than 30 years?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has ever approached its success is plainly and simply because there is no other medicine so good for women's ills.

Here are two letters that just came to the writer's desk—only two of thousands, but both tell a comforting story to every suffering woman who will read them—and be guided by them.

FROM MRS. D. H. BROWN.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken 12 bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 North Walnut Street, Iola, Kan.

MRS. WILLIAMS SAYS:

Elkhart, Ind.—"I suffered for 14 years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.—Mrs. Sadie Williams, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Minnesota Legislature

Proceedings at the Minnesota State Capitol for the Past Week.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Capital punishment will again be the penalty for murder if a bill offered by Representative Pless of Sibley county becomes law. Mr. Pless was elected on this issue, defeating George McKinzie who was the author of the law by which capital punishment was abolished two years ago. By the terms of Mr. Pess's bill, if the accused is convicted of murder in the first degree it becomes mandatory on the jury to recommend that he be either executed or sentenced to imprisonment for life.

A Snuff Bill.

Snuff is outlawed in Minnesota by a bill offered by Representative George Reid of Rice county. Its manufacture is prohibited, and its sale except by jobbers who may dispose of it in other states, declared to be a misdemeanor.

Woman suffrage, although already defeated in the senate, is not yet quite dead. A woman suffrage bill, prepared by Representative Sunberg, will be a special order in the house on Thursday next at 11 a. m. The next day the initiative and referendum will come up for consideration and will be before the house until disposed of. It is believed that it will pass without substantial opposition.

Temperance reform is the subject of a large number of bills introduced in both house and senate. The last one, of which Representative Fink is the author, proposes to clamp down the lid at 8 o'clock in the evening and not to lift it again until 7 in the morning.

Vote is Deferred.

Although Mr. Bauck's bill permitting counties to appropriate money to advertise their agricultural resources was on the calendar Saturday, the vote upon it was deferred. Objection was made to it on the ground that it could be manipulated by land sharks to promote selfish ends. The bill provides that county boards may appropriate money for the purpose referred to equal to five cents per capita of the population. The bill, though favored by the various district development associations, appears to have considerable opposition in the house. Representative Frankson contended that the state should appropriate money for advertising purposes only through the immigration bureau.

Senator Works' concurrent resolution urging congress to authorize national banks to make farm loans, thus providing "a new and safe medium for the investor," passed the house and was transmitted to the governor for his signature.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—The senate has gone on record in favor of free lumber, but it hesitated to instruct congress to vote for free sugar. The vote on the latter proposition, which Senator G. D. Sullivan sought to include in Senator Moonan's concurrent resolution for free lumber, was 22 for to 24 against.

Possible Campaign Investigation.

If a resolution offered by Senator Sageng yesterday, but which went over under notice of debate, carries, the senate will make a sweeping investigation into the contributions to and expenditure of campaign funds at the last election.

Senator Sageng also seeks to give the Progressive party legal standing in Minnesota in a bill which defines a political party as one which maintained an organization at the last election and polled at least five per cent of the total vote cast.

To Straighten Chippewa River.

Owing to the nature of its course, the Chippewa river in some parts of Chippewa, Pope and Swift counties overflows bottom lands, causing great damage to farm lands and endangering public health. Senator Froshaug, therefore, proposes that the legislature authorize the drainage commission to straighten the course of the stream and deepen its channel.

Hour of Opening Polls.

The hour of opening the polls on primary and general election day in townships, but not in villages or cities, is changed in Representative Papke's bill, which has passed the house, from 6 a. m. to 9 a. m.

All accidents resulting in the death or injury of employes must be reported to the labor commissioner, except farm accidents, unless these result from the use of corn shredders and threshing machines, according to a bill which passed the house. The terms of the bill when introduced were general, but it was so amended as not to require farmers to report accidents except in connection with dangerous machinery.

October 12 is proposed by Representative Vasaly as a public holiday. It is to be known as Columbus day.

Protest is made against the transfer of national forest reserve to state control in a concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Bendixen which passed the house.

Advertisers are required to confine themselves to the truth in the Nolan bill which has gone to the senate. Fabrications or exagerations are made misdemeanors by it.

Free hog cholera serum is provided for in Representative Verhue's bill which has now reached the calendar. This serum is produced at a laboratory in connection with the college of agriculture. The serum may be administered to their hogs by farmers if the board of veterinary examiners think them competent.

The house meets today for the first time since the legislature convened. The senate, however, adjourned until eleven o'clock Monday.

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—Measures designed to stamp out tuberculosis occupied largely the attention of the senate yesterday. The bill to abolish the common drinking cup, which was passed, is of that character.

Next came up for consideration Senators Frosbaug and Boyle's bill to enable counties to establish and maintain tuberculosis sanitoriums. This bill authorizes the county commissioners of any county or group of counties to decide by resolution to establish a sanitorium and to appoint a local sanitorium commission. Half the expense of building and equipping the sanitorium is to be defrayed by the state, the other half by the county which is authorized to levy a tax not greater than one mill for the purpose.

Construction of Building.

The building is to be constructed under the supervision of the state board of control and provision must be made for not less than 20 beds. In case of indigent patients the state pays half the expense, the county or counties the other half. Before a county sanitorium can be erected, the consent of the advisory commission of the Minnesota sanitorium for consumptives must be secured. The bill was approved and advanced to the calendar. It was stated by Senator Frosbaug that 15 counties would take advantage of the provisions of the bill next year.

Loan Bill Passed.

The house passed the bill for a constitutional amendment authorizing the loan of state school funds on improved farm lands.

Amendments in All Papers.

Representative Bjornson would have the constitutional amendments printed in all the newspapers of the state. In a bill he proposes that the amendments shall be furnished newspapers in stereotype form and that the price be limited to 25 cents an inch, except in the case of papers of 10,000 circulation or over which are to be paid the present legal rates.

A new agricultural substation and experimental farm is proposed by Senator Olson. It is to be located in either Jackson, Nobles, Rock, Pipestone, Murray or Cottonwood county.

A court of recall with power to remove judges convicted of misconduct in office is proposed by Senator G. H. Sullivan of Stillwater.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—Representative Dunn's bill reserving to the state the mineral rights in lands hereafter to be conveyed to railroads under grants in aid of their construction is now up to the governor for signature.

Effect of Measure.

The grant which the bill is designed to affect was made to the Duluth and Iron Range railroad 5,000 acres of which have not yet been selected. It is alleged that the railroad company, which is subsidiary to the United States Steel corporation, is now making borings with a view to selecting lands rich in iron ore, and the bill is intended to prevent the auditor from making the conveyance.

Rocky Road Still.

The road continues to be made rocky for Senator Marden's common drinking cup bill. The objection made to it is that it takes away all authority from local boards of health and vests the exclusive right to say where the common drinking cup may be prohibited in the state board of health. "Authority is always arbitrarily exercised by this board," declared Senator Putnam, "and no consideration is ever given by it to the rights of individuals." Although the bill is now on the calendar it was held over another day for amendment.

Vote for Investments.

In committee of the whole the house recommended for passage by a unanimous vote the constitutional amendment defeated at the last election providing for the investment of the State School fund in improved real estate mortgages.

A third normal school in addition to those already established is now proposed. It is to be located in the village of Windom. The other two suggested are at Thief River Falls and Cass Lake.

Legal Separation Granted.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Paige, who came here to reside about eight years ago, following their marriage in Minneapolis, have separated. The legal papers were signed this week. An announcement of the separation was made following the visit of a Minneapolis attorney. Mr. Paige, at the time of his marriage to the then Mrs. Pillsbury, was the New York representative of the Pillsbury Flour Mills company.

Gates Resigns as Director.

New York, Jan. 30.—Various changes recently made in the directorate of the Republic Iron & Steel company, one of the largest of the independents, have just been made public. Charles G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates; Oakleigh Thorne, ex-president of the Trust Company of America, and Harry Brenner of the banking house of Hallgarten & Co., resigned, to be succeeded by W. T. Graham, until recently president of the American Can company, H. L. Rown and H. C. Hanna.

Senate to Probe Ekern Case.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 1. — Senator Bosshard of LaCrosse has introduced a resolution fixing Feb. 5 for a senate investigation of the removal by Governor McGovern of Insurance Commissioner Herman L. Ekern. The resolution calls for the appearance in person or by counsel of McGovern, Harry C. Wilbur, executive clerk; L. A. Anderson, appointee; and Ekern. A second resolution by Bosshard calls upon the secretary of state to produce all records in the case at the hearing.

Power Combine Alleged.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Charges that a "combination of power companies" controls electric power generated at Niagara Falls, and that the proposed law placing Niagara power under the authority of the secretary of war would perpetuate that combination, were made before the foreign affairs committee by Representative C. B. Smith, of New York. Representatives Smith, Simmons and Levy appeared to oppose the bill. The measure would give to the secretary of war power to issue permits.

"From your druggist get half ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine) and two ounces of Glycerine. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey; shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime." Smaller doses to children according to age. But be sure to get only the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it he will quickly get it. Many mixtures are of large quantity and cheaper, but it is risky to experiment. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain. Infantile Paralysis.

The horrors of infantile paralysis will not be alleviated by the note of Dr. Simon Flexner and two associates, appearing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, that the healthy parents of patients may be carriers of the disease. Dr. Flexner reports that washings from the nasopharynx of the parents of a child suffering from an acute attack were inoculated on October 28 last in a monkey, the Macacus cynomolgus:

"Recovery from the anesthetic was prompt and the animal remained well until November 11, when it was noted to be excitable and to drag the right leg. The left leg proved to be weak. November 12 the right leg was definitely flaccid."

Two days later portions of the spinal cord and medulla "showed typical lesions of experimental poliomyelitis."

When the Peanuts Ran Out.

For two hours an old back countryman, who had never before seen an elephant, had been standing before a row of them in enrapt silence dealing out peanuts one at a time. When the last was gone and no more forthcoming, Jumbo, the largest elephant, reached over and removed the entertainer's hat from his head to the top of a lion's cage nearby.

For the first time in two hours the old man expressed his emotions in words: "You old two-tailed Indian-rubber nuisance you!" he exclaimed indignantly. "If I knew which end your head was on, I'd slap your face."

Natural Effect.

"Woman is a delusion."

"Yes, and it comes natural to hug our delusions."

Friendly Blow.

Louis Brownlow, Washington newspaper man, paused in a drug store in Greensboro, S. C., not so long ago, to ask for a match. While he was there a young colored chap came running in with a big gash the whole length of his skull, and apparently a good deal put out about some accident that had befallen him.

"What's happened to you?" asked Brownlow, excitedly but sympathetically.

"A friend hit me with a hatchet," replied the bleeding stranger.

Made Him Suspicious.

"Did you ask your girl's father for her hand in marriage?" "I did." "And he refused you. I can tell by the way you look." "No, he didn't. He gave his consent." "Then why the peculiar look you are wearing?" "He was so darned willing."—Houston Post.

Addressed to Women

That Backache of Yours

Is one of nature's warnings when all the joy of living has vanished because of trouble peculiar to womankind. Don't disregard this warning. Don't procrastinate. Now is the time to take steps to regain health and strength.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

NO ALCOHOL NO NARCOTICS

Has been recommended for over forty years as a remedy for ailments peculiar to women. Thousands of grateful women have testified to its effectiveness. You, too, will find it beneficial. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health.

This tonic, in liquid form, was devised over 40 years ago for the womanly system, by R.V. Pierce, M. D., and has benefited many thousand women. Now it can also be obtained in tablet form—from dealers in medicine, or send 50 one-cent stamps for a trial box.

Every woman ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children and themselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. Over half a million copies were sold at $1.50 each, but one free copy in cloth covers will be sent on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of wrapping and mailing only. Address

A Case In Kind

"I wrote to you about six months ago for your kind advice in regard to my case," writes Mrs. Lizzie White. "At times I was hardly able to be on my feet. I believe I had every pain and ache a woman could have. Had a very bad case of uterine disease. Ovaries were very much diseased and my back was very weak. I suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, in fact I suffered all over. I followed your directions as closely as I could, and was well pleased with the results. I have taken your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' for about three months and can now say that my health was never better. I can highly recommend Doctor Pierce's remedies to any woman suffering from female disease, and I do recommend them to every one I see. Have induced several to try your wonderful medicines." OLD MAID FOR WISDOM

BEST ADVICE OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS HERS TO GIVE.

Especially About Matrimony, Says One, Is the Married Woman Apt to Be Actuated by Her Own Experiences.

"I don't know what to think," said the college graduate.

"It's the first admission of the kind since you got your diploma," said the old maid.

"What to think about what?" asked the matron just turned thirty. Her mouth was down at the corners, and there was a wrongs-for-women look in her eye.

"About marrying. Dave is beginning to insist on marrying just as I am beginning to see that I have some future ahead if I work life out by myself."

"Don't hesitate a minute," said the matron just turned thirty, and brought her teeth together with a noticeable click. "What can you do better than anything else?"

"I am interested, you know, in celestial mechanics."

"Then go in for it. Go in for anything that has that word celestial in it. It sounds promising. It may lead you into heaven. Marrying won't. There's no use to pretend that it will."

The telephone bell rang then, and while the matron just turned thirty answered it, the other two regarded each other with looks that said that they were astonished at her and commiserative of her. Then her voice at the telephone came on to them in languid cadences: "Why, yes, I suppose I can go. Oh, yes, I suppose I want to. Really? You surprise me. From the way you rushed off this morning I should hardly have thought — Yes, but what made you forget? You have missed— Ye-es, I have, too. You old darling! All right, then, hurry home. I'll be ready."

She came back from the telephone to the two who had listened in conscienceless attention. "Jim and I are going to have a little celebration tonight," she announced shamelessly. "It's our anniversary." She went out of the room then, red but radiant.

"If you really want any advice about marrying," said the old maid, turning upon the college graduate, "you will have to come to us single women. You can't believe anything the married ones tell you. They are here today and there tomorrow. Their conclusions about matrimony rest upon no surer base than whether or not their husbands remembered to kiss them goodby this morning. They haven't any perspective. It takes an old maid to be the president of a congress of mothers, and it takes one to illuminate the subject of matrimony for the young and undecided."

"Turn on your searchlight, then. Let's have the illumination."

"Oh, all that it comes to is that each woman has to decide for herself," said the old maid.

AUTHORS CALLED FROM THEIR MANUSCRIPTS BY DEATH.

Some of the Greatest Have Literally Died "In the Harness"—Nathaniel Hawthorne's Pathetic Forebodings of the End.

Robert Louis Stevenson's story, "Weir of Hermiston," was left a mere fragment. Another romance, "St. Ives," by the same pen, was running in a monthly magazine at the time of Stevenson's death. Here, however, readers were not deprived of a satisfactory ending, for the story was brought to a conclusion by Quiller-Couch.

"I hardly know what to say to the public about this abortive romance, though I pretty well know what the case will be. I shall never finish it," wrote Nathaniel Hawthorne, with reference to "The Dolliver Romance," which he had undertaken to write for a magazine.

This foreboding was soon verified, for Hawthorne had scarcely time to do more than lay down the groundwork of the story and write the initial chapters before he died. At his funeral in Concord the manuscript lay on his coffin. Soon afterward the first chapter appeared in the Atlantic, and subsequently the second chapter, which he had been unable to revise, was published in the same magazine. Several years elapsed and then a third fragment, revised and copied by the novelist's wife, was placed in the publisher's hands. The original manuscript is now preserved in the Concord public library.

Another serial that was being written when its author laid down his pen forever was "Denis Duval." Thackeray, indeed, was already in his grave when its publication commenced. Three parts, and a portion of a fourth were all that appeared, and "the story," wrote the editor, "breaks off as his life ended—full of vigor and blooming with new promise like the apple trees in this month of May." With the fourth part was given a set of notes, taken from Thackeray's own papers, elucidatory of the subsequent development of the plot.

Thackeray's great contemporary, Charles Dickens, also died in harness. For a long time his health had been indifferent, but he stuck unflinchingly to the work he had in hand. On June 8, 1870, he died. The morning and part of the afternoon of that day were devoted to completing the sixth number of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," but scarcely had he finished work and sat down to dinner than he was seized with convulsions. After lingering some hours without regaining consciousness he died at six the same day.

"I shall publish late in this year," wrote Laurence Sterne, "and the next I shall begin a new work in four volumes, which, when finished, I shall continue 'Tristram' with fresh spirit." This new work here referred to is "The Sentimental Journey," one volume alone of which was ever given to the world, nor, by reason of the author's death, was "Tristram Shandy" ever continued.

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even as she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

Feeling for Death.

For a week the self-appointed guide to the blind on their daily walks had noticed that the two men who were her special charges felt carefully of the wall on either side of the door of the asylum when passing in and out. Since she was there to lead them, that precaution seemed not at all necessary, and she finally asked their reason for it.

"I am looking for crape on the door," one old man told her. "They don't like to let us know here in the asylum when any one dies for fear of making us feel bad, but they put crape on the door, and by feeling for it when we pass in and out we can find out for ourselves when one of us has gone."

Pioneer Woman Answers Summons

The angle of death visited the home of Gustav Johnson who resides five miles north of town, in River township, Monday of last week and removed from her earthly labors a noble woman in the person of Mrs. Gustav Johnson. Mrs Johnson suffered an attack of pneumonia about two weeks ago and she became steadily worse and despite a hard fight life had to give vent to the ravages of this dreaded disease.

Mrs. Johnson is one of the pioneers of this section of the state, having moved here with her husband 32 years ago. She was 64 years of age at the time of her death.

Besides her husband she leaves nine children to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate wife and mother, and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to the stricken family in their sad bereavement.

The funeral services took place Tuesday afternoon at the Swedish Lutheran church north of town of which congregation Mrs. Johnson was the oldest member.

The many beautiful floral offerings marked the high esteem in which she was held by her large circle of friends

The Annual Meeting of Local Fire Department Held Last Thursday Night

The annual meeting of the Plummer fire department was held at the hall Thursday evening of last week and officers for the ensuing year were elected and several changes were made in the by-laws. Of these, the most important, is the acceptance of the village's offer to pay $1 per capita for 15 firemen serving at each fire.

The following is the minutes of the meeting:

"Plummer, Feb. 6, '13

Meeting of Plummer Fire Department called to order at 8 o'clock by Chief.

Motion made and seconded that H. J. Enderle be appointed temporary secretary.

Motion made and seconded that J. W. Pahlen be re-elected as chief.

HERE IS THE SECRET

The men of Chicago have suddenly acquired an attractive complexion. The reason for this is, that they are now shaving their faces with the new process, called "the Velvet-Edge Safety Razor Blade Sharpener," which gives that velvety smooth skin to the constant shaver.

You men who use Safety razors and want a velvety skin, shaved with the delicate softness so much desired, with a keen cutting edge, send your dull safety razor blades at once to Chicago and have them sharpened by the newest electrical process, which makes the dull blade cut better than the new, and your old blades are returned to you a perfect new blade.

Don't throw away your old safety razor blades, but send them, to-day, well wrapped, and do not delay it until tomorrow.

Price 30c per dozen for all safety razor blades, which include Gillettes, Ever-Ready Gem, Auto-Strop, Enders, Keen Kutter, and all other makes. Your blades will be returned to you in a few days, charges prepaid. Send coin or money order. No orders accepted under 30c.

Wrap blades securely in a card board box. Do not send them in an ordinary envelope, the blades may cut through and be lost. Include your name and P. O. address on the package.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

EVENTS OF THE DAY HELD TO A FEW LINES.

LATE EVENTS BOILED DOWN

Personal, Political, Foreign and Other Intelligence Interesting to the General Reader.

CONGRESS.

George P. McCabe, solicitor of the Department of Agriculture, has presented to Secretary Wilson his resignation. It has been accepted.

Opponents of the bill to appropriate $2,000,000 for government participation in the Panama-Pacific International exposition practically forestalled action at this session by a filibuster in the house.

The supreme court of the United States held in effect for the first time that the Sherman anti-trust act does not forbid the mere combining of noncompetitors in an industry. The decision was given in the shoe machinery trust case.

President Taft signed the resolution providing for the erection in Washington of a memorial to President Lincoln in Potomac park. The plan approved by congress will require a $2,000,000 appropriation which will be made later.

Federal officeholders and employes who have been solicited to contribute to the national campaign funds are to be summoned as witnesses by the senate campaign expenditures committee when it opens its investigation into the campaign expenses of the general election of 1912.

Modification of the administrative provisions of the tariff law, the free admission of medicines and surgical instruments for hospitals and scientific apparatus for institutions of research and continuance of free admission of numerous raw materials are being urged before the house committee on ways and means.

A constitutional amendment which would restrict the president of the United States to a single term of six years and would bar Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft from again seeking election was approved by the senate by a majority of one vote. After a three-day fight, in which the progressives joined with many republicans in opposing the restricted presidential term, the senate adopted the original Works resolution by a vote of 47 to 23. The measure now goes to the house.

SPORT.

Jack Johnson will meet Al Palzer in Paris on June 25.

The preliminary baseball season has already opened in California.

Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, featherweight champion, outpointed Young Driscoll of Brooklyn in a ten-round bout in New York.

A new rule prohibiting bouts between white persons and negroes, otherwise known as "mixed bouts," has been adopted by the New York State Athletic commission, which controls boxing in that state.

Bombadier Wells, the English heavyweight champion, and Luther McCarty have been matched to box ten rounds in Madison Square Garden, New York, the latter part of March or early in April, according to cable reports from London.

Athletes from Japan and China and other oriental nations, gathering in Manilla for the far eastern Olympic, were welcomed by Governor General William Cameron for the United States. There are sixteen Chinese and sixteen Japanese entered, as well as representatives of Siam and many sections of the Philippine islands.

The organizers of the proposed new Western association to include Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Muskogee, Joplin, Shreveport, Little Rock, Fort Smith and Springfield, will ask Judge Kavanaugh of the Southern league to accept the presidency. An organization meeting will be held early in February.

GENERAL.

Interstate Commerce Commission Pass Inspector Boyd is in Omaha testing the free transportation market.

Elmer Loomis, an Iola, Kan., high school freshman, will suffer permanent loss of his sight as result of hazing.

Edoard Peltier, a high official of the French Department of Justice, has been murdered in his residence in Paris. A woman nurse, who was attending him, was also killed.

Cleveland expects to completely equip its fire department with automobile apparatus.

Every ten days since New Years' a bank president has been sent to jail from Brooklyn by Supreme Court Justice Crane.

A voluntary advance of 10 per cent in wages has been granted to all employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company of New York.

Postmaster General Hitchcock's annual report tentatively suggests reduction of some parcels post rates and increasing the limit of weight beyond eleven pounds.

Members of the house and senate naval affairs committee will leave March 6 on the army transport Sumner for the Panama canal zone to investigate the necessity of barracks for a permanent marine force on the isthmus.

John Dunne, aged 103, died at a hospital in Burlington, Ia. He would have been 104 years old in May. He leaves one daughter 80 years old.

President Taft, "in recognition of his notable effort in behalf of universal peace," will be presented with a gold medal at a peace testimonial and dinner to be given in New York.

Backache Is a Warning

Thousands suffer kidney ills unawares—not knowing that the backache, headaches, and dull, nervous, dizzy, all tired condition are often due to kidney weakness alone.

Anybody who suffers constantly from backache should suspect the kidneys. Some irregularity of the secretions may give just the needed proof.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been curing backache and sick kidneys for over fifty years.

JAKEY'S FAULT VERY SERIOUS

Father Rightly Felt He Could Never Be Captain of Industry Unless He Was Taught to Improve.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs took great pride in their young son son, Jakey. Father was determined to make him a great business man, a veritable captain of industry. One day mother heard loud screams coming from an adjoining room and rushed in to investigate the cause of the trouble. Father was vigorously administering a dose of "strap oil" to the young hopeful.

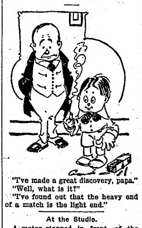
"Ikey! Ikey! Vy for you are licking liddle Jakey?"

"Because I caught him in a lie; dot's vy," replied father, continuing the chastisement.

"A lie? You say a lie?"

"Yes; I vill teach him to lie better as dot eef I haff to break effery bone in hees body."—Exchange.

PARADOXICAL.



"I've made a great discovery, papa."

"Well, what is it?"

"I've found out that the heavy end of a match is the light end."

At the Studio.

A motor stopped in front of the photographer's, and a woman lacking none of the artificial accessories deemed necessary to "looks," entered the studio.

A couple of days later the photographer submitted proofs for her approval.

"Not one of those pictures looks anything like me," the woman insisted.

The photographer tried in every way to pacify her, but finding this an impossibility, lost control of his temper:

"Madam!" he exclaimed, "did you read my sign?"

"Yes."

"Well! It does not say 'cleaning, dyeing and remodeling.' It says 'portraits.'"

More Deadly Than the Gun.

A small country boy was carrying a dead cottontail by the ears.

"Hello, son, did you shoot that rabbit?" inquired a city man who had hunted all day with no success.

"No," sarcastically replied the urchin, "I scolded it and and it died of mortification."

Determined to Be Observed.

"You may announce that I intend to retire to private life," said the industrious statesman.

"What for?"

"It seems to be the only method just now by which I can attract public attention."

A DIFFERENCE.
It Paid This Man to Change Food.

"What is called 'good living' eventually brought me to a condition quite the reverse of good health,' writes a N. Y. merchant.

"Improper eating told on me till my stomach became so weak that food nauseated me, even the lightest and simplest lunch, and I was much depressed after a night of uneasy slumber, unfitting me for business.

"This condition was discouraging, as I could find no way to improve it. Then I saw the advertisement of Grape-Nuts food, and decided to try it, and became delighted with the result.

"For the past three years I have used Grape-Nuts and nothing else for my breakfast and for lunch before retiring. It speedily set my stomach right and I congratulate myself that I have regained my health. There is no greater comfort for a tired man than a lunch of Grape-Nuts. It insures restful sleep, and an awakening in the morning with a feeling of buoyant courage and hopefulness.

"Grape-Nuts has been a boon to my whole family. It has made of our 2-year-old boy, who used to be unable to digest much of anything, a robust, healthy, little rascal weighing 32 pounds. Mankind certainly owes a debt of gratitude to the expert who invented this perfect food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason."

MEXICANS IN REVOLT

MADERO AND CABINET FLEE TO CHAPULTEPEC, IT IS BELIEVED.

CAPITAL IS CAPTURED, ALSO

American Among the Many Civilians Wounded in the Fighting—General Blanquet Hurrying to Give Battle.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The first news of the revolt of the federal army at Mexico City to reach Washington came in a state department dispatch from Noevo Laredo, Mex., Stating that General Reyes had been killed in the attack on the Mexican palace.

Inquiry into the situation brought forth the assurance, however, that it would not influence the present administration to change the policy and that there would be no interference with political affairs of Mexico by this government even should the rebellion proceed to a successful conclusion.

Every precaution, it was said, would be taken to protect lives and property of Americans in Mexico.

President Madero and his ministers have left the national palace. It is believed they have gone to Chapultepec, General Huerta has been left in charge of the loyal force in the palace.

Army in Revolt.

Mexico City.—The army rose in revolt in Mexico City, took possession of the public buildings, shot down federal adherents in the streets, released General Felix Diaz, leader of the Vera Cruz revolt, from prison, and, falling into line under his banner, practically captured the Mexican capital.

President Madero of the republic and members of his cabinet took refuge for a time in the national palace, where they are besieged, but, with loyal troops at their backs succeeded in defending the palace from the assaults of the revolutionists. Madero's family has taken refuge in the Japanese legation.

The president is making a fight desperate in its efforts, against what appears to be enormous odds, for the retention of his power.

General Diaz, who is the nephew of the deposed president Porfirio Diaz, is now at the head of a majority of the capital troops, including most of the artillery, and is in possession of the arsenal of the city and the powder works nearby.

Relies on General Blanquet.

Madero is relying on the loyalty of General Blanquet, who has been summoned from Toluca, 40 miles distant, but Blanquet has only 1,000 men under his command and the rebels are confident of defeating him should he refuse to join the revolt.

The day was marked by four separate engagements, the most sanguinary of which took place in front of the national palace. But the most important was that terminated in the formal surrender of the troops in the artillery barracks.

Not less than 200 persons were killed in the fighting. Among the number was General Benardo Reyes, a strong adherent of Porfirio Diaz and former secertary of war.

The mutinous troops were led by students of the military school at Thalpam, a suburb. They marched to the prison to which General Felix Diaz had been transferred and released him.

General Bernardo Reyes was also freed from Santiago military prison, there being no resistance in either quarter. To the army of the mutineers quickly came portions of the First cavalry, Twenty-fourth cavalry and Twentieth infantry. General Manuel Mondragon, retired, was in command, but gave way to Generals Diaz and Reyes.

Bryan Speaks In Havana.

Havana, Feb. 11.—William Jennings Bryan, who arrived here Saturday, has called on President Gomez. He dined at the American legation later and delivered a lecture.

Congress Swamped with Work.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Congress has reached the "squeezing" stage of the session. Important legislation which has accumulated in the last two years must be crowded into the work of the next three weeks. It is not an unusual situation at the end of a short session, but experience of former years apparently has had little influence on the handling of the big supply measures, there remaining to be considered appropriations for nearly $1,000,000,000 worth of public expenditures.

Railroad Strike Favored.

New York, Feb. 11.—The ballots of the 30,000 firemen employed on 54 eastern railroads, it is announced unofficially, shows that 90 per cent of the men favor an immediate strike unless the conference committee of railroad managers agree to arbitration under the federal Erdman act. President W. S. Carter of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen arrived here and conferred with members of the executive committee which will meet the managers' committee.

A notable housekeeper of the past generation, before the days of screens, had just announced with decision that she never had any flies.

"But, Aunt Augusta," faltered the timid visitor, "it seems to me that I saw a few in the dining-room."

"Oh, those," replied her aunt, with a majestic wave of the hand, "were the neighbors' flies. They will come in occasionally. But I was saying, we never have any of our own."—Youth's Companion.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Hazelton.—Officials are taking drastic action to control the smallpox epidemic. All violations of the quarantine are to be prosecuted.

Dickinson.—At the celebration of a wedding southwest of this city, John Kovash, a 17-year-old boy, was accidentally shot in the head.

Albert Lea.—The Union Supply company and the Central store, leading grocery firms here, will be consolidated under the management of the former.

Dickinson.—Scotchmen of Stark county have perfected an organization and will hold annual sessions. John Leask was made president and R. A. Blair secretary.

Pipestone.—J. S. Oulman, while working with a hay bailing machine on a farm east of here, was caught in the belt and received severe injuries. He will probably recover.

Luverne, Minn.—At a preliminary hearing, Art Canfield, alias "Pawnee Bill," a local character, was bound over to await the action of the grand jury for resisting an officer.

Buhl.—Three Croatians were killed while walking along the tracks of the new Mesaba electric line near Sharon, Minn. The dead are: Javo Nechak, 29; Eli Knezizch, 30; J. Oso Loncar, 23.

Buffalo Lake.—For the first time Buffalo Lake is to vote on liquor license. A petition is being circulated that the license question be voted on at the election on March 11, and is meeting with much favor.

Austin.—Fire destroyed the Fowler and Pay Cement works, south of this city Friday. The loss on stock, machinery and buildings is estimated at $50,000, partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is not known.

Almont.—The compulsory school law was invoked here by Superintendent Lorin, who caused the arrest of Peter Dietz and N. Michel, who had kept their children out of school because of dissatisfaction. Each was fined.

Winona.—The Winona Ministerial association at its fortnightly meeting here unanimously indorsed the bill introduced in the legislature requiring several days to elapse between the application for and issuance of a marriage license.

Jackson.—The council has been petitioned by the Commercial club to have a proposition for bonding the town for $15,000 brought to a vote at the spring election, the money to be used for building a new dam of concrete to furnish power for the city plant.

Pipestone.—When his team became frightened at a passing automobile, Emil Anderson, a farmer, alighted from his buggy to get better control of his horses and, as he reached their heads, dropped dead from heart failure. He was 35 years of age and leaves a family.

Faribault.—Wesley Starks, who was arrested for placing the body of a dead child along the river bank several weeks ago, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail. The only charge that could be brought against him was for a misdemeanor, for which he was given the limit.

Litchfield.—William Lind, proprietor of the restaurant in this city, was arrested on complaint of a deputy in the state dairy and food department, charged with selling oleomargarin without displaying the sign to inform patrons. Mr. Lind admits his guilt, but says he did not understand the law in the matter.

Marshall.—After coming in from recess, Frank Pabian, 11 years of age, attending school at Taunton, this county, sat down in his seat and fell over. Miss Nance Ahern, his teacher, thinking he had fainted, carried him in to the open air and tried to revive him, but he soon died. He was a strong lad, but over exertion at play brought on brain hemorrhage.

Jackson.—The Jackson Commercial club is working on a project to dam the Des Moines river and use the power for street lighting and for commercial purposes. Plans and specifications for the dam and power plant, to cost about $19,000, have been prepared. The Milwaukee road is ready to pay $4,000 for the privilege of using the water. It is proposed to bond the village for $15,000, and the proposition will be submitted at the coming spring election.

Minneapolis, Feb. 7.—Clinton Smith fired the bullet that killed Mrs. Tamar Collins Hanscom Tuesday night in a blind rage when her brother, Ralph Collins, sprang upon him in the hall outside the Collins flat, 1422 West Lake street, he declared in the confession which he gave to County Attorney James Robertson in the office of the chief of police. He had been arrested by Soo line trainmen on the Winnipeg flyer, bound for Minneapolis, having boarded the train at Glenwood, Minn. He had decided to return to the city.

Faribault.—About a year ago farmers living south of here formed a stock shippers' association to ship all their livestock to the packing houses direct and save the stock buyer's profit. The association has shipped twenty-eight cars of stock, for which it received $29,000. The directors of the association are Walter Boynton, B. I. Case, Fred Manke, A. O. Newell and C. S. Reinhart.

Cannon Falls.—Dr. E. B. Hoag of the state board of health visited Cannon Falls on Monday and addressed pupils and parents on the subject of "Hygiene."

Grand Rapids.—D. C. Anderson has begun work on the first flour mill in Itasca county. He is erecting it on his farm at La Prairie river to generate power. It will be a four-roller mill, capable of turning out about 25 barrels a day. The increase in the wheat acreage in this section, Mr. Anderson thinks will make the enterprise profitable.

Luverne.—The Luverne Automobile company closed a well-attended show last night. Cars in all stages of construction were exhibited and demonstrations conducted. Many visitors were here from a distance.

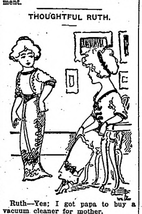
AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF MONEY SPENT BY WESTERN CANADIANS IN WINTER SEASON.

"An unusually large number of Western Canada people are leaving or preparing to leave to spend the Winter in California."

The above item of news was clipped from a Western Canada paper early in December. In the same paper were items of news conveying the intelligence that hundreds of Western Canadians were also taking a trip abroad, spending the Christmas season "at home," as they yet term the old land. The Scandinavian element participated largely in the holiday business of the railroads and the steamships, but they all had return tickets. Early in December the east bound trains and boats were loaded, and an estimate furnished by the railroad people gave upwards of twelve thousand as the number who would make the Christmas holiday visit abroad. This does not mean that these people are leaving to avoid the coldness of the winter, nor for any climatic conditions whatever. They have come out to Canada and have done so well that they can afford the hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars or more that it takes to carry them across and back. When they came to Canada they did not have that much money all told, but now they are wealthy and on their return will bring some of their friends with them.

Then there are those, too, who on their wheat farms have made sufficient money that they can afford to take a holiday, and what better winter holidaying ground could they have than California? How many in other farming districts of the continent could afford the money and the time that these people can?—Advertisement.

THOUGHTFUL RUTH.



Ruth—Yes; I got papa to buy a vacuum cleaner for mother.

Maud—How thoughtful!

Ruth—Yes. Mother is a little stiffened up with rheumatism, you know, and I used to feel so sorry to see her trying to use the broom that I always left home on sweeping day.

Surprise for Mother.

A Chicago school teacher tells with great gusto of the shrewd little "colored brother" who once arrived at school provided with a most unusual excuse for tardiness. "I couldn't help bein' late, please, teacher," he bubbled, shrilly. "Somepin happened to us las' night. My maw, she went ter bed wit a headache, and when she wakes up dis mornin', dere's two little quins (twins) one on each side ob her, and —she don' know nuffin' 'bout 'em tell she wakes up. An' my maw, she so s'prised, she caint get up ter get me ready for school!"

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. Sadie Williams, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Inscriptions in complimentary copies of learned works do not always serve the graceful purpose to which one was dedicated by the celebrated Professor Wilson of Edinburgh.

When the suitor for the hand of Professor Wilson's daughter had gained the young woman's approbation, she of course referred him to her father. Having stated his case, the young gentleman was asked to bid the young lady to come to her father. Her obedience was prompt.

Professor Wilson had before him for review a ponderous volume, on the fly-leaf of which was duly inscribed, "With the author's compliments."

He tore this fly-leaf out, pinned it to his daughter's dress, solemnly led her to the anxious lover—and went back to his work.—Youth's Companion.

AN INDIAN INAUGURAL

Penobscot Tribe Invites College Professor to Ceremony.

Dr. Speck of University of Pennsylvania Danced With Chief—Odd Political System of Maine Warriors and Their Emblematic Flag.

Oldtown, Me.—To be a specially-invited guest at an Indian inaugural ceremony, an active participant in the accompanying festivities, and to dance an Indian "suey" with the chief of the tribe was an honor recently conferred on Dr. Frank G. Speck, professor of anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania. During the Christmas holidays, in response to a special invitation, he attended the biennial inauguration of a new chief of the Penobscot Indians, who live on Indian Island, in the Penobscot river, near Oldtown, Me.

The Penobscot inauguration is the largest and most important ceremony of all those of the northern Indian tribes. It occurs every two years, and is held on January 1 in the town hall of the Indian village. Dr. Speck, in describing the ceremony, said:

"Early in the afternoon the entire tribe, about 500 in number, assembled in the town hall. Upon the platform sat the retiring chief, Horace Nicola; the newly-elected chief, Peter Nicola, and their respective councils. The older men and the officials of the tribe occupied the front seats down on the floor. The children were seated in the extreme rear of the building. I was accorded the honor of sitting with the tribal dignitaries on the front benches. The inauguration consisted of a speech by the retiring chief, welcoming his successor, and a response by the latter. Then the first handed the new chief the symbols of the chief executive's office, which consists of a peace medal given to the Penobscots in 1870 by Andrew Jackson. Following this the new chief and his council were presented to the tribe by his predecessor. Throughout the entire ceremony there was the greatest dignity, which made it all very impressive.

"The inauguration occupied the entire afternoon. In the evening came the inaugural dance in the town hall. This was the big event of the day. The whole tribe turned out, dressed in their best. The forepart of the evening was devoted to the inaugural dance, which is a slow, shuffling walk. The chief beats time with a huge rattle and sings long chants, the choruses of which are sung by the tribe. The more dignified Penobscots formed one band of dancers and merely shuffled their feet, but the younger and boisterous braves and squaws took great delight in stamping loudly and making all the noise possible. I danced around with the new chief. Facing each other, we slowly circled about the room, keeping time to the shaking of the rattle.

Retiring Chief Peter Nikola.

"When this was finished a big feast was served upstairs, and then the dancing was resumed. But this time the American dances were danced and the music was furnished by an excellent Indian orchestra."

HAS DOG, CAT, BIRD PROBLEM

Kansas City Officer Expected to Keep Them From Want—Investment of $200.

Kansas City, Mo.—How to invest $200 so that it may yield an annuity large enough to make life easy for two dogs, two cats and a parrot is a problem in finance that is worrying Samuel B. Strother, public administrator. The death recently of Mrs. Anna Smith, a widow, survived by the five pets, left this problem on the administrator's hands. Mrs. Smith lived alone and had no relatives in Kansas City.

The woman's heirs were notified that the small amount of money represented the estate. Mr. Strother received word from the heirs asking him to use the money in complying with the request made by Mrs. Smith that her pets be cared for after her death.

Brigham, who had been ill for a long time, was found apparently dead by his family. After spending two hours trying to arouse him, they summoned an undertaker without first calling a physician.

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods, they do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. Price 25 cents. All Druggists.

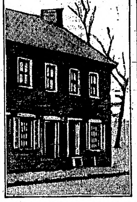
BOX 431, NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

HAS LIVED UNDER 3 FLAGS

Cumberland County Had Many Famous Inns—Rendezvous During Revolutionary War for Troops.

Philadelphia, Pa.—With skeletons of once historic taverns being razed every year, Cumberland county, Pa., during the early colonial days famous for its inns, is gradually losing landmarks that have contributed largely to the making of the history of this country. Buildings that early in the eighteenth century played an important part in the events that led to the formation of the Republic, are today but memories or are rapidly passing into oblivion.

Cumberland county is unique in its history, having the distinction of living under three flags—the British, the American and the Confederate—and during the Revolutionary War. Carlisle, its county seat, was a popular rendezvous for American troops and war strategists, a center around which revolved much of the theater of action of the colonial and revolutionary periods.



Old Thimble Tavern, Carlisle.

The early tavern was first designated as an ordinary and consideration for the welfare of travelers and a desire to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors seemed important enough reasons in the early Puritan days to enforce the opening of some kind of public house in each community. In 1656 the General Court of Massachusetts made towns liable to a fine for not sustaining an ordinary. In those days great inducements were offered to persons to keep an ordinary; land was granted, or pasture for their cattle or exemption from church rates or school taxes.

By the close of the seventeenth century the word ordinary was passing into disuse in America, for the public houses had multiplied vastly and had become taverns. The first license law passed in Pennsylvania was on November 27, 1700, and besides imposing upon the tavern-keeper the duty of preserving good order about his house, provided that all such tavern-keepers or persons selling liquor, should keep good entertainment for man and horse under the penalty of forfeiting 40 shillings for the use of the commonwealth.

Near the southwest corner of North and East streets, Carlisle, Thomas Trimble built a tavern that is still standing, and during the colonial days was known as an aristocratic public place, owing to the fact that it was near the garrison and many army officers frequented it. Another tavern in Carlisle prominent during the revolutionary period gained distinction because in it were entertained Major Andre and Lieutenant Despard, who were captured by General Montgomery and brought to Cumberland county, where they were placed on a parole of honor of six miles, but were prohibited from going out of town except in military attire. This house was located at the corner of South Hanover street and Locust alley.

NOVEL SEXTUPLE WEDDING

Runaway Which Occurred Three Years Ago in Illinois Starts Triple Romance.

Sterling, Ill.—A romance which began with a runaway, two years ago, has culminated in this part of the state. Three sisters, Mary, Anna F. and Jennie Lawrie, were married to three brothers, Henry, John and Joseph Genuel, at the home of the brides' father, Frederick Lawrie, former supervisor of Manlius township.

Two years ago John Genuel, who is engaged in the poultry business, was driving through the country when he saw a runaway coming down the road, a frightened young woman holding to the reins and striving to check the horse.

Genuel leaped out and stopped the horse. The girl was Annette Lawrie. Genuel offered to escort her home, where he met her sisters. A few days later he chanced to be near the Lawrie home in company with his brothers, who are associated with him in business, and took the opportunity of stopping and introducing them. It was a case of love at first sight.

The brothers are, respectively, thirty-two, twenty-seven and twenty-eight years old; the sisters are twenty-six, twenty-two and eighteen.

TO WEIGH WRITER'S BRAIN

Grandson of Noted Mathematician, Gauss, Dies in Denver, Colo., and Leaves Odd Request.

Denver, Colo.—Twelve hours after the death of his brother, Charles H. Gauss of St. Charles, Mo., from heart disease, Robert W. Gauss, grandson of the renowned German mathematician, Paul F. Gauss, and for 28 years editorial writer for the Denver Republican, died here from the same disease. He was found dead in his bed.

Gauss left a request that his brain be preserved, weighed, analyzed and compared with that of his famous grandfather. The mathematician's brain at the time of his death weighed 1,492 grams, or 52⅔ ounces avoirdupois.

BUT SHE DID NOT VISIT HIM

Little Chance That Voice-Culture Student Attempted to Gratify Old Gentleman's Friend.

Patiently the old gentleman had been sitting through the ordeal of hearing the voice-culture student in the hall bedroom below practicing with a zeal which left no room for criticism, but with a talent by no means so kindly described.

Finally, he crept down the stairs and rapped at the door of the young woman's room.

"I can't come in," he said in response to an invitation, "but I simply came to tell you of a friend of mine who would, I know, be willing to pay almost any amount of money to hear you sing."

Overwhelmed with joy the young woman begged the kind old gentleman to write his friend's name and address on a piece of paper.

When he had gone upstairs she looked at the slip of paper which he had handed back to her inscribed and neatly folded. It read: "John W. Jones, Asylum for the Deaf."

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

As to the Wedding Garb.

Colonel Watterson occasionally turns his attention from dressing down candidates to dressing up inquiring correspondents. Listen to this advice from the Louisville Courier-Journal:

This can be considered good advice, founded on observation—and experience, even if it is a little pessimistic. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Evening Matters Up.

Mrs. Marsh took a bite of the cake, and laid it down hastily.

Are You Subject to Constipation

Here is a Simple Way of Correcting it Instantly Before it Becomes Chronic.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

HAVE SEA SERPENT AT LAST

Hideous-Looking Monster of the Deep Reported Captured Alive by Fishermen of Messina.

According to the Messina correspondent of the Courriere di Milan, the inevitable sea serpent has at last been captured alive by fishermen while it was heading along the shore in the wake of an English yacht.

The correspondent, however, has not personally seen the monster, although he states that he is on his way up the coast to do so. Meanwhile, he makes the facetious remark that from the detailed descriptions which he has received English tourists in Italy may favor the view that it may possibly be Sir Rider Haggard's East Anglian sea serpent taking a holiday in a warmer clime.

These details proclaim that the terrified fisherfolk at Tremestieri found the monster caught in their nets one morning, and after infinite trouble succeeded in landing him. "This enormous and horrible denizen of the deep weighs, it is estimated, about 600 pounds, has a prominent back, measures nine feet eight inches across the body, which is taller than a man, and terminates in a tail of even greater length, which is long and curled up like that of a pig."

Its average thickness is about twenty inches, its head seems to be formed of two huge earlike fins set some four inches aptrt, in the midst of which are its eyes. It has a rectangular mouth four inches wide, while along under its body are half a dozen apertures evidently used for breathing purposes. The skin is said to be fine and soft, and the color of that of human beings, "although marked here and there by mole-like spots."

The Messina correspondent seriously adds that a number of scientific experts have hurried to the spot and are absolutely dumbfounded and quite unable to classify the creature, which is kept alive in a small inlet on the beach of Tremestieri by the entrance being staked off.

Order Limiting Time to File Claims, and for Hearing Thereon.

Estate of Ole Swenson, decedent

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole Swenson, Decedent.

Letters of Administration this day having been granted to W. B. Torgerson

It is Ordered, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday, the Eighth day of August, 1913, at 2 o'clock p. m., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls, in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in Plummer Pioneer, a legal newspaper of said Red Lake County, as provided by law for three successive weeks.

Dated February 4th, 1913.

(Probate Court Seal) Joseph Perrault, Judge of Probate.

STRICT AS TO DIVORCE

NORWEGIAN LAWS PROMISE TO SOLVE A PROBLEM.

Recognize Incompatability of Temperament, but Are Not in Haste to Act Upon It—Children, and Division of Property.

A Norwegian woman, Fru Ella Anker, a leader of the feminist movement in Norway, announces that the divorce problem is solved in her country. The law is new as yet, having been framed in 1910, but so far it has worked well and is of promise.

The Norwegian law is based on the principle that the only moral basis of marriage is a mutual love. When this ceases and the parties are convinced they can no longer live together happily, the law steps in and provides for divorce. The first step is admission to separation. No divorce is granted under a year after separation is asked for. This is the stated period when both parties ask for divorce on grounds that intimate mutual good will no longer exists and reconciliation is impossible. If only one party asks for divorce the period of separation is two years.

The proceedings are largely in the hands of the administrative officials, and do not ordinarily get into court. When a couple decide they wish to be divorced they appear before a magistrate and ask for "an order." They then go to the "Conciliation Board," whose business it is to examine into the case and if possible bring about a reconciliation. Finding this impossible, they are granted an order of separation, for one year or two, as above, at the end of which period, if either demands it, the decree of divorce is granted. The administrative officials investigate the charges, settle the financial question and arrange as to the care of children. The cost is very slight, from $1 to $25, no lawyers being necessary.

After divorce, the common property is divided equally between husband and wife. Usually the husband is called on to contribute to the support of his wife. If the divorce is caused by her conduct he can be excused from this duty; if she marries again he is also excused. The magistrate fixes the amount of the levy and collects his contribution. When a Norwegian husband dies or is divorced his wife can claim half of his possessions. He cannot give away more than one-third of his property without her consent, whereas she has a right to all she earns after her marriage.

Children are regarded as a mutual obligation and both parents must aid in their support. No fixed rules are laid down, the circumstances deciding the case according to the view of the magistrate. The parents may decide upon a plan, subject to the magistrate's approval. If they cannot agree the minister of justice settles the matter.

True Love.

The course of true love never did and never can run smooth. If it did it wouldn't be true love. The single certain sine qua non of true love is it shall not run smooth. For such is the constitution of human beings.

When people set out to be friendly and congenial they can succeed only by keeping up a gentle hostility. Consider the average evening call. How tiresome it is until some one starts an argument or a game of cards is proposed. That accounts for the popularity of games. They furnish a sham and innocuous hostility without which society with one's fellows is deadly. Men and women can be happy together for days at a time if they are contending at golf, at tennis, at cards or at other games.

People who can sit around drawing rooms or verandas and chat agreeably are degenerate. They have lost their spirit and might as well be dead.—Ellis O. Jones, in Lippincott's.

Learn Composition From Love Letters

Dr. Arthur Holmes, who advocates the exchange of love letters between students as a means of acquiring the art of composition, might point to Samuel Richardson as a proof of the efficacy of his method. Richardson began by acting as scribe for a number of young women, for whose correspondence with their sweethearts he frequently supplied not only the words, but the sentiments. His reputation for this kind of composition led a firm of printers to propose that he should prepare a "complete letter writer" for the use of "those country readers who cannot indite for themselves." Two or three of the epistles written for this purpose suggested a separate story, "and thence," in Richardson's own phrase, "sprang Pamela."

Friendship in Business.

The salesman who was formerly intent on getting orders by means of the "happy days" system of cigars and drinks now courts the friendship of his customer on utilitarian lines. He tries to make suggestions that will be of use. He essays an idea or drops a piece of news, intended to do the customer some good. Not infrequently an expert salesman will study the methods of a customer, and even the methods in use in his establishment, before approaching him, so as to be in a position to talk intelligently on his needs, and perhaps spring a new idea that will attract attention. Then the customer is liable to be indebted to him in a friendly way, which is the better way of securing a man's business and holding it.

Egging Him On.

She—It must be a hard blow to a man to be rejected by a woman.

He—Indeed it must.

She—Do you know, I don't think I could ever have the heart to do it.—Hartford Times.

Briefly Told Happenings of the Past Week

Washington

The United States senate passed the army appropriation bill. It carries an expenditure of $94,500,000.

• • •

Hesitating almost to the very last minute of the time allowed for action on his part, President Taft vetoed the Dillingham-Burnett bill to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States, embodying a provision for a rigid literacy test upon all foreigners seeking to enter the United States.

• • •

The house and senate in joint session counted the electoral votes of the several states and declared Wilson and Marshall elected president and vice-president.

• • •

The friends of the navy in the house of representatives was their initial victory when the committee on naval affairs by a vote of 14 to 7 decided to recommend two new battleships in the naval appropriation bill.

• • •

Following a hurriedly called cabinet meeting at the White House, President Taft gave out a statement saying that, while he was opposed to intervention in Mexico, he believed it expedient to prepare for the worst, and had therefore ordered two transports loaded with troops for service in Mexico, if needed, and six warships to proceed at once.

• • •

The house at Washington passed the agricultural appropriation bill and the Military academy appropriation bill, and voted the Pujo money trust investigating committee $35,000 additional to defray the expenses of the investigation.

• • •

Domestic

Following a collision in a fog, the steamers Seminole and Cochran sank in San Francisco bay. Coolness and bravery of the officers and crews saved fifty passengers on the Seminole and sixty-two on the Cochran. Twenty-five thousand dollars in silver bullion sank with the Cochran.

• • •

Nine hours of battling in the Montana house at Helena to deprive the speaker of the right to name the house members of the steering committee culminated in a fist fight between Senator Fred Whiteside of Flathead, who has been active on the floor, and Representative Lovelace of Park county, one of the leaders of the majority, which sought to shear the speaker of his power.

• • •

The big universities of the east are yielding place to the western universities in research work, according to Prof. Josiah H. Pennyman, vice-provost of the University of Pennsylvania, who delivered a lecture before a Washington educational institution.

• • •

Samuel Rauen, the first man to be hanged in the District of Columbia during the administration of President Taft, went to his death in Washington. He was convicted of wife murder. President Taft declined to interfere.

• • •

"Guilty as charged in all three counts of the indictment" was the verdict returned in Cincinnati in the case of John H. Patterson and the twenty-eight other officials and former officials of the National Cash Register company, who were charged by the government with violating the criminal section of the Sherman anti-trust act.

• • •

The New Jersey senate passed the main measure of Governor Wilson's seven anti-trust bills by a vote of 14 to 7. The measure passed defines trusts and prohibits agreements for the purpose of promoting a monopoly. It provides a penalty of a fine and imprisonment.

• • •

Col. William Seymour Edwards, candidate for United States senator from West Virginia, was arrested at Charleston on a warrant charged with bribing Delegate John M. Smith. The warrant was issued at the instance of Delegate S. U. G. Rhodes, one of the five men previously arrested.

• • •

Men and corporations forming the so-called bathtub trust were convicted of criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust law by the verdict returned by the jury in the United States district court in Detroit.

• • •

The superdreadnought Texas, the next battleship to be turned over to the navy for the builders, is 85 per cent. complete and if work on the ship continues the rate set during the last year the Texas should be finished in June.

• • •

Convinced that the two fires that destroyed more than $12,000 worth of property belonging to the department of agriculture, Washington, were of incendiary origin, detectives have been put to work in the hope of uncovering the identity of the firebug.

By a vote of 180 to 37 the lower house of the Minnesota legislature adopted the suffrage measure introduced by Representative A. S. Larson of Sandstone, which gives to the male voters of the state the right to determine whether women shall vote.

Robert Webb, outlaw and murderer, of whom Chicago has said for nearly a month, "He'll never be taken alive," is a prisoner today in a cell at the detective bureau. With six shots from his revolver, all it contained, he tried to retain his liberty at the price of another detective. This man, William O'Connor of Captain Halpin's headquarters' staff, fired shot for shot in a street duel with the cornered bandit, and when neither had another bullet left, O'Connor grappled with Webb and snapped manacles on his wrists.

• • •

Several hundred suffragists started on a march from New York to Washington, expecting to reach the latter city on March 1. They are led by "General" Rosalie Jones.

• • •

Scenes from the life of Christ will be shown in all St. Paul motion picture houses during the week preceding Easter. The slides will be furnished by the Social Service church, which is behind a movement to lift the moral standard of pictures.

• • •

Sensational charges are contained in a civil anti-trust suit for the dissolution of the Cleveland Stone company and its subsidiaries, filed in Cleveland by order of Attorney General Wickersham. The Cleveland Stone company, its subsidiaries and their officers and directors, are made defendants by the government's petition in equity.

• • •

An application for pardon was made by Charles R. Heike, convicted of complicity in the sugar weighing frauds in New York and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Heike is sixty-five years old and basis his application for pardon on the impaired condition of his health.

• • •

Kindness to animals is neither "charity" nor "benevolence," according to a ruling by the New York surrogate court, which apparently bars the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from the educational, charitable or benevolent classe under which it sought exemption from taxes.

• • •

Foreign

The Terra Nova, the vessel which took Capt. Robert F. Scott to the antarctic region on his way to the south pole, and which returned thither to bring him back, but instead brought news of the heroic death of himself and companions, has arrived at Christchurch, New Zealand, with the survivors of the ill-fated expedition.

• • •

Franz Schuhmeier, a member of the lower house of the Austrian parliament and a Socialist leader, was assassinated in Vienna by the Christian Socialist and labor leader, Paul Kunschak.

• • •

Martin Berolzheimer, who was American vice-consul at Vienan from 1895 to 1897, committed suicide there by shooting. Mr. Berolzheimer recently had been ill and suffered from insomnia. His illness, it is believed, prompted his act.

• • •

Mexican Revolt

Madero has abdicated. After six days of terrific fighting in the streets of Mexico City—after the loss of approximately 4,000 people—the president who won his place by revolt has yielded to revolt. Francisco De la Barra, former provisional president, will assume the reins of government.

• • •

Two American women, Mrs. H. W. Holmes, wife of an employe of Dun's agency, and Mrs. Percy Griffiths, were among the hundreds killed in the fighting in Mexico City between federal and rebel forces.

• • •

Rioting in Chihuahua City, Mexico, capital of the state of the same name, has continued since that city first received the news Diaz had risen against Madero in Mexico City.

• • •

Balkan War

It is understood that the ambassadors in London have agreed that the Turkish porte's note does not form a basis for the reopening of the peace negotiaions.

• • •

The Bulair battle will go down into history as one of the most bloody engagements of the Balkan war. A total of 15,500 casualties was suffered by the Turks in the disaster of the third day when they fled in panic to the ships in Charkeui harbor.

• • •

The Turkish government formally requested Sir Edward Grey to invite the European powers to intervene to stop the Balkan war. The request was communicated to the ambassadors, who transmitted it to their governments.

• • •

Personal

President-elect Wilson announced that he will resign the governorship to take effect March 1, or as soon thereafter as his successor, James F. Fielder, now speaker of the senate, shall be sworn into office.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—Woman suffrage and county option both went down to defeat in the legislature yesterday. The last rites of each of these measures so far as this legislature is concerned were accompanied by more or less of the spectacular. Suffrage lost, 31 to 25, and option, 59 to 59.

No one expected suffrage to show her head in the senate yesterday. According to schedule, the senate was to set a day for the hearing, the women were to come in fascinating dresses and generally gay apparel, everybody was to make a speech and suffrage was to live or die.

Mr. Sullivan's Coup.

But instead, the only women present were a few stenographers who came scurrying in at the first alarm. It was George Sullivan, of Stillwater, who sprung the coup which resulted in the untimely end of suffrage.

When the clerk notified the senate that the suffrage bill passed by the house had reached the senate he looked up to hear a motion that the bill be heard on some certain date. Instead, Mr. Sullivan moved that the senate reject the bill. He based his motion on the fact that the senate voted down a similar bill at this session.

The senate—all but those who were in on the coup—was paralyzed. Ole Sageng objected and floundered. Finally he put a temporary stop to this murderous intent by insisting that the entire senate be called in, several being absent at the time.

This served only to postpone for a few hours the killing of the fondest hopes of the suffragists of the state and adding a little glamour to the occasion.

Motion About Noon.

Mr. Sullivan's motion was made at about noon. No one had had lunch and all senators then present were compelled to stand by until the absentees could be corralled. Two of them were in Minneapolis and pages were sent out to scurry around everywhere for them. The pages fell down on the job.

Hunger finally got the better of the senators and late in the afternoon the call for a full senate was lifted and a parliamentarian battle resulted in defeat of suffrage at every turn of the play.

Anti-Treating Measure.

That cry of "See what the boys want," or "What's yours, old scout?" will be a thing of the past if the anti-treating bill now before the senate passes. It may get by at that.

Before the two houses of the Minnesota legislature are bills of every kind and description calculated to put liquor out of business, and the anti-treating bill is one of them. That it will be recommended to pass, as far as the house committee on temperance is concerned, is almost certain, because it has pushed out practically everything given to the committee for consideration. In the language of those who have appeared before it in opposition to various anti-liquor measures it is "air-tight."

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—After making an unannounced visit to the girls' training school at Sauk Center, a committee made up members of the senate finance and the house appropriations committee, returned yesterday with the report that there had been much extravagance in building. The legislators had nothing but praise for the work done for the girls and the plans as being carried out. Their one objection is to the amount of money spent for the various cottages. In the party were Senators Clague, McCrath, Marden, C. D. Cook and Representatives Davis and Peterson.

Electroduction Measure Introduced.

Capital punishment, with electrocution instead of hanging as the penalty for murder in the first degree, is the provision set forth in a bill introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Manley Fosseen of Minneapolis.

The bill provides that any one convicted of murder in the first degree shall be put to death unless the jury in its verdict recommends that the sentence be made life imprisonment.

A number of bills dealing with the restoration of capital punishment have been introduced. They invariably provide that the jury shall say one way or the other what the punishment shall be. Senator Fosseen would invoke the death penalty in all cases except where the jury recommends otherwise.

Tonnage Tax Argued.

A delegation of northern Minnesota business men argued against the passage of the Bjorge-Frankson tonnage tax bill before the house committee on taxes last night.

G. G. Hartley of Duluth made the principal argument against the bill, declaring that if passed it would not accomplish the end claimed for it, and that under the present system of taxation, the northern Minnesota steel properties were paying a fair and just tax.

It was the last public hearing before the house members. Next Tuesday the bill will be considered on a special order.

More Grain Evidence.

G. F. Ewe, vice president of the Van Dusen-Harrington company, proved a tartar for the house grain inspection investigating committee before whom he testified yesterday. Not only did James Manahan, attorney for the committee, fail to gain any facts to substantiate the claim of sharp practices in the business of the Chamber of Commerce, but Mr. Ewe cleared up several charges which have been made before the committee.

Mr. Ewe cleared up one point in particular which has been troubling the committee members, namely that elevator companies sold more No. 1 northern wheat than they bought.

"But," he explained, "we purchased the No. 1 wheat at a premium, which means that it was slightly above the grade. Then we treated and cleaned the lower grade wheat and even after mixing the two, it still retained the high grade. Its quality still would allow it the same grade that it had when it entered the elevators."

Good Roads Recommended.

R. C. Dunn's good roads bill, destined to revolutionize the state's system of building roads, was recommended for passage by the house committe on roads and bridges yesterday by unanimous vote. The report of the committee asks that the measure be made a special order for next Thursday.

Raising of a good roads fund, reaching $1,600,000 a year under the present property valuation, to be divided nearly equally among the 86 counties of the state, is promised if the measure becomes a law.

St. Paul, Feb. 12.—Woman's suffrage won in the House yesterday by a vote of 80 to 37. By this vote the House passed the bill introduced by A. S. Larson of Pine county, providing for the submitting at the next election of a constitutional amendment giving women the ballot. It will now go to the Senate where a similar bill was defeated two weeks ago.

Up to Senate Now.

Senator Ole Sageng, sponsor for the woman suffrage bill in the house, said that he hopes that the senate will reconsider its action and pass the bill.

Recall Bill Passed.

The Senate today, by a vote of 52 to 9, passed Senator John Moonan's bill proposing a constitutional amendment permitting the recall of all officials in the state, elective as well as appointive, including judges. The principal fight was over an amendment prepared by Senator G. H. Wilson of Minneapolis, eliminating judges, but this was defeated by a vote of 38 to 22.

The bill as passed permits an election on the question of recalling any official, upon the petition of 20 per cent of the voters of the territory the official serves. The vote is to be only on the question of recalling the official and not on his successor, but the vacancy is to be filled in the usual manner provided by law for filling vacancies whether by appointment or a special election. Petitions are not to be circulated but must be left in public places designated by law where they may be signed. No petition for the recall of a judge shall be circulated within sixty days of the decision or ruling complained of.

Problem in Distance Tariff.

"The state Senate knows just as much as we do about the effect of the Cashman bill," said Railroad Commissioner C. F. Staples. "It is impossible for us to say what schedule of rates would be adopted under this bill. There has been no investigation of rates in this state for six years. We cannot assume that the Iowa distance tariff would be put into effect. Some of its rates are lower than those of the 1907 law, which is now in the courts."

The railroad commission yesterday took up consideration of the G. H. Sullivan resolution, transmitted to it from the senate yesterday, asking the commission to inform the senate what would be the effect of the bill on rates in Minnesota and likewise on industries. The commission will reply to the resolution in a day or two, but it is doubtful whether it will attempt to give any detailed information as to the effect of the bill.

Oppose Liquor at Capitol.

The Minnesota house of representatives went on record yesterday as opposed to the dispensing of intoxicating liquor in the state capitol building. Hereafter at governor's inaugural receptions or other social functions, if liquor is dispensed it will be with the disapprova, of the 1913 house.

Renews Treaty With France.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary Knox and Ambassador Jusserand yesterday signed a convention to extend for another period of five years the arbitration treaty between the United States and France which will expire March 12. This is similar to the British arbitration-convention, which expires by limitation June 4, and which it was proposed to replace by the general arbitration treaty now awaiting exchange of ratification.

National League Schedule.

New York, Feb. 14.—With the adoption of the playing schedule for 1913 the club owners and representatives of the National League ended one of the shortest and most peaceful sessions in the history of that baseball organization. According to the statement by Secretary Heydler at the close of the meeting there was not a ripple of discord heard during the discussion of business. The schedule calls for 154 games, the season opening with one exception on April 10 and ending Oct. 5.

Well Unearthed in Subway.

New York, Feb. 15.—One of the six wells which the Dutch burgomaster authorized as New York city's first water supply may be the one unearthed by subway builders near Wall street and Trinity church. The well, four feet in diameter, was lined with stones. Near it was the wall of some ancient building bearing a faint trace of whitewash, and two skeletons which it is believed may be of British soldiers.

World Police for Mexico.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Developments of a world police, such as was begun in avoiding internal war in China, to be utilized by nations in policing the Republic of Mexico has been suggested in resolutions adopted by the Washington Peace society. The plan, which will be submitted to President Taft, President-elect Wilson and others, with the request that other nations be asked to co-operate, would bring about action by combined foreign interests in Mexico to insure settlement of that republic's affairs.

RESUME FIGHT AGAIN

ARMIES BEGIN BATTLE TO THE FINISH WITH RENEWED FIERCENESS.

HAD MADE A 24-HOUR TRUCE

Federal Army, Back in Position, Begins Bombardment of Rebels—President Madero to See War Through.

Mexico City, Feb. 18.—Hostilities have been resumed with renewed fierceness in the Mexican capital, after a truce which lasted only a few hours.

Armistice Soon Broken.

The armistice, signed at 2 o'clock Sunday by the representatives of both sides, agreeing to suspend operations for 24 hours, was broken after a few hours. Soon the sound of heavy cannonading and the whirr of machine guns anounced the return of the federal troops to their posts in front of the arsenal.

It appears as if the words of Madero and Diaz might prove prophetic and that this time the battle would be to a finish.

Reiterates Refusal.

President Madero has reiterated his refusal to comply with the suggestion of the senators that he resign. He declared that he was still able to dominate and that, if given time, he would crush the rebel forces.

General Diaz had not shown himself to be greatly in favor of the armistice, but consented to it out of respect for the efforts of the American ambassador and the ministers of the powers to bring about a cessation of hostilities until foreigners and other non-combatants still within the zone of the fighting, could be removed to a position of comparative safety.

Diaz regarded the truce as merely a delay in the accomplishment of his fixed purpose to drive Madero out of the presidency.

Favorable to Rebels.

The fighting Saturday undoubtedly went in favor of the rebels, who resisted all assaults against them, received into their ranks several hundred federal deserters, and obliged the federal commanders to admit that, for the present at least, the rebel position was impregnable.

General Huerta, the commander of the government troops, a hard fighter, who has been through many campaigns, also was opposed to the armistice, and chafed under the terms which it imposed upon him. Nor did he willingly agree to the sending of a large body of his forces back to the federal base near the national palace.

Exasperating Attitude.

President Madero's attitude was one of exasperation, but as he had requested the American government to withhold intervention, he could do no less than consent to an armistice, when the question was submitted directly to him. But he let it be known, without equivocation, that he was determined to retain the presidency.

The American ambassador and the German minister called upon the president and upon General Huerta and asked that the military dispositions of the government forces should be so arranged as to render unnecessary the firing over the residential quarter, that a free zone be fixed and that the government unite with the American committee in the establishment of centers for the distribution of food to the poor this having already been agreed to by General Diaz, provisionally.

$50,000 Fire in Zion City.

Zion City, Ill., Feb. 17.—The anti-tobacco law of Zion City, one of the sternest ordinances of the Zionist creed, was violated here at the cost of a $50,000 fire. Two boys smoking cigarettes set fire to a pile of shavings beside the flour mill and the structure was destroyed. Wilbur Glenn Voliva, successor to John Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, was preaching in the tabernacle when the fire started. He ordered every man in the congregation to the fire, but all the hydrants were frozen and there was nothing to do but watch the costly blaze.

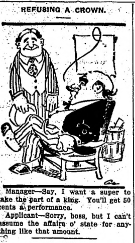
Alderman Had Long Record.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Alderman John J. Brennan died here, 63 years of age, and 32 years a member of the council. Mr. Brennan was serving his eleventh consecutive term. Attacks from various organizations and even a sentence to the house of correction on the charge of election frauds failed to shake his hold on the Eighteenth ward. Brennan was sentenced to serve two years by Judge Gary, but the appellate court reversed the decision after the alderman had served two and a half months.

Silent Shooting of Murderers.

Reno, Nev., Feb. 17.—Warden George Cowing, of the Nevada state penitentiary has solved the problem of executing murderers by shooting without requiring men to shoot down the condemned man in cold blood. Cowing has just received three maxim silencers, three specially constructed rifles and equipment for a steel cage. The condemned murderer will sit inside the cage on which are trained the three rifles to which have been attached the maxim silencers.

REFUSING A CROWN.



Manager—Say, I want a super to take the part of a king. You'll get 50 cents a performance.

Applicant—Sorry, boss, but I can't assume the affairs o' state for anything like that amount.

IT'S HARD TO WORK

It's torture to work with a lame, aching back. Get rid of it. Attack the cause. Probably it's weak kidneys.

Heavy or confining work is hard on the kidneys, anyway, and once the kidneys become inflamed and congested, the trouble keeps getting worse.

The danger of running into gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease is serious. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for backache or bad kidneys.

A Washington Case

H. R. Hatch, 2516 Cedar St., Everett, Wash., says: "Severe pains in my back made me miserable. The kidney secretions burned in passing. My back got so bad I could hardly work. After specialists failed Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me."

British Seamen's Thrift.

For the years 1855 to 1912 the number of British seamen's money orders issued at ports in the United Kingdom and abroad was 3,365,489, of the value of over £19,000,000. On March 31 last, only 742 of these orders remained unpaid, their value being £7,060. The total amount of seamen's wages transmitted home between 1878 and 1912 was £5,550,000, and the amount transmitted foreign between 1894 and 1912 was £1,000,000.—"Shipping" Illustrated.

EARNEST ADVICE

However painful, however stubborn your rheumatism may be, even if the disease is of long standing and many remedies have failed, do not despair, but give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. The rheumatic poison is in the blood and it defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. Rubbing something on your skin will not drive it out. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills attack the disease at its root, in the blood, and rheumatism cured in this way stays cured.

HOW MRS. BROWN SUFFERED

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 N. Walnut St., Iola, Kan.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"Well, it's all right if you come through, but if you don't she favors a suit for breach of promise."

What They Trusted.

Having ascertained his weight on the railway station weighing machine the man said to the porter:

"Isn't it a lack of business foresight to put one of those machines that distribute prizes to persons who guess their own weight correctly, bang up against other scales that they could get weighed on before hand, and thus guess on a sure thing? You must have great faith in human nature, you?"

"Oh, no, sir," said the porter, "but we have in the machine."

Little Robert was much interested in the picture of a stork which he saw in a magazine.

"Say, mamma," he asked, what has become of the bird's other leg?"

"It has raised it up among its feathers," replied the mother.

"That's funny," the boy observed. "I thought it was trying to clean its shoe on its stocking like sister Ethel does."

Sure of One Thing.

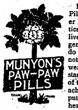
CONSTIPATION



Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods, they do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. Price 25 cents. All Druggists.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Litchfield.—The call for reports from banks shows $2,235,783.13 on deposit in the three Litchfield banks.

Brainerd.—Exercises commemorating the birthday of Washington, will be held in all the school buildings of Brainerd.

Pipestone.—The farm house occupied by Henry Wiener and family, fifteen miles northeast of Pipestone, was burned.

Swanville.—The 11-year-old son of George Schlumpberger was kicked in the face by a horse and will be disfigured for life.

Winona.—A meeting of rural mail carriers of Winona county has been called for Feb. 22, for the purpose of forming an association.

Duluth.—D. H. Day, son of the late David Day, has announced himself a candidate for mayor under the commission form of government.

Faribault.—Patrick Walsh, aged 79 years, a recluse, was found dead in bed by some neighbors. He apparently had been dead a week or more.

Madelia.—There is a persistent rumor that Madelia is to have the division roundhouse of the Omaha road, about to be removed from St. James.

Austin.—Louis Goetch, a policeman, ordered a crew of Greek laborers to form a human chain to save the life of a boy who had broken through the ice.

Grand Rapids.—Peter Weaver, a foreman at McDonald's lumber camps on the Big Fork river, was brought here with both legs and arms so badly frozen that amputation may be necessary.

Winona.—At a meeting of Sunday school superintendents and ministers here it was unanimously voted to invite the state Sunday schmool association to hold its annual convention in Winona in 1914.

Cannon Falls.—The Vasa Co-operative Mercantile company elected officers as follows: President, Emil C. Pearson; vice president, L. W. Hemptfling; secretary, T. P. Lindquist; treasurer, A. L. Sundell.

Albert Lea.—John Bothum, an aged man, employed to run the elevator at the new packing plant, was caught between the lower side of the floor and the bottom of the elevator and sustained severe and perhaps fatal injuries.

Pipestone.—Insurance men came to Trosky and adjusted the losses sustained in Monday's fire. The heaviest loser was L. H. Crane, whose general store and stock, valued at over $10,000, were destroyed. He had $4,000 insurance.

Pipestone.—Lock W. Alexander, aged 68, is dead at his home here. He enlisted in Company F, seventy-fourth Illinois infantry, in 1862, and served under Generals Buell, Sherman, Rosecrans and Grant. He was in the battles of Lookout Mountain, Stony River, Perryville, Chickamauga, Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta and Nashville.

Grand Rapids.—The logging season in this district will close within two weeks. It has been the most successful in several years for the small operators. The tie, post and pulp wood cutters have over 3,000 men employed in the upper Mississippi country and would have had twice as many if they could have been found. The industry is reaping the second crop of trees, going over the ground cut years ago by the big loggers.

Mankato.—The next meeting of the Southern Minnesota Better Development league is to be held in this city March 11 and 12. This was decided upon at a meeting of the executive committee. A program was outlined. The matter of raising sufficient money to finance the league properly will be considered, and a partial re-organization is possible. A banquet is proposed for the first evening. J. S. Tolverson of Fulda, was appointed chairman of a finance committee.

Butterfield.—Postoffice inspectors have arrested E. B. Nedved, former night operator in the railway tower-house near here, on a charge of stealing from the mails, and say they have found a quantity of missing packages under the floor of the tower-house and in Nedved's residence. Nedved has been held to the federal grand jury, which meets at Mankato April 22, and released on $2,500 bonds. He is said to have confessed to taking packages from sacks. He formerly lived in Iowa, and has a wife and child.

Duluth.—Family differences among the heirs the late Henry Stephens, Sr., of Detroit, Mich., have been settled out of court. Mrs. Clarinda Stephens, a grandmother, aged 81 brought suit against her grandchildren seeking to recover interests worth several million dollars on the claim that she had been deprived of her share in her husband's estate by the fraudulent acts of her son, who acted as executor of the estate. The big lawsuits, affecting the Stephens holdings in Minnesota, have been settled by Judge Dancer signing orders for judgment pursuant to stipulation of all the parties concerned.

Arlington.—The Commercial club held its annual banquet last week, and received five new members. The following officers were elected: C. F. Maurer, president; W. C. Streissguth, vice president; F. F. Schlegel, secretary, and Rev. F. Rant, treasurer.

Brainerd.—The annual election of the Brainerd Musical club resulted: President, Mrs. Henry I. Cohen; vice president, Mrs. George D. La Bar; recording secretary, Miss Millicent Mahlum; treasurer, Mrs. F. A. Farrar; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. A. Haggard.

Hibbing.—Two indeterminate sentences, with a maximum of thirty years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary, were imposed upon J. P. Tredinnick, former Eveleth broker, by Judge Martin Hughes in district court yesterday. Tredinnick pleaded guilty to the charges in two indictments. One charged forgery in the first degree and the other grand larceny in the first degree.

Pipestone.—The reports of the two state banks in Pipestone at the close of business on Feb. 4, show resources of $941,638.35. The deposits amount to $821,283.64.

TRUCK GARDENING AND POULTRY RAISING

THESE, AS WELL AS OTHER MIXED FARMING BRANCHES, PAY IN WESTERN CANADA.

Truck gardening and poultry growing are two branches of agriculture in which the farmers near the main lines of the three transcontinental lines traversing Western Canada are much concerned. The abundance of sunshine during the long days from May to September, and adequate moisture in the spring and early summer permit of a wide variety of crops. The soil is rich and warm and is easily worked. Close attention to cultivation has resulted in record yields of all sorts of vegetable and small fruits which bring good prices in the cities and at the numerous railway construction camps.

Mr. Harris Olum, an Alberta farmer, came from South Dakota eleven years ago and homesteaded the first 160 acres in his township in 1902, which was divided between grain and pasture. He earned sufficient money to buy a quarter section of railway land at $11 an acre. The half section netted proportionate profits and he gradually increased his holdings to 1,920 acres, which was devoted to mixed farming last year. He values his land at $50 an acre.

Mr. Olum markets from 100 to 125 hogs and a similar number of beef cattle each year. He has 200 hogs, mostly pure bred Poland China, 25 head draft horses and 35 head of pure bred Hereford cattle. By feeding barley to hogs he estimates that the grain nets him 80 cents a bushel, as compared with 40 cents, the average market price when delivered to the warehouse. His average crop of barley is 40 bushels to the acre, while oats average 80 bushels.

By writing any Canadian Government Agent, full particulars as to best districts on which to secure homesteads will be cheerfully given.—Advertisement.

Ceylon Tea.

Tea plantations in Ceylon have been in existence only 30 years, yet the annual exports of black tea amount to nearly $20,000,000 in value. Formerly coffee constituted Ceylon's main industry, but after a disease of the plant in 1880 its cultivation was discontinued. Many planters, however, recouped themselves by tea and rubber. Thanks chiefly to the former article, the island's old prosperity revived. Today Ceylon boasts 1,500 plantations.

Plant necessary to tea cultivation is costly but very labor-saving. The work itself is not hard; only the climate makes it irksome. What is wanted mainly of employes is to watch machinery and feed it from the stock of tea leaves awaiting treatment. The workers are not Singhalese, but natives of southern India. A laborer's wages vary from eight to sixteen cents a day, while a foreman's salary averages $200 a month.—Harper's Weekly.

AS TO FLAVOUR.

Found Her Favorite Again.

A bright young lady tells how she came to be acutely sensitive as to the taste of coffee:

"My health had been very poor for several years," she says. "I loved coffee and drank it for breakfast, but only learned by accident, as it were, that it was the cause of the constant, dreadful headaches from which I suffered every day, and of the nervousness that drove sleep from my pillow and so deranged my stomach that everything I ate gave me acute pain. (Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"My condition finally got so serious that I was advised by my doctor to go to a hospital. There they gave me what I supposed was coffee, and I thought it was the best I ever drank, but I have since learned it was Postum. I gained rapidly and came home in four weeks.

"Somehow the coffee we used at home didn't taste right when I got back. I tried various kinds, but none tasted as good as that I drank in the hospital, and all brought back the dreadful headaches and the 'sick-all-over' feeling.

"One day I got a package of Postum, and the first taste of it I took, I said 'that's the good coffee we had in the hospital.' I have drank it ever since, and eat Grape-Nuts for my breakfast. I have no more headaches, and feel better than I have for years." Name given upon request. Read the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavour is always uniform. Sold by grocers—45 to 60-cent tin 30 cts., 90 to 100-cup tin 50 cts.

A 5-cup trial tin mailed for grocer's name and 2-cent stamp for postage. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek Mich.—Adv.

VALUE OF LEAF MOLD

Especially Important Ingredient for the Soil

Quality of Fertilizer Secured Depends Very Materially on Sort of Leaves Composing It and Manner of Preparation.

(By W. R. GILBERT.)

This term is applied to leaves when they are so thoroughly decayed as to readily separate small particles.

Leaf molds is a valuable manure in many instances, especially on heavy soils, and one of the most important ingredients for the soil used in the successful cultivation of the majority of plants.

It may be used freely, particularly with the tender seedlings and cuttings of sofe wooded subjects, provided it be of good quality and free from injurious growth.

The production of roots in young plants of this description is induced and accelerated with more certainty by planting in this material than by the use of any other.

The quality of leaf mold depends very materially upon the sort of leaves composing it and in the manner of preparation adopted.

It is found from experience that the best leaves are those collected from a wood or other place where the principal trees are beech and oak, and where their leaves fall over a large surface each year, and naturally decay slowly, until those beneath the surface become changed into a light mold.

Leaf mold of good quality may be used to the extent of about one-third in composts of azaleas, greenhouse rhododendrons, and many of the fine-rooted, hard-wooded plants of this description.

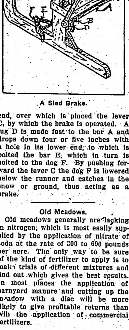
It may also with advantage be incorporated along with peat in the preparation of the beds for nearly all plants of the health family which are grown out of doors.

Further, nothing is better suited for improving flower-beds, or for adding to soil of any description, for placing around trees, shrubs or plants whose roots it is desired to encourage.

SLED BRAKE RELIEVES TEAM

Considerable Weight Is Taken From Horses in Descending Hills—Runner Catches in Snow.

A sled brake can be made as shown in the accompanying illustration that will take the load from the team when descending hills. To make this brake a round bar A is fastened to the front bob with heavy eyes as shown at B, says the Iowa Homestead. A square head should be formed on the outer end, over which is placed the lever C, by which the brake is operated. A lug D is made fast to the bar A and drops down four or five inches with a hole in its lower end, to which is bolted the bar E, which in turn is bolted to the dog F. By pushing forward the lever C the dog F is lowered below the runner and catches in the snow or ground, thus acting as a brake.



A Sled Brake.

Old Meadows.

Old meadows generally are lacking in nitrogen, which is most easily supplied by the application of nitrate of soda at the rate of 300 to 600 pounds per acre. The only way to be sure of the kind of fertilizer to apply is to make trials of different mixtures and find out which gives the best results. In most places the application of barnyard manure and cutting up the meadow with a disc will be more likely to give profitable returns than with the application of commercial fertilizers.

Starting the Market Lambs.

If the lambs are to be fattened for market start them on a little grain just as soon as they will learn to eat it, and feed grain continuously with good pasture until they go to the block. Prime fat ribs cannot be produced by alternate grass and grain. They must be pushed to lay on fat from start to finish.

Feedings Pigs.

There should be system in feeding pigs that are to be used for breding, and that system should contemplate and have for its purpose rapid growth and early maturity of the animals; but, at the same time, they should be fed for a growth of frame and bone—not fattened on corn, but expanded by a feed rich in protein.

Vegetable Gardens.

Every country home should be well supplied with vegetables and every effort should be made to have a good garden. It requires rich soil and plenty of work and nothing should be neglected that will make things grow if there is a good supply of vegetables at reasonable cost.

Corn for Finishing Pigs.

Pigs that have been properly grown up to five months with big strong frames can be rounded up quickly for market with a ration consisting largely of corn.

Encourage Egg Laying.

Scatter some wheat or small grain in the litter at night after the hens have gone to roost and don't neglect to water well if you expect eggs.

MOTTO FOR CHRISTIAN HOME

Ideals Which Consistently Lived Up to, Cannot Fail to Make for Happiness in Life.

This home is dedicated to good will. It grew out of love. The two heads of the household were called together by a power higher than they. To its decree they are obedient. Every tone of the voice, every thought of their being, is subdued to that service. They desire to be worthy of their high calling, as ministers of that grace. They know their peace will go unbroken only for a little time. And often they suspect that the time will be more short even than their anxious hope. They cannot permit so much as one hour of that brief unity to be touched by scorn or malice. The world's judgments have lost their sting inside this door. Those who come seeking to continue the harmony which these two have won are ever welcome. The rich are welcome, so they come simply. The poor are welcome, for they have already learned friendliness through buffeting. Youth is welcome, for it brings the joy which these two would learn. Age is welcome, for it will teach them tenderness.—Collier's Weekly.

CHILD'S FACE ALL RED SPOTS

632 N. 5th St., Terre Haute, Ind.—"My little nephew, a boy of four years, had a breaking out on his face. It was little red spots at first, then he would rub and scratch and water blisters would form, and wherever the water would run another would come until his face was covered with them. He would cry and fret. His mother got some medicine, but it did not do any good. He would scream and cry and say it hurt. We hardly knew him, his little face was all red spots and blisters. So I begged him to let me put some Cuticura Ointment on them. The next morning I made a strong soap suds with Cuticura Soap and washed his face in the warm suds. The little blisters burst by pressing the cloth on them. After I had his face washed, I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in a short time his little face was all red and dry. I kept using the Cuticura Soap and putting on the Cuticura Ointment and his face got as well and it did not leave a scar. He was entirely cured in about one week and a half." Julius Caesar.

The almost unanimous verdict of ancient and modern times is to the effect that Julius Caesar was what Shakespeare calls him: "The foremost man of all this world." Never before or since has any one exhibited in so high a degree all the qualities of a born ruler of men. And never had any man a grander role to play. To preside over the most important crisis in the history of the most important branch of the human race was a task that none but the greatest of men could successfully perform. Caesar swept one obstacle after another aside, and stood at last where he meant to stand.

THE PRICE OF BEEF

IS HIGH AND SO IS THE PRICE OF CATTLE.

For years the Province of Alberta (Western Canada) was the Big Ranching Country. Many of these ranches today are immense grain fields and the cattle have given place to the cultivation of wheat, oats, barley and flax; the change has made many thousands of Americans, settled on these plains, wealthy, but it has increased the price of live stock.

There is splendid opportunity now to get a

Strange, Indeed!

Bishop Rowe, now of South Dakota, was upon a certain occasion obliged to start out afoot to reach a church in an eastern state. The August day was close and hot and the road was dusty, so that after half an hour's pedestrianism the reverend gentleman was well pleased when a man drew along in a spring wagon and offered a lift. His reverence wore no clerical garb and the state of his apparel after the tramping gave small indication of his calling.

The team jogged into a deep wood. The churchman deemed the time and the place fit for the broaching of spiritual things. Accordingly he opened the subject—rather abruptly, he confesses.

"Young man," he demanded solemnly, "are you prepared to die?"

"Do you know," the bishop innocently explained afterward, "the fellow gave a whoop, dropped the reins, jumped off the seat, and, before I could say a word, he had gone crashing through the woods! Now, why do you suppose he did that?"

Is Letter Writing Lost Art?

It is a well-known fact that in the present rush of life the art of letter writing is dying rapidly, especially among women. There is no time lost in long-winded sentences and needless fancy comments. The up-to-date mondaine in question expresses herself in a short, precise, crisp manner, and merely betrays her frame of mind, while corresponding, in the selection of her ink. If the lady means to show herself in an amiable, friendly mood, she chooses green ink. Yellow or orange implies that the writer is exuberantly happy. The various shades of violet demand a careful study on the part of the reader, blue predominating over red to an important extent when the writer seeks consolation. The most eccentric case of all is the use of white ink upon red paper. The latter expresses exceptional pride and energy carried to an excessive degree.

Germany Makes Magnesia Floors.

They are making the floors of big office buildings in Germany of a mixture of magnesium chloride, pulverized magnesia and sawdust, laid from two to four inches thick. Consul General Robert P. Skinner reports from Hamburg that such floors are waterproof, almost fireproof, crack-free, warm under foot, elastic, sound-proof and cheaper than pine flooring, tiling or stone.

Sam Clark, publisher of "Jim Jam Jems" recently in the limelight by reason of his indictment by the grand jury of North Daketa, will be placed on trial in the federal court at Bismarck at the term commencing March 11. The case has attracted interest throughout the northwest because of the movement upon the part of the postal authorities against dealers who had handled the publication. There is a possibility that Sam Clark and Clarence Crockard, who also is under indictment, will move for a change of venue on the plea of prejudice.

Otto "Mutt" Anderson disposed of his interests in the pool room and restaurant the latter part of last week to Gerret Gabbrd, of Bellview, Minn., who took active charge. Monday. "Mutt" is undecided as to what he will engage in in the future, but says that he has been offered a position at Stillwater in a twine factory, but that it does not appeal to him very strongly. He may decide to locate at Wylie when he gets his affairs straightened up here which will take a few days.

Chas. Gustafson, the Thief River implement man, and I. N. Thompson, district agent of the Acme machinery company, was down from Thief River Falls yesterday morning on business.

Aug. Anderson returned Tuesday evening from Kelliher near which place he has been working in the woods. He left Wednesday for Wylie.

The local matrimonial bureau's office has been closed temporarily owing to the illness of its manager.

Postmaster O. J. Johnson received a letter the first of the week from Montgomry-Ward & Co., stating that a mail order with money enclosed had been received by them, but the name of the sender had been omitted. The letter was post-marked Plummer they assert. The sender, whoever he is, can receive his goods by sending in his name and by properly describing the contents of the order and the amount remitted.

Judge of Probate.

Lillo Locals

Mr. Ole Wested hauled a load of grain to Oklee on Thursday.

Theo. Reindol and Thorwald Brekke are busy hauling hay for Con Short from the north side of Red Lake river.

The basket social held at the Jorgenson school house last Saturday evening was well attended and all report a fairly good time. The proceed amounted to $64.25 which went to Mrs. Jorgesson who's oldest son died about two weeks ago. It may be remembered that Mrs. Jorgesson's husband was killed by an accident about four years ago on his way home from Plummer, where he had done some trading.

Teo. Reindol and Carl Sletwet and others were visiting the Jorgesson home Sunday.

Lars For and Iver Iverson are busy hauling grain to Oklee this week.

H. B. Rundal visited with Ole Berkeland and Gunder Sordalh Sunday last.

Gunder Kolshers called at the Lillo, post ofice Monday.

Mr. Ole Bendickson made a business trip to Hicory Monday.

James Walker and Pat Short are busy hauling hay at present.

The many changes in the weather has caused a lot of caughs and colds our way as most places one or two are among the stay in's.

Again we are compelled to pass a few uncanny remarks about the fellow who persists in tying his horses so close to our sanctum door. If you don't want to make us mad, don't do it!

A dance will be given at the Oklee hall on saturday evening, March 8th. Music will be furnished by the Mike Kolski orchestra, and supper will be served at the restaurant. Tickets 75c, spectators 25c. A good time is guaranteed.

Every where you go you hear the same old story, about the hard times. Sure, how could it be otherwise. We throw away ashes and soap. We raise dogs and buy hogs. We grow weeds and buy vegetables. We catch fish from a four dollar rod. We build school houses and send our children away from home to be educated. And last but not least we send our boys out with a forty dollar gun and a twenty dollar dog to hunt ten cent fame. Yes, these are hard times, but whose fault is it? Don't place all the blame on the president and the trust.

Once in a while a subscriber is offended because we notify him when his subscription expires. We do this so he will know how his account stands and not because we are afraid of getting our pay. We do not want to send the paper to anyone who does not want it and by getting notice they can decide whether or not to renew. A dissatisfied subscribed is a poor asset to any paper.—Eleven Towns.

A bunch of sports were over to Red Lake Falls Thursday evening of last week to take in the Curtis-Potts wrestling match. Curtis, the whirlwind wrestler from Halstad, again turned the trick by throwing the husky Minneapolis man. The boys claim the match was a fast and interesting one but was "hard on the eyes" as some of the members of the party experienced most wonderful phenomenons on their return home. One of the members of the party states that he saw a fly chasing a jack-rabbit, and he is ready to swear to it. Others are inclined to think he made a mistake in the number of rabbits, etc. Hair pulling was the result and now the boys are turning each other soreheads.

A GOOD TIME ASSURED

An interesting wrestling match match will be pulled off Saturday night of next week between Ole A. Bergdahl and E. L. Wichterman, two local veterans of the wrestling game, at the city hall. Mr Wichterman left yesterday for Trail where he will wrestle with the heavy tamarac poles to make him in shape for the coming contest. Ole claims he does not need any training as this will be a "puddin'" for him. The contestants assure the public that there will be no Curtis-"Sailor Jack" tactics in this game; that everything will be on the square and above-board.

A Big Day For The Editor.

The editor of a Kansas paper says that he picked up a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the warpath and everyone he met insisted on paying all they owed. One man wiped out a debt of [illegible] years standing. On returning to the office he found a load of hay, 15 bushels of corn, 10 bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips.—Ex.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Briefly Told Happenings of the Past Week

Washington

After prolonged cabinet meeting Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson in the City of Mexico was instructed to inform the Huerta-Diaz regime that the United States would view with disfavor any action contemplating serious consequences to Francisco Madero "without due processes of law."

* * *

Prohibition of prosecution of labor unions and farmers' organizations under the Sherman anti-trust law by the department of justice was written into the sundry civil appropriation by the house of representatives.

* * *

There are to be no Democratic or other donkeys in the inaugural parade on March 4. This was decided at a meeting of the inaugural committee in Washington when it was asked to pass upon the request of a man who desired to lead a donkey garnished with the horns of a bull moose and the tusks of an elephant.

* * *

Asserting that the bill to incorporate the Rockefeller foundation has been amended so as to remove all danger of an unrestricted perpetuation of that institution, the senate committee on judiciary made a favorable report to the United States senate and asked that the bill be passed. The house has given its approval.

* * *

The immigration bill, which President Taft vetoed, went into the waste basket of the house of representatives by a vote of 213 to 114, only five less than the necessary two-thirds, and the long and bitterly contested battle was over for the present session.

* * *

The largest pension bill ever reported to congress, carrying appropriations aggregating $180,300,000, was passed by the house by a vote of 219 to 40, with an amendment which will make necessary an additional appropriation of more than $1,000,000.

Domestic

Under the "unwritten law" a jury at Marion, O., found fourteen-year-old Vittorio Beneditto not guilty of a charge of second degree murder for shooting Antonio Stefano, his mother's alleged admirer. The boy followed his mother and Stefano from Freeport, Ill., last November.

* * *

The Tingle bill, providing an inheritance tax law for Indiana, passed the state senate. It had previously passed the house and now goes to Governor Ralston for his signature. The measure provides a tax of from one per cent. on inheritances of $25,000 or less to three times the amount of the primary assessment on estates of $500,000 or more.
